Sins of Ignorance ing a Life of Sorrow to Thousands of Girls

Mary Ann was all sweetness and innocence. She lived in a world of dreams, peopled with gallant knights and dashing heroes of her story books.

When her hero came and told her of London Town, with its lure of lights and music, it was an easy matter to persuade her to run away. In a short time her house of cards tumbled down. The tinsel gone, her romance dead, she crept back to the village in tears.

Her broken-hearted mother took her to the curate for advice. In the quiet of his study she sobbed out her story.

"I didn't know," she wept. "I didn't realize the harm. I had never been told."

The curate looked out of the window and saw his own daughter, Effie, dancing in the sunlight, happy in her youth, exalted in love. She had been carefully educated, safe from contact with the outside world.

A great light dawned on the curate. It was not Mary Ann's fault that she had answered the lure of London Town. It was not her fault that life had dealt her so severe a blow.

The curate hastened to his wife and demanded that she instruct Effie of those impulses that enter so seriously into the lives of all girls. But his wife was horrified. Her mother had never told her. It shocked her to think of telling the truths about life. And she refused.

Then there happened an incident in the life of Effie which aroused the curate to the fury of action. Through her innocence she had committed an indiscretion. Then she was told and she was saved.

And there arose from the curate's heart a great prayer for the mothers who avert life's issues; for the fathers who delude themselves; for the unutterable piteousness of the blindness of virtue.

This startling revelation of the mysteries of life and love are made in Cosmo Hamilton's masterpiece, "The Blindness of Virtue," which Essanay has produced in a great six-act photoplay, released through all the branch offices of the V. L. S. E., Inc.

THE POWER OF THANHOUSER PRODUCTIONS IS FELT ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

presents the following releases of the Thanhouser brand:

"A Maker of Guns"

This offering rouses one with a jerk to the fact that this little old world of ours is not as it should be—and the plot is timely. Imagine a man who manufactures cannon; he takes pride in their power—shows them off exultantly and explains how many men they can kill with one shot. Oh, yes! He's got 'em perfect as science and dollars can make 'em. Then—bingo! The big kick comes on—his own son's life-blood is spilled over the battlefield by one of those grand guns! Can you see ACTING? Can you see Mignon Anderson, Morris Foster, Peggy Burke and Arthur Bauer doing justice to it? YOU CERTAINLY WILL!

Released in two reels. Tuesday, July 6th.

"Tracked Through the Snow"

It's a drama, but it will keep you cool—there's a furious, raging blizzard in it! Snow in July is welcome and there's mountains of it here. Little Baby Badgley plays the lead, aided by a whopping big, shaggy bow-wow! And the regular Thanhouser favorites—Boyd Marshall, John Lehnberg, and some more.

Released in one reel. Sunday, July 11th.

Let the FALSTAFF COMEDIES put your audiences in good humor; they are polite, neat and reliable. This week

Edwin Thanhouser presents "Madame Blanche, Beauty Doctor"

Riley Chamberlain plays a grouchy, rheumatic old duffer who needs an operation on his bank account. Harry Benham becomes a beautiful Madame, and Mignon Anderson takes a jolly good part in the jolly work—and it's all free from horseplay.

Released in one reel. Friday, July 9th.

What the Chicago Tribune says of the new Essanay-Chaplin plays.

One reason for the popularity of the new Essanay-Chaplin comedies is that they are free from the vulgarities in many alleged comic pictures. As The Chicago Tribune says, the Essanay-Chaplin comedies are "seeable from the point of view of respectability."

Good Pictures and Poor Pictures

LAST week I viewed two pictures which presented so striking a contrast that an analysis may be of interest and profit.

Both were five-reel dramatic features. Both cost about the same in production.

Both had stars. Both were adaptations—one of a well-known novel, one of a well-known play. Both had directors equally well known.

BOTH started, in other words, with about equal chances of success, with much the same optimism and good intentions upon the part of the makers.

Yet one turned out to be almost a complete failure and the other practically a perfect picture.

WHY?

What were the causes of success and of failure?

Did these concern the director, the stars, the adaptation, the settings, the photography?

YES, undoubtedly. These important factors are always contributory; and generally we point to one or more of them as the direct causes for success or failure.

But the point is that each maker had equal opportunities in each of these respects. Each spent as much money. No one star, or director, or photographer, or scenario writer, withheld from the one by high salary or contract, made the overwhelming superiority of the other picture.

THE big reason goes back of each and all of these factors.

It is this: One maker had the organization, the equipment, the knowledge, the ability to plan and construct good pictures and the other didn't.

That's the real cause of success and failure; and it is a very widespread and basic cause today of good and poor pictures.

WE take it for granted; in fact, it is evident in the poor picture, that the maker had the best of intentions and enterprise.

But enterprise alone doesn't make successful pictures.

PICTURE making is an art and science all itself—intensive, distinct from every other art and science. It demands picture knowledge, picture equipment.

Stage experience and traditions have a bearing on picture making; publishing experience counts; so do other kinds of ability and training.

BUT picture making embraces all these and yet is a distinct, different art, just as a picture differs from a stage production, from a magazine, from every other product in the world.

IN the successful picture a star was used; but, be it known, not simply because he was a star, but because his style of acting was better adapted to the leading part than was that of any other actor in the world. He was picked for the picture. Other characters were selected with the same unerring picture judgment; in places the acting of minor characters equalled the work of the lead.

THE adaptation was a perfect picture adaptation, introducing the characters smoothly, unfolding the plot clearly, absorbingly and in obedience, not alone to the rules of dramatic art, but also of photo-dramatic art.

The settings throughout were as realistic as is everyday life itself; never once did the bare ribs of studio manufacture show through and destroy the art of illusion which is the supreme effort of picture making.

THIS picture is a success; it will delight present audiences; it will hasten the day when the unconverted millions will go regularly to picture theatres; it will live forever—not because of the name of the play, or the star, or the director, but because of an excellence quite beyond names—and that is picture excellence.

THE other picture was a pathetic failure; and this simply because it was made by men anxious to get "into the game," anxious to do their best, but not picture makers.

It is just as if any group of fairly intelligent men, regardless of training, got together and said "We will make pictures."

IT is just as if aeroplanes were suddenly made popular with the millions and many of us, through enterprise alone, started making flying-machines.

Would they fly? No. But no more will a picture go that is made without a knowledge of the picture craft.

WE need the best of talent in acting, direction, stories, photography. But back of all these elements good pictures demand good producing firms, firms with ideals, thorough knowledge of their craft, thorough equipment for the craft.

We have some such firms today; we need—and will have—more.

The Devil, His Daughter and the Ohio Censors

THE Ohio Board of Censors have never placed themselves in a more thoroughly ridiculous light than in their recent attempt to express their disapproval of the Fox film, "The Devil's Daughter."

Circumstances as well as their own narrow-mindedness conspired to make the incident a complete exposure of the ripper trio and their methods.

REPRESENTATIVES of a number of Ohio newspapers were present at the censorial ceremony. At almost the same time the police department were given an opportunity to appraise the film officially.

The newspaper men endorsed the film in toto.

The police department expressed satisfaction with the picture, and was ready to allow it to be exhibited.

THEN enter the censors, denounce the photoplay as "vicious" and "sensational," and proceed to indulge in the most reckless surgery. Most amazing of all, however, is their objection to the title.

"The Devil never had a daughter," declared these simple-minded officials, "therefore the title is wrong!"

AN ignorant peasant of five hundred years ago might be pardoned for such astounding reasoning, but for three persons holding public office in the United States, A. D. 1915, it seems almost beyond belief.

The newspaper critics naturally did not attempt to reply to this declaration of the official mind. But when they recovered from their laughter, they answered the censors' attacks by pronouncing "The Devil's Daughter" no more vicious than a Punch and Judy show, and no more sensational than "Way Down East."

Is it any wonder that the Ohio exhibitors are rising to demand freedom from this plague of "censorship"?

The Way to Meet the Airdome Tax Situation

THERE is not the slightest doubt that the Federal Government's ruling making airdomes subject to the same war tax as closed theatres is a glaring act of injustice to the exhibitor.

But there is also not the slightest doubt that, had the exhibitors seen to it that they were represented at Washington by some person or group of persons able to command the attention of the authorities, and insist upon the injustice of such a ruling, it would never have been put in force.

Other businesses have faced the same situation, locally and nationally. But other businesses, unlike the motion picture business, have promptly enlisted champions in their behalf to represent and protect their interests at the source of this injurious legislation.

THIS does not mean bribery nor does it mean corruption. It means simply engaging a representative who can assist the legislators to act intelligently toward this business instead of blindly, as they cannot help doing for lack of adequate information.

This, in turn, means an exhibitor organization. Isn't the whole situation an excellent field in which the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League can demonstrate concretely its value to the exhibitor, providing, of course, the exhibitor will support it to that end?

Can You Afford to Miss This Convention?

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League convention in San Francisco next month will be worth every dollar the exhibitor has to spend and every mile he has to travel to reach it, no matter from what part of the country he comes. Politics has been absolutely eliminated. The only man not to be welcomed at the convention will be he who comes with his own or some one else's axe to grind.

BUSINESS will be uppermost. Business ideals, business improvement, business methods, business expansion, will be the topics of the sessions.

The business every exhibitor is engaged in will be the subject of analysis, discussion and suggestion, and not an idea will be put forth that the exhibitor cannot apply right in his own business relations.

It will pay you, Mr. Exhibitor, to be there. There may have been conventions in other years that you could miss without losing anything. You cannot afford to miss this one.

What the Rothapfel Dinner Signified

THE dinner tendered to S. L. Rothapfel last week turned out to be a rather remarkable event. Such an outpouring of extreme tributes would be apt, in most any case, to turn a man's head; but, as we estimate Mr. Rothapfel, he is too clever for that, and too good a fellow. Also, he is too busy studying audiences, and the pleasing effects of music, flowers, projection and all else involved in the artistic presentation of pictures to have any time to admire himself.

The remarkable feature of the dinner was its prevalent atmosphere of candor, good fellowship and optimism. Tributes were freely paid to a film man by film men. Picture makers emphasized the necessity of good pictures.

One speaker even admitted that some of his pictures were not good, which perhaps is the first public or even private admission of this kind from any producer.

All in all, there was an undercurrent strongly indicative of progress, of a recognition of the greater motion picture, and the greater motion picture audience, and of definite progress toward the accomplishment of each.

Don't Forget! The Convention is Next Week

Committee, Headed by M. E. Cory, the Indefatigable, Sells the Remainder of Floor Space and Completes Plans for Entertainment of Guests—"News" Will Issue Account of Business Meetings in a Daily—Stars from the Studios Will Grace Convention Ball

Los Angeles, June 28.

THE visit of M. E. Cory, vice-president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and chairman of the committee on arrangements for the national convention to be held at San Francisco, to this city, was highly successful.

Not only did Mr. Cory succeed in securing a number of very excellent numbers for the program of the business sessions, but in practically all instances studio managers assured him that they would arrange for leading players to attend the convention ball. He also succeeded in selling the remainder of the space at the convention exposition, and received considerable patronage for the official program of the convention.

News Plans Convention Daily

The convention committee, through Mr. Cory, has granted the privilege of issuing a convention daily newspaper to J. C. Jessen, the west coast representative of Motion Picture News, and arrangements were completed for the publicity men of various studios in and about Los Angeles to take charge of the several departments of this publication. Included in the number are Kenneth O'Hara, NYMP studio; Ford I. Beebe, Universal City; Kenneth McGaffey, the Lasky company; W. E. Wing, the Selig company; Bennie Zeidman, the Reliance-Majestic studio; Frederick Palmer, the Keystone studio; C. W. Pope, "Morning Telegraph," and others. The deep secret of the aggregation is the cartoonist, but he will be on the job every minute.

Mr. Cory while here took up the matter of arranging for exhibitors' visits to the large studios, and while the itinerary has not been completed and all matters definitely settled, it was determined that all convention people would come to this city in special trains following the Selig special, and while here to be guests of the 1915 entertainment committee of Los Angeles.

Trips will be arranged by traction and carry-all automobiles to Universal City, Lasky, Majestic and Reliance, the Selig jungle-zoo, and the picturesque producing plant of the New York Motion Picture corporation at Inceville.

Convention Guests at Studios

The program will in all probability include a half day at the Universal plant where the visitors will have lunch. In the afternoon the Reliance and Majestic and Lasky studios will be visited, and at four o'clock, Colonel W. N. Selig becomes the host. Large spectacular scenes will be staged in which many of the zoo animals will be used, and at six o'clock a "Dutch lunch" will be served.

In the evening an informal dance will be given at the Selig jungle-zoo pavilion. The second day will be taken up in a trip to Inceville, which will consume the greater part of the day, owing to the distance of the studio from the city. Later the exhibitors will visit the principal picture theatres.

Judge A. P. Tugwell, president of the Exhibitors' League of Southern California, and other officers are now arranging for a special meeting to be held while the visiting exhibitors are in Los Angeles. This will be of the nature of a social session.

The invitation of Chairman Cory to the managers of production at the various studios to send players to the convention ball was very warmly received. General Manager Caulfield, of Universal City, plans to send just as many as possible of the stars of the "revolving globe films," and suggested that if possible they would have every celebrity at the ball. Colonel W. H. Selig, Frank E. Woods, Thomas H. Ince and others immediately took the matter up with their directors in order to arrange that leading players could be absent from the studios Friday and Saturday, July 16 and 17, without interfering with productions.

Following is the complete list of stars who, according to present arrangements, will be present at the convention ball:

New York Motion Picture corporation: Williams S. Hart, House Peters, Bessie Barriscale and Margaret Thompson.

Universal Film Manufacturing company: Al Christie, Eddie Lyons, Victoria Forde, Lee Moran, Francis Ford, Grace Cunard, Robert Leonard, Ella Hall, Herbert Rawlinson and Anna Little.

Majestic and Reliance companies: Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Mae Marsh, Fay Tincher, Robert Harron, Charles Clary, Ralph Lewis, Elmer Clifton.

Selig Polyscope company: Kathlyn Williams, Thomas Santschi, Bessie Eyton Eugene Palatte.

Lasky company: Blache Sweet, Carlyle Blackwell, and probably Geraldine Farrar.

Quality Pictures, Inc.: Francis X. Bushman and Margaret Snow.

Vitagraph Company of America: Myrtle Gonzales, William Duncan.

Keystone company: Mabel Normand, Owen Moore, Ford Sterling and Raymond Hitchcock.

Announcement has not been made regarding who will represent the MinA Film company, the American studio, and several others.

Army of U Beauties Cease Conquests and Disband

Their Sweep Across Continent, Marked by Complete Subjugation of All Obdurate Masculine Fortresses, Is Now Ended

THE Universal beauties have come home. All the charming young women who set out from Grand Central station some three weeks ago arrived back under the big star-studded dome June 26 at 4 p. m. Leading the procession of the beauties from the Atlantic seaboard were Peggie Dolan, of Newark, N. J., and Agnes Cheney, of Concord, N. H.; who won third and fourth prize at Universal City. All the girls were bronzed by their long trip, but none of them seemed fagged.

J. H. Eslow, general manager of the Universal exchange in Boston, was right on hand to take care of his New England delegation and to see that each of them got back to their respective homes in safety. The girls appeared loath to part from each other.

Accompanying the beauties were Nat Rothstein of the advertising department of the Universal and H. H. Van Loan, who, after Joe Brandt originated and set the beauty contest idea in motion, kept the ball a-rolling.

Among those who greeted the returning beauty special were George E. Kann, Paul Gulick, Bert Adler, Mannie Goldstein, M. H. Hoffman, Julius Lewis and Julius Stern, R. H. Cavanagh and R. S. Doman.

Nat Rothstein declared, once he had recovered his land legs, that the return trip had been fully as exciting as the beginning of the journey.

"I am sorry that Joe Brandt wasn't aboard on the return trip," said Mr. Rothstein. "He is now in Universal City looking things over. If he doesn't like the town he will probably tear it down. All the girls were very grateful to Joe, for it was to him, in the first place, that they owed their trip. That they all appreciated the fact was evidenced when they presented him with a magnificent traveling bag as a token of their appreciation of the excellent manner in which he handled the special from Chicago to the coast."

Mr. Rothstein neglected to state that the girls had presented both him and Mr. Van Loan with beautiful sets of gold and pearl studs.

EXHIBITORS DEMAND FIRST RUN FILMS

At a recent meeting of Alameda County Local, No. 2, of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, of California, held at Oakland, a resolution was passed protesting against the action of exchanges in allowing cheap vaudeville houses of large capacity to feature choice film productions before offering them to exclusive exhibitors.

It was decided that the best manner of settling this question would be to refuse to show any film that had first been shown in the big combination houses, of which there are now a number in operation in San Francisco and the suburban city of Oakland. This meeting was the largest ever held by this local and was in the nature of a jollification gathering, being the first held since the victory won in its efforts to secure a reduction in a license fees.

Now that a reduction has been secured in Oakland, it is planned to make an attempt to secure similar reductions in other cities of Alameda county.

"LEGITIMATE" STARS FLOCK TO WEST COAST

Los Angeles, June 28.

Legitimate stage stars engaged by the Universal company for appearance in special feature productions have begun to arrive at the west coast studio. The first to put in an appearance was Marie Tempest, since Julia Dean and Frank Keenan have arrived.

Nat C. Goodwin will arrive here July 10, and Henrietta Crossman and Helen Ware will follow some time afterward.

The latter part of July the Universal company, now producing an eight reel subject featuring Anna Pavlowa, will return to the west coast studio.

The subject featuring Julia Deane will be released under the title of "Renunciation," from an original plot prepared by Peter B. Kyne and Julius Brunnel Firthman, both well known American short story writers.

The script for the Goodwin production adapted from the French farce "Business Is Business," by F. McGrew Willis, is now ready and the direction will be in charge of Otis Turner.

ROLIN MAKING PICTURES IN LOS ANGELES FOR PATHE

Los Angeles, June 28.

The Rolin Film company, which has not been producing for the past four or five weeks, is again active, now working at the commercial studio of the Los Angeles Film corporation, 406 Court street, where the studio is making a series of comedies entitled "Lonesome Luke" from stories and scenarios by Tad, the cartoonist, well known for his pictures entitled "Indoor Sports," "Silk Hat Harry" and others.

The direction of these pictures is under Hal Roach, president of the company, and the principal players of the stock company are Harold O. Lloyd, Eleanor Whitney, Gene Marsh, T. Jelly, and Clyde Whitney. These pictures are being made for, and will be released by Pathé.

LINTON ATTENDS LEAGUE EXECUTIVE MEETING IN NEW YORK

W. H. Linton, a prominent exhibitor in Utica, Little Falls and Herkimer, was in New York last week, attending a meeting of the executive committee of the New York State Exhibitors' League.

Mr. Linton is a keen organization man, and forecasts a rousing campaign of membership in the state league, which will shortly be undertaken, the details of which will be announced in future issues of Motion Picture News.

"NATION" CONTINUES TO DRAW BIG IN NEW YORK

D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" is still breaking records at the Liberty theatre, New York. The current week will mark its turning into the fifth month of the run in New York.

With the exception of the year's biggest musical comedy hit, the receipts at the Liberty have exceeded those of any other attraction in New York City.

Many Fox Managers Come to New York Convention

Delegates Discuss New Policy of One-a-Week Features, Operative September 6, and Listen to Outline of Plans Formed for Effective Distribution

THIS is convention week in New York City for the exchange managers of the twenty-two branches of the Fox film corporation throughout the United States. An entire floor of the Knickerbocker hotel has been engaged by President Fox, where convention headquarters have been established.

At the business sessions of the convention, important matters concerning the Fox Film corporation and its new one-a-week policy are being discussed, and addresses made to the delegates by William Fox, Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the concern; Abraham Carlos, general representative; Louis T. Rogers, manager of the New York branch, and other officials of the corporation.

All the time will not be spent on hard work, however, as Mr. Fox and Mr. Sheehan have arranged an elaborate program of entertainment for the delegates who literally come from every quarter of the United States. The following is a list of the branch managers who are in New York for the week of the convention, which lasts from July 1 to July 5:

Baker, 3632 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo.; Herman Robbins, 400 Eckel Theatre building, Syracuse, N. Y.; Lieut. J. P. Anderson, 305 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.; Harry Leonhardt, Pacific coast manager, 734 South Olive street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Thanhouser, on Talent Hunt, Bags More Favorites

Julia Blanc, Who Has Played Under Ames and Frohman, William Morris, Remembered for Work in "The Concert," Under Belasco, and Others Sign with New Rochelle Producer

THE past week sees Edwin Thanhouser, the New Rochelle film wizard, out on a talent expedition once more. His stock company now contains a dozen or so of the brightest lights from Broadway, but that does not suffice. After adding to his staff of directors Edgar Jones from Lubin, and Clement Easton, from the Universal, he now announces a new ingenue, Grace De Carlton and Julia Blanc, William Morris and Reginald Barlow.

Miss De Carlton is working with Director Easton. She is a Bostonian, having played there in the John Craig and Lindsey Morrison stock companies and toured with Vaughn Glaser. She is but little more than a child, but is a natural actress who will quickly verify Mr. Thanhouser's judgment of her possibilities. Her beauty is of the sweetly simple type, for she takes pride in being a "just plain girl."

Julia Blanc is a character actress of note. Among her engagements are numbered the role of the witch in the play of that name, under Winthrop Ames. She did characters with Marie Dressler in "The Mix-Up," in "The Conspiracy" for Frohman, the "Dawn of a Tomorrow," and other big productions. Her art knows no limitations of dialect nationality or make-up.

William Morris is one of the foremost leading men of the stage. His record has "class" written all over it, and to give it here would be to repeat the list of Broadway successes for years; he will be signally remembered for his work in "The Concert," under Belasco, "The Family Cupboard" and "Little Miss Brown," for Brady and "He Comes Up Smiling" for Al H. Woods.

Mr. Morris is a powerful type of leading man, and his joining the New Rochelle forces means some markedly striking releases, for he has been most successful in creating parts which have remained as standard interpretations. Stock actors both here and abroad are fond of referring to the "William Morris version" of leading parts.

Reginald Barlow has not played off Broadway in seven years, and that certainly is a theatrical criterion of a man's standing in the profession. For three years in succession he was at the New theatre with Winthrop Ames, and leading parts in such plays as "Prunella," "The Yellow Jacket," and "The Devil," are only samples from his bag of tricks.

None of these players have ever been seen in pictures before, but the fine hand of Mr. Thanhouser has induced them to make their bows. As has been the case with earlier announcements, this is in accord with his policy of securing players of established worth in the legitimate.

Censors Rouse Ire of New York Film Men

Irwin, General Manager of V-L-S-E; Paul H. Cromelin, of Cosmofotofilm; S. L. Rothapfel, Former Manager of the Strand, and J. W. Binder Go to Albany to Urge Anti-Censorship Amendment to Constitution— Irwin Gives Committee Cogent Facts on the Subject of Motion Picture Regulation

Albany, July 1.

MOTION picture men appeared before the bill of rights committee of the constitutional convention early in the week for the purpose of being heard on the proposal of Delegate Mark Eisner of New York City, to amend Section 8 of Article 1 by prohibiting censorship of motion pictures in providing that no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of the motion picture screen.

The hearing lasted for several hours and it was very evident that the speakers had given the members of the committee some things to think over. It was also evident to the committee that Chairman Louis Marshall of the committee was opposed to the proposed amendment. During the hearing Mr. Marshall said several times that he had attended but one motion picture performance in his life.

The speakers were: W. W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, who also represented the Fox Film Corp., T. A. Edison, Inc., Pathé, Mutual Film corporation and the Universal Film corporation; J. W. Binder, of the National Board of Censorship; W. S. Bush, Paul H. Cromelin, of "Cosmofotofilm," and S. L. Rothapfel, ex-manager of the Strand theatre, who is also to be manager of the New Rialto.

In the course of his talk, Mr. Irwin, who made the principal argument in favor of the Eisner proposal, said:

"I am here to perform a duty which the industry owes, not only to itself, but to the public at large. That duty is to see that the American public does not unthinkingly step back into the tyrrany of the Middle Ages and the resulting darkness.

"The mediums of thought expression are by word of mouth, writing, printing, painting, drawing, sculpture, song and the motion picture. Neither the editor, sculptor, song writer, nor painter is compelled to present himself at police headquarters before he publishes. On the contrary his publication is permitted without restraint; and thereafter he is responsible for his publication.

Motion Picture Effective Medium

"The moving picture has become the most effective medium for transmission of thought so far known to the world. In fact, there seems to be a spirit to restrict it and to punish it because of its very effectiveness. It is a medium of powerful educational enlightenment, not to mention mental pleasure, and because of its effectiveness it is gathering unto itself thousands of adherents each day.

"This industry has become the fifth largest in the world. To use the vernacular of baseball there are more motion picture fans in this country than there are baseball fans. It is estimated that 10,000,000 people daily view the motion pictures.

"Not the least of the reasons for the pictures' strength and ever-increasing hold upon the people is the fact that those engaged in this industry have not been sordid in their business enterprise, but, on the contrary, have fully met the public requirements for morality; in fact, have gone beyond them, so that the pictures of today are educational. With few exceptions they are strong object lessons by which the morals of the public are raised rather than degraded; so that for some time past, as well as today, the motion picture, from the standpoint of morality, is so vastly superior to the drama or the opera as not to warrant comparison.

"At the present time, the motion picture is either censored or is threatened with censorship by a small group of people, animated by ignorance, prejudice, malice or jealousy of success with results that are or will be destructive of the industry and contrary to the principles of our freedom.

Look to New York as Leader

"We therefore present this amendment, knowing that if the Empire state, the leader in broad-mindedness, the leader in safeguarding and sustaining the principles upon which this country is founded, adopts it, that such action will be followed by her sister states."

Mr. Irwin spoke of the work of the National Board of Censorship and said that this method of film regulation was carried out in good faith. This self-imposed regulation in no way shakes the fundamentatls of free expression of thought, and thus of liberty and freedom.

"In conclusion," said Mr. Irwin, "let me say that as you well know one of the causes of the founding of this republic was to escape censorship, in other words, intolerance which always means the ruling of the many by the few.

Appeal to the People

"Submit this amendment to the people of New York state, the multitude of the people who are acquainted with pictures, who know the moral standing of the pictures, and get their opinion on this issue.

"We engaged in the industry have no fear of their decision, and so far as I know, the public, while it may go wrong temporarily in some things, never goes wrong on a great moral issue."

Manager Rothapfel, of the Strand theatre, said there was no opportunity for bad films "getting by."

He said the police were clothed with power to do all that was necessary, and they did it.

Paul H. Cromelin spoke on behalf of the importers.

Mr. Binder said he would submit to the committee statistics to show that 98 per cent. of all motion pictures were looked over first by the voluntary censorship and that only 10 per cent. of them ever needed a change.

Plans for Selig Convention Trip Are Completed

Train Will Leave Chicago at 11 O'Clock, Thursday, July 8, with Full Corps of Exhibitors, Scenario Writers, and Other Lit'r'y Gents, in the Short Story Business

ALL is in readiness for the seventeen days' tour of the west and California aboard the Selig exposition flyer. The train of standard Pullmans, diner and combination baggage car and observation car will leave Chicago, Ill., from the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad station at 11 o'clock, Thursday morning, July 8.

The tour is an assured success. Motion picture exhibitors, newspapermen, scenario writers and writers of fiction, together with their relatives and friends, have booked reservations.

It has been arranged that special Pullmans be given over to the comfort of the exhibitors and their families, the newspapermen and the writers. One car for the scenario writers has been completely filled, and also the special coach devoted to the comfort of the newspapermen and their friends. However, there will be room enough for all.

The Selig company has chartered extra coaches and another special train may be necessary the company officials believe.

The motion picture exhibitors and their friends will be well cared for and special coaches will be named in their honor.

Friends of the tourists are planning a rousing send off at the Northwestern station in Chicago the morning of July 8.

Aboard the Selig special a daily newspaper will be published which will give all the news, day by day, of the tour, and the most versatile newspaper men in the United States are to become reporters. A motion picture scenario is being prepared by Gilson Willets, the well known writer, and scenes called for in this play, to be later released by the Selig company, will be taken in every city coming and going.

The civic federations of all the large cities on the itinerary have arranged special receptions and entertainments, the latest being the Business Men's Association of Colorado Springs. There is yet time to take advantage of the tour, which costs only $128, which includes even hotel accommodations.

SPECIAL MAINE TRAINS TO BOSTON FOR "NATION"

On July 8 a special train will be run from Portland, Me., to Boston for the benefit of Maine people who wish to see "The Birth of a Nation." The film will not be shown anywhere else in New England it is announced.

Rowland Will Fling Metro Flag to Breeze on July 4

Old Glory Will Hang on Steel Cable Between 18th Floor of Heidelberg Tower and Times Building in Celebration of His 14 Years in Industry

THE Metro Pictures Corporation on July 4 will unfurl in Times square the largest national flag in the world. On a steel cable, strung between the eighteenth floor of the Heidelberg Tower, occupied by the Metro offices, and the nineteenth floor of the Times building, an American flag, measuring one hundred and seventy-five feet in length and ninety feet in width, will be unfurled after a dedicatory speech, either by Mayor Mitchel or Borough President McAneny, promptly at two o'clock on Independence Day and all because President Richard A. Rowland, of the Metro Pictures Corporation, believes July 4 to be his lucky day. The explanation of this is as follows:

Mr. Rowland launched forth into the motion picture business fourteen years ago on July 4. One year later on the same day the firm of Clark & Rowland became a reality, and seven years later on July 4 the firm sold many of their franchises at a tremendous profit. It was on January 4 of this year that Metro was duly incorporated as a distributing organization, consequently July 4 Metro is just one-half a year old and on that day the first Metro picture becomes the feature of the Strand theatre, New York. Thus every theatre on Broadway, with the exception of one house, is now playing Metro pictures.

This huge flag was made by a New England cotton mill and measures one hundred and seventy-five by ninety feet. The total weight of this flag is twenty-six hundred pounds and in order to safely sustain it two steel cables, each one inch in circumference, are required. The cables will stretch across Broadway and Forty-second street and will be anchored firmly on the respective buildings.

The flag will remain hanging all day until Monday, and late Monday evening it will be packed and shipped to the Metro headquarters at San Francisco, where, on July 15, which is to be Metro day at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, Francis X. Bushman will unfurl the flag on the exposition grounds. Special committees of various civic and patriotic organizations will attend the unfurling in Times square.

Police Approve "Devil's Daughter" Despite Censors

Ohio Board and Municipal Authorities Disagree Over Fox Photoplay—Newspaper Men Warm in Its Praise—Title Bothers Columbus Officials

Cleveland, July 1.

CLEVELAND exchange and theatre managers have just had personal experience with the Ohio Board of Censorship, which came here to get a first-hand view of the film, "The Devil's Daughter," featuring Theda Bara. The board, consists of Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, Charles G. Williams and W. R. Wilson.

Paul C. Mooney, Cleveland manager for the Fox Film corporation, arranged for the private view of the film. The state censors came, saw, and slashed. When the snipping of shears had stopped it was found that 1,300 feet of the film had been put into the discard. Every scene in which Theda Bara appeared was eliminated, and the result can be imagined.

Newspaper men were present at the exhibition and all gave hearty approval to the film. The film, in their opinion, was about as "vicious" as the ordinary "Punch and Judy" show. It also was about as "sensational" as "The Old Homestead" or "Way Down East."

It is believed by the newspaper men that if the film had been offered under its original title, "La Gioconda," it would have passed the censors.

The state board as much as declared that the Devil never had a daughter, therefore the title was wrong!

The universal opinion is that the censors view the film with prejudice aforethought. In some other rejections politics have been involved in the censoring, but "The Devil's Daughter" has no politics in it. The decision means that "The Devil's Daughter" will not be thrown on the screens of any Ohio theatres for the present.

It is likely that the Fox Film corporation will fight the censorship decision in the courts, and it is felt that the board's decision would not stand if any judge has a chance to see the film. The police department was satisfied with the picture and was ready to allow "The Devil's Daughter" to proceed on her way over Ohio.

A storm is gathering and exhibitors of Ohio are being enlisted in a move to make a protest to Governor Willis, asking relief from the oppressive censorship. The only relief deemed possible is the removal of the entire board and a new one named to replace it.

GAIL KANE SIGNS FOR PATHE LEADS

George Fitzmaurice, who is producing "Via Wireless" for Pathé, has signed Gail Kane for his leading woman. Miss Kane has the well earned reputation of being one of the most beautiful women on the stage today, and her talents as displayed not only in Broadway successes but pictures as well, prove the excellence of Mr. Fitzmaurice's judgment in signing her for his picture.

Miss Kane was born in Philadelphia. It is safe to say that if all Philadelphia girls possessed her attractions, Broadway would soon be depopulated of its men. She went to boarding school in Newburgh, N. Y., and through amateur theatricals in school got the stage fever. While summering at Long Beach, L. I., she was offered a small part in Charles Frohman's "Decorating Clementine," and eagerly grabbed at the chance.

Her next engagements were with Marie Tempest in "Vanity Fair," and in Augustus Thomas' "As a Man Thinks." Her first leading part was with Chauncy Olcott in "Macushla." Then came leading parts in Augustus Thomas' play, "The Model," "Anatol," at the Little theatre, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "The Miracle Man" and "The Hyphen."

Miss Kane has adopted New York as her home, and spends her summers at Long Beach. Horses, dogs and swimming represent her only hobbies.

MIDGETS WILL GAMBOL THROUGH HEADLINE COMIC

The Headline Amusement Company announces that its first one-reel comedy fun-film will feature the famous diminutive funster, Will Archie, in a scenario written by Raymond Peck entitled "Peewee's Courtship."

In his support Mr. Archie has all the stars of the Lilliputian world, including Louis Merkel, Herbert Rice, Jimmie Rosen, Leila Coutna, Violet Howard, the original Mrs. Tom Thumb, and her second husband, Count Magri.

New York Film Men Fete S. L. Rothapfel

Dinner Is Tendered at Hotel Astor to Exhibitor Who Occupies Unique Position in His Chosen Field—Event Is Meant as Recognition of His Talents as a Leader in the Exhibition of Fine Pictures Amid the Most Pleasing Environment.

THE dinner tendered on the evening of June 24, at the Hotel Astor, New York, to S. L. Rothapfel, proved to be one of the most remarkable events in film circles within recent years. There have been few such complete gatherings of leading film personages and perhaps never a meeting so clearly dominated by a unanimity of good will and good purpose.

The object of the dinner was to give tribute to Mr. Rothapfel and his genius in the fine exhibition of motion pictures. Such impetus was given in this way to the speaking that the dinner developed into a "better pictures" occasion in which the speakers made it clearly evident that the old lines and old policies of the film industry have about disappeared, and that the artistic and commercial policy of the day is to make the best possible pictures, to specify them as such and to market them on this basis, and to exhibit them in a manner befitting their quality.

W. Stephen Bush acted as toast master, and at the conclusion of his address presented Mr. Rothapfel with a beautiful volume, leather-bound and monogramed in silver with hand-lettered and illuminated pages outlining Mr. Rothapfel's remarkable career from his first exhibition of pictures in a small rear room in Erie, Pa., up to his managing directorship of New York's newest motion picture theatre, The Rialto, which will replace Hammerstein's famous vaudeville house, which has stood for years at 42d street and Broadway.

Mr. Rothapfel in his speech of acceptance, said:

"Let me say a word on what I consider a vital part of our business. As yet I do not believe that the quality of production has kept pace with the quality of our audiences, and I say this in spite of the tremendous improvements in every branch of the industry. May be it has been impossible to keep these two elements side by side, but in the future we must bend our energies to make them run in double harness. We are drawing our audiences today from the best people in the country, and the intelligence of our auditors demands the same amount of intelligence in our photoplay productions.

"We must meet that demand or lose ground. A few years ago the regular theatregoer would not take motion pictures seriously. Today he is the backbone of our structure.

"We are going to get away from the old tricks as our intelligence and understanding broadens, and as we keep pace with the increasing intelligence among our audiences. 'Getting it over' is a relative term at the best, and little is accomplished by the producer if after all he gets it over with only a part of his clientele. We want universal appeal. Close-ups, portraying varying stages of agony, and other such tricks are, if you will think a minute, gentlemen, often insults to an audience's intelligence who need no such superficial aid to make them understand the subject, if the subject is intelligently handled.

"Let us have quiet scenes that convey meaning. The droop of a shoulder or the lifting of an eyebrow if it is well done may be made to convey as much meaning as tearing the hair and beating the unoffending atmosphere and chewing the scenery. Remember as the intelligence of theatregoing audiences increased so did all the old stage tricks go into discard. We might profit by that. We want also to invite the great writers of the community to come into our camp.

"Instead of filming old plays whether they have been great or indifferent successes, or even failures, we should have writers of picture plays who know their subject, who give all their time and attention and genius to it, and who will thus give us new themes instead of those that have already been worn threadbare. No play ever written for the stage can be done in the same manner for the pictures.

"But it is not along the line of furnishing entertainment that the motion picture is to expand. It is to be, in my opinion, the greatest help to education the world has ever had. With improvements in camera and lens making and in lighting and projection will come the application of the moving picture to the curriculum of the schools and colleges, to clinics, and to study of every kind, and its intelligent adaptation, I believe, will cut the college course from four years to three and perhaps even to two.

"It will eventually supersede entirely the old method of study from books and illustrations alone. I suppose I will be accused of riding a hobby when I say something about the combination of music and pictures, but you will all admit the tremendous part that the music plays. Here again we have a subject in its infancy. I expect to see the great symphonies illustrated on the screen as an aid to the student of music. To know not only the rhythm of these great works, but to know the inspiration that created them; to see the development of the theme in story while we listen to the tone beauties—that indeed would be worth while.

To Supersede Stage Spectacles

"I believe, too, that in no long distant time, great motion picture productions will entirely supersede big stage spectacles, for the stage has a limitation that the motion picture can bridge in a single leap. But there is a great common interest between the moving picture and music. In fact, to my mind, all music suggests a picture, while most pictures suggest music.

"In the realm of opera I believe that had there been motion pictures in the days of Wagner and the other great composers, we should have had grand opera on a scale that is even yet undreamed of. The composer of the future, believe me, will not be slow to see and to apply its possibilities."

Those present at the dinner included Crawford Livingston, who, together with Otto Kahn, is backing Mr. Rothapfel's new Rialto theatre; William Fox, Winfield R. Sheehan and A. Carlos of the Fox Film corporation; Adam Kessel, Jr., Charles O. Baumann and Charles Kessel of the New York Motion Picture corporation; Lewis J. Selznick, Brinton N. Busch, J. D. Williams and Jacob Wilk of the World Film corporation; Samuel Goldfish of the Jesse L. Lasky company; Edwin Thanhouser, president of the Thanhouser Film corporation, and recently elected vice-president of the Mutual Film corporation; Paul H. Cromelin of the Cosmofotofilm company; Carl Anderson of Metro Pictures corporation; Frank D. Sniffen and Tarleton Winchester of Paramount Pictures corporation; Jules E. Brulutoer; Daniel Frohman of the Famous Players Film company; W. Arthur Northam of the London Film company, and Provincial Theatres, Inc. of England; Harry G. Musgrove of Australia; Felix E. Kahn, treasurer of Mutual Film corporation; Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E; Carl H. Pierce of Bosworth, Inc.; George E. Kahn, assistant secretary of the Universal Film Manufacturing company; J. W. Binder of the National Board of Censorship; Frederick A. Thomson; Robert E. Welsh of the "Dramatic Mirror"; John W. Semler of the "Morning Telegraph," and William A. Johnston of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Letters and telegrams were received from J. J. Kennedy, president of the General Film company; Siegmund Lubin of Philadelphia; Marion S. Pearce, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' league, and others.

West Coast Exhibitors Buy Fiction Pictures Studio

W. H. Clune, Owner of Five Theatres in Southern California, and Lloyd Brown, Manager of His Auditorium in Los Angeles, Become Producers

THEIR inability to secure the kind of subjects they desired is given as the reason by W. H. Clune, pioneer exhibitor and owner of five southern California theatres, and Lloyd Brown, manager of the three thousand seat Clune Auditorium in Los Angeles, for entering the producing field.

Messrs. Clune and Brown have purchased the studio recently built by Fiction Pictures, Inc., and until this week occupied by the Famous Players. In addition they have secured the rights on a number of novels and plays which will constitute their productions. The company has not been named nor incorporated, and no official announcements has been made with regard to the policy to be followed other than that productions big in all senses are to be produced.

"Months before the Clune theatre company took charge of the Auditorium theatre they considered operating a producing plant," Manager Brown of the theatre stated in speaking of the new company.

"On June 17 of last year, we began securing rights and made plans for such a producing company, because it was apparent to us that it would be impossible to secure the class of photoplays which the patronage of this theatre most desire, and the kind that we know would secure business not only here, but in the other Clune theatres. On June 17 of this year we purchased the studio. When production will be taken up, what will be made, and other details cannot be announced at this time."

When pressed to be more explicit Mr. Brown, who is to continue as manager of the Clune, stated that but three photoplays they had been able to secure had been up to the standard desired. These are: "The Birth of a Nation," which ran sixteen weeks; "The Alien," or "The Sign of the Rose," which was shown two weeks, and could have had a longer run had not other bookings prevented, and "Les Miserables."

"We have had many good productions," Mr. Brown added, "but they did not prove to be what the people wanted. Some were costume photoplays, and others were of a character that made them undesirable."

Mr. Clune, who will supervise the business department of the new company, is the first motion picture exhibitor west of Kansas City, and since opening his first store show, has been in the exhibiting business continuously.

For several years he conducted a film exchange in Los Angeles, which was sold to the General Film company. He is now owner of five big theatres, one of which, the Auditorium, in Los Angeles, is the largest west of New York. In addition he is one of the principal stockholders of the Los Angeles Motion Picture company, manufacturers of Angelus motion picture cameras and other studio and projection equipment.

Mr. Brown is a former producer of the legitimate stage, and by Los Angeles film men is regarded as one of the most competent critics of films. He is a showman of the old school who has progressed with the times, and is a firm believer in the great future for the screen productions.

Chicago Is Scene of Live Events in Film Circles

Colonel Selig, Back from Pacific Coast Opening of His Jungle-Zoo, Is Enthusiastic Over Business Done by His Company—Gollos Buys Rights to Bernhardt Film—Automatic Demonstrates Merits of New Talking Machine—Eisner Sells Interest in E. L. K. Film

Chicago, June 28.

COLONEL WILLIAM N. SELIG returned to Chicago, Monday after a long business sojourn on the Pacific coast. While in Los Angeles he was present at the formal opening of the Selig jungle-zoo.

Mr. Selig, while in Los Angeles, was presented with a loving cup and a beautiful art work of bronze by the employees of the western Selig companies. He returned to Chicago in an enthusiastic frame of mind.

"We are doing some big things out in California," said Colonel Selig. "Our forthcoming releases through V-L-S-E are to be even more pretentious than those released up to date. The production of 'Mizpah,' by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, is to be one of the most elaborate and spectacular productions ever prepared by the Selig company. Kathlyn William, Tyrone Power and other stars will take leading roles, and many hundreds of supernumeraries will participate.

"We have erected exact reproductions of ancient Babylon and other cities of biblical days, and Colin Campbell, dean of our directing staff, is bending all his energies to making the production of 'Mizpah' correct in every detail.

"I am of the opinion that the exhibitors and through them the public, will be pleased when they see "The Ne'er-Do-Well.' The scenes taken in Panama are very realistic, and Rex Beach's story is presented in a convincing manner. I am confident that our forthcoming feature releases will prove worthy in every respect."

Mr. Selig is also enthusiastic on the subject of Selig Diamond specials, in three reels, and the Selig pictureplays in one and two reels. He believes there will always be a field for shorter length films, and his policy to put the best into such subjects is being observed.

The out-of-door fight scene of "Temper," the first Essanay picture in which Henry B. Walthall will appear, was staged last week in Chicago. The spectacle drew a large audience, who became so excited in the realistic struggle that hardly once did one of them look at the camera.

Enthusiastic Over Walthall's Acting

In some way the name of the victorious participant got out and at the end of the fight a spontaneous cheer broke out for Walthall. One of Essanay's new directors, a man connected with the most prominent photoplays for years, saw Walthall act for the first time in this scene.

His enthusiasm for Walthall's ability knew no bounds. He said that he had never believed that anyone could so earnestly throw themselves into a role and actually feel the intense passions for which the part called as did Mr. Walthall.

Adolph Eisner has sold out his interest in the E. L. K. Film company of Chicago to take a position as booking manager for the "Northwest Weekly" in Minneapolis, Minn.

I. Kuh has bought Mr. Eisner's interest in the E. L. K. Film company, and reports that business is most encouraging. At present, their chief production is "The Avenging Conscience," for which they have the Illinois rights. He says that even with the approach of summer, the bookings for this picture are steadily increasing.

A. M. Gollos, president of the Photoplays Releasing company of Chicago, announces the purchase of the American rights to "Madame Sarah Bernhardt at Home." This is a two reel picture taken in France, and shows the intimate home life of Madame Bernhardt, the greatest living actress.

This production, which is owned jointly by Madame Bernhardt and the Belgium Red Cross Society, was completed some months ago, but on account of the war the valuable negative has remained in France until recently. Word has just been received that it is safely on its way to America and its arrival is daily expected.

Rights to Speedway Races

The Photoplays Releasing company has also secured the motion picture rights to the automobile races which were held at Speedway Park in Chicago on June 26. Several thousand feet of film showing the most exciting parts of this race, and also showing the participants, were taken by a number of camera men.

The best portions of this negative have been selected for the making of a two reel picture, which, because of the national importance of this event, should prove a most popular one.

A new talking motion picture machine was demonstrated in Chicago last Wednesday. Its inventor is J. J. Comer, of the Automatic Electric company, the concern which manufactures loud talking telephone systems for hotels and railway stations.

Apparently Mr. Comer has practically solved the problems of synchronism, which have stood in the way of previous inventions of this sort. The talking machine and the projector are placed side by side, and each is hitched to a motor by a short sprocketed belt.

There is a device on the projector by which it may be instantly accelerated or retarded, if for any reason the picture is thrown out of synchronism. This entirely does away with the trouble caused by a portion of the film being cut out. Electric wires connect the talking machine with the horn, which may be placed in any part of the theatre, thereby doing away with a complicated system of long belting.

A company made up of J. J. Comer, A. E. Wilson and S. A. Block will produce films and records to be used by this machine.

Old Doc Yak

The antics of old Doc Yak, the quaint character of Sydney Smith's cartoons, continue to appear each week in the latter half of the "Chicago Tribune's Animated Weekly."

On June 28, under the title of "In the Navy," Doc Yak is shown on his battleship, interchanging highly explosive bombs with the enemy's ships and fortresses. A few sea serpents and a monstrous bomb-dropping bird add to the excitement.

After a terrific bombardment, Doc Yak completely annihilates the enemy, but while he is taking a well-earned snooze, his ship is blown to atoms, and these atoms fly up on the screen to say, "To be continued in our next."

Number 5 of this series, entitled "Doc Yak and the Mosquito," will be released on July 3. In this five hundred feet of animated cartoons, a monstrous mosquito attacks the old doctor while his hands are helplessly held by the board on which he is sitting. The mosquito is grotesquely cartooned.

SAN JOSE FILM COMPANY BUILDS STUDIO

San Francisco, June 28.

The San Jose Film Company, Inc., of which Melville Jeffrey is general manager, will commence work at once on tearing down the old buildings on the Dunne property in Santa Clara, and a studio to represent an immediate investment of $10,000 will be erected.

The location chosen for the studio is in the heart of the Santa Clara valley, one of the beauty spots of California, San Jose being known as the Garden City. Climatic conditions here are regarded as being ideal, there being less fog than is to be found along the coast.

NEXT CELTIC RELEASE WILL SHOW RAFFERTY AS DELEGATE

The next release of the All Celtic films will be in two reels and promises to be the greatest of the Rafferty series. Over two hundred people will be casted for the picture, which depicts the adventures of the Peaceful Rafferty, at a real convention.

All these films have been well received by the press and exhibitors throughout the country, and Charles C. O'Hara, the creator of the Irish character, and also the president of the company, says that his pet creation will prove the sensation of the season just as soon as it becomes a little better known.

"Hypocrites," at 6-Month Turn, Still Going Strong

Managers Write Enthusiastically of Its Drawing Power, and the Merits of the Film Call Forth Encomiums From Presidents of Women's Clubs

"THE success of the Bosworth release, 'Hypocrites,' has been one of the phenomenal advances of the last six months in the feature film industry. When this film first came to New York it was seriously questioned by many of the wisest heads in the business as to whether a film that instructs, and in a measure sermonizes, could ever be made a paying success," says Carl H. Pierce, eastern representative of Bosworth, Inc.

"In the opinion expressed by some of the officers of the Bosworth company at the time the film was launched, was that the public was desirous only to be amused —not to be instructed, but in a measure 'Hypocrites' seems to controvert this opinion, it having been declared by many exchange managers to be the most productive film they have ever handled.

"In a letter received by Bosworth from M. H. Lewis, exchange manager for the Progressive Motion Picture Company, of Los Angeles, Mr. Lewis states: 'We have had a tremendous success with "Hypocrites," having four copies working out of this office constantly, whereas we usually get along very nicely with one print of each subject.'

"C. E. Tandy, general manager of the Southern Paramount Pictures Company, stated recently in a letter that 'Hypocrites' was the most productive money getting box office attraction ever shown in the south.

"J. H. Kunsky, president of the Casino Feature Film Company, has said that 'Hypocrites' earned more money for him in the Washington theatre, Detroit, than any other feature ever run.

MARGARET EDWARDS, THE "TRUTH" IN "HYPOCRITES," AS A CLASSIC DANCER

"The same reports have been received from various exchange managers and theatre owners throughout the country. This is well expressed by J. Eugene Pearce, manager of Josiah Pearce & Sons, of New Orleans. He said in a recent letter: 'It took "Hypocrites" to top them all.'

"Letters have been received from presidents of women's clubs, chairmen of censor boards and prominent people, some of them in the employ of the United States government, one of which has the following paragraph:

"'A quotation I made to my companion as we witnessed "Hypocrites" sums up my feelings: "Those who came to scoff remained to pray." Could I conceive one such screen sermon I would feel like the inspired soul who penned: "Let me but write a nation's songs, and I care not who wins her battles." May your company furnish the world more great food for thought like "Hypocrites" is the earnest wish of, sincerely yours, Henry S. Selden.'

"Mrs. E. M. Platt, of the St. Joseph's Federation of Women's Clubs, says: 'Hypocrites' is deeply religious, beautifully conceived, beautifully set, and it touches many phases of life."

Pathé Captures Rights to Another Locke Subject

"Simon the Jester" Promises to Be a Picture of Strong Appeal with Edwin Arden in the Lead, Playing Opposite Gail Kane, Bruce McRae and Paul McAllister

PATHÉ has acquired the picture rights to another William J. Locke novel, "Simon the Jester," which will be produced by Edward José and feature Edwin Arden. "Simon the Jester" is written in Mr. Locke's best vein, and proved to be one of the biggest sellers of its publication year. Judging from Mr. Arden's interpretation of Paragot in "The Beloved Vagabond," he is well cast for the title role.

George Fitzmaurice, who is to produce the well-known Broadway success, "Via Wireless," for Pathé, has just announced his cast. Gail Kane, who would receive a good many votes for being the most beautiful woman on the stage today, will be the leading woman. She will be remembered as starring in "The Miracle Man" and "The Hyphen," two well known theatrical successes. Bruce McRae, another famous player from the "legitimate" will be the leading man. Paul McAllister will have the character part.

Mr. Fitzmaurice started work on his picture June 21.

Harold Paget and Katherine Filkins, American representatives of William J. Locke, the noted English author, were present at private showing of Pathé's "The Beloved Vagabond" last week, and Miss Filkins wrote Pathé a letter regarding her impressions of the picture as follows:

"Your screen production of William J. Locke's 'Beloved Vagabond' as we have reported to Mr. Locke, more than fulfills our expectations. Too much cannot be said for the play as produced by Mr. José. It is in every way a masterpiece of photography, scenario construction, and artistic attainment.

"Mr. Arden was the perfect 'Beloved Vagabond' as visualized by all who have admiration for this favorite Locke hero. In fact the whole play is a triumph of brilliant impersonations of the novelist's characters."

ONE-WIFE SENATOR OF MORMON STATE VISITS HORSLEY STUDIO

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, and Mrs. Smoot visited the new Horsley studios in Los Angeles last week as the guests of David Horsley.

Senator Smoot was surprised at the wealth the big motion picture enterprises in California represented, and expressed his deep interest. He was particularly interested, however, in the new Horsley plant, with its skilfully devised arena for taking animal pictures, and the outdoor stages.

LOUISE GLAUM HAS PART AS CASTILIAN BEAUTY—AND LIVES UP TO IT

Louise Glaum looks entrancing in almost any part assigned to her, but she is said to be particularly fitted for the interpretation of Spanish types. In "Hearts and Swords," a two reeler to be released June 24, by the Domino-New York Motion Picture corporation on the Mutual program, she is again seen as a Castilian beauty, Rose Gonzales.

VIVIAN MARTIN IN "LITTLE DUTCH GIRL" FOR WORLD

"The Little Dutch Girl," is the name of the next Vivian Martin play, which is now being made at the World Film corporation studio, with Director Chantard in charge.

Four Fascinating Glimpses of Edna Mayo, the Essanay Star Who Will Be Prominent in "The Blindness of Virtue," To Be Seen During July as a Special Feature from the Chicago Firm

"BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE" MAY DUPLICATE RUN ON STAGE

William Morris, whose name is a power in the world of amusements, and whose achievements in the dramatic field stand as a model of successful showmanship, says "The Blindness of Virtue," the Essanay special feature, is universal in its appeal.

As a drama on the speaking stage, with but eight people in the cast, Mr. Morris took "The Blindness of Virtue" to Chicago for a run of twenty weeks, and at one dollar admissions the production played to a weekly business of $7,000.

Mr. Morris is of the opinion that when a picture version of this successful stage play is shown, there won't be a dry eye in the house, and as an old showman with a most accurate gauge of the public's desires Mr. Morris' statement that the public likes to cry may be taken as an indication that this feature will make a big hit.

One Feature a Week Is Fox Plan from September

Exhibitors Will Have Opportunity to Use Photo Plays Written by Noted Authors, Featuring Stars, and Produced by Directors of Recognized Ability

WILLIAM FOX, president of the Fox Film Corporation, makes an announcement of unusual interest to every exhibitor in the business in this month's issue of the "Exhibitors' Bulletin," the house organ of the concern. Mr. Fox, having obtained Frederick Thompson, Marshall Farnum, Herbert Brenon, Alan Dwan, Will S. Davis, Frank Powell, Oscar C. Apfel, Raoul A. Walsh and J. Gordon Edwards for his producing staff, now announces that, beginning September 6, the Fox Film Corporation will release a feature, starring a noted dramatic light, once a week.

Simultaneously with this announcement, comes the news of an almost completed $2,000,000 studio, where the one-a-week productions of the company will be made. This studio houses a complete printing and developing plant, offices for the directors and other officials concerned in the productions, and a complete electric lighting plant, the whole being under the direct supervision of Mr. Fox himself. In speaking of his new policy, Mr. Fox said:

"Beginning September 6 we shall be prepared to receive contracts from exhibitors calling for our once-a-week releases, which will be greater and better and bigger in every way than even our great successes of the past.

"Each feature will be written by a celebrated author and headed by a famous star. Contracts will read for one year, thus guaranteeing to the exhibitor fifty-two of the most magnificent features it is humanly possible to produce.

"The law of the studio, as laid down to the producing staff, is simplicity itself. My orders are: 'Make each picture better and stronger than its predecessor; never slack up, nor relax your efforts in the smallest degree, to make the Fox features the biggest and strongest in the world.'

"I am particularly interested," said Mr. Fox, "in the cause of the exhibitor whose theatre may not be as advantageously situated as those of some of his competitors. The location of a theatre is not, perhaps, as important as some people appear to think. A strong picture in a poorly located theatre will pull business away from a weak picture in a well located theatre.

"I feel that every exhibitor who has his best interests at heart should give the article in the 'Exhibitors' Bulletin' concerning the new policy deep and serious thought. As an exhibitor and theatre owner myself, I feel that I am peculiarly adapted to feeling the pulse of the motion picture-loving public and to give it the features which the patrons of motion picture theatres throughout the land demand.

Old Doc Yak Cartoons Now Ready for Everybody

"The Tribune-Animated Weekly," Starring Characters of National Reputation, Is Offered by Central Film Company to Feature Exchanges in All States But 9, Already Sold

FEATURE exchange men will be interested in an announcement of the Central Film company, Chicago, to the effect that territorial rights on the Chicago "Tribune-Animated Weekly," with "The Adventures of Old Doc Yak," in animated cartoons, are now being offered to feature exchanges everywhere. Rights for certain states—Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, already have been provided for.

The feature, which has made a great hit in the central west, where it has been appearing for several weeks, consists of five hundred feet of live news motion pictures, gathered in the four corners of the globe by "Tribune" men, and five hundred feet of the screamingly funny antics of Old Doc Yak, the cartoon character made famous by Sidney Smith, king of the comic artists.

Old Doc Yak is a national character. He appears each week in the Chicago "Tribune," and in other leading newspapers throughout the country. No comic supplement character in the history of journalism has gained more popularity than is enjoyed by "Sid" Smith's Doc Yak, who appeals to children and to grown-ups alike.

Each week a prize of fifty dollars is offered for an idea acceptable for an old Doc Yak animated cartoon. This is open to everybody. The Chicago "Tribune's" facilities, are exceptional when it comes to assembling motion photographs of international events of interest.

Happenings everywhere—spectacular incidents in the great world war, assaults of the Germans, counter attacks of the Allies, the great campaign in the Dardanelles, uprisings in India, riots in Singapore, sensational scenes from South Africa—these, together with happenings in the United States, are a few of the stupendous assignments of "Tribune" camera men. Such are the types of current events pictures which will be included in the Chicago "Tribune-Animated Weekly" with Old Doc Yak.

The Central Film company, 110 South State street, Chicago, has made every preparation to meet the demands of the feature exchanges and individuals.

CENTURY OLD MASONRY SHOWN IN "FLYING A" SUBJECT

A bit of historical realism is introduced in "The High Cost of Flirting," a one-reel "Flying A" drama to be released July 7. In the play John Steppling, as Mr. Dunne, is threatened with a Black Hand bomb if he fails to deposit $1,000 in a designated spot.

The place described in the misspelled note is in reality the masonry of a mission centuries old. Crumbled to a state in which it scarcely is recognizable, the time-worn stone still retains evidence of the efficiency of the early workers who built it. Many of the massive units are so firmly cemented together that prying or otherwise forcing them apart is literally out of the question.

The ruins are admirably adapted for motion picture purposes, and the "Flying A" director was quick to take advantage of the opportunity to film them offered in "The High Cost of Flirting."

GEORGE D. MACINTYRE IS NOW WITH WORLD FILM

George D. MacIntyre, who for eight years was secretary of the Actors' Society, and in charge of their engagement department, has been registering splendidly in filmdom. He played a small part in the World Film-William A. Brady feature, "The Face in the Moonlight," with Robert Warwick.

Mr. MacIntyre will be in Mr. Capellani's new picture, "The Imposter," having been engaged before the scenario was started.

Sumner Gard, remembered for his splendid performances in "The Spendthrift," in "Brewster's Millions" and "You Never Can Tell," has been engaged by the World Film Corporation to portray the juvenile lead in the new William A. Brady picture, "The Imposter." Jose Collins and Alec Francis, and in addition Robert Cummings, Dorothy Fairchild, and a host of lesser lights will be seen.

BRADY STUDIOS BEGIN WORK ON TWO PLAYS

The William A. Brady Picture Plays Corporation has begun work in its Fort Lee, N. J., studio upon the production in moving picture form of the famous Drury Lane melodramas, "The Sins of Society" and "Shall We Forgive Her," the most successful of the Frank Harvey plays.

The camera productions are being made under arrangement with A. W. Dingwall and Joseph Brooks, owners of the American rights in the original plays.

DAILY PAYS TRIBUTE TO QUALITY IN VITAGRAPH SUBJECT

It is a most unusual thing for a general newspaper to publish the story of any play, either of the speaking stage or the screen, on its first page, and the "Star," of Seattle, Wash., one of the foremost newspapers in the northwestern section, in printing on the first page of its issue of June 3, a two-column picture of Anita Stewart, and the story of the V-L-S-E feature, "The Juggernaut," in which she is starred, has conferred a high compliment on this production.

World Tour for Winik-Brock Is Williams' Plan

Already An Authority on Markets of All Countries, Representative of British Company Handling Pictures of World Film Will Add to Knowledge of Subject

JOHN DAY WILLIAMS, better known as "J. D.," who is one of the best informed men on the motion picture markets of the world, leaves July 6 on a year's tour of the world in the interests of Winik-Brock, Inc., the company which has taken over the foreign rights to all the productions of the World Film corporation. He will be accompanied as far as Australia by Harry Musgrove, who is one of the powers in Australasian film circles.

"There is no reason why New York should not be the film market of the world instead of London," said Mr. Williams, "especially now that the great European war is in progress. Four-fifths or more of the motion pictures in the world are produced in America. Yet London is the motion picture clearing house of the world. Rights are handled there for the whole world except America. American films are sold in London for South America, China, Australia and all foreign countries not handled direct.

"The reason why they are not handled in New York for all foreign territory is because there is no selling representative in New York who knows the markets of the world and knows the big foreign buyers personally. I was able to put through a deal for the foreign rights on World Film pictures on terms very advantageous to the World Film corporation chiefly because I knew Messrs. Winik and Brock. Of course I couldn't have sold them poor pictures, but the fact that I knew them and enjoyed their confidence was half the battle.

"Now that Winik and Brock have the world rights on these pictures I am going around the world to make the best possible disposition of them. I am going to get personally acquainted with every big buyer all over the world and become familiar with all the foreign markets. When I get back I will know the market of the world thoroughly."

Early Date Is Fixed by Van for Equity Production

Fifteen Players Will Soon Leave New York City for "Billy B's" 1,000 Acres in New Hampshire, Where Work Will Begin With Picture Featuring Comedian

VAN HARBOR, a quiet sylvan retreat at the west end of Lake Sunapee, New Hamphsire, discovered and put on the map as a post office by Billy B. Van, the comedian, has been invaded by the motion pictures, and today the hills are resounding to the hammering of a small horde of carpenters, erecting a studio on the lake front for the Equity Motion Picture company, of New York.

The studio faces the big casino, built by Mr. Van three years ago for the amusement of the winter and summer residents of George's Mills, a pretty hamlet in the mountain region of the lake, whose name was changed to Van Harbor, at the request of the old time residents of the district.

The working staff of the Equity company arrived at the lake a short time ago, and under Mr. Van's direction began preparations for the taking of the first picture, in which Mr. Van and the Beaumont sisters will be featured. DeWitt C. Wheeler has also arrived to direct the productions.

Mr. Wheeler declares the location and surrounding country ideal for scenic effects. He is astonished that the district was not invaded years ago. Bob Russell, the general manager of the company, was also a recent visitor to the lake. He expects to leave New York shortly with a company of fifteen picture artists, selected for the early productions. The Equity Motion Picture company has taken offices in the Strand theatre building, Forty-seventh street and Broadway, New York.

New York "Herald" Dramatic Critic Joins Lasky Sta

John C. Flinn, Who for Three Years Prepared Articles of Marked Ability for the Paper, Will Undertake Publicity Promotion for the Company

JOHN C. FLINN, for the past three years dramatic reviewer and assistant dramatic editor of the New York "Herald," has been engaged by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company as promotion and publicity representative and assumes his new duties at once.

He is the second dramatic editor of a New York newspaper to join the Lasky staff, Hector Turnbull, dramatic editor of the New York "Tribune," already having taken up scenario writing and literary work in the firm's studios at Hollywood, Cal., where he has become a member of the artistic department of the company.

Mr. Flinn comes of a family well known in newspaper work in this country. His father, John J. Flinn, for many years was a leader in journalism in Chicago and the Middle West, and now is prominent in Boston newspaper circles. Mr. Flinn's ability in handling the dramatic work of the New York "Herald" has been marked not only by a talent for criticism and an eye for news, but by a genuine literary capacity in the preparation of special articles on general and dramatic matters for the "Herald."

Samuel Goldfish, treasurer and general manager of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, who has just returned east from Hollywood, announces that a regular press department has been instituted in Los Angeles, under the direction of Kenneth McGaffey, at one time press representative for Messrs. Comstock and Gest. He has held important appointments of this order under most of the large theatrical firms in New York.

Whitman Bennett, formerly press agent for the Lasky company, remains with the concern in an executive capacity.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—It is the desire of "Motion Picture News" to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in the management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything, in fact, done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to write us about any new enterprise he has; also to come to us for advice or information along any line. Address: Editor, "Motion Picture News," 220 West Forty-second Street, New York City

COMBINATION OF THE NEW AND THE OLD POPULAR

A. W. HOVERY, of Baltimore, has assumed the management of the Truxton theatre, Washington, D. C. This is a resident theatre, but Mr. Hovery means to give his patrons the same big attractions that the downtown houses have.

He is combining in his programs the present features with those of past releases which have not been presented in his neighborhood or which can well bear a repetition. Among these may be mentioned "The Christian," "The Devil," "Hypocrites," "The Man Who Found Himself," "Children of the Ghetto," "The Heart of Maryland," and others.

"The best way to keep your patrons at home is to give them what they will go away for," commented Mr. Hovery. "With the comfortable, attractive house, as the Truxton is, there is every reason why we should offer the big production. Two or three times a week the admission is ten cents, and the other nights five cents.

"I find the people willing to accept these prices. The youngsters are always five cents and you would be surprised how they bring the parents or other grown folks on the ten-cent nights. I am well pleased with my new house and future prospects look excellent."

"HOUSE OF FEATURES" KEEPS THE HOUSE FULL

MANAGER Matthew Bridge, of the American Theatre, Long Beach, Cal., has increased the admission price to ten cents and an all-feature policy, using for his slogan "The House of Features."

In addition, he is using a weekly of local news events of two to three hundred feet each week. The weekly is produced for Manager Bridge by the Balboa Amusement Producing Company, which has its studios at Long Beach.

HIGHER PRICES IN ST. LOUIS

A NOTABLE and gratifying tendency toward higher admission prices is observed in the smaller theatres in St. Louis. A number of five-cent houses have made Sunday a ten-cent day, then added a feature on some other night, that night becoming a ten-cent night.

The Mackland theatre, 5414 Arsenal street, has three ten-cent nights a week, Thursday, Friday and Sunday. Paul Steffen, the manager, runs five reels of pictures on ten-cent nights and four on other nights.

The Merry Widow theatre, 1457 Chouteau avenue, managed by G. A. Hay, has just added Friday as a special feature night, charging ten cents. Sunday performances at the Merry Widow have brought ten cents for some time.

The Hudson theatre, Eleventh street and Park Avenue, is another house trying to get in the ten-cent class. Thursday is the special feature night there. Sunday has always been ten cents at the Hudson.

AUTO ON REVOLVING GLOBE SHOWS "SEARCH FOR THRILLS"

THE Old Mill Theatre, Dallas, Texas, has created a reputation for itself for putting out novel advertising matter to draw the crowds.

The latest publicity idea is a mechanical device in front of the theatre, used in connection with the presentation of the Bosworth production, "Betty in Search of a Thrill," which has attracted considerable attention.

It is in the form of a geographical globe revolving with a tiny automobile at the summit. Inside the car is a little doll and below is a card reading "Betty in Search of a Thrill." The idea for this novelty was conceived by Ben Lewis, the house manager. E. H. Hulsey is general manager of the Old Mill and Herschel Stuart is manager of the publicity department.

1000 CARNATIONS GIVEN AWAY ON MOTHERS' DAY

H. C. TAMANSEN, manager of the Yankton theatre, Yankton, S. D., gave away one thousand carnations to patrons at his house on Mothers' Day.

He is one of the South Dakota exhibitors who is applying modern business methods to gain the good will of his patrons, and he finds payment in the large, happy crowds that push past the ticket window at every show.

SUFFERING CHILDREN TOUCH HEARTS OF EXHIBITORS

A TEN-DAY campaign is being waged in Denver to raise $250,000 for the Children's hospital. This institution is a very worthy one, and the managements of the Princess, Paris, Lyric, Tabor and Yale theatres, all first class motion picture houses, are boosting the cause by the gift of one day's receipts.

CHAPLIN BARKERS PROVE DRAWING CARDS

IRVING AUGUR, who recently purchased the Optic theatre, at 533 South Main street, Los Angeles, has started a so-called craze there that is being employed by a vast majority of the theatres throughout the city.

Mr. Augur, who before coming to Los Angeles was an exhibitor in San Francisco, Oakland and Alameda, inaugurated the "bally-hoo," in front of the Main street house—the bally-hoo being none other than an imitator of the renowned Charlie Chaplin.

Each day, a little man, wearing the eternal Chaplin mustache, the baggy trousers and the ill-fitting derby hat, stations himself in front of the theater, and, gesticulating with his cane, invites pedestrians to enter the house.

The result of Mr. Augur's innovation has been a widespread infringement on his idea. Not only theatres, but automobile tire concerns and other agents have adopted the idea. It is not an uncommon sight to see as many as three or four Charlie Chaplins on one single block in the busy parts of the city.

BUYS SHOES FOR FREE DISTRIBUTION

FRANK E. GOFF, proprietor of the Franklyn theatre, at 1624 North Twenty-fourth street, Omaha, Neb., pulled a live-wire stunt of consequence recently when he gave away two hundred pairs of shoes to poor people in the neighborhood of his theatre. He seized an opportunity to buy the entire stock of a shoe store that was going out of business. For two weeks he advertised that the shoes would be given, free, to any poor people needing them.

In many instances he fitted out entire families. Many youngsters, forced to endure the humiliation of ill-shod feet while attending school, had a chance to thank him for a good deed that meant more to them than a picnic outing, even. "Daddy" Goff has established a city-wide reputation for aiding the poor. Every summer he gives outings for the kiddies. Every Christmas, Thanksgiving and Fourth of July he has special benefit stunts that have given him the place of honor in the hearts of many people.

This is why the Franklyn is one of Omaha's most popular theatres and is showing to capacity houses at every performance.

First Use of Horsley Camera Is in "Mix-up of Males"

Improvements Reduce Unnecessary Footage by the Substitution of "The Flash" for "Fade In and Outs," Thus Giving a Picture Quicker Action

MINA films recently made arrangements for the exclusive right to use David Horsley's latest invention, the Horsley double exposure camera, in their productions, and in the new series of MinA films lately begun, this "wonder-box," as it has been called, is put to use for the first time in regularly released pictures. Those who have seen these releases say that the effects procured make them most interesting photographic novelties.

The use of the Horsley camera works to the advantage of MinA films in more ways than one, for, aside from the standpoint of uniqueness and originality of the illusions which the camera is capable of producing, the very manner of affecting the illusions enhances the strength of the pictures to no little extent, say those who have seen the effect.

For instance, what is called the "flash" process is used to gain the same effect as is obtained by the "fade in and out." To "flash" a scene requires but a few exposures while for the fade in and out several feet of film are usually found to be necessary.

Thus the footage for the scenes is cut down considerably, the drags hitherto unavoidable are eliminated, and the scene in which the flash is used is given a snappier action, to say nothing of a very pleasing effect.

This flash process is used for the first time in "A Mix-up in Males" MinA's releases for June 17. The trend of the story requires one character to phone his butler. After giving his number, waiting for a fraction of a second to represent the time necessary to make the connection, the character calls with the customary "hello" to his butler, to whom the scene then immediately flashes. As the conversation continues the flashes alternately show one character giving and the other receiving the message. Altogether the entire telephone "bit" takes up only a few feet of film—certainly not nearly as many as the fade in or out or the double exposure, which is also sometimes used—and lends more action to the scene, besides providing an unusual effect.

Another feature made possible by the new camera is that the dialogue, suitable to the action of the story, can be photographed from printed words right on the film as the scenes run along. This, too, is something new, and while it has not been used in any of the releases made so far, the producers will not overlook the advantages to be gained from it.

By far, however, the greatest possibilty of the new camera is that it permits two exposures to be made at the same time on one negative.

Ordinarily double exposures are made by the first taking a scene, rewinding the negative, and then with minute exactness photographing the vision. To get good effects one must have full knowledge of the work and at the same time exercise extreme care.

On account of this and because of the limitations of the ordinary camera, the variety of double exposure illusions are necessarily restricted. The new Horsley camera, however, because of the simplicity with which the double exposures may be made, permits a wide range of photographic illusions.

The value of the new camera will be brought out most in the animal pictures with the Bostock menagerie, which MinA is producing. It requires no stretch of imagination to picture how, by this camera, the wonderfully realistic effects which MinA films promise can be secured.

BARKER-SWAN CONSOLIDATES WITH ADVANCE MOTION PICTURE

The Barker-Swan Service and the Advance Motion Picture company, both of Chicago, have consolidated, and hereafter the entire business is to be conducted under the name of the Advance Motion Picture company.

The new officers are C. W. Hutton, president; A. H. Shields, secretary; and Edwin L. Barker, treasurer and general manager.

Very shortly the studio and factory is to be enlarged in order to take care of the new business.

In co-operation with some of the country's more important interests, Mr. Barker has created a series of motion pictures unlike any other pictures ever produced.

Later this company will establish its own exchanges and will work directly with the exhibitors.

"The Right of Way" Will Be First Metro at Strand

Faversham, Star in the Screen Version of the Well Known Novel, Expects to Read to Audience Cablegram from the Author on Opening Night

FOR the first time in the history of the Strand theatre, since the fourth week after it opened, a picture other than that of the only program then in existence, will be the offering during the week beginning Sunday, July 4. A Metro picture opens at the Strand on the above date.

"The Right of Way" has the honor of inaugurating the Metro service at the Strand and the favored star is William Faversham, who plays the leading role.

LEO PIRNIKOFF AND ETHEL ROSE (above), BARONESS VON ROTTENTHAL (below), IN KALEM'S "MIDNIGHT AT MAXIM'S"

With the exception of the Broadway theatre at Forty-first street, Metro pictures will now be seen at every photoplay theatre on Broadway, charging ten cents admission or more. General Manager Rowland, of the Metro concern, when asked if he was elated at the thought of Metro pictures being accorded the signal honor of opening a new era at the Strand, said, "No. Metro will not assume the honor. It is entirely due our determined producing allies, and while we are elated that Metro pictures are to be featured at the Strand, we will not be content until the one other house on Broadway contracts for them."

"The Right of Way" is a Metro de luxe production, from the city studios of the Metro concern and was directed by John Noble. William Faversham, the noted dramatic star, played the leading role in the production, and was supported by a select cast, including Jane Grey.

"The Right of Way" is one of the most costly features ever offered on a regular program. Mr. Faversham received fifteen thousand dollars for four weeks' work, and when the time required him to work an additional week, he received three thousand dollars.

There will be special events and special features on the bill at the Strand, which will include the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Faversham, Julie Opp, Jane Grey, Director Noble, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Rowland, Joseph W. Engel, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, and representatives of Sir Gilbert Parker, who is cabling his sentiments to Mr. Faversham, and which the latter will read from the stage of the Strand.

EDITION OF PATHE "NEWS" PLANNED FOR DENVER

Denver, Col., June 30.

It is reported that Mr. Mayo, editor of the San Francisco edition of Pathé "News," who is in Denver, is looking for a location with the intention of starting an edition in this city. It is considered that the territory now served by Pathé exchanges is entirely too large for the "News" published in San Francisco to cover completely.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

CREIGHTON HALE, PATHE PLAYER, INHERITS TALENT

Creighton Hale, the Pathé actor who appears as Jameson in "The Exploits of Elaine," tells how he first happened to go into pictures.

He was playing in "Indian Summer," then a Broadway attraction, under the management of the late Charles Frohman, and his work was noticed and liked by a Pathé director. An attractive proposition was made to him by the director, which was accepted, and since then he has appeared continuously in Pathé pictures.

Mr. Hale comes by his dramatic ability naturally, since his ancestors for generations have been identified with the English stage. His father for years was a favorite with London playgoers, and the young Mr. Hale embarked upon the same career at a very early age.

He came to America as a member of Forbes Robertson's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" company, and liked the country so well that he stayed here ever since. Under the direction of the Whartons, the Pathé producers, he has become widely known to the moving picture public.

RAY LINCOLN IS WITH MINA FORCES

MinA Films announce the addition to their producing force in Los Angeles of Ray Lincoln, who has appeared in many motion picture productions.

His first appearance with MinA pictures is in "The Fighting Kid," a comedy in one reel, to be released through the licensed exchanges on July 15.

Kalem's "Hotel Mysteries" Is Set for Release July 21

KALEM'S new mystery series, "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel," commences with "The Strangler's Cord," which is to be released on Wednesday, July 21. This series follows the "Girl Detective Stories," the last episode of which will be issued on July 14.

"The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel" will consist of twelve weekly two act episodes. A decidedly unique feature of this series is the fact that representative hotels throughout the country collaborated with Kalem to the extent of supplying the incidents upon which the various episodes of the series are based.

The results were exceedingly gratifying, and "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel" was made possible. This, of course, meant months of hard work, but that it was not wasted labor will be realized when the first episode of the series is flashed upon the screen.

A story published in the NEWS several months ago, told of the wonderful setting in course of construction at Kalem's Glendale, Cal., studios. This setting represents the lobby of the Grand Hotel.

The plans for this lobby were drawn by Arthur Siedle, technical director for the Metropolitan Opera company, and the man who controls all the settings used by that organization, the foremost authority in his particular field.

To construct the lobby in accordance with Mr. Siedle's plans necessitated an outlay of more than $5,000. As an indication of the length to which Kalem went in an effort to secure absolute realism, the Otis Elevator company was commissioned to incorporate a working elevator into the setting. Thus, for the first time in the history of the industry, an elevator is used as a regular studio prop.

Among the hotels which supplied Kalem with material for "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel" were the McAlpin and the Hotel Buckingham, of New York City; Auditorium Hotel, Chicago; Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis; Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco, and the Hotel Savoy of Kansas City, Missouri.

Incidentally, a number of prominent artists have been engaged to design the special one, three and six-sheet posters which are to be issued with each of the twelve two act episodes. These posters will be four-color lithographs, and the designs already submitted are unusually striking.

DOUBLE IDENTITY IN VITAGRAPH FILM

Ostrau, a mythical principality in the shadow of the Pyrenees and America, furnishes the scene of "The Prince and His Double," a five-part drama of mystery just undertaken for production by the Vitagraph company under the direction of Van Dyke Brooke.

"The Prince and His Double" was picturized by Anna Mehring from "The Riddle and the Ring," a popular magazine story by Gordon MacLaren, and will present Maurice Costello in the dual role of Barry Lawrence, an impetuous American, and Prince Oscar, the son of King Gustave of Ostrau; Norma Talmadge as Shirley Rives; Anders Randolf as Baron Hager, Chief of the Oustrau Secret Service, and Charles Kent as King Gustave.

Popular peaceful Rafferty will go down to Centerport, L. I., this week to his summer home that Charlie O'Hara created, and perform some of the comical antics that have made him famous on the screen.

"Rafferty at His Summer Home" is the title, and it will be in one reel. Peggy Shannon and Joe Sullivan will handle the leading roles in the same artistic manner they have handled the others. J. A. Fitzgerald will direct it.

Morosco's "Peer Gynt" Is Making Rapid Progress

AT the Los Angeles studios of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company, work on this concern's latest screen production, "Peer Gynt," with the well known actor-manager, Cyril Maude, is rapidly progressing, and it is expected that this release will present the largest subject yet put out by the Morosco forces.

CYRIL MAUDE AS HE APPEARS IN SOME OF THE SEA SCENES FROM "PEER GYNT," THE NEWEST MOROSCO FILM

In addition to the large sets being prepared for the interior scenes of this play a cast including such able players as Herbert Standing, William Desmond, Myrtle Stedman, Charles Ruggles and many others, together with a most generous supply of extras, has been selected to support Mr. Maude.

Inasmuch as the subject embraces the world wanderings of a poet-souled adventurer, typical scenes of every clime and people will be presented. Already an ocean trip to Catalina Island, another to the desert in the Imperial Valley, costing $1,000 a day, and to many canyons in the Sierra Madres, as well as a journey to the San Bernardino Mountains, have been made by the principals and an army of others, including supers, riders, stage and property men, cameramen and directors, to say nothing of the rather unique collection of live stock which will play an important part in the film. Other big trips are at present being arranged by the producers in order to get the desired atmosphere for the subject.

"Peer Gynt" is an adaptation from the famous dramatic poem by Henrik Ibsen, published in 1867. In February, 1876, its first stage presentation was made with Edward Grieg's famous incidental music at the Christiania theatre, Christiania, Norway, where, after the play ran thirty-seven times, the stage was destroyed by fire.

The production was revived in the same theatre in 1892 and met with big success, Bjornsterne Bjornson, the celebrated poet and dramatist, playing Peer. The play was first staged in English by Richard Mansfield in 1906 at Chicago, where its European success was duplicated. Its splendid screen qualities will readily assert themselves to its viewers.

CENSORSHIP CRAZE REACHES TEXAS TOWN

Waco, Texas, newspapers are agitating censorship similar to that of Dallas for picture shows, theatres, dance halls, skating rinks and the like.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

PHILADELPHIA FILM EXCHANGE CLUB HOLDS DINNER

THE Philadelphia Film Exchange Club held its last meeting at the Hotel Vendig. A dinner was the main feature of the evening. These dinners will for the present be given each week on the evening best suited to the club members. The election of officers was postponed until the next meeting.

The dues were fixed at five dollars monthly, with ten dollars initiation fees. J. S. Binns was elected a member. Pledges of friendship and amity were given by each member to all the others. The most important discussion was on C. O. D. shipments.

It was felt that reliable theatre owners were willing to pay in advance, and if this rule was not made binding, the best exhibitors must necessarily suffer. Jack Levy, V. R. Carrick and Herbert Given were appointed a committee to look into this and other matters relating to the best interests of both exhibitors and exchanges.

The committee will make a report in about a month. The Vendig will be the scene of the next meeting and dinner.

DAVE BERSHON WILL BE AGAIN WITH UNIVERSAL IN LOS ANGELES

DAVE BERSHON, one of the pioneers of the film renting business of the west coast, formerly part owner and manager of the Los Angeles California Film exchange, releasing the Universal program, has returned to Los Angeles and will take charge of the bookings at the Universal exchange, and will be assistant manager and have charge of the regular program.

This will enable Manager Dan Markowitz to devote practically all of his time to the bookings of the Universal features, the first of which include Jane Cowl in "The Garden of Lies," the Weber-Smalley subject, "Scandal," and the first Universal-Bosworth release, "The Scarlet Sin" which have arrived. They have been given a private showing before the managers of the larger theatres.

METROPOLITAN OF PITTSBURGH MOVE TO NEW OFFICES

THE Metropolitan Booking Offices of Pittsburgh, last week moved their office, films, books and vaults and shipping department to 121 Fourth avenue, and are now located in Room 14. This move on the part of the company was necessitated by the increasing of the business of the firm, and by the addition of the Kriterion service.

Shortly after the move a shipment of more than two hundred reels was made, and it is said that the officers are now dickering for additional space.

EXCHANGE MEN IN SOUTH MAKE CHANGES

KARL BUGBEE, former manager of the World Film corporation in New Orleans, has been put in charge of the Metro program in that vicinity, and will soon open a sub-office in New Orleans of the Southern Metro Film corporation at Chattanooga, Tenn., which controls the entire southeastern States.

L. W. Miller, of the Progressive Feature Film company, Dallas, has just secured the six reel picture, Captain Kleinschmidt's "Arctic Hunt."

H. E. Stahler, formerly in charge of the Southwestern business of Warners' Features, with headquarters at Dallas, and lately traveling for the Atlanta office of the World Film corporation, is now managing the Palace theatre, at Macon, Ga.

F. A. Tomes has been put on the road by Manager Levison, of the Dallas office of the Box Office Attraction Film Rental company. Tomes has been in the booking department in the Dallas office of the company.

E. Auger, Southern representative of the World Film corporation, spent three days in Dallas during the week of June 14, in consultation with Manager Sanford, and looking over film conditions in the Texas territory.

William Oldknow, general manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply company, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., was a visitor at the Consolidated exchange in Dallas during the week.

The Peerless Feature Film company, through its manager, Harry T. Peebles, announces that it has secured the sales rights to United States and Canada on the productions of the Fitzhugh Film Manufacturing Company, a Dallas producing concern. The initial release of this company is a single-reeler, "Ruth's Romance," a comedy-drama. In the near future, this company will make one three reeler per month.

PHILADELPHIA EXCHANGES ARE ACTIVE

HARRY SCHWALE, Philadelphia exchange manager of the Electric Supply company, will leave on July 5 for a trip out west with the Shriners, Seattle being the objective place.

Joseph Spero, who has been manager of the Greater New York Film Rental company for only three months, has in that time formulated new methods which have caused a great increase in the business of the exchanges, in spite of strong competition of other service exchanges. Especially is a record breaking on Chaplin releases reported.

Jack Levy, manager of the Fox Film corporation, will go on July 1 to the convention of all the Fox Film managers, to be held in New York. This convention will last several days and give a chance for all the Fox managers to thresh out problems and receive valuable suggestions. Mr. Levy reports such a big business in the Philadelphia office that a substantial increase in salary has been given all employees. This increase is held to be due to the popularity now being attained by the present and forthcoming Fox releases, among which may be mention "Should a Woman Tell?" "Dr. Rameau," "Lady Audley's Secret," "The Sorceress," "The Bondman," and "The Two Orphans."

Harry Bryan, of the Metropolitan Booking Office, who has secured the rights for several eastern states to "Life Under the Sea" and "The Rescue of the Steffanson Arctic Expedition," has arranged for a private screening of these films, at which Mayor Blankenburg, other city officials and the press representatives will be the guests of honor.

Jean Marcus, of the Eastern Booking company, was in New York several days last week on business connected with his very successful exchange. The Eastern is one of the few state rights companies that are still flourishing in that section.

FLINTOM'S EXCHANGE MOVES

ON July 1, the Kansas City Feature Film company will move into its new home at 922 Oak street, Kansas City. This company will occupy approximately 5,000 square feet of floor space, and will be one of the most up-to-date film exchanges in the southwest.

Beautiful oak fixtures have been installed, making the office a place of beauty. A large Rex cleaning plant will be operated, as well as a printing plant for the preparation of heralds, stationery and all the printed needs of the firm.

A. D. Flintom, president of the company, is the oldest film man in the middle west. he will be remembered for his former connection with the Yale Film exchange, which was later merged with the General Film company of which he was manager of both the St. Louis and Kansas City offices for some time. He later resigned to start the Kansas City Feature Film company which has been most successful, and which distributes the Paramount program in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

The Monarch Feature Film company of St. Louis, in charge of George E. McKean, and the Des Moines Film Supply company, Des Moines, Iowa, in charge of R. C. LeBeau, are both branches of the Kansas City Feature Film Company.

ALLEN BELIEVES IN ART CAMPAIGN FOR PICTURES

COINCIDENT with the removal of its northwestern branch from the Kasota building to 712 Produce building, Minneapolis, The Pathé exchange has begun a campaign to interest exhibitors throughout the territory in more artistic productions.

W. P. Allen, the manager, believes that the motion picture is now so well established as the prevailing drama that distributors can afford to "harp" on the artistic side more than they have done in the past. For the real art in drama he believes the film has possibilities far exceeding those of the older drama.

He is now interesting exhibitors in the colored films, and he reports that they are popular everywhere shown. There is always a call for more and patrons are asking for future dates on such films.

As another phase of the artistic campaign he is urging the exhibitors to improve the appearance of their lobbies by having neater posters.

"The patrons of the moving pictures are no longer those who merely want to be startled or aroused from sluggishness," he said.

The patrons look to the theatre for entertainment, education and for their mental betterment. The majority are of this type and the glaring poster of things the film does or does not show does not appeal as will a neat scene properly shown. He urges the exhibitors not to mar the architectural beauties of a lobby or theatre front by a meaningless display of too much paper.

Business throughout the district comprising Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Michigan, Mr. Allen says, is good. Five salesmen are on the jump. L. Booth has the twin cities and the outside territory is handled by Theodore Quandall, Frank Woskie, Ted Karatz and J. C. McClellan.

FELDSTEIN WILL GO TO COAST FOR VACATION

GENERAL manager of the United Film exchanges of Montreal and Toronto, Manny Feldstein, will enjoy the first vacation he has received in his many years of activity in Motion Picture affairs, when he takes the trip from Montreal to California in the interests of his company next week.

Although Manager Feldstein will be called upon to get back into the harness again as soon as he reaches the coast, he has arranged his trip for a couple weeks' much needed rest before he takes up his new duties.

BONAFF EMPLOYS MEN WHOSE SALES STICK

JOSEPH BONAFF, who has been employed as salesman by Manager P. H. Goldstone, of the World Film company exchange at Omaha, Neb., carries out Manager Goldstone's idea of a salesman of films.

"I do not hire a man as salesman because he is a film expert," said Goldstone; "I hire him because he is a salesman. He has made good in selling other lines, so I get him to sell my line, that's all.

"I keep a prospective salesman in the office for two weeks until he learns something about the business. I am tired of the old-fashioned kind of salesman who stuffs an exhibitor with a lot of hot air, sells him some features and then leaves him. In such a case the cancellation generally precedes the order. I want men, trained salesmen, who sell goods and whose sales stick.

"For that reason my salesmen are constantly taking courses of study I give out to them. Efficiency counts in this line, both for the exchange and for the exhibitor. The exhibitor appreciates being treated like the business man that he is."

HEBREW IS IN TOUCH WITH NATION-WIDE EXHIBITORS

THERE are few booking men in the film business more conversant with the exhibition conditions of the industry than J. S. Hebrew, Philadelphia manager for the V-L-S-E. His experiences have put him in touch with exhibitors from Maine to California and from the lakes to the gulf.

His first connection with the motion picture business was during the formation of the Patents company, at which time he became associated with the Philadelphia office of that company, and assisted in concluding arrangements for the consolidation of the Calehuff, Schwaab, Lubin and the Electric Theatre Supply company, the four exchanges doing business in Philadelphia.

J. S. HEBREW

Later, he was transferred to Boston, where he consolidated the Howard and Kleine branches. He spent considerable time in the New England states, and established an office for the General Film company in Bangor, Me.

He then turned his attention to New York City, where he was prominent in Film circles, and later went west.

Just prior to his connection with the Big Four, he handled the bookings for feature productions in the Pennsylvania territory from Wilkes-Barre and Harrisburg.

FOX BOSTON ROAD MEN BREAK RECORD

DURING the absence of Manager H. F. Campbell at the convention of Fox managers in New York, Charles Phillips, one of the road men for the New England Fox office in Boston, is in charge of the Boston headquarters. During the two weeks these two men sent Mr. Campbell contracts for the Fox service with these theatres: Memorial Hall, Lee, Mass.; Mohawie theatre, Great Barrington, Mass.; Princeton, Bridgewater, Mass.; Gem, Machias, Me.; Natick at Natick, Mass.; New Majestic, Rumford, Me., Pastime, Madison, Me.; Morse opera house, Franklin, Mass.; Midget, Brookfield, Star, Bar Harbor, Ward's, Manset, Me.; Boulevard, East Boston, Union hall, Searsport, Me.; Empire, Norwood, Gem, Athol, Spa, Pittsfield, St. James, Pittsfield, N. H.; Star, Milford, N. H.; Olympia, Rockingham, Magnet, Raymond and Comique, Camden, Me.

Mr. Campbell's present policy is to hold what he has in the big places and get new business in the small ones.

JONES IS THE BALTIMORE HEAD OF UNITED

CARL R. JONES has been placed at the head of the Baltimore branch of United program, with offices at 419 East Baltimore street. The Washington office found this necessary to more adequately handle the business of the exhibitors of the Monumental City. Mr. Jones is quite pleased with his post.

Among the local theatres that have taken on the United program are Schutzen Park, with Rudolph Keith as manager, the Rhode Island theatre, with C. H. Serin as manager, and Empire Park, a recent acquisition of the Atkinson chain. The other houses under Louis J. Atkinson's control are the American and the Olympic Park, both of which show feature programs of a high standard.

ROUSE MAY ESTABLISH OFFICE IN PORTLAND, ORE.

M. M. ROUSE, of the Progressive Motion Picture company, having offices at 300 Marsh-Strong building, Los Angeles, Cal., is in Portland, Ore., in the interest of Paramount pictures.

W. E. WIMAN, a well known Seattle booker, with the Pathé interests in that city for some time, who recently took charge of the same department in Pathé's Portland office, has received a tempting offer from Tom North, manager of the Seattle office of the Big Four, and will probably accept the position.

$2,600 CONTRACTS REWARD METRO FOR LIVE DENVER SHOWING

AFTER showing Metro pictures at the Broadway theatre, Denver, for six days, to which all exhibitors throughout Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming and Montana were invited, Harry J. Cohen, of the Metro home office, announces a gross contracted business exceeding two thousand dollars a week, with other contracts yet unsigned.

In the unusual method of showing the exhibitors twelve releases before requesting them to use the program, Metro hit upon a novel method, and, as indicated by Cohen's figures, struck a most responsive chord.

Four of the principal Denver houses are playing the Metro program three and four days and one an entire week, while the cities in the four states incorporated in the Denver territory are responding in unusual fashion.

Harry Cohen, who opened the Denver office, sent broadcast throughout the territory, invitations to exhibitors, telling them that if they came to the showing at the Broadway and were sufficiently impressed to enter into contracts, Metro would defray fifty per cent. of their traveling expenses. Over two hundred exhibitors responded and eighty per cent. signed a Metro agreement.

Mr. Cohen is organizing the Denver office and will return to New York next week.

V-L-S-E OPENS DENVER AND DETROIT OFFICES

THE Big Four announces the establishment of two new branch offices to take care of the increasing V-L-S-E business in the middle west.

Offices have been opened in Detroit, Mich., in the Peter Smith building, and in Denver, Colo., at 1031 Seventeenth street.

The Detroit office is in charge of R. R. Hutton, and the Denver office will be presided over by Frank Harris.

The opening of these two new distributing points brings the total number of V-L-S-E branches up to sixteen; three times the number originally in the chain, when the company started releasing less than three months ago.

OMAHA HOUSE FOR FEATURES AT TEN CENTS

PROMOTERS in Omaha are saying that this fall will see the erection of a beautiful theatre in the downtown district, the policy of which will be a regular admission of ten cents with feature pictures.

Those back of the movement, not yet ready to let their identity become known, say one of the ideas is to promote the standing of houses in the Middle West in general and in downtown Omaha in particular. Several prominent motion picture men are said to be back of the movement.

VARIED PROGRAMS GO BEST IN HOT WEATHER, SAYS LUST

SYDNEY B. LUST, Washington, D. C., manager of the United program, is a busy man these days. He recently returned from a tour of his southern territory and made a favorable report of new acquisitions of theatres and length of programs.

Speaking of the summer needs of exhibitors and patrons, Mr. Lust remarked, "The varied program is what the people want during the hot weather. Long features are too serious and not of sufficient relaxation just now.

"The demand for our comedies was demonstrated just the other day, when within three blocks on Ninth street four houses were showing the Heine and Louis series."

BORN in New York City, in 1889, Jack Levy, the manager for Fox in Philadelphia, joined the Barnum and Bailey circus, doing a juggling and slack wire act in the season of 1904, under the name of "Marvelous Le Roy." He entered the employ of William Fox in 1907, when

JOHNSON TO ATTEND PATHE CONVENTION

MANAGER Johnson, of the Pathé Film exchange, Cleveland, has been notified to attend the Pathé convention to be held in Chicago on July 12.

WALSH PRODUCING "REGENERATION" FOR FOX

Raoul A. Walsh, who recently arrived from the Pacific coast to join the producing staff of William Fox, is hard at work on the screen version of "Regeneration," the photodrama being taken from Owen Kildare's famous book of the same name. The story of Regeneration, which proved a tremendous success when presented upon the stage, is a most powerful one, and tells of the influence of a good woman's love upon a man whom she seeks to save from the depths of degradation.

Mr. Walsh intends to make the production one that in every sense will measure up to the William Fox standard. There is exceptional opportunity afforded Mr. Walsh in "Regeneration" to show the picturesque and the sinister side of the life of the underworld of New York.

Scenes will be made in Chatham square, in Chinatown, along the Bowery, and in the famous block of the "Three Deuces," the most densely crowded tenement in the world. In the Chinatown scene, such famous characters of Mott street as Tom Lee, the Mayor of Chinatown; Rose Livingston, the Angel of Chinatown, and others of equal note, will appear.

TABOR GRAND OPENS FOR SUMMER SEASON

Denver, Colo., June 29.

The management of the Tabor Grand, one of Denver's leading theatres, and at one time the most beautifully equipped play house west of the Mississippi river, whose reign has in many instances made history in the West, has closed its regular schedule for the season and opened its doors for the summer to the most recent of big productions in motion pictures.

The management started the summer season with the presentation of Lois Weber's latest sensation, "Scandal."

The attendance at the Tabor last week guarantees the success of the motion pictures in that theatre.

GRIFFITH WINS DECISION FOR "NATION" IN CHICAGO

Los Angeles, June 28.

D. W. Griffith arrived home from Chicago and the East, after spending about fifteen days there battling with the censorship matters which came up in relation to the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Illinois theatre.

The result of Mr. Griffith's visit was a highly successful one, in that the judge of the superior court in which the suit for injunction to prevent the mayor, police, or board of censors to interfere with the showing of this wonderful picture, gives a decision which points out that the education of the court with regard to films is one of the essentials to prevent unjust legislation from being enforced.

The news of the decision of the court is considered by prominent men of the film industry here as a mile post with regard to the regulation of motion pictures by state or municipal censorship. The decision practically places the motion picture on an equal basis with that of any other publication work thus recognizing motion pictures as a publication which means the manufacturers of pictures is entitled to practically the same rights as any publisher. The censor board and the city officials of Chicago must, if they wish to prosecute the case further, appeal from the decision to the state courts of Illinois.

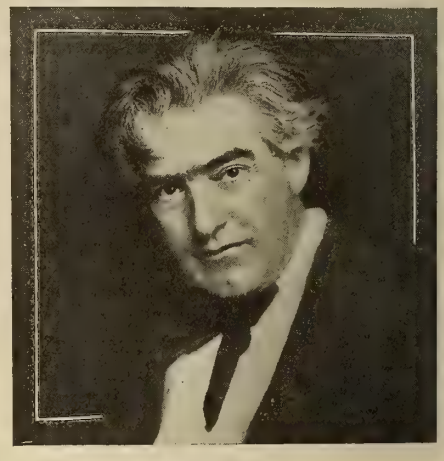
ALICE BRADY SIGNS LONG CONTRACT WITH WORLD

William A. Brady's charming and accomplished daughter, the youthful star, Alice Brady, has signed a long contract to appear in pictures released exclusively through the World Film corporation.

Following upon a few years' valuable stage experience gained in productions controlled by William A. Brady, and in many other theatrical offerings, Miss Brady, in December, 1914, made her screen debut in the photoplay version of the famous Brady-Snyder drama, "As Ye Sow."

She repeated her success in "The Boss," with Holbrook Blinn, released by World Film only a few weeks ago—so much so that she has received many offers at large salaries to appear with other companies. But Miss Brady has remained loyal to World Film and the William A. Brady Picture Plays, Inc.

BEAUTIES IN KALEM FILM WATCH FLEET FROM PALISADES



While Kalem was producing "Midnight at Maxim's," at their Cliffside studio, located at the edge of the Palisades at Cliffside, N. J., many picturesque scenes about the grounds presented themselves to an industrious camera man.

Among them is a picture of a bevy of beauties from Maxim's and Bustanoby's cabaret standing on the edge of the Palisades gazing across at New York, with the American fleet lying at their feet in the river below. Grant's tomb and various other notable structures on Riverside Drive are discernible in the distance.

TYRONE POWER EXPRESSES LIKING FOR FILM DRAMA

Tyrone Power, the distinguished stage star, who will shortly make his appearance in the V-L-S-E service, in a visualization of his greatest stage success, "A Texas Steer," says that he considers motion pictures an art that will never die out.

Mr. Power looks upon the work he has done before the camera, as one of the most valuable of his many experiences, and says that the technique of the silent drama was a revelation to him.

TYRONE POWER

It is interesting to note that this distinguished star considers the beneficial influence of the picture play, greater than the influence of the theatre.

It is stated by people who have seen the factory print of "A Texas Steer," that Mr. Power's work before the camera, displayed none of the nervousness that has been noticeable in the first appearance in films, of many stage stars.

APEX IN LOS ANGELES CLOSED

MARGUERITE CLARK IN "SEVEN SISTERS," FAMOUS PLAYERS RELEASE ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

In and Out of Los Angeles Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Los Angeles, June 28.

DIRECTOR General D. W. Griffith, who returned last week, is now completing the work of the production entitled "The Mother and the Law," many scenes of which were made several months ago. The cast for this includes Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Miriam Cooper, Mary Alden, Ralph Lewis, F. A. Turner, Walter Long and others. This, when completed, is to be another big multiple reel feature.

A two-reel Reliance drama, "The Americano," dealing with labor troubles in the Mexican oil fields, has been filmed last week. Thomas Jefferson appears in the name part as manager of the Mexican branch of an

BLANCHE SWEET IN "THE CLUE" (Lasky)

American oil company. Others in the cast are Margaret Loveridge, Kate Toncray, Boyd Norton and Lawrence Payton.

Motion picture rights on the Horace Hazeltine popular novel, "The Sable Lorcha," have been secured, and filming has been taken up at the Reliance studio. This will be completed in four reels and will be of the nature of a Chinese mystery melodrama, in which Thomas Jefferson plays the dual role of two brothers, one a scapegoat and the other a highly respectable citizen.

A complete Chinese street is being built for this production, and a number of sensational scenes will be made at sea where a large boat is to be scuttled. The direction will be under Lloyd Ingraham who recently completed a four reel subject entitled "The Fox Woman," from a story by John Luther Long.

Director Jack Conway secured a thriller last week when Josephine Ashton, champion child diver, leaped from the top of a bridge in Hollenbeck Park to the water thirty-five feet below for a scene in "The Fortification Plans." Little Josephine was awarded a five-hundred dollar cup by the National Swimming Association in 1912 for her diving feats. This subject will appear as a Reliance release.

R-M Players in the Mountains

A company of R-M players, including Ralph Lewis, Dorothy Gish, W. E. Lawrence and Frank Bennett have spent the past week in the mountains where scenes were made for "The Mountain Girl."

A part of the funeral services over the body of Elmer Booth, Komic player, killed last week in an automobile accident, that will cause the friends of this popular player to long remember the occasion, was the impromptu talk by D. W. Griffith at the grave.

Mr. Booth had played under the direction of Mr. Griffith in a great many subjects, and there was a very warm friendship existing between the two men from the time of their first acquaintance. The pall bearers, composed of R-M photo-players, included the following: Edward Dillon, Robert Harron, Frank Darien, Charles West, Max Davidson, and Chester Withey.

The first Universal multiple reel subjects featuring legitimate stage stars to be taken up at the west coast studio is that in which Marie Tempest, supported by W. Graham Brown, an English leading man, will appear. Work was begun Monday of this week.

Production of this, together with the preparation of a suitable story and scenario was placed in charge of Al. E. Christie who combined the two Nestor comedy companies to support this well known legitimate stage star. Eddie Lyons, Victoria Ford, Lee Moran, Jack Dillon, Billie Rhodes, Neil Burns, Harry Rattenberry and Laura Oakley will compose the all star supporting cast.

Julia Dean, Frank Keenan and other legitimate stage celebrities are expected at the Universal studio within a short time, and filming will then be taken up.

Poor Heroine Loses Her Teeth

The number one Nestor company has just finished "When Cupid Lost His Teeth," the story of a college girl who met with an accident when she became excited at a foot ball game. The fact that she wore a plate she kept a secret from her sweetheart, and the most unfortunate part of it all was the teeth were misplaced on the morning of her wedding. Eddie is the sweetheart, Vicky the toothless girl, and Lee causes all the trouble.

Another Nestor of the week is "Dan Cupid, Fixer," wherein a series of love quarrels are happily ended. The opening and closing dissolve outs consist of cupid hanging up and taking down his shingle. In this instance, cupid is a girl, little Georgia French.

"The Last Reasoning" is the title of a three-reel subject being made by the William Worthington Universal company. This deals with the misunderstood attempts of a wealthy socioligist to better the conditions of men. The plot not only deals with labor and capital problems, but also with those of the underworld. The theme has a decidedly human interest throughout, and it may be said the story has a decidedly novel plot.

A GROUP OF DRAMATIC SCENES FROM THE NYMP FEATURE, "THE TIDE OF FORTUNE," MADE AT INCEVILLE

How a sheriff of a Western county accidently came upon a wanted criminal and injured him when he was hiding by the side of the road, and to compensate for the injury gave him partial assistance in making his escape, forms the plot of "The Sheriff of Long Butte" being filmed for Universal Rex brand in two reels.

After the criminal has departed, the sheriff learns he is wanted for the murder of his wife who was a former sweetheart of the officer. In the cast are Arthur Shirley, Lon Chaney and Roy McCrey.

Railway Drama for Bison

The 101 Bison company has taken a short vacation from filming wild animal pictures and made a two-reel railway drama, "Chasing the Fast Mail," wherein the superintendent of a railway learning of a love affair between his daughter and a chief clerk in his office, sends the young man to an out of the way station, where upon failure of another to properly signal a train to stop necessary to prevent an accident, the young man takes a locomotive and attempts to run down the train just passed. On this is the superintendent and daughter.

Failing in this when the engine he was riding jumped the track the young man takes a hand car and accomplishes his purpose. Just reward is given in return for this work. Included in the cast are: Wellington Playter, Rex De Roselli, Betty Schade, and Marie Walcamp.

The second of a series of pictures featuring Charles "Daddy" Manley is now being made. The title of this is "The Source of Happiness," wherein a wealthy old widower induces his son to forget an adventuress by taking him to a small town where he becomes infatuated with an unsophisticated girl. Mr. Manley is supported by Millard K. Wilson, Gretchen Lederer, and Olive Golden. The direction is in charge of Frank Lloyd.

"Around the Corner" is a one-reel drama, the theme of which is based on the fact that it is impossible to know what will happen next. In this instance the young man of the story comes upon a penniless girl whose life has been ruined by a man who proves to be his rival for the hand of Marjorie Stone. By a coincidence this fact is established, and the young man is successful in winning the girl he loves. This is being produced by Carl Le Viness, late with the Features Ideal, who recently became a member of the Universal staff. In the cast are Sydney Ayres, Doris Pawn, Rhea Brown, and Val Paul.

A two-reel Universal subject entitled "Mere Money" is being produced by W. C. Dowlan, who also plays the leading part, that of a young Englishman of birth who becomes an American cowboy. Supporting Mr. Dowlan are "Doc" Crane, Violet MacMillan and William Wolbert.

Grace Cunard Completes Last "Coin" Episode

Grace Cunard has now finished the scenarios for all of the fifteen episodes of "The Broken Coin" serial, and the synopsis points out the fact that in practically every release of this picture many sensational features will be introduced. Number fourteen has many thrilling scenes that employ all the different kinds of equipment now used by the nations at war in Europe.

"Paternal Love," a one-reel Laemmle brand subject, derives its title from the affections displayed by a little five-year old girl for her father whom she does not know. The meeting occurs at the home of the man's former wife following his release from serving five years in prison. He went to the home not knowing who resided there, with the intention of robbing it.

When leaving with the plunder he sees and recognizes his daughter. A moment later the mother and her present husband arrive, but the entreaties of the child prevent them from calling the police.

The Allen Curtis Joker company has just completed "A Bashful Bachelor Blacksmith," in which the village smithy wins the heart of the widow when an automobile goes wrong. The usual Joker cast including Max, Gale and Lillian appear in this subject.

The Burton King company left last week for Follows Camp in the San Gabriel Canyon where they will remain a week or ten days filming scenes for semi-Western subjects.

The love of Cora Welden, of Cincinnati, a member of the Universal Beauty party, for swimming caused her to miss the special train at San Diego last week and to be left in a strange town without money or baggage, her possessions having been taken on the train. But friends of the Universal company succeeded in getting word to President Carl Laemmle, and the maid missed but a small portion of the program arranged.

Advice from the Kerrigan-Victor company camp at Lake Tahoe, California, states that "The Wilderness Creed," a story dealing with the superstitions of people of the lumber regions, is the first subject being made there.

Jack Dillon, formerly of the Nestor Universal company, who has been with the Romaine Fielding Lubin company in Arizona, has returned to Los Angeles, and is again associated with his old players under Al Christie.

New regulations have been enforced by the players and stage employees at the Lasky studio. Now there is no work performed between eight-thirty and nine o'clock each morning, for during this time Geraldine Farrar engages in her daily vocal and instrumental practice in the specially prepared dressing rooms. During this period all members of the Lasky staff take advantage of the grand opera offerings.

Lasky Employees Hear Farrar

This is not the only change that Miss Farrar has caused at the studio. In order that she may give the best performance possible, she has caused the management to institute the making of test films for all important scenes. These are taken following several rehearsals, developed immediately, and shown that evening that the star and other members of the company may see where the subject may be bettered.

The interest taken by Miss Farrar in the films leads all about the studio to believe that the subjects in which she appears will be of exceptional quality. On the first day she forgot the stipulations in her contract that she was to work but six hours each day, and evidently since that time has not recalled this clause.

On several occasions she has refused to stop work for lunch and on others has kept the producing company at the studio much later in the afternoon than is usual, stopping work only when the light is bad.

Morris Gest, manager for Miss Farrar, has also been singing "This Is the Life" and threatens to dispose of his theatrical interests and enter the motion picture field.

$6,000 Prayer Rug for "Blackbirds"

For a number of scenes in "Blackbirds" the use of a prayer rug valued at six thousand dollars has been secured by the Lasky company. This is the property of Arthur Letts, owner of one of the largest department stores in Los Angeles, and president of the National Retail Dealers' Association.

The making of a Lasky-Belasco subject, "A Case of Becky," from the successful play of Frances Starr, which had two seasons' run, was begun this week under the direction of Frank Reicher. Blanche Sweet and Carlyle Blackwell are featured in this.

Mr. Reicher has just completed the filming of "The Secret Orchard," which was given a studio showing Friday evening and shipped to the New York laboratories.

Donald Brian, late "Merry Widow" star, and since featured in "The Girl from Utah," will arrive at the Lasky studio in the near future for appearance in the film version of the Harold MacGrath story, "The Voice in the Fog."

The cowboys for the entertainment of Miss Farrar and other theatrical celebrities now at the Lasky studio, gave a rodeo in Griffith Park, Sunday afternoon. Prizes were offered for a number of difficult feats in riding and roping, and the program lasted fully two hours.

The Lasky company has arranged to take scenes for "Carmen" at the bull fights staged in Los Angeles by the 1915 entertainment committee for the pleasure of visitors. Troubadours from Mexico have been engaged for this event, which will be given on July 11 and 12. The latter date is to be known as Farrar day.

Puts It Over on Diogenes.

President and General Manager Fred J. Balshofer, of the Quality Pictures, has announced that he has found an honest man. Recently while in New York, he left the studio in charge of William F. Alder, who was to supervise the reconstruction of equipment. Mr. Alder found about sixty racks upon which films are wound before developing needing new brass screw eyes at the top.

He removed all of the old ones, and by a chemical process separated the silver that had collected on them from the brass. When this was all collected it weighed slightly more than ten pounds. All was sent to a local silversmith where it was moulded into a paper weight. This, which was appropriately inscribed, was presented to Mr. Balshofer this week by Mr. Alder. The silver is valued at $46.

What is known as the Sterling Motion Picture studio, Gower and Sunset boulevard, owned by F. J. Balshofer and used by Quality Pictures, is being completely rebuilt. All of the old frame buildings used for laboratories, scene docks, property and dressing rooms, together with the stage, is being removed and new ones will be built. The open air stage when completed will be 100 x 150 feet, and adjoining this will be an enclosed studio 30 x 50 feet, fitted with all new lighting devices. All new buildings are being constructed for dressing rooms, laboratories, etc.

Director James Horne, in charge of production at the Kalem Glendale studio, has just completed a four-reel feature subject, "The Girl and the Angel," in which Myrtle Tannehill, well known American and English star, is featured. Miss Tannehill is probably best remembered for her appearance in "A Pair of Sixes" at the Longacre theatre, and "Snobs" at the Hudson theatre, New York City, and "The Fortune Hunter" and "Sealed Orders" in London.

Director Horne is now engaged in filming "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel" series, featuring Marin Sais. In this episode, entitled "The Secret Code," Tom Lingham, a member of the company climbs down a rope from the sixth to the fourth story windows of an office building, and there re-enters the building. After the experience he confided to friends that he was now ready for an aeroplane ride.

Since the departure of J. P. McGowan, the direction of the "Hazards of Helen" railroad series has been placed in charge of James Davis. Miss Helen Holmes continues in the name part and is supported by the usual cast to which Robyn Adair, late of the American feature company, has been added.

Circus Man Directs "Ham" Comedies

The production of Kalem "Ham" comedies at the Hollywood studio of the Kalem company, is now in charge of Reub Miller, formerly of the Keystone studio, following a schooling of several years in the sawdust rings of Ringling, Barnum and Bailey and Forepaugh circuses. The cast composed of Lloyd V. Hamilton, Bud Duncan and Ethel Teare remains the same.

Selig producing companies, with the exception of the one under the direction of Colin Campbell, all took up new subjects the first of this week, and the zoo and Edendale studios presented decidedly busy scenes.

The Lloyd B. Carleton company is making a two-reel comedy drama adapted from a well known short story, "The Girl of the Red Feather," which is being used for a working title. In this a bank president unwittingly becomes a member of a band of crooks, and there makes the best of his plight until there is opportunity for escape. The principals of this are Bessie Eyton, Edward Piel and Edwin Wallock.

Two animal pictures, both of which are being made from scenarios, by Emma Bell, are under way. "The Quest," with scenes laid in India, which features the Selig zoo baby elephant is being made by Louis Chaudet. Roy Clark is playing the important role in this subject.

The other animal picture is being made by Thomas Santschi, who plays the title role. The title given this is "The Head of Paro." Scenes are laid in Bolivia and the plot contains the story of the regeneration and the sacrifice of a native half-breed. Marion Warner appears in the principal feminine part.

"The Scarlet Lady," with a cast composed of Anna Luther, Vivian Reed, Lillian Hayward, Eugene Pallette, Howard Scott, Al Filson, and George Brownell, is being filmed at the zoo under the direction of George Nichols. This is a society drama of two reels having to do with the downfall of a young woman by a series of unfortunate circumstances and her reclamation by society. Many of the scenes will be made at sea on board some of the most elaborate yachts on the Pacific coast.

Animals Take Part in a Selig

The three-reel photoplay from a story by Kathlyn Williams, "The Strange Case of Talma Lind," was filmed last week. Robert Daly was in charge of this subject, which features the author, supported by Guy Oliver. A majority of the animals of the Selig jungle zoo took part in this subject, the plot centering about an animal trainer and collector, his pets, and his daughter.

company has taken up the making of "The Face in the Mirror," in two reels, which is of the nature of a crook story. Stella Rosetta and Joe King appear in the principal roles.

That the wonderful zoo placed in Los Angeles by Col. William H. Selig is fully appreciated by the citizens was shown by the big crowds that spent a portion of Sunday there. The attendance was in excess of five thousand, and the beautiful lawns and gardens, with comfortable seats and tables, proved attractive to scores of picnicking parties. For the past few weeks new animals have been added almost daily, and the collection now consists of more than seven hundred different species of animals and birds.

Harry Mestayer, who has just been featured in the film version of the Meredith Nicholson novel, "The House of a Thousand Candles," produced at the Chicago Selig studio, has arrived at the west coast studios, and after a short vacation will be featured in three, five and six-reel subjects.

New York Street on Beach

Orrin Johnson, Broadway star, is daily wearing a costume of the early French period in the impersonation of the part of D'Artagnan, for the film version of Alexander Dumas' classical "The Three Musketeers." Mr. Johnson is one of the recent arrivals at the NYMP studios, and is appearing under the direction of Charles Swickard. The management is making every effort to make this a most elaborate production, and thousands of dollars' worth of costumes and magnificent interior settings are being used to portray the word picture of Dumas.

Manager Eugene H. Allen, of the NYMP studios, has found it necessary to build an addition to the dressing room occupied by Julia Dean, now playing the leading part in the NYMP feature "Matrimony," a problem play being filmed under the direction of Scott Sidney. Before Miss Dean left New York, Director General Thomas H. Ince wired her the nature of the part she was to appear in with the added suggestion that she bring a good wardrobe. Miss Dean complied by bringing an even dozen of trunks. The dressing room assigned to her has not been of sufficient size to permit the unpacking of the trunks, hence Mr. Allen has seen fit to put a score of carpenters at work.

The Pacific beach near NYMP studios has taken on the appearance of a New York street, built especially for scenes in the coming release "The Last Act," a stage life play featuring Bessie Barriscale. No dwellings resembling those of Manhattan could be found in Los Angeles, so compact brown stone houses with entrances through the basement were erected along the coast road past the studios. The direction of this subject is in charge of Walter Edwards.

Lou Tellegen, formerly leading man of Sarah Bernhardt during her most recent vaudeville tours in America, arrived at the Lasky studios this week for an indefinite engagement. No announcement has been made as to what subjects he will appear in, but it is known that a French drama and farce will be adapted for the screen in which he will be featured.

The Lasky company will take up a new feature in which Geraldine Farrar will play the leading role the latter part of this week. During the engagement of Miss Farrar only the scenes in which she appears will be made during her stay at the studio. Later the subjects will be completed. This method has been adopted by the Lasky company in order to secure just as many subjects as possible during the short time Miss Farrar is at the studio.

Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players company, returned here this week from a trip up and down the west coast, where he visited San Francisco, Seattle and Portland. While at the exposition city he arranged for the display of the Famous Players company at the convention colliseum. Mr. Zukor will spend several days here before returning to New York.

A Hair-Raiser Off Stage

A hundred or more extra people were used this week in the wheat pit scenes for "The Conqueror," a story of speculation featuring Willard Mack as Mark Horn, the wolf of finance. For these exact duplicates of the stock exchange have been built on Inceville stages. Director Reginald Barker, formerly associated with Mr. Mack on the legitimate stage, is in charge of this production, and insists that the well-known actor playwright gives a better performance for the camera than for an audience.

Inceville camermen were terrorized when one saw a rattlesnake come wiggling its way into the film storage vault and camera loading room built in the side of a hill. As there was danger of exposing a large quantity of films it was impossible for the cameramen to use a light to find and kill the unwelcome visitor, but after an hour's delay a strong ruby light was completed and then a careful search made.

Mr. Rattler was not found within the confines of the dark room, and the photographers are living in daily dread that he will put in an appearance while they are in the darkened room, it being their belief that the snake is still within the room.

"The Brand of Man" is a five-part Pathé-Balboa feature taken up at the Long Beach studio under the direction of Henry King, who is also author of the story which was placed in scenario form by Will M. Ritchey. It is the story of an avenging conscience in which an innocent youth becomes involved and is sent to prison.

Upon his release he secures a responsible position in a foreign city where he leads an honest life until another ex-convict, whom he knew in prison, arrives in the city, and induces him to secure him a position in the same bank. The newcomer falsifies the books in order to steal a portion of the funds and implicates the honest youth. The two are apprehended and the one who was the cause of the trouble is killed by officers. The honest youth escapes, and after wandering from city to city commits another crime.

His conscience causes him to make a full confession to the officers, following which he drops dead.

LATE SHOWING TAKES WELL IN LOUISVILLE

For the first time in Louisville, Ky., except on New Year's Eve, late shows beginning at 10:30 o'clock and lasting until midnight were recently given at the Mary Anderson theatre to accommodate the crowds that wished to see the feature film, "The Juggernaut."

This picture was originally booked for two days, but proved so popular that Manager Lee Goldberg extended the run to five days.

AUTO FOR SHOWING PICTURES IN SMALL TOWNS

One of the finest traveling outfits ever fitted up in San Francisco territory will be taken out of that city shortly for a summer tour by Peterson Brothers.

An automobile has been equipped with a generator and arranged for the transportation of a machine and full equipment.

Anti-Segregation Bill in Pennsylvania Vetoed

THE bill passed by the last Legislature requiring managers of motion picture and other theatres to give negroes the same rights and privileges as white persons in the audience is not to become a law after all. It was vetoed by Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh, largely because of a typographical error in the measure as sent to him.

This bill, which was backed by colored persons throughout the state, a number of whom were constantly in the halls of the legislature when it was under consideration, would have prohibited theater managers from segregating negroes apart from the whites in the seats of the theaters, under a penalty of a fine not to exceed $50, and also would have made anyone violating the law "guilty of a misdemeanor" for which he could be fined another $50. The motion picture exhibitors of this state, which has a large negro population, were intensely interested in the bill because in many communities where there are many colored people some the theater men have been in the habit of setting apart certain sections of their houses for the accommodation of the colored patrons and denying them admittance to other parts.

Public interest in this measure was very great during the session of the legislature which adjourned May 20. As introduced originally in the house by Representative A. C. Stein, of Pittsburgh, it provided far heavier fines than were incorporated in the bill at the time of its final passage, and also provided a prison penalty for violators of its provisions. It passed the house by a large majority, many legislators who number negroes among their constituents fearing the political effect of voting against it. In the senate it was amended in a way to eliminate the imprisonment provision and to reduce the amount of the fine.

The house refused to concur in the senate amendments and so a joint conference committee was named to frame the bill to conform with the wishes of both branches. This conference committee agreed on the measure as finally passed but the printer inadvertently made an error which changed the whole purport of the measure. This error made the bill read that the places to which the provisions of the bill shall apply shall "exclude" (rather than "include," which was intended) "any inn, tavern, or hotel . . . or any restaurant, eating house, public conveyance, bath-house, barbershop, theater, theatorium, nickelodeon, motion-picture house and music hall."

The conference committee acted on the measure on the final day of the session when there was a great rush of other business and although the committeemen detected the eror they simply changed the word "exclude" to "include" in red ink, as there was no time to have the bill reprinted before final adjournment. The governor, however, as he pointed out in his veto measure, discovered that the constitution of the State requires that all bills submitted to him for approval must be printed, and hence, chiefly for this reason, he withheld his approval of the bill which now goes to the discard.

In his veto message the governor also holds that the act of 1887, relating to this subject, covers practically the same ground and makes the penalty for violation heavier. However, it is a known fact that the provisions of the act of 1887 are far from being as specific as those of the bill that the governor killed. It was because of the various constructions that were placed on the act of 1887 that the negroes had the Stein bill, which could not have been interpreted in more than one way, introduced in the session just closed.

Indeed there has been so much controversy as to whether the act of 1887 does actually prohibit theater owners from segregating the negroes from the whites that a test case is now pending before the Superior court of the state so that an accurate construction can be placed on the act. If the Stein bill had been passed there no longer would have been any question as to its being unlawful to segregate negroes, but as matters stand now, all depends on how the court interprets the old law.

In vetoing the Stein bill Governor Brumbaugh said:

"This bill is designed to protect all persons in their equal rights regardless of race, color or creed, in places of public accommodation, entertainment or amusement and provides for penalties for its violation.

"The act of May 19, 1887, is substantially the same as this with a more severe penalty for its violation. Pennsylvania would be remiss if she did not guarantee and insure equal rights to all her citizens. She has not been remiss.

"It further appears that this bill was greatly modified from its original form in its passage through the legislature and the bill as it came to the executive, bears a written alteration or correction in red ink changing 'exclude' to 'include' which completely changes its purport, and although this alteration or correction is noted in the Journal and was duly made by the legislature, the constitution provides that all bills must be printed before final action by the legislature.

"This bill was not so printed as the typographical error changing 'include' to 'exclude' was not discovered until the last day of the session of the legislature when the bill was on final passage. It was then too late to have the correction made and printed as the constitution required, and it is therefore impossible to give it executive approval. For these reasons the bill is not approved."

CHATTANOOGA POLICE AND FIRE OFFICER RESTRAINED IN SUNDAY DECISION

In an opinion to T. C. Betterton, fire and police commissioner of Chattanooga, Tenn., Frank S. Carden, city attorney, holds that the police commissioner has no powers or duties in reference to the operation of motion picture shows on Sundays; further, that the same is not against the laws of the State of Tennessee, and is not prohibited by ordinance in Chattanooga.

City Attorney Carden cites section 3029, of Shannon's code, and says, "In my opinion the laws does not make a violation of section 3029 a misdemeanor, but provides a penalty to be recovered in an explicit way by a definite procedure. It, therefore, appears to me that you (the commissioner of fire and police), have no powers or duties in reference to the operation of motion picture shows on Sunday; that the same is not against the law in Tennessee and is not prohibited by ordinance in Chattanooga, and probably could not be prohibited by ordinance unless contrary to the laws of the State.

"Of course, the carrying on of any regular vocation on Sunday in such a way and at such a place as to render the same a nuisance might be actionable by indictment. This would depend upon the facts of the individual case."

Middle West Exhibitors Complain of Airdome Tax

MIDDLE WEST exhibitors want to know what the other parts of the country think of the decision by the commissioner of internal revenue to class airdomes and motion picture theatres as theatres instead of "public exhibitions." The change compels the exhibitors, instead of paying $10 special war tax, as formerly specified, to pay from $25 to $100 a year, according to their seating capacity.

Since the new ruling was published in the newspapers last week a wail of indignation has gone up from the middle western motion picture exhibitors. They are protesting vigorously, but the federal authorities merely hand out copies of the law and the opinion of the commissioner.

Exchangemen complain that the law will result in many airdomes being unable to run. The airdomes, running for only three months in the year, are compelled to pay the special tax along with the shows that are open the entire year. As a general rule, too, airdomes have a larger seating capacity than the regular theatres.

Ph. Goldstone, manager of the World Film corporation's exchange in Omaha, returned late in the week from visiting exhibitors. He wore a troubled look on his face. "The late spring hit the airdomes a hard blow," he said, "and now here comes that notice. I tell you there are many airdome proprietors in the smaller towns of the middle west who know it when they have to pay out $50 or $75. I have heard protests all over the territory. A number of letters to me have brought these protests, and I have not talked to an airdome or theatre owner who has not had this uppermost in his mind. They want to know what to do.

"I told them only a united protest would carry weight, and that might prove ineffective. Several, along with me, believed this a problem MOTION PICTURE NEWS could well take up in behalf of the exhibitors. Out here in the middle west, where everything is blossoming forth with the greatest prosperity of the land, we feel this new tax. Other parts of the country must feel it, too."

F. A. Van Husan, manager of the Laemmle Film service exchange at Omaha, wrote in from out on the territory and said: "Have you heard the exhibitors complaining against the new federal tax? While business is fine, it is very few exhibitors, especially in airdomes, who are not deeply interested in this new tax situation. There is not so much money flowing around loose but that from $25 to $100 don't knock a big hole in the profits of many exhibitors."

"Several weeks ago I heard talk about this tax," said Manager Taylor of the Mutual's exchange in Omaha, "and it has been increasing ever since. The other day the "World-Herald" published a story that the commissioner of internal revenue has handed down a decision that airdomes and motion picture theatres must pay a higher special tax. This has created a sensation among exhibitors, and we hear of it frequently. Everyone wants to know what can be done to avoid such a burden. Nobody has a solution, unless it is that a united protest be made. MOTION PICTURE NEWS could help a lot by putting this situation before the exhibitors all over the country, and in that way arrange a sort of organized protest."

This appears to be a matter in which every exhibitor in Omaha has deep concern. At least two big airdomes have not opened. The reason given is that the weather has not been the best and that profits, because of the extra big tax, would be too heavy.

BAN ON "BIRTH OF A NATION" IN PITTSBURGH

Is there to be a city censorship in Pittsburgh? That is the question that is going the rounds and it is arousing the ire of many of the branch managers and the motion picture exhibitors in general as a result of the activity of a number of colored persons who seem to have enough influence to sway the city council of nine men.

"The Birth of a Nation," is the bone of contention at this time and, not content with the National and State censorship on the picture, the negroes have appealed to the city councilmen.

The injustice was done by Dr. Dillinger, who introduced the bill into the council and had it rushed through. The bill provided that "the mayor was to notify the director of public safety to inaugurate a rigid censorship of all motion pictures in which the negro race is depicted and to prevent the exhibition of such reels as 'The Birth of a Nation,' or similar pictures which tend to bring disgrace, criticism or scorn on negroes."

The Pittsburgh council seems to have gained a little help here in the city by the State Board of Censors being here at this time and have talked the matter over with the state board with the result it is said that the pictures will not be permitted to be shown anywhere in the State.

The Exhibitors' League has written the council protesting against any such action and it is said that many of the screens in Pittsburgh are to be used in the coming campaign against the men in the city and State governments who are active against the motion picture industry.

ACTION OF DALLAS EXHIBITORS MAY SOLVE TEXAS SUNDAY OPENING

Despite the recent adverse ruling of the Texas Supreme Court affecting McLeod, an exhibitor of Fort Worth, Texas, who opened his theatre on Sunday and accepted "voluntary" subscriptions from the audience, the film men of the Lone Star State have found a ray of hope in Dallas, Texas, where theatres have been running on Sunday unmolested.

Members of the Dallas county grand jury, after hearing preachers from the Council of Churches, admit their choir leaders received a salary for working on Sunday, declined to indict proprietors of moving picture theatres, who kept their theatres open on Sunday.

The sheriff and his deputies gave the members of the grand jury a complete list of the employees of the different theatres, and the grand jury promptly exonerated them.

Just what the Council of Churches will do now in its effort to close picture shows on Sunday is not known.

KEYSTONE CENSOR RULINGS MORE DRASTIC THAN EVER

The amelioration of harassing conditions which Philadelphia exchanges had hoped for under the new censorship board has, according to prominent managers, failed to materialize. In fact the managers are complaining bitterly that rulings are more drastic than ever, that their best features, which are shown elsewhere without hindrance, are so cut as to be ruined, that fines are unjustly imposed, and that no redress can be obtained because they are invariably warned at trial that any protest will only make the sentence more severe than ever.

Said George Berhoff, of the World Film Exchange: "If things go on as they have begun under the new censorship bill, business in Philadelphia is bound to suffer severely. Why, we never send a film out nowadays without expecting it to come back all cut to pieces. Here is an example," and the NEWS correspondent was shown the film in question. The scenes were of a man evidently contemplating suicide, who took a revolver out of his pocket, placed it to his head, evidently thought better of it and returned the weapon to his pocket. Later the suicide is supposed to occur, but is not shown on the film.

Why these scenes should be cut is not apparent, unless the censors expect to eliminate entirely all handling of weapons in pictures.

As far as could be ascertained, the exchange men are not taking any action in the matter, but grinning and bearing it as best they may.

KANSAS EXHIBITOR WINS IN FIGHT AGAINST CENSOR

The Princess theatre of Wichita, Kansas, exhibited Fox's production of "The Nigger" recently to capacity houses after having to go to the circuit court of Sedgwick county to secure an injunction against the local censor, who had threatened to close the theatre and confiscate the film if the manager, L. M. Miller, insisted upon exhibiting the photoplay.

The circuit judge, in granting the injunction, restrained the city from interfering with the theatre or any of the property, but decided that the censor could have the manager arrested if he so desired and give him a jury trial. If the jury found that the film violated the city ordinance then the manager of the theatre could be fined. This decision was practically in favor of Mr. Miller, who immediately opened his theatre and showed the picture to capacity houses, partly through the publicity acquired through the trial.

Charles W. Harden, manager of the Fox office in Kansas City, assisted Mr. Miller in the fight to get the picture over and was on the witness stand for over an hour.

The picture was passed by the Kansas state board without an elimination, and Mr. Harden carried a personal letter from the board recommending the picture and this letter was read in testimony at the trial.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By George D. Proctor

NOW comes the calm—either the one after the last storm or before the next. The Mutual Film corporation elections are over and J. R. Freuler is president with an advisory board consisting of Mr. Freuler, Felix E. Kahn, Edwin Thanhouser, Daniel M. Field and Crawford Livingston.

Mr. Freuler is a practical picture man who believes in motion pictures for motion picture theatres. In his first statement he defines the policy of the Mutual as "to furnish a program that may be used in a big, broad way by the theatres charging fifteen, ten and five cents." His ability is unquestioned, as witness his rise to his present position.

Tainted journalism, in any form, is a vicious thing. It reflects alike upon the just and the unjust. Ultimately it injures both the giver and receiver of the taint. When the receiver is also the seeker the ill effects are proportionately greater.

To accept personal remuneration for favorable reading matter and to give unfavorable reading matter when no remuneration is forthcoming is one form of tainted journalism, and one which has never yet failed eventually to boomerang back on the journalist, so-called.

The funny part is that the player or director who hopes to buy pleasant printed words to his own advantage fools no one but himself. The truth rings true in print and one true paragraph about a man is seen by fewer but believed by far more than are a dozen cash-in-hand boosts.

The sooner the actor finds out that the type of man who wants to set his own price on his journalistic honor is acting unethically and withdraws his support the sooner the industry will be rid of this particular incubus.

Journalistic ethics may not be understood by all. So let it be said once and for all that it is unethical for a man in the employ of a publication to sell the space of the man or concern whose interests he is paid to forward. Equally so it is unethical for the buyer of the space to participate in the deal. And the buyer is cheated, for he pays for what he can not buy, i. e., the regard of others.

Several other more or less favored modes of procedure are unethical, but this will do for the first lesson.

These few words have been in contemplation for some time.

That dinner to S. L. Rothapfel at the Astor must have been a gala affair, judging by the flashlight picture taken. One bit of repartee still going the rounds is Jules Brulutaour's query as to who painted the picture of Napoleon which Lewis J. Selznick is said to resemble.

Harry R. Raver gave a Chinese dinner at his house recently. China is a neutral country, but "Doc" Willat found that Chinese rum carries a hatchet in either hand. By the way, Harry's Itala offices, where "Cabiria" is handled, are being redecorated and partitioned off anew.

Isadore Bernstein's Equitable Motion Picture corporation was incorporated for $2,000,000 in Richmond, Va., recently with Lewis J. Selznick as the New York representative.

"We are working over at the old Ramo studios on Long Island," says Bernie. "You wouldn't know the place. The lights have been installed on an entirely new system and some big productions are forthcoming."

Bernie is not yet ready to announce his producing force. If he can't locate the right kind of director he may put on the first picture himself. He is at the studio till midnight all the time now.

Harold Z. Levine doesn't seem to worry. He looks happy and says wait—something is going to happen soon.

When A. C. Langan started the Sun Photoplay company at 218 West Forty-second street, to deal in world rights on films, he may not fully have realized his opportunities. But now that things are developing rapidly he, for one, has no complaint to make.

He recently sold the All-Star production of "The Garden of Lies," a five-reeler with Jane Cowl, to the Universal. He sold the Australasian rights on "The Ragged Earl" and "Salomey Jane" to the Australasian Films, Ltd., and the English rights on "Salomey Jane" to Lucoque, Ltd., a new English concern.

"The Princess of India," a five-reel Gloria, is now ready for American and Canadian buyers.

The Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company has established a press department in Los Angeles under the direction of Kenneth McGaffey, at one time press representative for Comstock and Gest.

McGaffey's duty will be to see that the local news is thoroughly covered and that the New York office is well supplied with material concerning the work of the company's stars on the coast.

With two press bureaus working in unison the company expects to be able to serve exhibitors better than ever before, so far as exploitation and feature film productions are concerned.

Exihibtors desiring to get the press sheet of the New York Motion Picture corporation may do so by writing Elmer McGovern, the publicity man, at the NYMP offices, 1476 Broadway, New York City. With the New York Motion Picture corporation rapidly coralling all the stars in the world, as it seems, and rumors of important announcements pending, this sheet ought to be interesting reading.

The Keystone Film company will have the services of Eddie Foy. In a decision just handed down, the application of the World Film corporation for an injunction restraining Foy from working in Keystones was denied.

The largest American flag ever made, 165 feet by 52 feet, will be hung in Times Square by the Metro Picture corporation on July 4 on a line stretched between the Times building and the Heidelburg Tower, with music and speeches. Then the flag will be taken to San Francisco and used as a part of the Metro exhibit at the convention. Thus will "peace with honor" be hailed.

The Metro-Rolfe production of Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way" will be the attraction at the Strand, New York, starting July 4. William Faversham makes his screen debut in the role of Charles Steele.

The Pittsburgh contingent of the Exhibitors' League returned to Pittsburgh bearing in their arms a silver loving cup eight inches tall, a prize for having the largest visiting delegation at the convention from a distance from Reading, Pa. They are making a big display of the cup and it will grace the local office of the Exihibtors' League there for many years to come.

CHANGES OF THE WEEK

Several changes are coming in the Lasky forces. A west coast publicity department is organized under Kenneth McGaffey. Carl Anderson returns from Metro in a general administrative capacity. Whitman Bennett is assigned to Mr. Anderson's former place and Mr. Bennett's place as press agent is taken by John C. Flinn, formerly of the New York "Herald."

Alan Dwan, director, late of Famous Players, and Helen Ware, emotional actress, are recent acquisitions of the New York Motion Picture corporation.

Bob Daly, director, and his wife, Fritzi Brunette, leading woman, go from Universal to Selig. Miss Brunette will play the leading role in "Mizpah," a coming Selig Red Seal production.

Carl M. LeViness, director, most recently with Eclair, goes to the Universal to direct Sidney Ayres and his company, including Doris Pawn, Val Paul and Rea Martin.

Tom Moore and Alice Joyce, late Kalem stars, are resting.

Julian Eltinge may soon be seen in a Selig Red Seal play.

George Ridgewell rises from scenario writer to director with the Vitagraph company.

Tali Esen Morgan, who has been manager of the Broadway theatre, Broadway and Forty-first street, New York, leaves to manage the Auditorium in Ocean Grove, N. J. He has managed this theatre for the last eighteen summers.

Leah Baird, Maurice Costello and Van Dyke Brooke, team mates of three years ago, are now working together again at the Vitagraph studio.

Elsie Jane Wilson, leading woman, an Australian by birth, goes back to the Universal-Rex company from American pictures.

Earle Foxe—note the final "e"s—is back with Selig, playing leads.

Madame Adoni Foireri, a French actress, for several years a member of Bernhardt's stock company, has been engaged for Reliance and Majestic productions.

Joseph Belmont rises from acting to directing at the Reliance and Majestic studios. Ray Meyers is now a director, too. Louise Hamilton is a recent addition to the list of players.

Jacques Jaccard, Universal director, and Helen Leslie were married recently after a two weeks' courtship. They are honeymooning at Lake Tahoe, Cal., where Jaccard is busy with two producing companies.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

P. A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal, is back from his trip to the coast.

J. D. Williams is leaving on a year's tour of the world for Winik and Brock, who control the foreign rights on World Film subjects.

Rollin Sturgeon, of the Western Vitagraph Studios, is in New York for a few days.

George Magie, special representative of the Universal, is in town.

Joe Snitzer, manager of the Universal Indianapolis exchange, and exhibitor, is in town. So is F. S. Meyers, of Minneapolis, who has represented both Universal and Kriterion in that city. The same goes for Paul S. Lewis, of the Universal Indianapolis office.

TULLY MARSHALL CAST FOR "THE SABLE LORCHA"

Tully Marshall, remembered for his work in the late Clyde Fitch's play, "The City," and also as the weakling husband in "Paid in Full" has been engaged to appear in a multiple reel production to be made at the Reliance-Majestic studios in Las Angeles, California.

The purchase was also announced on June 28, of the motion picture rights to Horace Hazeltine's widely read novel, "The Sable Lorcha." Mr. Marshall is to have the principal role and Thomas Jefferson is also to be featured.

Chester B. Clapp of the Reliance-Majestic literary forces has begun work upon the scenario. Preparations for the filming are being made.

Standard Pictures Will Veer with Public Taste

New Company, Lately Formed by the Warners and Lichtman, is Under Guidance of Men Who Know the Needs of Exhibitors. Policy Is Announced

THERE are many reasons why exhibitors should welcome the policy of the newly formed Standard Program.

One of them is the fact that Messrs. Warner and Lichtman, its organizers, have carefully studied conditions and are taking into consideration the present requirements of the exhibitor.

H. M. WARNER

They realize that all films regardless of length must have merit, and each subject stand out by itself. They feel that the time is past when exhibitors can be forced to take a program in its entirety unless every subject constituting such program can stand up for itself.

The producers making this program, also know that the only way they can obtain profitable returns, is by giving the exhibitors what they really want. The program is founded on sufficient elasticity to enable the producers allied with us to manufacture only the character of films as may be in demand, changing with the public's taste and meeting the desires of the public with meritorious production.

The Standard Photo-Play Distributors say it is too early to make any predictions, and neither do they wish to make any flamboyant statements at this time. One thing is certain, however, and that is they have a perfect understanding with the manufacturers as to the quality of the films required. If experience, hard work, knowledge and the confidence of the trade is worth anything, they can safely predict that their efforts will not be in vain.

"Seven Sisters" Is Next Medium for Miss Clark

Play Which Daniel Frohman Successfully Put On at the Lyceum, New York, Will Be Ready for Exhibitors on July 26 as Famous Players Feature

THE five-part photo adaptation of "Seven Sisters," presented for several seasons by Daniel Frohman at the Lyceum theatre in New York City, serves as the medium for the next return to the screen of Marguerite Clark. This Famous Players production is scheduled to appear on the Paramount program, July 26.

The play is based on the Hungarian system of marriage, where the matrimonial conventions inexorably consign to spinsterhood a girl whose younger sister marries before her.

Of the seven young women who give the comedy its name, the most active in the progress of the scenes is Mici, portrayed by Marguerite Clark. She upsets the mother's calculations completely by making the romantic acquaintance of a young army officer.

She has even dared to appear in a frock unsuited to her years, considering the fact that she must appear very much younger than her three elder sisters in order not to interfere with their matrimonial opportunities.

But it is through her charm that she wins not only husbands for her three elder sisters, but contrives to get the aristocratic young officer for herself.

Marguerite Clark is seen to excellent advantage in this role, which offers her ample chance to display her ability.

Illinois Film Men Urge Governor to Veto Censor Law

Even Corporation Counsel of Chicago and Major Funkhouser Join in Denouncing New Measure Before Dunne at Springfield—Governor Withholds Action as Legislature Adjourns—Berst of Selig Polyscope Files Protest—Exhibitors Precede Journey to Capital with Statewide Campaign Against the Bill.

Springfield, Ill., June 30.

DESPITE the extended hearings on the state censorship law Governor Dunne had not acted on the bill when the legislature met for adjournment today. He has until tomorrow night to sign or veto it, or he may allow it to become a law without his signature, in which event it will not become effective until July 1, 1916.

Motion picture manufacturers, exchange men and exhibitors from all parts of the state urged Governor Dunne to veto the Illinois Censor Board bill at a hearing in Springfield Monday afternoon, June 28. The hearing was held in the governor's office in the capital building and opened at 4 o'clock.

The hearing on the censorship bill was a lively one and the only opposition to it came from Secretary of State Stevenson, who, under the act, has the appointing of the censor board.

Illinois Exhibitors Represented

The Illinois branch of the Motion Picture Exhbitors' League of America was represented by Former Congressman James M. Graham. He made a bitter attack on the bill and declared that the establishing of the censorship board was a step towards a censorship of newspapers.

"There are no three men in the state of Illinois capable of judging what is moral and proper for the people," he said. "If we want censorship we have the national board of censors and the police powers of the cities. That ought to be enough."

Assistant Corporation Counsel Recker, of Chicago, declared that the new law would nullify the Chicago censorship ordinance, excepting so far as the state law covers the subject. The law would not permit the ruling out of films which incite race prejudice and there is no provision for a separate class of pictures for children and adults.

Recker declared that conditions are different in different parts of the state and for that reason every city should pass on its own pictures. He also pointed out that pictures would have to be judged from the standpoint of a child, which would rule out such films, for instance, as "The Scarlet Letter."

Corporation Counsel Against the Law

"Censorship is against liberty," Recker said. "It is always obnoxious and this law instead of giving us less censorship gives us more of it. Instead of having one board we will have two."

Another danger in the bill was pointed out by Major Funkhouser, head of the censorship board in Chicago, who showed that under the proposed charge of $1 a reel of 1,000 feet the state would not secure enough in fees to pay the expenses of the censorship board. He said that in Chicago, where a fee of 50 cents a reel is charged, the board loses annually from $7,000 to $9,000 and pointed out that with a board censoring pictures for the whole state the work could not be done with less force than was used in Chicago and that the board would be a losing proposition for the state.

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of the Selig Polyscope Co., of Chicago, said that if his company had to send its pictures to Springfield to be censored such films as the Heart-Selig Weekly would be ancient events before they got to the public.

Asks Who Favors the Bill

James H. Long, a clerk in the office of the secretary of state, tried to defend the bill by quoting from the testimony given at the federal inquiry into the National Board of Censorship.

"Who besides the secretary of state is for this bill?" Counsel Recker asked him when he had concluded his talk.

"Why, I am for one," he said, "and so were the members of the legislature," Long replied.

"I'm talking about the people," Recker retorted, "not the politicians."

Secretary of State Stevenson also spoke for the bill, and replying to Recker's question to Long said that Senator Olson introduced the bill without any suggestion from him, but he did not go into any particulars as to who was for it.

Meyer J. Stein, Counsel for the senate, also spoke for the bill.

J. E. Willis, of the General Film Company, also came down from Chicago to attend the hearing.

L. L. Lewis, of Chicago, secretary of the Anti-Defamation League of America, also was present and spoke against the bill.

Chicago motion picture men arrived in Springfield Sunday night and exhibitors from other cities in the state were in early Monday morning. They all got together early in the day and planned for the hearing in the afternoon.

State-Wide Protest Launched

The hearing Monday afternoon followed a week of unusual acctivity among exhibitors and film men throughout the state. Following the passage of the censorship bill on June 18 protests against it reached the governor every day.

Members of the Illinois branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, realizing that there still was an opportunity to prevent the bill from becoming a law, put in a busy week getting their friends to urge Governor Dunne to veto the measure.

All the officers of the Illinois branch were present at the hearing Monday. They are: G. M. Luttrell, president, Jacksonville; Thomas Leonard, first vice-president, Johnson City; William Sauvage, second vice-president, Alton; Will Bradley, secretary, Ottawa; W. W. Watts, treasurer, Springfield. Dee Robinson, of Peoria, national vice-president from Illinois, also was present.

Owners of the fourteen motion picture theatres in Springfield sent the following letter to Governor Dunne:

"The undersigned citizens and residents of the city of Springfield, who are engaged in the Motion Picture Show business in said city, respectfully protest against Senate Bill No. 362 passed by the late legislature, and urge your excellency to veto said measure.

Reasons for Demanding Veto

"As reasons for so doing, we urge:

"1—That there is already a National Board of Censors which will pass upon all films, as all of said films are of an interstate character.

"2—That every municipality has the power to regulate or prohibit the exhibitions of improper films.

"3—That there is no necessity for a state board for said purpose.

"4—That the burden and expense of maintaining said board would inevitably fall upon and be borne by the individual exhibitors, who are already carrying as heavy a load as they are able to carry.

"That such a law is un-American, unnecessary and oppressive, and would very seriously interfere with one of the largest—the fifth largest—industry in the United States, and with cheap and innocent amusement for the common people.

"For these and other reasons which will occur to you, we respectfully but urgently, urge your excellency to veto said measure."

Letters of a similar nature were sent to the governor by exhibitors in other cities of the state.

V-L-S-E OPENS EXCHANGE IN LOS ANGELES

The V-L-S-E chain of offices has been added to by the establishment of a branch at Los Angeles. This new office is located at 645 So. Olive street, and is in charge of H. G. Naugle.

Mr. Naugle is well known in film circles and has been prominently identified with the feature end of the industry for the last several years.

The Los Angeles office will co-operate with the exhibitors throughout the far southwest.

SPEDON, OF VITAGRAPH, WILL GO TO CONVENTION

S. M. Spedon, Vitagraph's veteran publicity man, leaves early next week for San Francisco, to attend the annual convention of exhibitors, and incidentally, compare the present World's Fair with others he remembers.

While on the coast Mr. Spedon will probably drop down to Los Angeles, call on "the bunch" at Santa Monica, and then return to New York.

WEBER AND FIELDS SIGN WITH KEYSTONE FILM

On June 21 Weber and Fields affixed their signatures to a contract to appear exclusively with the Keystone company for the next three years. The contract also calls for the rights to picture their numerous Broadway successes.

It is said this is the biggest contract ever entered into between a manufacturing company and its players. Over $600,000 will change hands.

Both these famous comedians leave for the Keystone studios about the first of August.

The Keystone Film Company has now the exclusive services of Weber and Fields, Raymond Hitchcock, Eddie Foy, Sam Bernard, Hale Hamilton and Bert Clarke.

PANCHROMA LAMPS USED IN VITAGRAPH STUDIO

Individuality of environment and the association of the surroundings with the action of the play is the watchword of the Vitagraph company, which has recently leased for a term of years a brown stone mansion for home studio purposes at 30 East Fiftieth street, New York.

Here any number of changes can be rung in and the accompanying picture shows John T. Kelly and Mrs. Frances Connelly in a scene from "The Cave Man" in which Robert Edeson is the star.

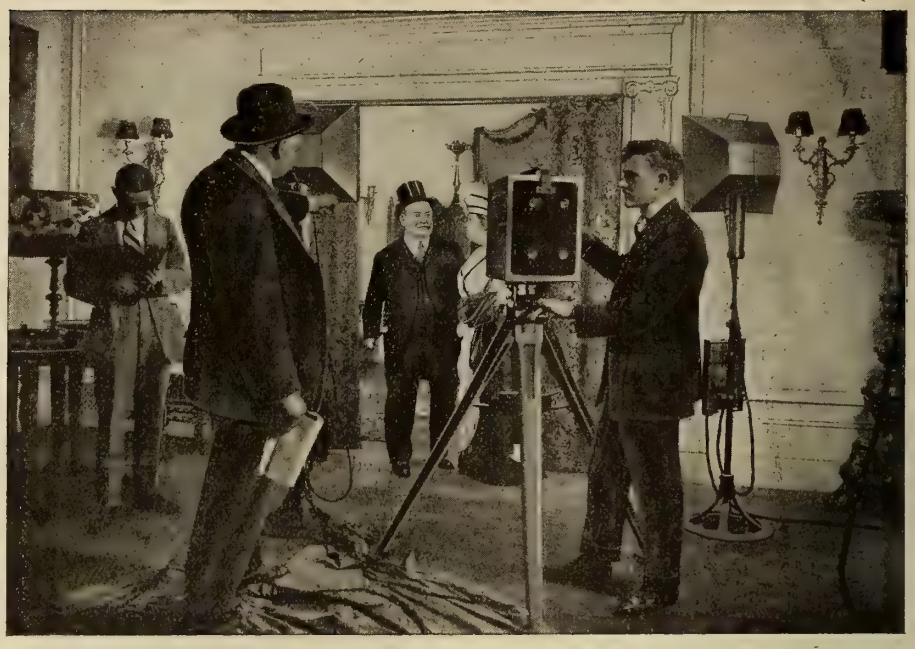
BENNETT IS BUSINESS MANAGER FOR LASKY

The Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company announces that Carl Anderson, formerly business manager of this concern, who recently resigned to accept an important executive position elsewhere, will return to the Lasky company.

Whitman Bennett, formerly press representative for the Lasky company, has been assigned to the position formerly occupied by Mr. Anderson.



Mr. Anderson will be associated with the company in a new general administrative capacity, based on his long association with the business and his peculiarly intimate knowledge of the manufacturing and sales conditions throughout the country.

SUNDAY SHOWING FROM 1 TO 6 P. M. ALLOWED IN MISSOURI TOWN

The city council of Desoto, Mo., has passed an ordinance allowing motion picture theatres to run on Sunday afternoon from 1 to 6 o'clock.

There was much opposition to the passing of the bill, on the ground that it was an entering wedge to open theatres in Desoto all day Sunday and Sunday nights, but the specifications of the hours will prevent any show running on Sunday night.

Manager Walther, of the Jefferson theatre, has given his word to run only moral and religious films on Sunday.

TAKING A SCENE FOR "THE CAVE MAN" AT THE VITAGRAPH STUDIO WITH THE AID OF PANCHROMA ARC LAMPS MADE BY ALLISON AND HADAWAY

Minneapolis Exhibitors "Cash In" on V-L-S-E Films

Capacity and "S. R. O." Business Follows Booking of "Regeneration," "Sporting Duchess," "Graustark" and "Juggernaut" by Theatres in Northwestern City

THE way the features of the "Big Four" are being received in Minneapolis, serves as a fair example of the conspicuous part these productions are playing in the moving picture theatres of the entire country, especially at this time of year when a natural falling off is expected.

Manager Jimmy Kehoe of the Strand theatre in Minneapolis ran "The Juggernaut" for an entire week during the month of May, and the production was so well received that he booked it again on June 21 and 22 and the feature played to capacity business on both days.

"The Sporting Duchess," the big Lubin V-L-S-E production featuring Rose Coghlan, followed this on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 23, 24 and 25.

At the beautiful Calhoun theatre in Minneapolis "Graustark" played to standing room only on June 21 and 22, and Manager Schwie reports the highest of praise from his patrons.

The New Garrick theatre in Minneapolis have arranged to play "The Island of Regeneration" for a period of five consecutive days, and Manager Calvert, of this theatre, is so impressed with the production, that he has increased the admission price to the theatre during the run of this feature.

The Starland theatre in St. Paul, Minn., exhibited "The White Sister" for the entire week of June 28, and this will be followed by a full week's showing of "Graustark."

Parker Read Offers Series of Thaw "Sanity" Pictures

Film, Taken with the Consent of the Pittsburgher, Traces His Experiences in Canada and Concord, N. H., After His Escape from Matteawan

J. PARKER READ will soon place on the market a picture entitled "Thaw's Last Stand," a feature composed of a series of views taken during the stay of Harry K. Thaw in Sherbrook, Canada, and while the trial at Concord, New Hampshire was in progress.

The pictures were taken with the consent of Mr. Thaw. Those scenes taken in the Canadian town were filmed at the time that Thaw was fighting the Canadian act of extradition.

The other scenes are of the actual trial in the United States court house at Concord. Hal Reid, the camera man, managed to gain admittance with his camera and his pictures show the formidable array of counsel of both sides of the case. Thaw's mother, Mrs. Harry K. Thaw, Governor Felkner of New Hampshire and Judge Aldrich. This is said to be the first time that a cameraman has gained admittance to a court house of the United States.

These pictures are those that are to be used by Thaw to determine his sanity. They will without a doubt play a prominent part in the trial if the statements of the prosecuting attorney are carried out.

Other views taken by Reid show Thaw and his mother at their hotel rooms in New York.

PITFALLS BESETTING FRAIL HUMAN NATURE FORM BASIS OF "WHO PAYS?"

When Will M. Ritchey, scenario editor of the Balboa company, was given the assignment of writing twelve three-reel dramas to be produced as a series under the general caption "Who Pays?" it was evident at once that the stories must be founded upon the follies that beset mortals.

Mr. Ritchey wrote ten of the dramas before making use of the title that might apply to the entire series with the same force as "Who Pays?" The title of the eleventh drama is "The Fruit of Folly."

The next to the last picture is not a review of the ten preceding dramas, but rather a composite sketch of four or five follies that had not been touched upon. There is drink, gambling, women, blind ambition, crookedness and the infatuation of a woman of fifty for a man twenty years her junior.

Not only are the scenarios for the Balboa-Pathé "Who Pays?" series written by Mr. Ritchey, but the plots of the twelve stories, with one exception, are original with him.

FREDERICK THOMSON JOINS FOX DIRECTING FORCE

Director Frederick Thomson is the latest noteworthy recruit to be added to the ranks of the William Fox producing staff. Mr. Thomson, with his experience, brilliancy and originality, is a decided acquisition to the assemblage of producing brains that William Fox has gathered. Mr. Thomson is at present hard at work on a new photo-drama in which William Farnum will be starred, following the completion of "The Bondman," in which Mr. Farnum is at present working.

"I regard it as a distinct personal compliment to be selected by a man like William Fox to direct one of his most famous stars," said Mr. Thomson, in speaking of his engagement.

ESSANAY TAKES ACTUAL SCENES OF PLACES MENTIONED IN STORIES

In accordance with his idea that every photoplay should have local color as well as being realistic in other ways, George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, has sent a company of players east to take photoplays along the Atlantic seaboard.

Joseph Byron Totten is heading the company, and the first scenes will be taken at Pendleton Hill, Conn., where Mr. Totten has a big stock farm. The company will then go to Newport News, Atlantic City and several other places along the coast to take scenes from pictures requiring such views.

BUFFALO BILL MAKES APPEARANCE IN FRONTIER SUBJECT

The W. H. Bell Feature Film corporation has arranged for the exclusive central states distribution rights on "Indian Wars Refought by the United States Army." This six reel feature was produced by Essanay under the direction of General Nelson A. Miles, the man who had charge of the U. S. troops in the Indian warfare.

Col. Cody, Buffalo Bill, is one of the leading figures in the picture. More than 1,000 U. S. troops were used.

LOS ANGELES PATHE RELEASES 500 FEET CALIFORNIA NEWS

The Los Angeles Pathé exchange on June 21 made the first release of five hundred feet of film, "Southern California News" used in connection with the "Pathé News." J. H. Buffin, formerly cameraman with the Universal company, is in charge of this film publication, and is working in connection with local newspapers.

The arrangements for this addition to the Pathé services were made by L. E. Franconi, special representative of Pathé.

CRAWFORD TO PLAY LEAD IN "THE GALLOPER"

Another Broadway favorite has cast his lot with moving pictures. Donald Mackenzie announces that he has signed Clifton Crawford to play the lead in "The Galloper," the success of Richard Harding Davis, which is now being produced for Pathé at the Jersey City studios.

Melville Stewart, who is now playing in the "Follies of 1915," will support Mr. Crawford. The rest of the cast is also decidedly strong.

Mr. Crawford held off for a long time before consenting to sign up for the silent drama, and it was the tempting contract offered by Mr. Mackenzie which caused him to decide to enter the field.

Born of actor parents in Edinburgh, Scotland, Mr. Crawford took up the stage at an early age, and after appearing in small parts for some time, became a great favorite in the English music halls. Later he came to America and played in vaudeville, where he always appeared as a head-liner.

Later he appeared in such noteworthy successes as "The Peasant Girl," "The Quaker Girl" and "The Three Twins." After starring for three seasons in the last mentioned production, he made a tour of the world, and thereby earned the sobriquet of "the man who put a belt of smiles around the world."

Mr. Mackenzie's production will be released in the early fall.

HOLBROOK BLINN IN ANOTHER WORLD FILM SUBJECT SOON

Holbrook Blinn, who appeared with success in the World Film—William A. Brady photoplay, "The Boss," is shortly to act in another great production for the same company.

The particular play has not yet been finally decided upon, for an artist of Mr. Blinn's powers it is not an easy matter to select a suitable vehicle, but it is easily to be conjectured that a corking good story will be chosen.

DWAN AND HELEN WARE JOIN BIG FEATURE COMBINE

Alan Dwan, one of the leading directors of the industry, and Helen Ware, a leading emotional actress of the stage, are announced by the New York Motion Picture corporation as its most recent acquisitions.

ALLAN DWAN

The contracts with Miss Ware and Mr. Dwan were signed late on Saturday, June 26. They will leave soon for the Pacific coast and begin active work. Miss Ware will probably appear in several pictures.

Alan Dwan comes to the New York Motion Picture corporation from the Famous Players, with which company he has been head director for some time. His latest release was "The Pretty Sister of José," with Marguerite Clark. Recently he has been directing Mary Pickford in coming productions. Before going to Famous Players he was a crack director with the Universal. He knows the producing end thoroughly, having started as a scenario writer.

Miss Ware is one of the best known dramatic actresses of the speaking stage. Her best known recent roles were in "The Third Degree," "Within the Law" and in the recent all-star revival of "A Celebrated Case." She has been doing motion picture work recently but none of her pictures have yet been released.

ESSANAY NOW ISSUES SCENICS

Essanay has entered a new field for that company in putting out scenic pictures. These scenes are being taken largely in the west. There are many views taken in Colorado and in states bordering on the Rocky Mountains.

It is its intention, however, to take scenes of all the beauty spots in America, especially those not too much frequented by tourists. The idea is to find all the beauty spots not already thoroughly known to travelers. These will be interspersed, however, with well known scenes which the public enjoys seeing more than once.

The grandeur of these pictures is exceptional. They are being released in connection with Essannay's animated cartoons by Wallace A. Carlson. The cartoons are five hundred feet in length and the scenic the same. In this way Essannay is giving the public a diversity in pictures and not too much of one thing. The system hits an exact medium where both cartoons and scenic are thoroughly interesting and leaves the spectator with a desire for just a little more.

LEAH BAIRD TO PLAY OPPOSITE COSTELLO

In rearranging the personnel of their companies, so as to obtain the greatest maximum of efficiency, the Vitagraph company has assigned Leah Baird to play leads opposite Maurice Costello. When Miss Baird first joined the Vitagraph company about four years ago she appeared with Mr. Costello in a one-part dramatic story entitled "The Old Silver Watch," produced under the direction of Van Dyke Brooke.

This trio of artists remained together and turned out exceptional pictures for about five months, Miss Baird playing straight leads in support of Mr. Costello.

These three are again united in the production of a two-part feature entitled, "The Dawn of Understanding."

BARD RETURNS FROM CHICAGO TRIP

Arthur Bard, general manager of the Associated Film Manufacturers, has just returned from a business trip which took him as far west as Chicago.

Every moment of Mr. Bard's time was occupied interviewing exchange men, and feeling the pulse of public demand.

"At every place," said Mr. Bard, "in which I stopped, there was one predominating fact which impressed itself upon me very forcibly, and that was the great demand for intelligently made film. The people are learning to discriminate between the real and the maudlin in pictures."

Mr. Bard, during his trip, touched Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and Buffalo.

BESSIE LEARN (Edison)

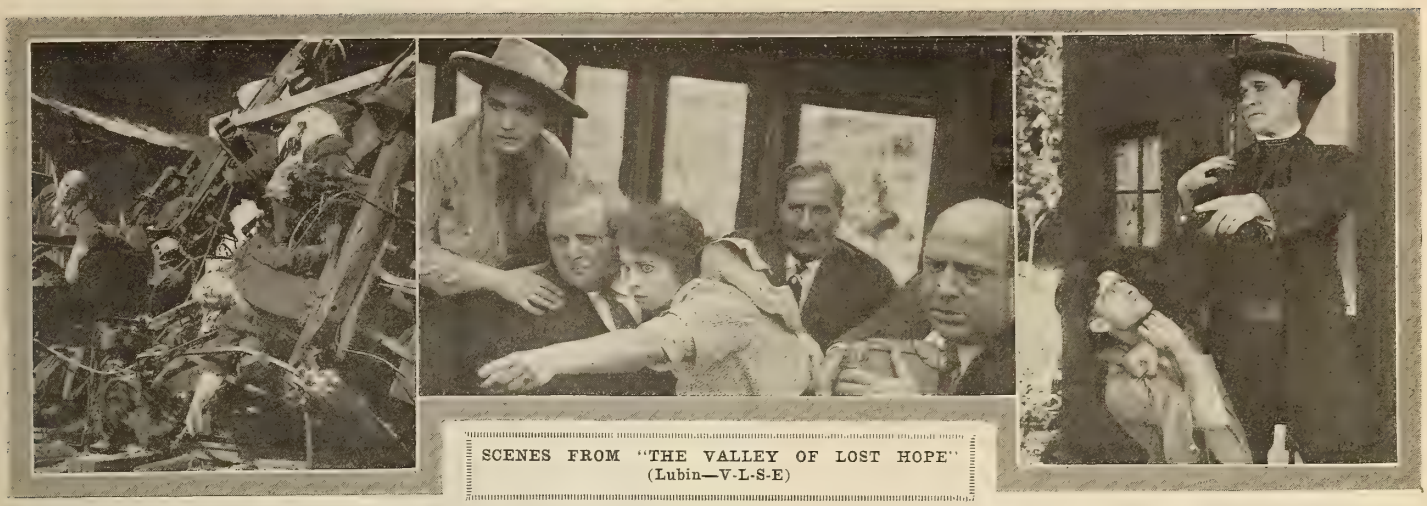
KAUFMAN WILL HAVE CHARGE OF THREE STUDIOS FOR FAMOUS

Following the return of Mary Pickford and her company from the Los Angeles studios of the Famous Players Film company, Albert A. Kaufman, who has acted as western manager of the Famous Players since the resumption of activities in California by this concern, returned last Monday to New York, having had to remain in Los Angeles after the departure of Miss Pickford's company, in order to terminate temporarily the affairs of the Famous Players on the coast.

Mr. Kaufman will take part in the studio management of the Famous Players in New York until the erection of the three new studios now being planned in California is completed, when he will return to the coast in charge of the three companies who will undoubtedly thereafter operate permanently in California.

While in California Mr. Kaufman made several aeroplane flights with Glenn Martin, the world famous aviator, in anticipation of the aeroplane scenes taken for the production of "A Girl of Yesterday," starring Mary Pickford, which will shortly be released, at one time making an altitude of 3,000 feet.

MARSHALL AND LORRAINE HULING ARE "THE DIMPLED DUO"



Since the release of "Truly Rural Types," in which Edwin Thanhouser presented Lorraine Huling and Boyd Marshall, photoplay patrons from everywhere are writing to ask about their dimples. Some want to know whether a spot of black cosmetic produced the dimple effect, and other important matters pertaining to the subject.

Therefore the photograph herewith is published so that the anxious ones may have a "close-up" of the Huling and Marshall faces. It will be seen that the dimples are real, sure-enough "dents," natural blessings that know no make-up box.

MARY NASH JOINS KNICKERBOCKER

Mary Nash, the well known character actress of the legitimate stage, has just signed a contract with Knickerbocker Star Features to appear in a strong character part in its three-reel release of August 4 on the regular program of the General Film Company.

Knickerbocker feels gratified in having secured the services of Miss Nash, as she was hesitating between many offers. She finally decided that these features would offer her the best opportunity. The part in which she is to appear will depict the five ages of woman—ages of twenty, forty, fifty, sixty and eighty, and Miss Nash is known to be capable of successfully rendering this difficult role.

Miss Nash made her debut on the stage in 1909, appearing at the Criterion theatre with Ethel Barrymore in "Alice Sit by the Fire." The following season she appeared with Miss Barrymore in repertoire in "Captain Jinks," "His Excellency the Governor," "Cousin Kate," and "The Silver Box." In 1911 she played the leading role in Clyde Fitch's "The City" at the Lyric theatre for one year, and went on tour with that production the following season.

Since that time she has been seen on Broadway in "The Woman" at the Republic theatre, "The Lure" at the Maxime Elliot theatre, and in numerous vaudeville sketches.

GREAT NORTHERN BRINGS OUT BETTY NANSEN SUBJECT

The vast number of admirers of Betty Nansen are afforded an unusual treat in seeing this star in a master work produced by the Great Northern Film company, 110 West 40th street, entitled, "A Revolutionary Wedding," by the famous Danish author, Sophus Michaelis, which, under the title, "A Son of the People" had a long and successful run at the New theatre, New York City.

With the superb acting of Betty Nansen as Alaine de l'Etoile, and Valdemar Psilander, as Marc Arron, the rich and beautiful settings of the Great Northern Film company, this production is justly meriting the enthusiasm of all who view it.

ST. LOUIS LICENSE REDUCED FROM $500 TO $50

A bill recently introduced before the board of aldermen, providing for the payment of a license fee to sell, rent or lease motion pictures in St. Louis, was amended by the board to reduce the proposed license from five hundred dollars a year to fifty dollars.

The amendment was proposed by the legislation committee and voted unanimously. Another amendment provides that persons or corporations engaged in that business make sworn statements on September 1 of each year of their gross earnings during the twelve preceding months to the license collector.

The proposed license fee is fifty dollars for $50,000 or less gross earnings, and twenty-five dollars a year additional for each $50,000 or fraction thereof gross yearly earnings.

FRITZI BRUNETTE GOES TO WEST COAST FOR SELIG

Fritizi Brunette, who has played leads in several well-known companies, has been added to the Selig Polyscope company's forces at the Edendale, Cal. studios.

She will assume the leading feminine roles in forthcoming releases.

"NOTHING BUT LOVE" PROVES TOO MUCH FOR REX

Wil Rex, who plays juvenile leads for the newly formed Federal Film company, was badly injured during the production of "Nothing But Love." Rex was called to dive from a rowboat into Fort Hamilton Bay. He cut an artery in his right wrist on a broken bottle, and Dr. William MacGowan, the film company's physician, found it necessary to take eleven stitches in the injured actor's arm.

"THE SECRET OF LOST RIVER"

(Kay-Bee-Mutual—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THOMAS H. INCE, the author of the story here picturized, has conceived an attractive romance all centering about a Spanish painting. The period of action is both modern and mediaeval in comparison. For both these phases of the story the utmost realism has been brought out on the film.

The picture combines a stirring quantity of action and logical plot development. The fight between the Indians and the members of a monastic order is executed with a gruesome realism. The Spanish troupe adds a fine touch of color to the tale.

In photography and light effects the two reels are exceedingly artistic, while it is obvious that the usual attention which characterizes New York Motion Picture offerings has been paid to the settings. The mission in the wilderness and the hut of the miner are really the only interiors of importance that appear, but they are good examples of effective mechanical work.

The story: Hornby, a struggling miner, discovers a painting encased in a tube lying in the river. He takes it to the padre and learns its history. It was presented to an old mission. When the mission was attacked by Indians one of the inmates threw it into the river to preserve it. The great value of the painting enables the miner to sell it through his friend and procure enough money to bring his wife to the West.

The cast is capable. Frank Borzage is the prospector, Jack Davidson, his friend; Estelle Allan, his wife, and Charles French is the priest. Others who appear in the second story are Jack Nelson, Louise Glaum and Lewis Morrison. The supernumeraries act their small parts well.

"SHOULD A MOTHER TELL?"

(Fox Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

BETTY NANSEN maintains her reputation for effective emotional acting in "Should a Mother Tell?" written expressly for the Danish actress by Rex Ingram, and directed by J. Gordon Edwards, the director for "A Woman's Resurrection" and "Anna Karenina," other Fox productions.

The photography throughout the picture delights with its exceptional clearness. Several blue-tinted scenes are notable for their pleasing effect.

The introduction of a number of close-ups showing five-year-old Pamala in grief and in moods of childish gaiety are minor touches adding to the emsemble of the picture. In one she displays a stuffed dog gifted with a roguish wink, and the short period of by-play makes an excellent foil to the tenser scenes just preceding her innocent amusement. Two other close-ups make an equally striking impression, the scenes where the child industriously knits a stocking with the air of a grandmother, and in the incident depicting her childish grief, as she lies prostrate on the floor, sobbing over the remains of a doll, broken by the child's father in a rage.

The plot is developed with swift action; indeed, so swift at times that the sequence of events are not quite evident until after the first flash of their presentation. A few more subtitles would obviate this defect. In a production which has so many appealing qualities to every type of audience, it was a pity to allow absurd anachronisms to creep into the final scenes. In these days the police do not put a suspected prisoner on "the rack" in a literal sense. The huge chair-like instrument of torture, with the black-hooded attendants, expected in a scene set in the time of the Spanish Inquisition three hundred years ago, certainly has no place in a drama obviously meant for the twentieth century. Then the introduction of an executioner with a two-handed sword of the fifteenth century, at the base of a guilotine, all ready shown with its deadly blade poised in readiness at the top of the frame for the condemned man, detracts from the interest of this particular scene.

However, it may be said for the rack and the two-handed sword scenes that the producer has made them very impressive. The acting of a well-balanced cast will counteract any tendency to take exception to these incidents.

Jean Sothern's acting is as pleasing as her blond beauty. Claire Whitney as the Baroness Gauntier scored a hit. Stuart Holmes as Gaspard Baudin, the miserly inn keeper, guilty of murder, invests the role with all the qualities necessary.

MOTION PICTURE DAY AT WORLD'S FAIR IS JULY 17

San Francisco, June 30.

OWING to an apparent misunderstanding in some quarters, it should be made clear that Motion Picture Day at the Panama-Pacific Exposition will be July 17. Arrangements for this were perfected some time ago by M. E. Cory, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the League.

This is the official day set by the management of the World's Fair for the entertainment and recognition of the motion picture industry of this country. All companies represented at the convention and any others who desire to participate will be cordially assisted by Mr. Cory and the exhibitors' committee.

"No special favors will be extended," said Mr. Cory, "but we will render the same assistance and service to all alike."

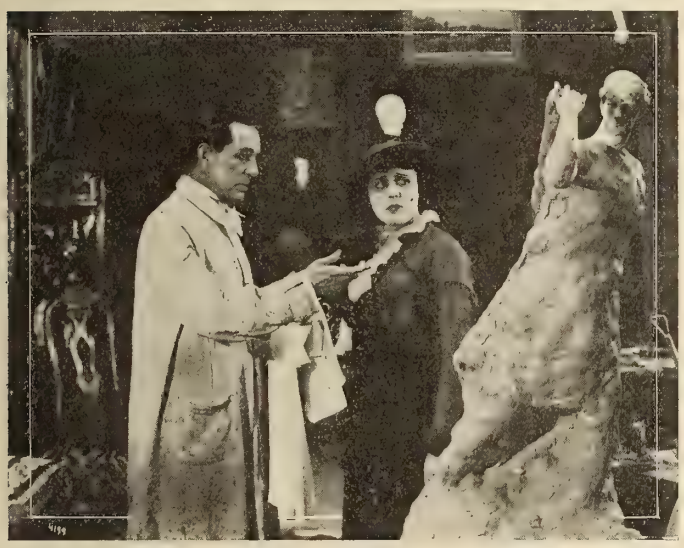
MISS CHARLOTTE WALKER, the distinguished dramatic star, is to make her photodramatic debut in the production of "Kindling," which is offered by the Lasky Feature Play Company through an arrangement with E. J. Bowes on July 12. This play, which is the most dramatic offering yet produced by the Lasky company and which had an extraordinary Broadway success, is especially adapted to the dramatic genius of Miss Walker.

The company engaged to support Miss Walker in "Kindling" includes Thomas Meighan, Raymond Hatton, Mrs. McCord, Billy Elmer, Lillian Langdon, Florence Dagmar and Tom Forman.

"THE RAJAH'S TUNIC"



(Essanay—Two Acts)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

THIS is the second of the adventures of Dominica, a clever Parisienne adventuress. At the opening of this picture, Braga, the arch criminal, played by Sheldon Lewis, is fleeing from Paris, leaving Dominica, his companion, behind almost penniless.

She runs across a cracksman known as "English Jeff" and they plan the theft of the Rajah's tunic, a costly bejeweled garment in the possession of a wealthy American sculptor. Dominica goes to the sculptor and to further her cunning scheme, purports to be seeking employment as a model.

She succeeds in learning where the tunic is hidden, and on an occasion when the sculptor is supposed to be away she lets "English Jeff" into the house. As they are about to depart, the sculptor, whose suspicions have been aroused, appears on the scene and events follow thick and fast.

He horsewhips "English Jeff" and gives Dominica the choice between posing for him undraped or going to prison. She decides upon the former alternative and the picture ends with her retiring to the dressing room.

While there is not as much thrilling action in this picture as there was in the first one of the series, the second reel contains some exciting situations which will keep the audiences in breathless attention.

The cast with Nell Craig as Dominica, Sydney Ainsworth as the American sculptor and John Thorn as "English Jeff" do excellent work.

"THE PURSUING SHADOW"

(Picture Playhouse Film Company—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

THE interpretation of two widely differing roles, Earl Dexter a young diplomat and Tony Oscaros a thug, by Tom Terris, many fine interior scenes and well chosen lighting effects are the main points of interest in this five reel drama.

Craig Dare, who has Tony for his accomplice, steals a valuable pearl necklace from Julie Dexter, wife of Earl Dexter. The crime of murder is fastened upon Earl Dexter. Craig Dare wants Julie for his own. So Tony, through his remarkable resemblance to Earl Dexter, impersonates the husband in hopes of turning Julie against Earl.

But a little child who saw the theft of the necklace exposes Craig Dare and all ends well.

The story is worked out with several minor plots and many minor characters. Tom Terris does excellent work throughout. R. DeCordova gives a polished performance as the Raffles of the play. Beautiful Anna Luther plays Julie Dexter.

The more important among the minor characters are: DeVore Palmer as a crook, Kathryne Adams as Olga, Tony's mistress, Roland Hemming as John Dexter, Earl's father and little Millie Terriss as the little girl.

MAUD ALLAN APPEARS IN NEXT BOSWORTH RELEASE

IN its next release Bosworth, Inc., presents for the first time on the screen Maud Allan, the world famous dancer, in "The Rug Maker's Daughter," a charming romance of the American-Turkish rug trade.

By presenting this star in an exquisite divertisement of dance and drama Bosworth, Inc., has departed from the usual channels in motion pictures, and, penetrating into a hitherto forbidden realm of modern art, has borrowed one of its most distinguished figures.

In staging this play the director has spared neither time nor expense to secure the desired results. Costly interiors and wonderfully realistic exteriors, presenting in one instance an entire Turkish street, are used. Beautiful scenes have also been secured in and about the famous sunken gardens of a Los Angeles millionaire presenting one of the finest specimens of modern residential architecture for a background. Another important factor in this film is the celebrated Shah Abbas rug, valued at over $75,000, which was loaned from the $250,000 Frank L. Loftus collection.

Maud Allan's principal support is Forrest Stanley. The cast includes Howard Davies, long associated with Wilson Barrett in England and with the Lieblers; Herbert Standing, the well known Bosworth player; Jane Darwell in one of her distinguished society women roles; pretty Mary Ruby and Laura Woods Cushing and young Harrington Gibbs. The release date is scheduled for July 5 on the Paramount Program.

"THE MAN FROM THE DESERT"

(Vitagraph—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

WHILE this subject will prove interesting to those unaccustomed to a celebrated feature, it will not make a big impression on any of its spectators, for the simple reason that the plot is mellow with age, and added to this its situations are not original and the climax has not been effectively evolved.

We are given two mining partners who by three years' hard labor have managed to accumulate twenty thousand dollars apiece. One of them steals his partner's share and leaves him to die in the desert. But the deserted man does not die; he is rescued, becomes immensely rich, and then returns to the city and breaks his treacherous companion through the market. And then just as he contemplates killing his old partner to complete his revenge he discovers that he is in love with his daughter and so we are given a reconciliation and a happy ending.

The camera work is unusually good, the scenes being clearly photographed and appropriately tinted. The scenes in all instances leave nothing to be desired in an artistic or realistic sense. The acting, too, conforms with desired standards. William Duncan is the wronged man, George Holt the villain, Myrtle Gonzales the girl, and Otto Lederer an old prospector. Ulysses Davis produced the picture from a scenario by Jack Wolf.

"THE LORELEI MADONNA"

(Vitagraph—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

LUCASE RUSSELL, the author of "The Lorelei Madonna," has incorporated a beautiful idea in the story, which despite the familiarity of a good many of the situations, lends to the picture a very pleasing atmosphere. The characters drawn by the author are exceedingly real, a great deal more real than most motion picture characterizations, which counts further in the picture's favor.

On the other hand, we must give Rollin S. Sturgeon, the producer, his share of credit. The locations chosen for the picture are admirably realistic. The settings are very good, noticeably so those in the monastery, which possess a depth unusual in American made films. The backdrops, too, have been arranged with intelligence.

The picture also uncovers some even and clear photography. The lighting is good and the nice photographic effects, combined with the beautiful scenery, make the picture excellent artistically.

The story runs as follows. A young man reared in a monastery is imbued with the idea of painting a madonna. His model proves a failure. His uncle takes him away to see the world. They arrive at Tahiti in the South Sea Islands where in a notorious dive Malcolm meets the Lorelei, a performer, who then happens to be singing "The Rosary."

He is infatuated with her, returns to his rooms and finishes his painting, so inspired is he by the thought of the girl. And then comes his disillusionment. The girl is pursued by her master and takes refuge in Malcolm's rooms. Her pursuer shoots her through the door and she dies in the artist's arms.

The cast does average work. Alma Reuben plays the title role, Juan De La Cruz is Malcolm; George Kunkel his uncle, while others are Marcia Moore, George Stanley, and Edgar Martin Teller.

"CHIMMIE FADDEN"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"CHIMMIE FADDEN" is a delightful picture. The major portion of it is devoted to the expression of spontaneous comedy. A minor section of it is employed to introduce dramatic moments that cap the humorous story with an effective climax which could not be conveyed by farcical action. And besides the serious scenes furnish relief to one's aching sides.

MIXING HIS OWN DRINKS

However, "Chimmie Fadden" is another of those pictures that depends largely on the comic abilities of its star to register a success. Victor Moore is that glittering personage in the present case. Without Victor Moore, "Chimmie Fadden" would not be "Chimmie Fadden." Victor Moore distinctly lives in the title part, he performs sincerely, without a touch of affectation, and performs all the incidental tricks that have been assigned him by the author with a power that will call for rounds of admiring laughter.

The innumerable funny situations which E. W. Townsend, the author of the play, has provided his characters are of considerable import also. While we cannot discriminate between the original and the conventional of these situations, every one of them is handled with such a novel touch that old or new, the created effect is practically the same—hearty appreciative laughter.

Chimmie Fadden is a Bowery gent. He is slightly crude in language and general get-up, but at the same time he is a very good fellow. Well, Chimmie gets a job as porter in a swell house on the drive. The H'English butler gets drunk and Chimmie is forced to wait on the table, but his job ends disastrously. In this same house there is a French valet, whom Chimmie dislikes from the start. The valet is a crook in league with Chimmie's brother, but the robbery is prevented by Chimmie. He is accused, but acquitted and carries on his interrupted romance with the French maid.

Scenes that stand out in particular are that one in which Chimmie is in the police station being instructed to keep his hat off, and again where he indulges in mixing cocktails in which he puts every known drink from Budweiser down to creme de Menthe, and still another when he proceeds to wait on the table. but to single out a few is unfair to the rest, and so take our word for it, the picture creates a laugh whenever a laugh is supposed to be created.

The other comedy characters in the picture are Harry De Roy as the butler, Camille Astor as the maid; while those who render good dramatic support are Raymond Hatton as Larry Fadden, Mrs. Lewis McCord as Mrs. Fadden, Ernest Joy as Van Courtlandt, Anita King as his daughter and Tom Forman as the French valet.

"THE SEVENTH COMMANDMENT"

(Kalem—Three Reels)

HOWEVER distasteful, this picture of the Kalem Commandment series drives home a striking moral, designated by the biblical title. The picture lays before the observer the disastrous results of one man's wrong in a powerful and sincere manner.

Harry O. Hoyt, the author, has evolved some extraordinary and intense situations, many of them in fact, and these, combined with the variety of the plot as a whole, keep the spectator ever on the alert.

The settings for the play are suitable, while each scene has been well photographed and carefully lighted. The detail is noticeably poor only in one instance and that is with the makeup of the man Mitchell (Warner Richmond) in the latter scenes of the picture.

At the outset of the story a married woman is wronged by Craig, who is also married. Afterwards he deserts his wife and child and goes to another city, where years later he becomes candidate for mayor. Mitchell, the husband of the woman he wronged, is ever on his track, and when Craig runs for public office he becomes his secretary.

To complete his plan of vengeance he sends for Craig's daughter to become his stenographer. On the night of the man's election he attempts to take liberties with his unknown daughter. But in the meantime Wallace, a young reporter, has learned of Craig's past from Mrs. Mitchell.

He enters the mayor's house just in time to inform him of the girl's identity. Mrs. Mitchell has followed him, and on seeing her, her husband draws a revolver kills her and then fires on Craig, mortally wounding him. Thus it ends with Dick left to comfort the heart broken girl.

Tom Moore, who directed the picture plays Wallace, the reporter, while Margaret Courtot appears as the girl. Bob Ellis is seen as Craig while others are Ella Weiant, Warner Richmond, Dallas Tyler, and Richard Purdon.

"THE WHITE SISTER"

(Essanay—V-L-S-E—Six Acts)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

VOLA ALLEN has an opportunity to display her ability to act emotional roles in this screen version of the popular novel by the late F. Marion Crawford. The scenes of the story are laid in Italy. The lighting effects in many instances deserve special notice, and the photography was clear in the majority of the episodes. The white costumes of the nuns proved particularly effective against the dark interiors in the convent scenes.

The rescue of Giovanni from the ruins of the powder magazine after an explosion gave the producers a chance for a tense situation.

Numerous interviews between the principals under distressing circumstances served to maintain interest in the fortunes of two persons seemingly far from all prospects of a happy consummation of their desires.

Donna Angela Chairomont, in love with Giovanni Severi, a young officer in the Italian army, is deprived of the fortune left her by her father, through the machinations of her crafty aunt, who upon the announcement of her brother's death destroys the dead man's will.

The industrious aunt, leaving no stone unturned to carry out her plans for wealth and a title, loses no time in making it known that her niece has no claim to the Chairomont estates, as there was only a church wedding between the girl's parents, without the civil ceremony necessary for a compliance with the Italian law.

Angela bears up under the shock of her sudden misfortunes in the consoling thought of her coming nuptials.

Giovanni, however, is suddenly ordered to depart for service with his regiment in Africa. Shortly afterwards she receives a report of his supposed death, and to forget her grief enters the Convent of the White Sisters.

Five years later the officer, who has escaped from captivity at the hands of savages, returns. He tries to persuade the White Sister to renounce her vows and re-enter the world. But she resists his importunities, until a high official of the church, who had been watching with sympathetic interest the affairs of the unfortunate couple, obtains a special dispensation from the pope, and she can conscientiously leave the sisterhood for the man waiting to make her his wife.

"MINERVA COURTNEY IN HER IMPERSONATIONS OF CHARLES CHAPLIN"

(Metropolis—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE Metropolis Film Manufacturing company are issuing a series of two reel comedies starring Minerva Courtney as an impersonator of Charles Chaplin.

Miss Courtney has succeeded in imitating the renowned comedian from his genial feet to several of his laughable incidental tricks that have aided in making him famous. In makeup, too, she closely resembles Chaplin, and let it be said to her credit that she has completely mastered his ridiculous walk, and the swing of his cane.

The comedies should certainly prove successful with the many Chaplin fans, because the pictures are truly funny, and then the impersonations are admitted imitations of Chaplin, not veiled characterizations produced with the assertion that Miss Courtney is the original and only player.

In one of the two reelers the Essanay comedy "The Champion" is reproduced with Miss Courtney appearing in Chaplin's original role. This is a very humorous subject, very cleverly produced too, with the exception that the boxing bout is slightly drawn out.

Another entitled "Putting One Over shows the manner in which a girl completely hoodwinked the inhabitants of a country town by dressing as Chaplin and paying them a visit.

Still another shows Miss Courtney in the guise of Chaplin acting as assistant to a Chinese laundryman. In all these numbers the situations have been cleverly worked out and besides Miss Courtney has been furnished a capable supporting cast, whose only fault is that the members are completely subordinated to the star.

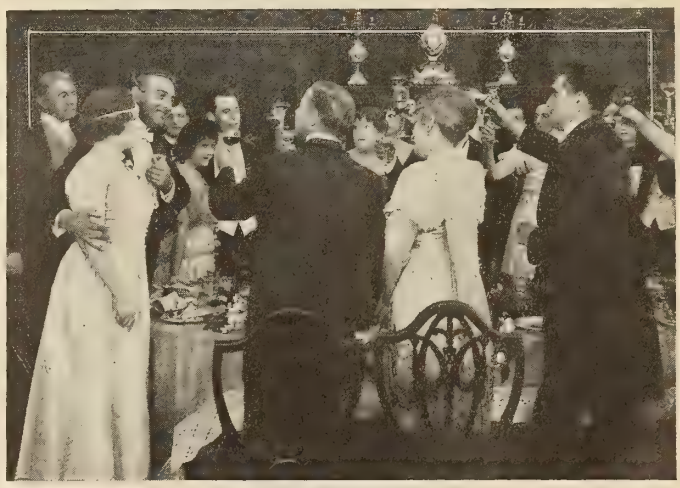
But in their entirety these comedies should take in any house that knows Chaplin and that class includes about every house in the country.

"WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY"

(Lubin—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

"WHOM the Gods would destroy they first make mad." The whole quotation is applicable to the chief character in this photo drama, for no sane person could have acted as does John Strong and reasonably expect to get off scot free.



The scenario by Clay M. Greene is exciting and melodramatic. The suspense is kept up to such a high pitch that the uncritical spectator will fail to notice the inconsistencies of the plot.

The cast is particularly strong, an unusual number of Lubin stars, for a three-reeler, twinkle through this interesting feature. Joseph Smiley does unusual good work as director and fills acceptably the part of John Strong. George Soule Spencer as James Rice the partner of Strong, whom the latter kills with a box of poisoned candy, gives to the death scene a naturalness and realism that will enlist the sympathy of the apdience.

Lillie Leslie as Laska Ayon betrothed to Rice makes an interesting figure of the girl, determined to revenge her sweetheart's murdr.

Francis Joyner and Ruth Bryan are well cast as the younger couple, Tom Rice and Nell Strong, who afterwards marry. Rosetta Brice does her usual good work in the small part of Lucille. Others in the cast who act creditably their several characters, are Percy Winter, John Smiley, William Cohill, Florence Williams and James Cassidy.

Two partners, John Strong and James Rice, the former a spendthrift and roué, in spite of wife and family, kills his partner, a widower, just as the latter is about to marry Laska, because a clause in their partnership gives the surviving partner a large sum of money and Strong is on the verge of bankruptcy. The rest of the story is taken up with the efforts of Laska to fix the crime on Strong, she alone suspecting him.

Before Strong is caught he kills the druggist who sold him the poison, and as the detective is about to arrest him, he escapes in an automobile only to be killed as the machine is struck by an express train.

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN"

(Popular Plays and Players—Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS is by all odds the best melodrama that the past year has seen. The story is virile, the acting superbly characteristic to the last degree, while for spectacular and photographic effects its equal will have to be long sought for in pictures of the same length.

The book, by Frank L. Packard, has been ideally adapted for the screen and equally well directed. As they say in motion picture lingo it is crammed full of "meat." We are given a series of thrilling scenes showing the revolt and desperate attempt at escape by the convicts. We are given one of the most realistically executed fire scenes that the writer has ever witnessed. And we are presented with the spectacle of a schooner at sea being struck by lightning and blown to atoms.

The story is so full of human and heart interest, so strong that the most hardened reviewer of the lot that witnessed the private showing of the picture, breathed hardly a word while it was in progress, save a few exclamations of admiration. It literally gripped one from the moment of the murder until the terminating scene, which is gripping approximately for five thousand feet.

The words from the bible, "Greater love hath no man than this; that a man lay down his life for his friend" are so fixed in the mind of the man, Varge, that he assumes the blame for murdering his adopted father, when the guilty man is the real son. He gives himself up to the police, is tried and sentenced to life imprisonment.

After a short term in prison he is made a trusty. As gardner to the warden he meets and falls in love with his daughter. He saves her from a disastrous fire which completely destroys the house. Then unable to stifle his love for the girl any longer while in her presence he runs away. He ships on a tramp steamer, is wrecked. He meets the girl as she is staying at the shore. She asks him to elope with her, but he refuses and returns to prison. Later his adopted mother is dying and she asks for Varge. He goes to her, and after her death the son pleads with him not to tell. He is heard by others, his guilt revealed, and Varge is at last free to marry the girl he loves.

The acting of Emmett Corrigan as Varge stands out above the rest. As the man resigned to an undeserved fate because of his unselfishness Mr. Corrigan performs with great skill. Crauford Kent makes the character of the real murderer noticeable for its weakness, while Mary Martin makes a most sympathetic figure of the warden's daughter. Mabel Wright does fine work as the mother. The warden is played by William Morse while others in the cast are Albert Lang, Lawrence Grattan, Edward Hoyt and Thomas Curran.

Some of the prison scenes it might be remarked were undoubtedly made in a prison. Realistic is hardly a comprehensive enough definition for them. The photography is perfect in every scene. And just a word more, if Metro goes on like this there will be not the shadow of a doubt as to its ability to "keeping it up."

"MOUNTAIN MARY"

(American—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

WITH the scenes laid in the backwoods this picture offers ideal material for the exhibition of wonderful photography and a happy selection of tinting effects which make it a work of beauty.

MARY BRINGS THE FEUDISTS TOGETHER

Vivian Rich is given the role in which she appears to best advantage, that of a shy barefoot girl of the forests. The other players are equally well cast with Jack Richardson and Charles Newton as the two grizzled old men of the mountains and with Joseph Galbraith as the artist son of one of these mountaineers.

The story tells how Ivan Doone returning to his forest home after a long absence finds his old father wounded as a result of a long existing feud with a neighboring family. He plots revenge by concealing his identity and making love to the daughter of this family, with the deliberate intention of betraying her. The plan miscarries, for Ivan falls victim of the charms of this maid of the forest and after a series of misunderstandings, one of which comes near to resulting fatally for Ivan, the two are happy in each other's arms. Thus their children bring the old feudists together, and the bitter enmity of years is buried in a hearty hand clasp.

"COLONEL CARTER OF CARTERSVILLE"

(Burr McIntosh-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

F. HOPKINSON SMITH drew a most attractive and delightful personality when he conceived the character of Colonel Carter, the central figure of his book, "Colonel Carter of Cartersville." With the presentation of this work in picture form, Burr McIntosh assumes the role of the eccentric and genial southern colonel. His sincere interpretation of this part rendered with a complete understanding of its many pleasing possibilities is by all odds the most meritoriously prominent incident in the production.

It must be said that the clever work of Mr. Smith has not lent itself with any remarkable adaptability to the screen. In the first place, the story is distinctly divided into three portions, either one of which could stand easily without the aid of the other two. This defect, however, is partially eliminated by the subordination of two of the stories to the one concerning the colonel, the one which creates more interest by far than the others.

Then there is the rather pardonable confusion arising from the introduction of the characters. Their relationship with one another is difficult to establish until toward the end of the picture. In our opinion this fault can be remedied by one or two titles added before the picture's release.

The stories are centered about the Civil war, which has given the director, Howell Hansel, an opportunity to introduce several battle scenes, which will create no little excitement. The first story commences before the war and pictures the romance of Nancy Carter and Robert Gill. The two are secretly married. Robert gives his pledge to Nancy that he will drink no more, but continually breaks it and finally in desperation that she will not forgive him, he ends his life.

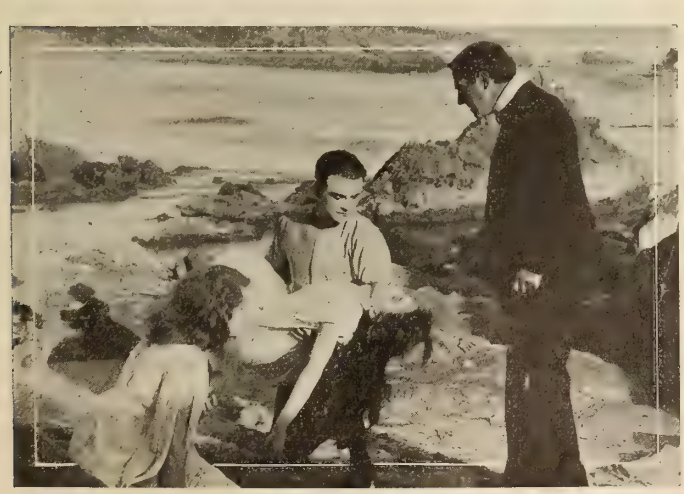
Then a few scenes of the Civil war come, with the colonel protecting his home against the northerners, and finally his struggle for existence after war, these phases of the picture being drawn in a half humorous half serious vein. Besides this there is the romance of Nancy's daughter, Laura and Tom Klutchem, a northerner.

A cast of even competence supports Mr. McIntosh. Lily

COL. CARTER DIRECTS THE RESCUE OF HIS PROVISIONS

Cahill appears as Nancy Carter. Our only criticism of her is that as an old lady her looks betray her actual age. Richard Neal plays well as Gill. Katherine LaSalle and Charles Emerson appear as Laura and Tom, while Henry West as Tom's father and Aaron Emerson as the old colored servant complete the cast.

Photographically the picture is erratic. Some scenes are well done, others seem light struck.



"EBB TIDE"

(Selig—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

IN this Selig Diamond special, scheduled for July 8, the story of the love developed in the hearts of the four characters is compared to the rise and ebb of a tide. This allegorical treatment is carefully carried out with the introduction of beautiful seacoast scenery.

The interpretation of the principal roles are in the hands of such able players as Kathlyn Williams, Harry Lonsdale, Wheeler Oakman and Martha Boucher.

Estelle Velaine is the daughter of an ambitious society leader, and out of deference to her family's wishes, she becomes engaged to Jerome Esmond, the matrimonial catch of the season. After her engagement has been announced, she visits an art gallery one day and is strangely attracted by a young man while they are both admiring a beautiful marine painting.

Some time later her girlhood friend, Helena Forbes, invites Estelle and her fiance, Jerome Esmond, to a house party at their summer home on the shore. Here it develops that the stranger seen in the art gallery is Allen Forbes, Helena's husband.

The mutual attraction of the husband and the engaged girl grows upon acquaintanceship, and strangely enough a similar attraction springs up between Helena Forbes and Jerome Esmond.

The tide of love rises in both of these cases until at its height it threatens to wreck the lives of the two couple. In a dramatic situation the temptation is resisted and the four people drift on safely, though unhappily, as the tide begins to ebb.

"HAMLET"

(Knickerbocker—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"HAMLET," considered by many students of the Shakespearian drama to be the crowning achievement of all the great writer's works, has here been presented as a screen play. To dissect or discourse upon the dramatic construction of William Shakespeare's tragedy is in the present case impossible and unnecessary. Not the play, but the picture's the thing in this instance.

The screen version of Shakespeare's immortal work was blessed with a star who has been called the ideal Hamlet. Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson is the man, and by his complete and finished performance he well upholds this sweeping statement. Gertrude Elliott is seen as Ophelia, while the rest of the cast is composed of the same personages that supported Forbes-Robertson at the Drury Lane theatre, London. In every scene the entire cast is most efficient.

The setting of the play as well is commendable in practically all instances, the palace scenes and the ghost walking scene being as realistic as one could ask for. And in photography the picture is good. The introduction of the ghost of Hamlet's father is very well done by double exposure.

For all the masterpiece on which the picture is based, for all the excellent acting, the commendable setting and photography, "Hamlet" as presented by Knickerbocker hardly does justice to its name. The play was filmed in England over a length of fifty-six hundred feet. Here it is three reels. Approximately half of it has been eliminated. And there's the rub.

To one familiar with the written and the spoken play, the shearing of the minor incidents, leaving only the important scenes, the action of the releasing company in condensing it will not be easily comprehended. If there are any not familiar with the play, the picture will present a series of vague although tense episodes. Then too, for the titles, the quotations from "Hamlet" could have been more deftly used and placed.

"Hamlet" linked with the name of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson is a huge advertising asset, but we cannot help thinking how much more wonderful the picture could have been made to appear.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS"

(Biograph—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

A THREE reel Biograph is something of a rarity, and it is the intention of the producers to make the coming three-reelers as distinctive in their precinct as the Biograph one-reelers were in their precinct.

"Under Two Flags" is a three-reel feature, a feature by virtue of excellence rather than length. The play has been exploited for years so that the title of the story of "Cigarette" possesses considerable commercial value. In addition the story is entirely suitable for screen adaptation. The story itself is really too well known to need rehashing.

Louise Vale gives a fine rendering of the dashing Cigarette who falls in love with Bertie Cecil, played by Franklin Ritchie, thinking Bertie to be what he seems, an officer in Algiers. Mr. Kellar plays Berkeley Cecil, the brother. Helen Bray is Lady Guinivere. Other players and their parts are: Lady Gunivere's husband, Jack Drumier; Barone the money lender, Edward Cecil, his son, Victor Rottman; Lord Rockingham, Mr. Garcia; Black Hawk, Herbert Barrington, and an Arab chief, Charles H. Mailes.

The story, as told in three reels, admits of no padding. Considerable skill is shown in the construction of the first reel, which lays the ground work of the story without being disconnected. The action of the second and third reels is fast and interesting. Perhaps the finest bit is the sandstorm scene for which the producing company spent two weeks in the desert regions of Lower California, waiting for a storm to come.

"TALE OF A NIGHT BEFORE"

(National Film—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY J. C. JESSEN

HUNDREDS of members of the Los Angeles film colony were afforded an opportunity of viewing the first subject of the National Film corporation, "The Tale of a Night Before," a comedy in four reels from a scenario by A. W. Coldewey, produced by Bruce Mitchell, when it was privately shown at Tally's Broadway theatre recently, following the regular evening performances. To judge from the applause and laughter there was not a person in the big audience of professional filmers that was not pleasantly entertained.

Henry Pike, who has attended an evening business meeting against the wishes of his suspicious wife, waits at a roof garden to receive a check a debtor has promised to bring him. At an adjoining table is a young woman waiting for her brother to come for her, not knowing that he has been arrested for fighting with Pike's debtor concerning a debt.

The attempt of a drunken Frenchman to force his attention upon the woman gives Pike an opportunity to be a hero and establishes the two on a speaking acquaintance. They walk to the edge of the roof to see the lights, and while they wait there the guests depart and the garden is closed.

As a subtitle states, "along towards morning it rained and rained and rained," and they are drenched. Pike, in leaving the woman, after the janitor comes, carried off her umbrella and she wears his overcoat home. The suspicious wife refuses to believe the story, and Pike invents one, suggested by the Frenchman's card, in which he chases and overcomes the kidnappers of a little girl and returns her to her father, the Frenchman.

The wife doubts the story and writes the Frenchman to call. The woman comes for her umbrella and Pike introduces her as the new maid, and quietly advises her to grab the shower stick and beat it.

A friend of Pike's calls, and Pike tells him of his experience, and later introduces him to his wife as the Frenchman. The men learning of the note to the Frenchman wait for him and lock him in the bathroom, which brings more trouble, for his wife has found the note and follows him with the children.

When the woman appears with the umbrella, the calling friend recognizes his wife, introduces her, she verifies the original story of Pike, and at the end of the story is a happy one.

The cast composed of William Parsons as Henry Pike, Constance Johnston as his wife, Russell Powell his friend, and Rena Rogers the woman—all leading parts—are duly entitled to much praise. This is the first appearance of Parsons and Powell on the sceen. They recently left the "legitimate" stage, where they served as comedians and character actors in a number of recent successes.

Both tip the scales around the three hundred mark and make a happy-go-lucky pair of pals, with rotund faces that continuously wear contagious smiles. Director Mitchell has produced a picture that will entertain any audience from beginning to end, and introduces a number of features that give this subject unusual individuality. The photography is excellent and the subject contains some exceptional night scenes. The settings are elaborate in every instance.

"THE BEAST"

(Lubin—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

THERE still lurks a beast in all of us, some trait inherited from far away animal ancestors, but most of us manage partly to subdue the brute and give the humanities a chance.

In this scenario by Shannon Fife, Joe Tremway is so brutal to every one, especially his delicate wife, that he is dubbed "The Beast" by the villagers. When Will Carson, gentlemanly and polite, comes to test ores at Silver Ridge, trouble begins to brew. Will, in trying to be kind to Laura Tremway earns The Beast's enmity and conflict is inevitable.

Just as May, Will's fiancee, arrives in town on a surprise visit, a big fight is on between the two men; also some dynamite blasting is scheduled.

Naturally the hero wins the fight and saves his sweetheart from the explosion.

Tremway recovers his balance and drops his beastly qualities after a long siege of illness, and all ends well.

The four principals, Justina Huff, Octavia Handworth, Edgar Jones and Louis Mortelle do good work and make this an interesting release.

Among the good photographic scenes, particularly effective is the attempt of Tremway to kill Will Carson on the side of a cliff. Will is saved by Laura firing on her husband.

The wife later assists in the husband's regeneration.

"ALWAYS IN THE WAY"

(Metro-Dyreda—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

THE beauty of little Mary Miles Minter in the principal role reverses the old saying that "the play is the thing," for Miss Minter is the center of attraction in this picture.

She plays Dorothy, a stepdaughter who is packed off to Africa by her stepmother. The stepmother gives the child to a missionary family to adopt on the representation that the child has no parents. At the age of fifteen she is a little blonde beauty in a tropic land inhabited almost exclusively by blacks.

The savage natives take up arms and kill Dorothy's foster-parents. She makes her way to New York, followed by the young prospector who loves her. After many tribulations he finds her and restores her to her father, vehemently denouncing the stepmother.

Mary Miles Minter is as an attractive little girl as may be found on the screen in many a long day. The tropical scenes are well produced, having been made in Bermuda amid tropical foliage, and with plenty of negroes. Franklin B. Coates plays the young prospector.

BOB ARMSTRONG FINDS DOROTHY

The cast, headed by Mabel B. Green, is a strong one. Among the players are: Ethermary Oakland, Lowell Sherman, Edna M. Holland, Harold Meltzer, James Riley, Arthur Evers, Charlotte Shelby, Hal Clarendon, Harry Blakemore and Boots Wall.

J. Searle Dawley directed. The photography, by Irvin Willat, is quite above criticism, adding much to the general excellence of the production.

"TOOLS OF PROVIDENCE"

(Broncho-Mutual—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

EXHIBITORS who desire a strong, virile picture of romantic western life of that variety which has so often been portrayed by the producing forces of Thomas H. Ince, should procure this two-reel feature. The plot, while advancing nothing of an original nature, is strong enough in its construction to warrant the greatest interest on the part of the observer.

But the picture's greatest asset lies in the great favorite who appears in one of the principal parts—William S. Hart. Here this idealistic westerner appears as the uncouth proprietor of a frontier bar, the fearless boss of the town, incidentally the man that can draw his gun the quickest.

On the other hand, there is the newly arrived minister's daughter, a delightful character equally pleasingly portrayed by Rhea Mitchell. The girl, according to expectations, succeeds in reforming Dakota Dan and all his followers by bringing them to church. And besides, there is the love story between Dan and the minister's daughter.

There is action, plenty of it, throughout the two thousand feet. It is hardly necessary to mention that the realism of the atmosphere could not be perfected, while in a photographic sense the picture is exceptionally good.

A few scenes stand out from the rest because of their extreme intensity, such as Daisy tending the bar on a bet, and the fight between Dan and "Ace" Farrell (Frank Borzage), and also the rescue of Daisy by Dan from "Ace."

Another in the cast is Walter Whitman, who renders a sincere and pleasing performance of the minister. C. Gardner Sullivan and Thomas H. Ince prepared the scenario, while Mr. Hart directed.

G. H. HAMILTON ORGANIZES FLORIDA COMPANY

Jacksonville, Fla., June 30.

ROBERT VIGNOLA has left for New York with his company, including Hal Forde, Marguerite Courtot and other well-known Kalem stars. They have just finished producing "A Weaver of Dreams" and will take some scenes on the S. S. Lenape on their way to New York for the picture "The Captive," featuring Hal Forde.

The Florida Motion Picture Company has just been incorporated and the officers are as follows: G. H. Hamilton, president; M. Belue, secretary; Halsey Race, manager. Halsey Race has left for Kansas City to open a branch office in the Century building under the name of the Kansas City Booking Exchange and Film Company. It will probably build a studio there in the near future, but for the present it is producing in its studio at Riverview, Fla. Work on a three-reel feature entitled "On the Swanee River" will start next week.

LIQUOR MONEY NOW GOES TO BOISE SCREEN HOUSE

COMPETITION in the motion picture show business in Boise, Idaho, has been somewhat eliminated through the purchase of three of the five motion picture theatres by Ernest Noble, president of the Idaho Trust and Savings Bank.

The picture theatres now controlled by this young man are the Isis, the Boz, the two leading screen houses of the city, and the Comic, a small house in which only funny pictures are shown, but which is receiving a good patronage.

With the closing of the saloons in Boise on January 1, Mr. Noble foresaw that an abundance of the money now being spent for liquor would go into a more appropriate form of amusement in which the whole family would take part. Consequently he took the step to acquire the principal screen houses of the city, and he anticipates a big business next season.

PRODUCTIONS FROM ALL PROGRAMS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"The Claim of Honor." (Biograph. Thurs., July 8.)—This is an international story in which Count Armand is about to elope with an American girl when he finds out that she is married. He feels the claim on his honor and sends her back to her husband. Charles Perley is Armand; Augusta Anderson, the girl; Robert Nolan, the husband; Walter Woodin, the prince Regent and William J. Butler, the count. George E. Rheems directed.

Old Offenders." (Biograph. Sat., July 10.)—Joe, an old offender, is blackmailed into dishonesty by an old pal whom he finally exposes and thus is re-united with his wife and children. Charles H. West is Joe, Claire McDowell the wife, and Harry Carey the old pal. Tony O'Sullivan directed.

"The Brand of Cain." (Edison. Sat., July 10.)—This is a strong one reel drama, featuring Margaret Prussing and George Wright. The brand which a murderer received in the woods later proved his undoing when he returned to civilization. Eugene Nowland is the author and director.

"The Summoning Shot." (Biograph. Mon., July 5.)—Carson and Deal are prospectors. Carson is killed. His daughter suspects Deal. Benson, the real murderer, fosters the suspicion. "When you hear a shot you will know I have avenged my father," she tells Benson as she goes to look for Deal. But when she finds Deal she learns the truth and Benson is apprehended. Isabel Rea is the girl, Harry Huckins is Carson and Frank Newberg is Deal. George Morgan directed.

"The Smuggler's Ward." (Biograph. Two reels. Tues., July 6.)—Rita, who grew up as a waif adopted by smugglers, is adopted by the rich Mrs. Morton. After Mrs. Morton's death Rita lives with Jack Hardy and his sister, Alice, secret service agents. Cutler, a smuggler, tries to blackmail Rita and injure her in the eyes of Jack, to whom she has become engaged. But the other smugglers take vengeance on him as a faithless member of the band.

Gretchen Hartman is Rita, Alan Hale is Jack Hardy and G. Raymond Nye is Cutler. Kate Bruce is Mrs. Morton, Viola Smith is Alice and Hector V. Sarno is the smuggler chief. J. Farrell McDonald directed.

"In King Koo Koo's Kingdom." (Essanay. Split reel. Wed., July 7.)—Another of Wallace A. Carlson's comical animated drawings portraying the adventures that befall Dreamy Dud in Africa. The rest of the reel is taken up with a scenic.

"The Counter Intrigue." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., July 10.)—A most absorbing detective story written by Edward T. Lowe, Jr. The head of an opium smuggling joint discovering that the police are on his trail, incriminates an innocent man, who consequently is sent to jail. Then the real culprit makes love to the convicted man's wife. She encourages him and finally discovers his guilt. Sydney Aynsworth, Nell Craig, John Cossar and John Thorn are the principals.

"Some Romance." (Kalem. Tues., July 6.)—One of Lloyd V. Hamilton's Ham comedies of noticeable originality, Ham and Bud are street cleaners. Ham finds a necklace and in returning it to the owner is so taken with her that he calls himself rich, merely masquerading as a White Wing for the sake of romance.

Consequently he doesn't get the reward. The situations and incidental funny business affected by Ham and Bud all the way through this are most uproarious. The picture should well prove its value wherever exhibited.

"A Wild Ride." (Kalem. Sat., July 10.)—A picture belonging to the "Hazards of Helen" series. It contains many thrilling incidents which certainly excite but at the same time they lack plausibility and their effect is lowered.

The ending of the story is not what one would desire. An engineer and a fireman are rivals for the hand of Helen. The fireman falls off the rear of the tender onto the middle of the track, a close-up is then shown of the cars passing over him without touching him. Temporarily demented by the fall the fireman seizes Helen, ties her to the piston of the engine and rides widely over the track until the engineer jumps on and stops the proceedings.

It is inconceiveable to believe that the girl would still be alive at the end of the ride, but such is the case and the film finishes with a reconciliation all around.

"The Seventh Commandment." (Kalem. Three reels. Mon., July 5.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Frame Up." (Kalem. Two reels. Wed., July 7.)—Two gangsters are in love with the same girl, and as a consequence each attempts to double cross the other. Through the efforts of a female detective and her assistant, both of the men are cast in jail, and the girl, after bemoaning her loss, goes joyously on her way.

This was written by Hamilton Smith and produced by James Horne. The detail has been remarkably well attended to. The story as a whole is good, being very exciting at all times. A few inconsistencies appear but mar the picture little. Frank Jonasson, Ollie Kirby and Thomas Lingham are the leads.

"Hiding from the Law." (Kalem. Two reels. Fri., July 9.)—A story containing many inconsistencies in both action and development of plot. While despite these facts the picture remains interesting it could have been greatly improved if they had been avoided.

A doctor leaves for the country to recuperate. In the meantime his wife divorces him and goes on the stage. The doctor meets a married country girl with whom he falls deeply in love. Finally the death of her brutal husband leaves the way clear for their marriage.

There are some strong situations in this but the detail has been neglected. Mrs. Owen Bronson prepared the scenario and Guy Coombs produced it with a cast including himself, Anna Nilsson, Marjorie Cohan, John Mackin and Roy Daines. The part of the lawyer is handled in an amatueriish fashion.

"The Cannibal King." (Lubin. Split reel. Tues., July 6.)—On the reel with Ping Pong Woo Willie wishing to make money for his sweetheart's birthday, gets a job as an extra screen man and is made the Cannibal King.

When he finds sweetheart out with rival Fred, he gets wild and runs home, cannibal garb and all, meeting many laughable adventures on the way. He finally finds his way to his sweetheart's home and soon escapes. When all is safe once more he returns and marries Grace off hand. Babe Hardy as Willie is funny in his wild cannibal togs. Frances Moyer, J. F. Glendon and Harry Loraine are capable assistants in this picture, which is directed by Arthur Hotaling.

"The Valet." (Lubin. Sat., July 10.)—Slapstick, pure and simple, with Billy Reeves featured, supported by Mae Hotely, Charles Griffiths, Patsey De Forest, Billy Potter. A new environment is given Billy Reeves by having Atlantic City's boardwalk as a background, and stunts with rolling chairs are brought in.

Mr. Grouch having advertised for a new valet, Bill is engaged, and they proceed to Atlantic City for a vacation. Bill's awkwardness with baggage, his careless handling of the rolling chair, his flirtatious tendencies, cause all the mishaps which will amuse the slapstick admirers. The inevitable seltzer, squirting forms part of the action. Why will directors still stick to this time-worn device?

"Ping Pong Woo." (Lubin. Split reel. Tues., July 6.)—Split reel with "The Cannibal King." A quite clever cartoon by Carl Francis Lederer showing a little Chinaman with a big, big mouth. His adventures are with rats mainly, and when he sees them going into chop suey by the dozens, he forswears the luscious dish, and with a pen and ink bomb blows up the chop suey house and saves a lot of doomed rats.

"The Road o' Strife." (Lubin. Part Fourteen. Mon., July 5.)—As this story progresses, it seems as if the author, Emmett Campbell Hall, makes Alene too simple minded. Any girl in the world would grow excited at the thought of being a real princess, but Alene hears it with the listless indifference that marks her even when about to be hung.

Prof. Gershom tells Alene and the lawyer the story of his hairbreath escape from Urania with the little three-year-old princess, and all the wonders that have happened since. This whole reel is taken up with the "Story of the Past." Director John Ince makes a billiant spectacle of the court scenes.

"Money! Money!! Money!!!" (Lubin. Fri., July 9.)—Because his young wife gets peevish over their proverty and is glad to accept the innocent attentions of a rich bachelor friend, Roy (Joseph Kaufman) is tempted to steal some money entrusted to his care, but plans an elaborate abibi beforehand.

He is frustrated by a real burglar getting at the money first. Although the money is recovered, the scare teaches Roy a strong lesson and he rises above temptation in the future.

The visit to the real circus by the wife gives the director a chance for some interesting views of the circus parade and animals. Ethel Clayton, Joseph Kaufman, Walter Law and William Turner form a cast of whom good work is expected and usually given, this being no exception. Jos. Kaufman directed the scenario of Lawrence McCloskey.

"A Studio Escapade." (Two reels. Mon., July 5.)—Another of Selig's stories centering about a reporter and a model. It is adapted from a story entitled "The Escape," by Charles Belmont Davis, and contains a wealth of exciting and well evolved situations. Briefly, a reporter manages to awaken the dormant manliness lying in the heart of a man about town so that he furnishes an artist's model with money enough to set up a business.

"The Coyote." (Selig. Tues., July 6.)—A tense western drama written by James Oliver Curwood and produced by Guy Oliver. The manager of the western mining outfit is escorting his sweetheart about the place just prior to an explosion. A landslide causes their imprisonment in the mine but they are rescued in the nick of time.

"The Adventure Hunter." (Selig. Wed., July 7.)—An exciting romance written by Wallace C. Clifton. It deals with the adventures indulged in by an American in an imaginary European kingdom. They are very thrilling, and the situations are slightly out of the beaten path. Of course he wins the hand of the princess.

"Bound by the Leopard's Love." (Selig. Sat., July 10.)—This week's Selig animal drama is very interesting from all standpoints. The introduction of the wild beasts comes at moments that are exceptionally tense. The story is very entertaining and though not original it will give excellent amusement.

"The Goddess." (Vitagraph. Chapter Eight. Two reels.)—While Celestia's future actions are predicted in this number she accomplishes little actually. Tommy leaving his father goes to aid the coal strikers in Pennsylvania. Then Celestia gets an invitation to speak at a reception given in her honor by Mary Blackstone.

She accepts and then the rest of the last reel, about half, is devoted to Freddy's preparation for the evening, for he must escort Celestia to the house. He has a terrible time with a dress suit, high collar, tight shoes and trick hat, but finally manages to array himself in all of them. There is good comedy and good drama in this instalment, which is just as interesting as the previous chapters.

"The White and Black Snowball." (Vitagraph. Wed., July 7.)—A juvenile comedy written and produced by Tefft Johnson and featuring little Bobby Connelly and Ada Utley (black). The adventures of the kiddies in the snow are nice as well as pretty to look at.

"Bertie's Stratagem." (Vitagraph. Thurs., July 8.)—How a suitor got rid of his rival by dressing as a girl and alienating his affections is the plot of this very funny reel. It is another of those humorous numbers written by W. A. Tremayne and produced by Lee Beegs with a cast including Billy Quirk, Constance Talmadge, Harry Fisher, Edwina Robbins and Templer Saxe.

"The Revolt of Mr. Wiggs." (Vitagraph. Mon., July 5.)—Henpecked hubby revolts at the suggestion of a fortune teller and succeeds in completely taming his suffragette wife. Kate

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

Price and Donald McBride play the leads in this comedy, which is slightly too hackneyed to produce any great amount of laughter. However, the two leads are competent enough to create a few of real humorous moments. The author is Frederic Chapin.

"Love's Way." (Vitagraph. Fri., July 9.)—An idler is reformed by a girl whom he attempted to "pick up." He is sent to jail and afterwards makes a success in business, returning in a year to marry the girl. This is a pleasant offering, very well acted. Antonio Moreno and Edith Storey are the principals. A. H. Miller prepared the scenario.

"Insuring Cutey." (Vitagraph. Two reels. Sat., July 10.)—This comedy will get over if Wally Van's popularity in the theatre in which it is exhibited is great. It contains a number of good comedy moments but hardly as many as two reels should contain. It was adapted by George Plympton from a magazine story by Frances Aymer Mathews and produced by Wally Van who also plays the lead. His cast includes Nitra Frazer, Albert Roccardi, Cissy Fitz-Gerald and Constance Talmadge.

"The Man from the Desert." (Vitagraph. Three reels. Tues., July 6.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"The Diamond from the Sky." Chapter 9. (North American. Two reels. Mon., June 28.)—This episode is subtitled "A Runaway Match." Blair Stanley returns to Vivian with the diamond from the sky. So she elopes with him, the elopement containing several good train scenes.

In Hagar's illness, Luke Lovell tries to proclaim himself King of the Gypsies. Quabba saves the day for Hagar by rolling a huge balancing rock down on the camp. Lovell is injured but escapes.

In the west Arthur Stanley, as John Powell, is hurled from a speeding train, the conductor believing him a train robber.

The cast runs the same: Esther Stanley, Lottie Pickford; Arthur Stanley, Irving Cummings; Blair Stanley, William Russell; Vivian, Charlotte Burton; Hagar, Eugenie Ford; Luke, George Periolat and Quabba, W. J. Tedmarsh.

"The Old High Chair." (Majestic. Two reels. Sun., July 4.)—Seeing the old high chair in her attic, an old lady lives over her girlhood and young womanhood through the days when her son went away to the city. At the end of the story the son returns. Gladys Brockwell is the mother, C. Elliot Griffin the son, and Lovey Marsh his wife. Others are W. E. Lawrence and Ray Myers. A two-reeler of at least average merit.

"Mr. Wallack's Wallet. (Komic. Sun., July 4.)—A comedy centering around a missing wallet with Fay Tincher as a woman tramp and Elmer Booth as a hobo. Chester Whitey, Max Davidson and Clarence Barr are in the cast. The work of that able commedienne, Fay Tincher, is the feature. She is always funny.

"The Healers." (Reliance. Mon., July 5.)—A comedy concerning stranded acrobats who go in for fake healing. To their surprise the spring water they have been using for the "cures" proves really to be medicinal. Instead of being run out of the little town, they stay to enjoy its prosperity. Billie West, Bert Hadley, Violet Wilkey and Kate Toncray are the acrobats. George Beranger and William DeVaull are the townspeople.

"Court House Crooks." (Keystone. Two reels. Mon., July 5.)—A two-reel special with Ford Sterling as the district attorney who is in love with the Judge's wife. Keystone comedy situations and Sterling's "mugging" run throughout.

"Mountain Mary." (American. Two reels. Mon., July 5.)—Reviewed at length in another section of this issue.

"The Guy Upstairs." (Beauty. Tues. July 6.)—A comedy showing how the son of wealthy parents is dissuaded from becoming a prize fighter by a girl novelist who refuses to be put out of the house he has hired for his summer training quarters. Amusing with some laughable situations. Webster Campbell and Neva Gerber head the cast.

"The Hired Girl." (Majestic. Tues., July 6.)—A Cinderella story wherein the pretty hired girl replaces the rich girl and is courted and won. Teddy Sampson is the hired girl, Elmer Clifton the wooer and Mazie Radford the rich girl. Others are Joseph Belmont, Cora Drew and Charles Lee.

"Tools of Providence." (Broncho. Two reels. Wed., July 7.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The High Cost of Flirting." (American. Wed., July 7.)—Flirting with a gypsy fortune teller gets the corpulent father into all sorts of trouble and forces him to consent to his daughter's marrying her favored suitor, for this suitor being a police captain prevents the jealous gypsy husband from an attempted black mail. Winifred Greenwood and Ed Coxen head the cast.

"The Fortification Plans." (Reliance. Wed., July 7.)—As the title infers, this is a military drama. Lieut. Selbert tries to steal the plans to get money. Lieut. Lydell saves the plans, is promoted and wins the girl. Gladys Brockwell and Elmer Clifton are the leads. Vesper Perry is Selbert, Benjamin Wilson is the major and F. A. Turner is a secret service agent.

"The Ace of Hearts." (Domino. Two reels. Thurs., July 8.)—This is a French-Canadian story laid among the picturesques scenes of the north woods. The tell-tale ace turns up in time to vindicate the hero and convict the murderer. Charles E. Ray and Ethel Ullman are the sweethearts. Leo Willis is the murderer and Frank Burke, the girl's father, who is killed. Walter Edwards is Sergeant Adams.

"The Hammer." (Key-Bee. Two reels. Fri., July 9.)—Here is presented a detective story which has been worked out in a most admirable manner in respect to every detail. Evidence practically conclusive points to a young man as the murderer of his landlord. A detective discovers that the man's death resulted from a hammer falling from two floors above and striking him on the head.

The acting and direction of this is praiseworthy, and as a detective story this may easily be ranked with the best of the short films. Frank Borzage is the young man, Margaret Gibson the girl, and Arthur Maude the detective. There is not a strong love interest, but the detective story is strong enough to carry itself.

"Mme. Blanche, Beauty Doctor." (Falstaff. Fri., July 9.)—A young college boy is told by his uncle that his salary will be equal to what he can earn on his own hook in his first week. He masquerades as a beauty doctor and makes his uncle's wife pay five hundred dollars for her first week's treatment. Harry Benham, who is some female impersonator, plays the college boy. Riley Chamberlain is the uncle and Mrs. Stevens his wife. Others are Mignon Anderson, Ray Johnston and Edward Hoyt.

"The Headliners." (Reliance. Two reels. Sat., July 10.)—Through working in the same theatre the principals in a vendetta find a chance to renew the fight. Their children, however, fall in love. When the theatre catches fire the son saves the girl's father thus ending the feud. Irene Hunt is the girl and George Walsh her sweetheart. Tote DuCrow William Lowery and Philip Gastrok complete the principals. Irene Hunt is fine as the girl.

"They Ran for Mayor." (Royal. Sat., July 10.)—A single reel comedy dealing with the political rivalries of the Schultz and Duffy families. Mr. Schultz and Mr. Duffy are candidates for mayor and live in the same house. But Levi, the third party's candidate, is elected and the defeated families are left on a friendly basis.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"Animated Weekly." No. 173. (Wed., June 30.)—Of special interest in this number are the following events. The Yale-Harvard rowing contest, the celebration of New York City's two hundredth and fiftieth birthday by officials of the city and scenes during the five-hundred mile auto race in Chicago. The war news is slight this week for a change. Hy. Mayer's cartoons are good.

"Jane's Declaration of Independence." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., July 3.)—Carles Giblyn wrote the story and produced it from a scenario by H. G. Stafford. It is an average feature, slightly drawn out but containing a pleasing theme, and many scenes that are appropriate for this time of the year. Hobart Henley, Agnes Vernon and Frank Mac Quarrie play the principal parts.

The father objects to his daughter marrying an army officer even when she vividly describes to him the heroism of the men and women of the Revolution and Civil wars. However, the girl has her own way and marries the man despite her father's antagonism. Many of the scenes were filmed at Fort Winfield Scott, California.

"The Violet Violet." (Victor. Two reels. Mon., July 5.)—A misunderstanding interrupts the romance of a daughter of the convent and her lover with the consequence that the girl takes the veil for life. Mary Fuller and Pedro de Cordoba play the leads in this drama, which is not up to the usual Mary Fuller standard.

The story is too sudden in development. Miss Fuller looks charming clad in the robes of a novice and acts well throughout the pictures. Cordoba, as the man, slightly overdoes a poetic part. The scenes are very beautiful.

"The Wrong Label." (Imp. Mon., July 5.)—A drama of little interest. A destitute girl manages to save the district attorney's son from his gangster associates and incidentally reform herself in the bargain. The story, which was written by Raymond L. Shrock, is none too clearly screened.

"Right Off the Reel." (Joker. Mon., July 5.) A very good comedy of Allen Curtis' manufacture. Max Asher, William Franey, Lillian Peacock and Gale Henry are in the cast. Franey performs a marvelous feat when he eats an entire plate of small cakes before the camera. The reel shows a number of scenes "back stage" at the studio and these combined with some well conceived comedy situations make the picture both funny and novel.

"Under the Crescent." (Gold Seal. Adventure No. 6. Tues., July 6.)—Reviewed at length in issue of July 3.

"Steady Company." (Rex. Tues., July 6.)—This is one of the best one reel comedy-dramas that we have seen for a long time. It was produced by Lon Chaney, who plays one of the principal parts opposite Pauline Bush. The story is nothing more than a romance indulged in between a factory girl and a working man, yet the wealth of pleasingly realistic incidental touches unite to make the reel one of the most gratifying of program releases.

"When Their Dads Fell Out." (Nestor. Tues., July 6.)—A comedy chiefly concerning an elopement and a pursuit by both fathers. Most of the action transpires in a railroad coach and handcar. An ordinary release produced by Horace Davey with a cast including Billie Rhodes, Jack Connelly, Harry Rattenberry and the midget Gus Alexander.

"Betty's Dream Hero." (Laemmle. Two reels. Wed., July 7.)—A Civil war drama better than the average program offering of this variety. Betty, a southern girl, dreams of the old Roman days and sees her hero as a gallant soldier. In reality this man is a southerner who forsakes his state and casts his lot with the north.

He is forced to flee after a battle and takes refuge in the girl's house. The two meet and he promises to return after the war is over. Robert Leonard and Ella Hall are featured in this while Harry Carter appears as the girl's father. The scenes are all very good, including those of the battlefield.

"The Child Needed a Mother." (L-Ko. Wed., July 7.)—One of the best of the recent L-Kos with Fatty playing the role of the capricious Gwendolyn. Gwendoyn's father desires to procure a mother for his bouncing child but instead he procures a million hard knocks and messes several other people's love affairs in general. Hank Mann is in the cast. This is exceedingly laughable and should go very well.

"Souls in Pawn." (Rex. Three reels. Thurs., July 8.)—A picture of decided melodramatic flavor produced by Ben Wilson. The refused suitor assumes his successful rival's blame for murder, so great is his love for the girl. But the truth comes out finally, and the girl realizes the manliness of the man she had declined and gladly accepts him. William Courtleigh is the murderer, Dorothy Phillips the girl and Ben Wilson the worthy man. Vivian Prescott as the actress, incidentally the cause of all the trouble, is inclined to overact.

"Lady Baffles and Detective Duck in Lady Baffles Aids Cupid." (Powers. Thurs., July 8.)—This is the fourth of Allen Curtis' burlesques on the serial picture. Here Max Asher appears as the president of a bank. He hires detective Duck, (also Max Asher), to take his place while he goes on a vacation. The bank cashier loves the president's daughter, so Duck to regain the stolen money, gives them permission to marry. Another laughmaker.

"The Violin Maker." (Victor. Fri., July 9.)—A strong character portrayal is here rendered by Lon Chaney in the role of an Italian violin maker. The story is original in many ways, and pleases all the time by its strong heart-interest action. Gretchen Lederer appears as the Italian's wife who achieving fame from her playing forsakes her husband, but returns later, realizing that she did wrong in leaving him.

"Lizzie Breaks into the Harem." (Nestor. Fri., July 9.)—One of Al Christie's real good ones although it might have been better if some of the scenes had been taken closer to the camera.

The old Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Victoria Forde comes into play again with uproarious results. Lizzie a country girl desires to enter a Turkish harem. She does but as a slave instead of a wife. Jed, her lover, finally rescues her. Lee appears as the keeper of the harem.

"The Ulster Lass." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., July 10.)—Herewith are set down the adventures of an Irish hero, who, hated by a member of the "White Boy" group, is accused of belonging to this organization himself. Through the untiring efforts of his sweetheart he is finally exonerated.

The scenery caught by the camera in these two reels is very beautiful and the sets have been laid with care. The acting is characteristic. The plot is rather irregular in construction, often repeating itself, yet it entertains. Gene Gauntier and Jack Clark are the lovers while Albert Mac Quarrie plays the heavy.

"The Closing Chapters." (Big U. Three reels. Sun., July 11.)—Through the despicable cunning of the old man's sister he is made to loathe his son. On his marriage he denounces him. In the meantime the father has willed all his property to his sister. But when years later the aged gentleman meets his grand daughter and learns of her sad plight matters take another turn. Despite the threatenings and entreaties of his sister he deeds the greater part of his fortune to the young girl. This drama retains the interest at every moment, yet at the same time it is not very pleasant, as the character of the sister is too repelling. Murdock MacQuarrie is the old man, Edith Lehr his granddaughter and Adele Lane his sister.

"Martin Lowe-Fixer." (Laemmle. Sun., July 11.)—An excellent comedy-drama containing a novel and clever story enacted by a good cast. Old Martin Lowe tells his pal, an old lawyer, a story, which he says is true, concerning an unhappy marriage which so influences him that he allows his daughter to marry his assistant. Later the lawyer discovers that Lowe read the story from a book, but he takes it all as a joke. This sounds somewhat shallow, but in reality it is most refreshing. Frank Lloyd appears as Lowe, Marc Robbins as the lawyer and Millard Wilson and Vera Sisson as the lovers.

"The Broken Coin." (Universal. Special Feature. Two reels. Week of July 5.)—This chapter entitled "When the Crown Rocked" is full of action and uses to a very exciting climax. A thiller is registered when Kitty jumps from a balcony, catching Rolleaux's hands and so dropping to the ground. Eddie Polo, by the by, is one of the best athletes we have seen in pictures.

There is much of a spectacular nature in this number also, including the ball and the crowds of furious peasants. Little of real importance transpires save the fact that the king discovers the hypocrisy of Count Frederick, who is plotting to overthrow him. The films continue to awaken great interest.

PATHE EXCHANGE INC.

"The Romance of Elaine." (Pathe. Two reels.)—This episode, number three of the new series, is subtitled "The Vanishing Man." In it the search of Marcus Del Mar, played by Lionel Barrymore, and his agents for the torpedo model in Elaine's possession continues. They get the torpedo model but, in the running fight it is hit by a revolver bullet and knocked into a cocked hat.

Jameson's hat blows into the water when he and Elaine are out in her auto. In recovering the hat Elaine uncovers a message which tells her that the enemy is still on her trail. This chapter is fully up to the "Elaine" standard and paves the way for further complications.

GRAHAM WILL MANAGE $100,000 MILWAUKEE THEATRE

HARRY GRAHAM, for the past year and a half manager of the Butterfly theatre in Milwaukee, severs his connections with that house Sunday, July 4, and will immediately take full charge of the new $100,000 Merrill building theatre, now being constructed.

HARRY GRAHAM

Mr. Graham's resignation came as a distinct surprise not only to his many friends, but to his employer, J. R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Company, and major stock holder in the corporation that owns the house.

Mr. Graham's knack of making revenue producers out of theatres that had been failures long ago attracted to him the attention of exhibitors here and in Chicago. The first house in this city that he turned from a "loser" to a "winner" was the Atlas theatre. This house prior to Mr. Graham's regime had never proven a paying proposition, but thanks to his ability it soon was made the best paying of the out-skirt houses. From the Atlas he was transferred to the Butterfly theatre.

He was put in charge of the house at a time when it was losing heavily. Though a five-cent admission fee was being charged the house seemed unable to lure the crowds within. Upon assuming charge Mr. Graham immediately boosted the price to ten cents, and despite the fact that the wiseacres predicted the immediate closing of the Butterfly it remained open and prospered until today it is one of the best paying theatres in Milwaukee.

In his new position Mr. Graham will have charge of one of the most modern and largest photoplay theatres in Milwaukee.

"A NIGHT'S LODGING" IS HILARIOUS FARCE

THE reason for the popularity of the new series of MinA Films is exemplified again in the one reel comedy, "A Night's Lodging" to be released Thursday, July 8, on the program of the General Film Company.

"A Night's Lodging" is a hilarious farce. It is replete with situations and action. The fun starts in the very first scene and develops into a riot at the climax, which is capped by one of the funniest bits of by-play ever introduced in motion pictures.

The story of "A Night's Lodging" relates the trying experience of Jerry to escape the law's vigilants after he has departed abruptly from the boarding house where he overlooked the little formality of paying his room rent.

Jerry is played excellently by George Ovey, who is given real assistance by Goldie Colwell, Janet Sully and others of the cast.

Editor, Motion Picture News,
New York City.

Dear Sir: Allow me to congratulate the "Motion Picture News" as the most complete book relating to the motion picture industry.

I have been a steady reader of your book for some time, and heretofore thought the Moving Picture World the best book; but since I have changed my opinion, and on reading carefully the "Motion Picture News" have ultimately come to the conclusion that your book gives far more complete and depicted data than any other book relating to the screen and its silent actors.

With best wishes for your continued success, I am
Yours very truly, JAMES J. STAPLETON.

BOOK NOW

For FIFTEEN Big Weeks of Screaming Smashing Success

The good old kale is awaiting you in "THE BROKEN COIN" and there are forty ways and means provided to help you get it. This big play, which one of our biggest Exhibitors calls the "world's greatest serial," was released on June 21. The bookings—well, they are more than satisfactory for the very good reason that the wise ones recognized that in a story by the great American author, Emerson Hough; a scenario by Grace Cunard, who wrote and played the lead in "Lucille Love"; directed by Francis Ford, who also directed and played the lead in "Lucille Love," they would get a really big serial. They knew, too, that the "mighty helping hand" of the Universal would be behind it to PUSH IT and LEAD THEM TO SUCCESS. And so the bookings are pouring in. This is a tip to you to get the big FREE Campaign Book from your Exchange or from the address below. Read the story of "THE BROKEN COIN." Then you will know that it's a whale of a picture with a real punch and a tantalizing suspense scene at the end of every episode. You can't read that story without wanting to book the play.

"The Broken Coin"

Is the play of the year. Fifteen episodes—thirty reels. Wire, write or 'phone your Exchange at once for your booking date. Get in your standing order for all the business-getting advertising supplies. You can't afford to overlook this one. It's a winner. And when the Universal says it, it's true. BOOK NOW.

3-ACT COMEDY-DRAMA FEATURE—"HER VOCATION"

The situation in this feature is laughable enough to lighten a play with a human bright touch that will appeal to all—that of the wife, who a writer would be, and sends her husband to the tenderloin to collect material and "atmosphere." He collects it all right and then the police collects him and a newspaper woman who is there, also under an alias, to write up the life of the denizens. The author, Mary Rider, knows the place and life she writes of and succeeds in giving us a true picture of another world without even the suggestion of coarseness.

Augustus Phillips plays the role of the husband with his usual and capable sense of delightful comedy and forcefulness, while Sally Crute as the adventurous newspaper woman is splendidly cast. Margaret Prussing as the wife shows keen comedy aptness. With Harry Beaumont and Mrs. Erskine. Direction James W. Castle. Friday, July 16—3000 feet.

"I cannot express my praise for these films enough"

JOSEPH H. MARSHALL
The National Theatre, Sioux City, Iowa

NATIONAL AMUSEMENT CO.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA

May 10, 1915.

The Mutual Film Corporation,
Omaha, Nebr.

Dear Mr. C. W. Taylor:—

In regard to the Mutual Masterpictures I want to say a word or two. I have played "The Quest" and "The Outcast," the first at the opening of the National Theatre.

"The Quest" is one of the greatest pictures that was ever shown on a screen, the photography is just as steady as a rock. "The Outcast" is wonderful.

I have played a great many features, but I do not think there is any that are any better than these two. "A Man's Prerogative," "On the Night Stage," "Captain Macklin," "The Cup of Life," "A Child of God" and "Enoch Arden" are very good and rank next in line to "The Quest" and "The Outcast."

WHAT PRICE WILL YOU GIVE ME ON A RETURN ENGAGEMENT OF "THE QUEST" AND "THE OUTCAST"?

As I said before, I think the Mutual Masterpictures that I have run so far, are as good as any features that are on the market today and a GREAT deal better than some that are counted as features.

I CANNOT EXPRESS MY PRAISE FOR THESE FILMS ENOUGH, AND ONLY HOPE THAT OTHER EXHIBITORS WILL SEE IT IN THE SAME WAY I DO AND BOOST THE MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES, BECAUSE IT IS TO THE INTEREST OF EVERYONE IN THE BUSINESS TO GIVE THE PUBLIC THE BEST.

Kindly let me hear from you in regard to playing a return on those two I mention.

Yours for continued success with the Mutual Masterpictures.

The National Theatre,
JOS. H. MARSHALL (signed).

Another Proof of Success

Why does Mr. Marshall want to book Mutual Masterpictures for "return engagements"? Because the S. R. O. sign prevented many of his patrons, who desired to do so, from seeing the first performances and naturally they demanded a second showing. After all, the proof of the picture is in the box office. We have hundreds of such letters in our files.

THE LATE MODEL MOTIOGRAPH EQUIPMENT approved by The National Board of Fire Underwriters, is the BEST Projecting Machine on earth.

We invite you, Mr. Buyer, to "check up" the MOTIOGRAPH statement —that you will get more real and actual value in one $250.00 MOTIOGRAPH than in two machines of any other make, even when they are higher priced.

The MOTIOGRAPH ground and hardened parts are in a class by themselves and not to be compared with those heavily advertised machines made of soft parts.

Mr. Owner—you cheat yourself when you ignore MOTIOGRAPH QUALITY. Besides you know the price is lower and the MOTIOGRAPH Projection is far superior in brilliancy, in detail and definition. Further, you are cheating your patrons who pay for these features.

Everything for the Modern Picture Theatre

Motion Picture Projection Simplified

Copyright, 1915, by J. H. Hallberg

Q. 9—How would you do this, taking for granted that the condensing lenses furnished with the machine are correct for the distance and the size of the picture projected?

A.—I would first make sure that the carbons are set to best advantage; that proper carbons are used, and that I am securing the brightest and best illumination possible at the aperture plate. This I would accomplish by moving the entire lamp house back and forth, generally keeping it fairly close to the aperture plate, then I would secure the intermediate adjustments by moving the entire arc lamp within the lamp house back and forth. I would also move the upper carbon back or forth or sideways, as the case may require, to secure the brightest and smallest spot at the aperture, which would just fill the corners of the aperture with a uniform light. I would then project the aperture opening on the screen.

In order to secure a perfectly illuminated screen it is necessary that all arc lamp or other illuminant adjustments are carefully and properly made. The slightest movement of either one of the carbons or the lamp will make a great difference on the screen.

Fig. 6 illustrates defects as they will appear on the screen, due to imperfect setting of the illuminant.

In plates 1 and 2 the illuminant must be shifted either to the right or to the left.

In plates 3 and 4 it is too high or too low.

In plates 5, 6 and 7 the illuminant is either too near or too far from the condensers.

In plate 8 perfect results on the screen are shown, the field being entirely clear.

It takes a little practice on the part of an operator to become thoroughly familiar with the adjustments of the illuminant, but with this information as a guide, even the ones having limited experience should be able to secure satisfactory results.

Q. 10—What would you do next?

A.—I would make a careful examination of the mechanism, especially making sure that when the film gate is closed the fire shutter does not lift too soon, and also that the shutter will drop while the machine is still in slow motion.

Q. 11—What would you do if the fire shutter did not lift or did not drop?

A.—As all fire shutters are controlled by either a centrifugal sliding friction device or governor working either against gravity or spring tension, I would make a careful and individual study of this mechanism to make sure that if it is of the friction type there is not too much oil, which would cause the friction shoes to stick or slip, and if it is of the governor gravity or spring type, that no part has become bent or dislocated or sticky; in other words, make sure that no part is prevented from moving and operating freely. As a matter of fact, I would carefully read the instructions furnished with the machine to make sure that the adjustments were proper, if I did not already thoroughly understand the principle and method of the operation of the fire shutter.

Q. 12—What would you do next?

A.—I would examine and test the take-up device on the lower magazine to make sure that the belt or drive or friction disc, whatever method may be used to impart graduated motion to the take-up shaft, is in proper working condition.

Q. 13—What happens if the take up is too stiff; that is, if the belt is too tight, or if the friction discs are set against each other under too much spring tension?

A.—The undue strain might tear the film on the lower sprocket teeth, ripping out the sprocket holes, causing the film to lose the lower loop, or if there should be a weak part or splice in the film it may part entirely, causing a momentary shutdown and great annoyance, and if the machine is not stopped in time, the film may accumulate under the lower film shield, ruining the film, with danger from fire, as well.

Q. 14—What happens if the take-up belt or friction is too loose?

A.—Then there is great danger of the film accumulating under the lower film shield, piling up as fast as the intermittent and lower sprocket feeds it, which is at the rate of about one foot per second. This will soon clog the machine, and if it should be motor driven, it might force open the lower film shield on some makes of machines, causing the film to climb up in front of the film gate where it might be ignited by the heat from the light rays, which would, of course, set fire to the entire lot of film accumulated under the lower film shield.

With hand-driven machines, this possibility of trouble is not so great, as the operator would discover the defect in a few moments.

Q. 15—Keeping in mind the answers you have given to the above, how would you then proceed to test the take-up?

A.—After making sure that the switch is off, I would place a reel of film in the upper magazine. Properly thread the machine in accordance with instructions given by the manufacturer. I would then turn the machine at normal speed, which might be between 50 and 60 crank turns per minute, and while doing so I would carefully examine the tension on the film with my finger as it runs from the lower sprocket into the lower magazine.

This tension should be just so that when I push the film out of place an inch or so and let it go, the take-up will pick it up quickly, however, without undue stiffness or strain.

If the film should be pulled too tight, I would loosen the tension against the friction disc on the take-up. If the adjusting collar should be all the way out for the weakest spring tension, and it should be still too tight, I might take the spring off and compress it, so as to make it slightly shorter, or I might stretch the belt by pulling it between my hands, so as to reduce the torque or tension of the take-up.

If it should not take up fast enough; that is, if the film should run loosely between the lower sprocket and the lower reel, I would proceed in the opposite way by increasing the tension of the spring against the friction disc, or I would shorten the belt a little. I would pay a great deal of attention to the take up, because I realize that not only the safety of operation is effected by the take-up, but the film can also be destroyed entirely or in part by too stiff a take-up.

Department of Electricity Approves Feaster Machine

THE Feaster film feed machine, which eliminates the necessity of rewinding film, has been approved by the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, of New York City, for installation upon moving picture projecting machines.

In doing away with the rewinding at the theatre, the Feaster machine minimizes the fire risk, as well as saving all the time and noise caused by rewinding. It is estimated by some of the leading film exchanges that film used with the Feaster system is in as good a condition at the end of one year as film constantly rewound would be at the end of three months.

The Feaster device is being placed on the market by Byron Chandler, Inc., of 1482 Broadway, New York.

Two Louisiana Theatres Will Cost $100,000

THE Saengers, amusement magnates of North Louisiana, have announced that they would spend more than $100,000 in the erection of two new top-notch theatres.

In Alexandria, La., they will spend $75,000 on what is to be one of the biggest and best picture palaces in North Louisiana. Plans were completed this week and the work of construction is already under way. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 750. The front will be of terra cotta, while the lobby will be of imported Italian marble. The interior of the theatre will be arranged along the lines of the Tudor of New Orleans, labeled as one of the finest houses in the South. It will have twenty arches in the interior with costly mural paintings, representing masterpieces of art, in each recess.

One of the largest pipe organs will be installed. Leon Hammond, of Monroe, La., a talented musician, has been engaged to play the organ. The theatre will be a branch of the Saenger Amusement Company, which has headquarters in Monroe.

The building will be slightly over two stories high and will front on a forty-three foot plot. It will be fitted up with waiting rooms for both men and women, and other up-to-date conveniences are to be installed. Col. W. S. Stevens, of New Orleans, is the architect in charge of the work.

The Saenger Amusement Company concluded this week a long term lease on the Lyceum theatre, of Monroe, owned by Mrs. M. W. Hoyt, of Chicago, and as soon as plans are completed, will rebuild the house, spending more than $30,000 in improvements.

Only Good Times for Screen Managers, Says Pyle

"WHAT impressed me most of all during my trip south last week," said Charles C. Pyle, of the Bartola Musical Instrument Company, "was to hear most every man that I talked with complaining about business, stating that it is the worst he has experienced in years—with the exception of the motion picture theatre managers. In practically every case the picture theatres are showing to more people than they did a year ago.

"The Strand Amusement company, controlled by Abernathy and Calman, of Birmingham, Ala., have two theatres, Odeon No. 1 and Odeon No. 2; one a five-cent theatre and the other a ten-cent theatre. Both are playing to capacity business. The men are now building a new Strand theatre which will seat nine hundred and cost $50,000.

"It merely goes to show that the owners themselves have confidence in their territory, and while every other business man is complaining, the motion picture manager continues to build new theatres and increase his seating capacity.

"In Chattanooga, Tenn., Howell Graham, who owns four 300-seat houses, has lately taken over the lease and management of the big Majestic theatre which has in previous years been a vaudeville house."

$200,000 Theatre, All Steel, for New Haven

WORK has begun on the construction of the Gordon theatre in New Haven, Conn. It will seat 3,000 and cost $200,000. Construction will be entirely of iron and steel.

The architects are C. H. Blackall, of Boston, and L. W. Robinson, of New Haven. The David F. Clark Company, of New Haven, has charge of the construction.

Screen Factory for Sacramento

A FACTORY for the manufacture of Duplex moving picture screens is being filled up at West Sacramento, Cal., and will be in operation early in July. A building has been constructed for the Benson-Hopley Company, as the new concern is called, and installations of machinery are now being made, many of the machines being of special design.

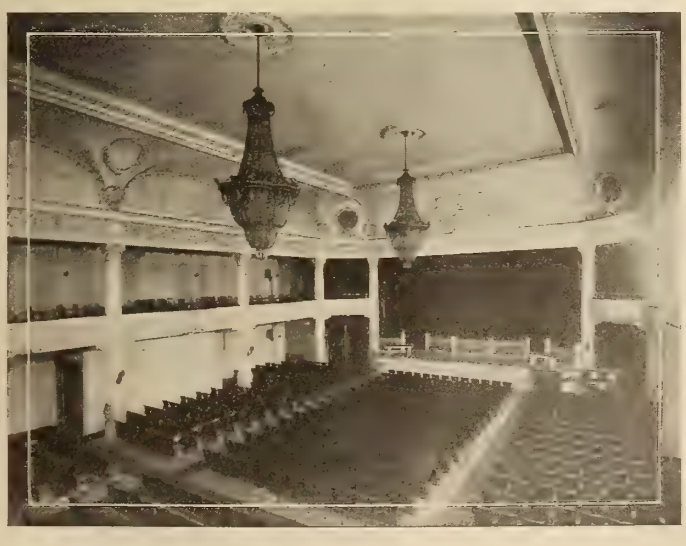
Minusa Sells Cuban Territory

MINUSA CINE PRODUCTS COMPANY, of St. Louis, has closed a contract for the Cuban territory with George G. Gates, of Havana. Mr. Gates has already received the samples of the Minusa company's product and reports great success for the Gold Fibre, which is the company's best make.

Newark, N. J., Theatre Attracts By Its Decorations

THE importance of interior decoration as a means of getting and holding patronage was evident to the builders of the Paramount theatre, in Newark, N. J. The lobby, the walls and the ceiling of the auditorium are examples of the best in the decorator's art applied to theatre architecture.

Floral pieces and figures in stucco ornament the sides of the balconies and the friezes. The ornamentation is in subdued design, and care has been taken to avoid the crowding of too many objects on the wide expanse of surface.



Floral panels in the lobby are in proportion to its dimensions, and in keeping with the decorative scheme of the balustrade, which strikes the eye of the beholder the moment he enters from the street.

The balustrade, in brilliant white, consists of numerous figures, kneeling cherubim, gazing contemplatively at the floor of the lobby. These figures made a deep impression on everybody the moment they enter the door, by the spiritual air radiating from the childish countenance, a tribute to the talen of the designer. Striking contrast in color is obtained in the heavy red plush covering the flat top of the balustrade.

THE STAGE AND ORCHESTRA SEEN FROM THE BALCONY

A large basket of artificial flowers stands on the newel post, which is decorated with a striking lion's head.

Festoons of brightly colored artificial flowers hang from the ceiling, while palms in tubs help to convey a feeling of coolness throughout the lobby.

The theatre is located at 929 Broad street, and is owned by S. Leschzner. Tali Esen Morgan is the manager of the house, built a year ago. It has a seating capacity of 1,000 on the main floor, and 250 in the balcony.

A simplex machine is in use, and the length of the throw is 125 feet. The seats were furnished by the American Chair company. A Hutchins organ is part of the musical equipment.

The management believes in a liberal use of attractive lobby frames and oil paintings for exciting the interest of the passerby in the pictures billed for the week.

LOBBY OF THE PARAMOUNT THEATRE

The service of the General Film company, and the Paramount features are the films run in the house. Eight reels are shown at prices of fifteen, twenty-five and fifty cents. Oscar A. Morgan is resident manager.

Piano Agent and Film Exchange "Show Samples" at Same Time

New Haven, Conn., June 30.

IN anticipation of a demand for his line, owing to the success with which they have met in New Haven during the past few months, M. J. Lockwood, of Providence, R. I., Eastern manager of the Link Piano and Organ Company's sales forces, has opened a demonstration room at 229 Meadow street, this city, occupying a floor with the local branch of the Universal Film exchange, of New York.

In the same room Manager B. G. Salvini, of the film exchange, has established the first projection room in Connecticut, and shows new releases to many exhibitors each day. With a piano playing, the demonstrations for both film and instrument are more effective, and results, according to Messrs. Lockwood and Salvini, are gratifying, to say the least.

Oil Paintings Form Empress's Lobby Display

THE Empress theatre at Omaha, conceded to be one of the finest and most largely attended houses in Nebraska, is giving away a Maxwell automobile to the patron holding the lucky number. A number is given with each ticket. It furnishes excellent advertising copy.

Another innovation the Empress has introduced into Omaha is the display of large oil paintings of World Film Corporation players to popularize the World Film days. The pictures are displayed in the lobby a week prior to the release of the coming picture, and big mention is made of the coming event. The display is attractive and helps boost the advance shows to the patrons seeing the paintings the week before.

Here Mr. Hallberg will answer all the questions you send in—no matter how simple or difficult.

NOTICE TO MANUFACTURERS

THE pages of this department are at the disposal of any manufacturer of machines, apparatus or supplies required for Motion Picture Projection. It is the intention of the editor to describe and illustrate new devices so that the readers of the News may be kept in touch with the latest developments in the art.

When descriptive matter is sent in, photographs or black and white drawings or sketches must accompany the article if illustrations are required. You may send a print from each one of the electrotypes you have describing the article so that the editor may select what in his opinion is best suited for the purpose.

It is desirable that all descriptions and illustrations are in hand two weeks before date of expected issue. In order to have the news note come out at the same time in all publications it would be well for the manufacturer to specify on what date he desires to have the article appear, keeping in mind that two weeks should be given, but specify the earliest date on which the article may be printed.

The above are suggestions which will make it easier for the manufacturer as well as for the Motion Picture News and will facilitate publication.

A Letter of Appreciation from Canada

Thomas Forhan, manager, Griffin's New theatre, Owen Sound, Ontario, Canada.

Dear Sir: I am an interested reader of your column "Hallberg Helps" in Motion Picture News and derive great benefit from it by continually quoting my operator's material selected from the News and written by you. I also supply the operators with the News so that they can benefit from your experience in the projection line. I figure projection in a way that the best is none too good.

Kindly state if 2,000-feet reels can be used in a Power's 6-A machine.

Answer.—A letter of this kind to this department indicates in a small way the benefit derived by readers of the News. It is most gratifying to hear from Mr. Forhan, and I wish that others who also appreciate my efforts in simplifying projection matters would let us hear from them.

The Power's 6-A machine is fitted with twelve-inch magazines. A 2,000-foot reel requires fourteen inch diameter clearance space. In view of this fact it is evident that you must purchase a new lower and a new upper fourteen-inch magazine for the Power's 6-A before it can be used for 2,000-foot film projection.

J. B. Day Owns Electrical and Motion Picture Library

In the early days of projection when I first put my Hallberg Electric Economizer on the market, one of the first inquiries which I received came from J. B. Day, of Sherman, Texas. Mr. Day's letterhead stated at that time, which I believe is almost eight years ago, that he was an experienced motion picture machine operator on both the road and for stationary shows.

His experience dated back to before 1905, or more than ten years ago. From the correspondence which has been carried on between Mr. Day and myself I have gathered the opinion that he thoroughly understands his business. Another significant point and one which I think every operator should consider is the persistent method of self-education adopted by Mr. Day in his own case.

He has a complete electrical and motion picture library, in fact, whenever a new book comes out Mr. Day is one of the first ones to get a copy. What is the result? You can guess, and I know that Mr. Day is up to the minute, and now when the hot spell comes he can afford to take a vacation for a month or two, which not only gives him rest, but gives a brother operator a chance to work during his absence.

Operators as a general rule are underpaid for the services they give, especially in some of the larger theatres, and it behooves everyone of you to study, study hard and persistently, subscribe to the leading trade papers and buy the latest books that will make you more efficient and consequently more valuable to your employer, so that you will command higher wages.

Is there any reason why an operator should not have a vacation after working seven days a week, from noon until midnight in many instances? No, you should have a vacation and by persistent study and increasing efficiency you can command one. Proprietors and managers are waking up to the fact that the picture on the screen is their entire stock in trade, and there is no use in paying hundreds of dollars a week for film service and then employing some one at low wages in order to save a few dollars a week.

Let us get together and boost the operator's position. You are the engineer, you are running the show, upon you depends the result on the screen, and therefore you are entitled to yours.

I am sure that every up-to-date manager with good judgment will see and appreciate the consistency of the above statement. Mr. Day is one of those operators I take pleasure in recommending as one in whom I have confidence and I herewith reprint part of his letter.

"Dorset, Minn.

"Dear Sir:—

"I have just received your letter of June 17, and I most highly appreciate seeing you elected for the Projection Department of Motion Picture News, as that was the only weak department in the paper. I have always found the news to be interesting and up to date in all of its other departments.

"As you have been appointed editor of the Projection Department 'Hallberg Helps,' I know, will be a live section of the paper.

NOTICE TO OPERATORS

All operators are invited to freely use these pages for discussion of their troubles in Projection. Managers and owners may also take advantage of securing answers to any questions relating to the establishment, construction and equipment of Motion Picture Theatres. It takes time to establish a department of this sort, but the editor feels gratified in the great appreciation and support which has been given to this department during the past few weeks.

I have received several letters setting forth in plain words the benefits of a few and I take the liberty of reproducing a few of these letters in this issue.

I want co-operation and I want your support. We will both benefit by an open and liberal discussion of any subject pertaining to the Motion Picture Projection art.

"I am spending a few months' vacation, but about September 1 Mrs. Day, who is a cashier and stenographer, and yours truly will be open for an engagement.

"Any one who wishes to communicate should address all correspondence to J. B. Day, motion picture machine operator and electrician, Dorset, Minn., before September 1.

"Yours truly,

"J. B. Day."

F. H. G., Estherville, Iowa.—The city electric plant uses oil engines for making the electricity. You know as well as I do that oil engines are not as steady runners as steam. I installed one of your Hallberg alternating current-direct current economizers a couple of years ago, and it has given fine satisfaction.

But once in a while when the plant is overloaded you can see the variations or pulsations of the engines at the power house on the screen. Have you got any suggestion to offer to overcome this trouble?

Answer.—Your complaint is an unusual one, but wherever the electric power plant is operated by gasoline or oil engines, especially of the older types, there is a possibility of engine fluctuation, which of course affects the speed of the generator, and consequently the voltage and the cycles, and show on the screen.

The real way to overcome this trouble would be, of course, for the electric company not to overload the engines at the plant, or to improve the regulation by better adjustment of the engine governor, or maybe by using heavier flywheels.

I understand the above suggestions are not within your power to put in practice, but you might speak to the superintendent of the electric lighting company about it.

You can help yourself to overcome some of this trouble and reduce it materially by letting an expert machinist or mechanic make a flywheel, about 12 to 15 inches in diameter, for you, which can be fitted on the motor shaft, next to the coupling, or it may be fastened right on the coupling.

Such a flywheel should weigh about fifty pounds. If you put one on the motor and you find the results are not quite sufficiently improved you may put a similar flywheel on the generator end of the coupling. This application of a flywheel on a motor generator set or an electric dynamo is often resorted to where generators are driven by gasoline and oil engines.

In your case the increased momentum should carry the generator and motor at an almost constant speed, irrespective of the momentary fluctuations on the lighting company's system.

Genter, Back from Western Tour, Pleased With Mirroroid Outlook

J. H. GENTER, of the J. H. Genter company, manufacturer of the Mirroroid screen, has returned from an extensive trip through the Middle West. He reports that exhibitors are enthusiastic over the results obtained from using the screen.

One exhibitor remarked, "I now appreciate what Mirroroid will do by making not only seats close up to and directly in front of the screen, but those on the side, to be in demand."

During the month of May, fifty-two screens were shipped, and for the first twenty-five days in June fifty-three screens have been shipped by the manufacturer. Among the recent shipments have been Mirroroids to the Rex theatre, Wheeling, W. Va.; W. J. Lytle, San Antonio, Texas; E. E. Smith, Clayton, Ill.; A. Syracuse, Atlantic City, N. J.; S. Oyame, Stiveston, British Columbia; Dreamland theatre, Fort Bragg, Cal.; F. P. Turner, Sitka, Alaska; Pathescope Company, New York City; N. C. Jones, Reidsville, N. C., and many others.

From different parts of the globe in which the Mirroroid screen is used, it can truthfully be said that the sun never sets on a Mirroroid, as there are at the present time Mirroroid screens in use in practically every country of the civilized world.

Minusa Will Have a House Organ

THE Minusa Cine Products Company, of St. Louis, will soon begin the publication of a little magazine called the "Minusa Minstrel." It will be in the nature of a confidential heart to heart talk between the makers and users and distributers of projection screens.

"The Minstrel" will sing the praises of Minusa Cine products. George B. Logan, an old-time newspaper man, will help edit the booklet, which will be mailed out twice a month.

Operators Want License Law in Elgin, Ill.

MOTION picture machine operators of Elgin, Ill., plan to have introduced in the city council an ordinance requiring that operators of machines in all the theatres of the city be licensed. They have held a conference with Commissioner C. L. Kohn regarding the matter.

This action by the operators followed the discharging of Roy Fiesman as operator at the Orpheum theatre. Manager Rorig, of the Orpheum, let Fiesman go and put his son, Fred Rorig, in as operator. Fiesman belongs to the operators' union and the union claims that young Rorig is incompetent. Hence they plan to have the city pass an ordinance requiring that all operators be licensed after passing an examination.

Managers declare that state and city regulations are so rigid that every possible danger has been eliminated and that under these regulations a novice can operate a machine.

St. Louis House Adds Laboratory

THE firm of Erker Brothers, 608 Olive street, St. Louis, has added a new department to its establishment, namely, a laboratory for the developing of films.

The laboratory, which occupies the fourth floor of the Erker building, is in charge of Oscar Nedelhorst, who for several years had charge of the developing plant of the St. Louis Motion Picture company at Twenty-fifth and Montgomery streets.

Erker Brothers have put in a very complete equipment in the new laboratory and are prepared to handle anything in the line of film developing.

Minusa Built to Suit Special Conditions

A SURVEY of the projection condition of the theatre at Whalom Park, the new amusement enterprise opened at Fitchburg, Mass., was made by Louis Kalvin, manager of the New York office of the Minusa Cine Products Company.

A very long throw, and a demand for a screen that would permit of the pictures being started at a very early hour in the evening was encountered, and a specially built Minusa Gold Fibre screen was made to fit the conditions.

W. W. Sargent, president of the Fitchburg and Leominster Railway Company, is at the head of the new amusement company, and Emil Gerstel is manager.

May Now Rewind Film While Machine is Running

COMMISSIONER William Williams of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricty of the City of New York announces that the restriction preventing motion picture operators from rewinding films while the projection machine is in operation is hereafter void.

This act is a modification of the license laws regarding motion picture apparatus referred to in Chapter 252, Laws of the City of New York of 1911, which declared that reels should not be rewound until the machine had ceased operation.

Serven of Minusa Heads Boosting Club

W. S. SERVEN, vice-president of the Minusa Cine Products Company, of St. Louis, has been named as head of the American Wheel, a business men's boosting association of the same character as the Rotary Club of New York.

In addition to his connection with the screen manufacturing business, Mr. Serven is a member of the firm of Sawtelle & Serven, the big insurance, realty and brokerage concern which occupies an entire floor in the Pierce building.

Trenton, N. J., Operators Ask for Licenses After Test

THE motion picture operators of Trenton, N. J., desire the city commissioners, the governing officials of Trenton, to provide that persons operating picture machines be licensed under a similar system as the plumbers are there; that is, be given certificates after passing the city test.

Improvements at Sandusky Theatorium

THE Theatorium at Sandusky, Ohio, installed last week a 220-volt, three-phase sixty-cycle Hallberg alternating current to direct current economizer. Mr. Reark had previously installed a 550-volt direct current to direct current Hallberg economizer, and he wrote the following:

"SANDUSKY, Ohio, January 15, 1909.

"Mr. J. H. Hallberg.

"Dear Sir: Your economizer for 550-volt direct current gives a better light, no heat, and a saving of $49.98 in 26 days' use. Before I changed from a rheostat, my bill was $71.04 and now it is $21.06.

(Signed) "CHAS. REARK."

Three years later he wrote this letter:

"SANDUSKY, Ohio, April 4, 1912.

"Mr. J. H. Hallberg.

"Dear Sir: After three years' use of one of your direct current economizers for 550-volt direct current, I would not part with it if I could not replace it. It has been a great saver for me.

"Yours truly, CHAS. REARK,
"Owner and manager, Theatorium."

And last week, owing to the current having been changed from 550-volt direct current to 220-volt alterating current, he put in a latest type 20-70 amp. Hallberg alternating current to direct current economizer with a switch board and other equipment.

The above records speak very well of the Hallberg product.

Air Cooling Plants Installed in Two Quaker City Theatres

ONE of the most powerful iced-air cooling plants in the city has been installed in the Ruby theatre, Seventh and Market, Philadelphia, one of the Stanley chain of houses.

This plant has a capacity of 2,000 cubic feet of chilled air every minute, although only half that amount is needed for comfort.

The Bluebird, of which Elliott Goldman is manager, is another theatre which has just put in an iced-air cooling apparatus, and has also instituted an iced water service.

THEATRE BUILDING BOOM HITS NEW HAVEN

WITHIN the past two weeks, New Haven, Conn., and the vicinity have witnessed a number of changes—new theatres started, and others gone into bankruptcy.

New theatres, chiefly in the suburban towns and summer resorts, are in particular abundance—at least eight being recently opened. In Clinton, the Grove Beach Casino, an enclosed structure of modern and attractive design, is under way; at Short Beach, East Haven, there is the Short Beach theatre; at Walnut Beach, the new $50,000 Strand is opened; in Wallingford, two airdomes; in Madison, the Madison airdome; in Woodmont, the Crystal, and in New Haven, the Airodome.

Theatres recently closed are the ever unsuccessful Strand, formerly San Carlino, which has become an Italian vaudeville house; the Strand, in Savin Rock, formerly Mitchell's; the Derby, in Derby, Conn.; and Daley's, which has been under various managements during the past two years.

Now in course of construction there are three new theatres in New Haven and one in West Haven. The Lawrence, Taft and Movies have opened recently in New Haven, and in Wallingford the Bijou. The theatres which are being erected there are the Gordon, costing about $150,000, situated in the heart of the business and theatrical section, and rapidly nearing completion; Wood and Whitman's, costing about $30,000, to be opened in September; the White Way, on Davenport avenue, which is to succeed the present airdome of the same name; and a small theatre in West Haven, a concrete structure, which will open in the fall under management at present unknown. The Liberty theatre is also in course of construction in New Haven.

Condition of New Theatres

Most of the new theatres are in accordance with the general trend of picture houses hereabouts. A few, however, depart from the ordinary.

The Grove Beach Casino is an up-to-date affair, in Clinton, a few miles east of New Haven. It is conducted by P. C. Swole, a local contractor, and H. A. Platt, of Clinton. The theatre accommodates about six hundred sitting, and another hundred standing. It is equipped with modern projecting, seating, lighting and ventilating facilities, and is a model of comfort and safety. The Universal program is used almost exclusively.

The Short Beach theatre is one of the most attractive in the New Haven section of the state, though only for summer use. It has every modern appliance and provides excellent entertainment to large crowds.

In Wallingford, Madison and Woodmont and New Haven five new theatres are of the open air type, and well patronized. They are typical of New Haven airdomes, in general, though not striking examples of what a first-class out-door theatre should be like.

The Movies theatre is one of the most recently opened, and probably the most commodious in New Haven and vicinity. It seats approximately 1,200 persons, while it can provide standing room for almost three hundred. On one occasion it held as many as sixteen hundred at a single performance.

Its manager, Frank T. Lestage, is one of the most capable and efficient men in the business, and it is due largely to his untiring efforts that the theatre gives promise of becoming one of the best paying ventures in New Haven. The house is located in a handsome residential section of the city, and is well appointed in every way.

Comfort of Patrons Carefully Considered

The comfort and convenience of patrons are given as much consideration as their entertainment, and modern appurtenances prove a great aid in this respect. Universal pictures are used together with special features. Music is provided by a Link organ-piano, controlled from the operator's booth. There are two first class projecting machines.

Of the four theatres under way the Gordon will carry off honors as the largest picture theatre in the state, being arranged to accommodate about 2,500 persons. It is a huge fireproof structure, built entirely of brick and steel. It will cost over $150,000, thoroughly equipped.

The Wood and Whitman theatre will be located in a building occupied in part by stores. It will seat about eight hundred people, and will be of brick. It is located in the outskirts of New Haven, just over the Hamden town line. James H. Woods, present State Pharmacy Commissioner, will be in charge.

An old ramshackle dwelling house has been torn down to make way for the Modern Amusement Company's new Liberty theatre, which will soon be completed. This will have a main floor and gallery, seating a total of about 850. The plans drawn by Architects Rubino and Youngerman call for a building 41 x 48 feet, two stories high, to cost $10,000.

The White Way theatre, which as an airdome proved successful during the past season, will be housed after the summer in a modern two-story brick building, being erected by James N. Cefarelli, a contractor. C. A. Van De Mark, the manager, says that the new theatre and airdome will be run in conjunction with each other next year.

$50,000 Theatre Is Announced for Nashville

WILLIAM H. WASSMAN, Nashville's pioneer motion picture man, is preparing to erect what will be one of the finest and safest motion picture theatres in Nashville, Tenn. The handsome theatre to be erected for Mr. Wassman will be on the west side of Sixth avenue, north, and just north of Church street, extending back to Capitol boulevard.

The plans, which are being prepared by Marr and Holman, architects, call for a three-story building that will be the last word in theatre construction. It will be of reinforced concrete, steel and brick construction throughout. There will be wide entrances on both Sixth avenue and Capitol boulevard, and there will also be four exits to each street, besides exits on the side, which will make the place absolutely safe.

An air cooling system with an air washing process will be installed which will give washed, filtered and refrigerated air in the summer months, and also fresh, warmed air in winter. The air will be supplied to each occupant of the building through separate mushroom ventilators under each seat.

This is something that no building in Nashville has adopted at present. The new theatre will have a seating capacity of some 1,500. The balcony will contain twelve private boxes seating six persons each. The operating booth will have separate fireproof rooms for the storage of extra films and rewinding rooms, which will insure additional fireproof facilities. A large pipe organ with an echo for the balcony will be installed. The front will be studded with more than a thousand electric lights. The contract calls for completion by not later than January 1.

THE projection room in the V-L-S-E exchange at 67 Church street, Boston, is complete and ready for the demonstration of Big Four features. A Minusa Gold Fibre screen, which was made at the St. Louis factory of the Minusa Cine Products Company, was installed last week.

During the hot weather the Cherokee will charge only five cents admission.

The Gravois theatre, Gravois and Jefferson avenues, St. Louis, which closed during the summer heretofore, will remain open all this year, and has extra electric fans put in, besides closing the balcony, which cannot be cooled as thoroughly as the lower floor. The admission to the Gravois has been reduced to five cents for the summer, in order to compete with the many airdomes that have sprung up all over the city.

The Fern Lee airdome, 1700 South Broadway, St. Louis, has been fitted up with new conveniences and equipment, including a new Simplex projection machihne. Mrs. M. Matthews is manager of the Fern Lee.

OKLAHOMA

The Lyric theatre at Oklahoma City, Okla., has discontinued vaudeville and replaced it with a twenty-piece orchestra, under the leadership of Prof. L. C. Finlay. Selections from the orchestra will be interspersed with pictures, as was formerly done with vaudeville. This is a radical departure for the Lyric to make as it has been the home of vaudeville for a number of years past.

The Choctaw Railway and Lighting Company has taken over the ownership and management of the San Suci theatre at McAlester, Okla., and appointed F. G. Walker as local manager. The San Suci is one of the neatest houses in McAlester, is newly built and doing a fine business.

L. W. Brophy, owner of the Yale Theatre Company, announces that he will build a new picture theatre at Muskogee, Okla., in the near future, to take the place of the old Yale. The new theatre will be strictly modern, and will when completed be one of the finest and best equipped picture theatres in the state.

OHIO

The Ray theatre, Prospect avenue, east of Ninth street, Cleveland, has changed ownership. Guy Black bought the house from F. H. Kramer and has put in improvements that make it one of the coziest theatres in Cleveland. Universal programs are being shown. The seating arrangement of the house is nearly perfect. The house has a deep pit and the seats are placed on tiers so high that a good view of the screen is possible from every seat in the house.

A new picture theatre is to be built near the corner of Lexington avenue and Sixty-sixth street, Cleveland. A. Silberberg will be the lessee. As the theatre will be located opposite the plant of the Cleveland baseball team, it will be called the Indians' theatre, in honor of the baseball team that is called by that name.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Luz

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This department is maintained for the exhibitor's assistance with a view of suggesting proper musical illustrations for current photo plays. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be pleased to help solve any difficulties the exhibitors may have with their musical programs. All communications should be addressed to the Music and the Picture Department.

HAVING convinced myself that music will be a positive factor in picture theatre entertainment, I have decided to conduct this department with the view to be of service to musicians who earnestly desire assistance in playing for the pictures. I feel that my experiences can be of use to the musicians in screen theatres and the exhibitor.

We have today many theatres in the United States wherein the cost of musical embellishments are the most costly part of the program. This would prove that music is certainly a factor. We might cite the influx of musicians as theatrical managers of the most renowned picture houses of today as a proof of the musical requirements necessary to that which is best in picture theatres.

Mr. Rothapfel, late of the Strand theatre, New York, who promises wonderful attainments in the future, and B. A. Rolfe, his successor, are examples of such musicians realizing the needs of the theatre.

It is true that in theatres managed by these men rehearsals are possible which lend much to the perfected and refined tone of their entertainment. I have made a special study of picture theatre entertainment and hope to make it possible for exhibitors who cannot run weekly shows to obtain good results.

The greatest drawback in the past has been the indifference of picture producers to assist the exhibitor in music and the picture. It is my desire to advocate their cooperation as well as to give them that which will make their efforts appreciated. This past indifference compelled me to take up an active orchestra leadership, wherewith to demonstrate the actual possibilities in picture playing. My endeavors were strictly confined to daily changed programs which necessitated the creation of that which is to follow in these columns.

I have gone through the time when pictures were nearly impossible to play on account of continued interchanging of scenes, to the present when 90 per cent. of the pictures hold forth an inviting hand to all that is good in music. In the past the good musical scholar was an impossibility in the picture theatre. Today he is a great necessity. It shall, therefore, be my duty to open a field of picture music to the better musician by creating for him a method of understanding whereby he will be relieved of the adverse criticism of the past.

Seeks Interest of Noted Musicians

I will therefore give a short outline of what I hope to accomplish. I shall endeavor to persuade capable and renowned musicians and musical directors to enter the field of picture music and give them through these columns the necessary assistance to make them successful in the work.

I shall endeavor to create a method whereby the exhibitor can be his own maker of musical programs for his picture in such a way that these musicians will be able to render them to his satisfaction, and the gratification of his audiences.

The lack of method for systematizing of this line of picture entertainment has been a great drawback to the cooperation of musician and exhibitor. I have consequently created such a method which I feel will be a medium capable of drawing together these two important elements of the picture theatre.

This will be an A B C method of picture playing which is in course of preparation. This work is so adapted that the average intelligent exhibitor will have no difficulty in preparing programs, and the advanced musician will have no difficulty in musically portraying them. This work, I hope, will create a universal understanding connecting the two important elements of today's most popular theatre entertainment.

It is also the intention of this work to make the four a week, semi-weekly or daily programs possible. This work shall be shortly offered to the exhibitor and musician by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and followed by appendix publications in these columns.

We shall give musical plots of pictures on this page in advance of release dates for the exhibitors' supervision and study.

Certain musical publications specially arranged for motion picture work, adapted, composed and arranged by myself, are now on the press which will remove ninety per cent. of the present obstacles in picture playing. Announcement of this A B C music will appear later in these columns.

We intend through these columns to announce weekly pictures which show an exceptional adaptation to music, as well as announcing musical numbers which show an exceptional adaptation to pictures.

I would urge the exhibitor as well as the musician to confine all his troubles to this department, for his troubles may have been ours, and we, therefore, can help. Should the trouble be a new one, we shall be very glad to learn of it.

For this reason, we will open the question and answer department in these columns, meaning it to be of educational value to all interested in music and the picture. I can assure all that there will be no impertinent answers to any questions that might be asked, which we know to be the case in many such departments. All correspondence will receive courteous treatment and be answered as promptly as possible.

Bossner Solves One Disagreeable Feature Confronting Managers

W. FRED BOSSNER, new manager of the Park theatre, Boston, has already begun to work out his ideas there concerning lighter theatres. The dark theatre, he says, breeds things which the managers want to keep out of their houses—the pickpocket and other questionable characters.

Mr. Bossner had not been in charge of the Park long before one pickpocket was arrested. This was when the theatre was dark. Now a combination of green and red lights shining softly through artistic shades give the house a distinctive appearance without detracting from the light on the screen.

Mr. Bossner does not consider the problem solved; when he has reached a solution managers everywhere will be interested in the problems he had to face and his original methods of overcoming them. The Park is raising the standard of its audiences since Mr. Bossner took charge as a Paramount representative.

On a recent Sunday night the audience actually applauded a travel picture. The Pathé weekly has also been added to the regular program.

Bartola Grand Sold to Asheville Theatre

L. BLUMBERG, of Asheville, North Carolina, has been in Chicago during the past week for the purpose of equipping his new theatre, the Strand, which will open at Asheville during the month of August.

This is a four hundred seat house, with all modern improvements, and will be equipped with a Bartola grand instrument.

Music for "Always in the Way," a 6-Reel Metro

I GIVE here a music plot of a Metro feature—"Always in the Way," the story having been taken from a song published by Charles K. Harris, Columbia theatre building, New York City. The picture is very good and worthy of the greatest pains in the preparation of music. The showing of this picture in conjunction with proper music would give any theatre prestige.

Music Plot

Metro Feature, Mary Miles Minter, in "Always in the Way," in six reels; one hour and twenty-five minutes projecting time.

PART 1.

	Description of Music.	Musical Number Suggested.	Cue to Stop Number.

17	Zulu	"Ethiopia" (Published by Witmark)	Connects three and four.

PART 4.

			After natives miss chief's body.
18	Desc. (Hy)	"Sleepy Hollow" (Published by W. Jacobs)	Dorothy writes note.
19	Overture	"Caliph of Bagdad" (after first movement)	Play concert.
20	Galop (Long and Heavy)		After negro and native fight when Dorothy tied to tree.
21	Desc. (Hy. Path)	"Cantalina" (Published by Cundy, Boston)	Connects four and five.

PART 5.

			"Dorothy is introduced, et cetera."
22	Waltz	(Any concert waltz)	"Blake, now a derelict, et cetera."
23	Desc. (S-Hy)	"Silhouettes" (Published by Jos. Stern)	Restaurant scene.
24	Tango	(Any tango)	Couple stop dancing.

PART 6.

			"She left here a week ago."

28	Waltz (S-Hy Leg)	"Le Poeme" (Published by Jos. Stern)	Armstrong receives letter.
29	Inter.		"Memories of the past."
30	Song	"Always in the Way"	Dorothy stops singing.
31	Desc. (Hy Rom)	"Spring Dreams" (Published by Leo Feist)	To End.

NOTE.—Reel I.—"Always in the Way" can be sung for the opening, the picture going on screen at first chorus. No. 3 must be slow and broad, with occasional minor agitated strains. No. 4 must be a light slurred number. No. 5 again suggests the song title. No. 6 is a slow number with pathetic suggestion.

Reel II.—Nos. 8 and 10 must be similar to No. 3. No. 9 must suggest the Oriental or the Native African.

Reel III.—No. 11 must be a waltz with a slow and sweet introduction. No. 12 must be a number lightly suggesting the Oriental. No. 13 anticipates the song "Abide with Me" as sung on screen. No. 14 can be any short dramatic andante. No. 15 is the same as No. 12. No. 16 is the same as No. 11. No. 17 must be positively of African Native suggestion.

Reel IV.—No. 18 is the same as No. 3. No. 19 must be an overture with much tympani work, as fighting with natives runs through entire number. Italian in Algiers or La Dame Blanche are also good. No. 20 is a heavy galop to continue action to cue. No. 21 is the same as No. 6.

Reel V.—No. 23 is a slow number, the appeal does not necessarily have to be pathetic. No. 25 is the same as No. 3.

Reel VI.—No. 27 is the same as No. 23. No. 28 should be a slow waltz with some strains in minor keys so as to retain a romantic appeal. For No. 29 any 2/4 Intermezzo will do. This number is used to make No. 30 stand out. No. 31 must be a sweet and slow number with a positive romantic appeal. Nos. 6, 7, 8—11, and 21, 22, 23 can be appropriately played on church organ when orchestra is to be relieved.

Every number suggested in this feature is a good and valuable number in picture playing and can be used over and over again. I have tried to simplify the above plot in notes as well as I can. With my coming A B C method few notes are necessary.

I shall be pleased to hear from any who may trouble with the above plot. Remember that all cues are points where you should stop playing the number making a direct segue into the next number.

Mr. John Griffith,
Local Representative,
North American Film Corp.

Dear Sir:--

I feel so enthusiastic over the showing "The Diamond from the Sky" has made, that I consider it only right and deserving to your company to offer an expression of gratitude and thanks to your representative for his hard work to convince me that this wonderful chapter production should be shown in my house.

I am glad to inform you that from the very start my receipts were very satisfying, but to my great supprise when reaching the third chapter my receipts just doubled that of the first night. It is not only a success from a box office standpoint through the attendance of a curious crowd, but extremely satisfying to my audience.

The intense interest and demonstrated delight shown by my audience last Night at the showing of the third chapter was truly gratifying and has proven to me that this great chapter feature is an established success.

I also realize now that I have solved the difficult problem in finding the very necessary stimulant to carry me through the dull summer months. Thanks to "The North American Film Corporation."

Wishing you every success, we remain,

Yours very truly,

Gentlemen:

Photoplays, I ran two of the first that were produced and after having finished the last one, I threw up both hands and said "Never Again."

Then along came some advance advertising on "The Diamond From The Sky" the picturized novel. I gave it the once over and cast it in the waste basket. Finally that advertising came so fast both from the North American Company and your exchange that I had to hire a small boy to build a bon-fire and believe me, we sent "The Diamond From The Sky" at bon-fire mail.

One day while driving around town in my auto I discovered twenty-four sheet stands in all parts of the city of "The Diamond From The Sky". I ducked at every one. In all newspapers I saw half page advertisements of "The Diamond From The Sky." Now to top it off, one of my patrons walked in and asked me if I had seen the latest and he showed me a watch fob with a mirror on one side and "The Diamond From The Sky" printed on the other with a large glass brilliant representing a diamond in the middle.

For one week I saw nothing but "The Diamond From The Sky" due to your wonderful advertising campaign.

I have run the first four chapters and to say I am cleaning up with it is expressing it mildly, in other words, it is getting me real money and it is absolutely a knockout as a continued production. Exhibitors who are the least bit skeptical should do as I did, and watch 'em roll in regardless of competition.

Wishing you continued success and trusting "The Diamond From The Sky" is being shown in every city in the country, I am,

Yours very truly,

Please be advised that we have run two chapters of this picture. The first chapter we were a little in doubt about as we thought it would be like all others, so charged a 5-cent admission, but after running same found it to be so much better that we have changed the admission price to 10 cents and can't take care of the people.

The writer must say that the American Film Mfg. Co. deserves credit as the picture so far as we can see is far better than any one we have ever run and we have used very near every one put out by the different companies.

Will say that any exhibitor wanting to book a continued photoplay that will make the people come back again will not go wrong in booking "The Diamond From The Sky," but by all means to raise the price of his admission.

"The Diamond From The Sky" is the "best ever." Heretofore, Mondays and Tuesdays of each week have been our b'g days at the Boulevard, but since we have been showing "The Diamond From The Sky," greater days have dawned for us and now the big, big days of each week are Wednesday and Thursday. "The Diamond From The Sky" is the best ever. That is what our patrons say at the Boulevard.

It is the truth that during the showing of the third chapter, in the thrilling scene where the automobile, by a hair's breadth, slips by the express train, the people arose from their seats, it was so real. Talk about thrills! It surely excels them all. I feel free to say if "The Diamond From The Sky" continues as it has begun, with its fine scenes and clever work, etc., it surely will prove a "world beater."

Our patrons know a good thing when they see it and they are looking forward to being beautifully entertained at the "Boulevard" Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

"The Diamond From The Sky" has simply overwhelmed us and as a business-getter it exceeds anything that has come within my extensive career in picture theatre operations.

I am sure it will be a pleasure to you to know that in the trail of the "Diamond" there is a jingle that rings merrily in the box-office coffers. We have to call out the police department on "Diamond" nights. The jams got so great there had to be some direction, as our otherwise efficient attendants proved quite unequal to the ordeal. The house filled to the brim and the waiting ones thronged out to the rail—and then the motor man had to worry.

I consider the Palace theatre was specially favored by the opportunity to show exclusively in Santa Barbara, the home of the production, "The Diamond From The Sky." This continued photoplay is great in every respect and among our most interested patrons are strangers to the city who will go away and talk about it.

Edwin Thanhouser

In presenting the following productions for the week, Edwin Thanhouser offers a pretty variety:

Two Reels—Tuesday, July 13th

"Mercy on a Crutch"

A unique character is the little girl Mercy, who is dropped as from Heaven into a frontier town where a kind work is most rare. It makes a gentle little soul a veritable spit-fire, and also gives play for some thrilling action.

One Reel—Friday, July 16th

"His I. O. U."

Showing how the simple little things of life mean so much in the years to come. A newsboy becomes Senator and grasps the opportunity to return the bread that had been cast upon the waters when he was a homeless waif. The pretty way that this story is worked out brings new charm to a human theme.

One Reel—Sunday July 18th

"Old Jane of the Gaiety"

The most lowly of stage-folk has been brought into the limelight. Ethyle Cooke is the regular good-souled old theatrical wardrobe woman, and Grace De Carlton is a new little chorus girl in the company. The kindness of the experienced wardrobe woman saves the little tendril from the usual fate that goes with the cold bottle and the bird. The warmth and sympathy of this production make it a certain winner.

Edwin Thanhouser offers for release on Friday, July 16th, the Falstaff Comedy with Mignon Anderson, Morris Foster and Arthur Bauer. It is a newspaper story with the joke turned on a dignified old financier. But the little girl who knows, proves that the bigger they are the harder they fall, and this old millionaire falls hard. It not only wins the reporter his story but knocks one of the props from under the argument that a woman's sphere is the home.

"Dot on the Day Line Boat"

FILM ACTORS BLOWN INTO HUDSON RIVER

Premature Explosion Hurls Two Leading Players and Three Camera Men Out of Boats.

HASTINGS ON HUDSON, N. Y., Wednesday.—Miss Betty Marshall and Frederick De Belliville, playing leading parts with the Gotham Film Company, came with others of the company from the city this afternoon to take part in a "thriller" in the Hudson River just under the Palisades on the Jersey side. They were to have been thrown overboard by an explosion and then rescued by men in boats, all of which was to have been pictured by three cameras.

The two hundred pounds of explosives with which it was intended to wreck an old scow went off prematurely, and the leading man and woman were thrown into the water away ahead of time, and both were cut and bruised by the flying debris. The boat with three camera men was capsized and they also were rescued, but their cameras are at the bottom of the river.

All were hurried to a boat club landing, where they were treated by a physician. After dry clothes had been given to them they were sent back to Manhattan.

THOMAS H. INCE

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers.

Thomas H. Ince became a member of the big SIG combination by sheer force of genius coupled with a lifetime of hard work.

If it's anything that looms big and portentous Ince will tackle and conquer it. He's used to grappling with Brobdignagian problems. That's why he is Directing Head of the New York Motion Picture corporation and creator of a thousand wonderful film masterpieces.

Ince built a motion picture city out of a sand-blown, wind-washed, Saharan waste. He has undertaken seemingly impossible film tasks and added a notch to his fame with each.

He has had a life experience with stage lore and knows the secret of its application to pictures. He has signed up for big features the foremost actors and actresses of the legitimate stage—at almost unbelievable salaries—because they are necessary to his work.

He has yet to reach the zenith of his career. To chant here of the film productions of Ince would be a waste of time, because they are too well known. His master strokes in the visualized drama are yet to come. He is now at work on features that are bound to make an indelible impression in the film world—some of those big volatile film fabrics which unfold the drama of life in all its peculiarly interesting phases and which reflect the delicate Incian touch in each and every detail.

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

MACK SENNETT

All the world bows to Mack Sennett as comedian and chief moulder of laughs for the big Keystone Film Company.

The name of Sennett bands this planet of ours like latitude and longitude, and wherever it touches human habitation, people laugh.

Each cap full of wind brings to Mack Sennett new and original ideas in comedy. Cast your eye over the flickering world of motion pictures and you will concede that he is the biggest laugh alchemist of the present generation.

Mack Sennett has been a creator of laughs for many years and is one producer who knows the exact quantity of saltpetre that each film comedy will stand.

Dim and lusterless laugh comedies are unknown to the Sennett laboratories. He has the gift for thawing down a comedy synopsis and putting in the punch where it will do the greatest amount of good.

The world is full of laughs and other things, but just the same the world flocks to a Sennett production in order to have a good laugh.

Watch the big comedy productions of Mack Sennett.

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH

D. W. Griffith—Producer of The Birth of a Nation, Chief Director of the Reliance and Majestic Companies.

It isn't the action—though every principal character is played by a star of the film drama.

It isn't the 18,000 people, the 3,000 horses, the miles of carefully laid out countryside which made the "stage" of the piece.

It isn't the brilliance and steadiness of photography, nor the wonder of its composition.

Each of these is but a part.

That which has made "The Birth of a Nation" is the miracle of its "direction."

The world owes to D. W. Griffith—the "director" who produced "The Birth of a Nation"—more than it can ever pay in mere dollars, which it is showering on him by hundred thousands.

Selig

—And he who is deceived thereby is NOT wise!

DID YOU EVER count the telegraph poles? While they seemingly flit past your car window, in reality the poles are standing still!

It is you who are speeding past on the up or down grade!

The Exhibitor who digs down and pays out his good, hard earned cash for doubtful film, resembles the telegraph pole. He stands still! His eyes deceive him; he is buying stuff that really is stationary in the march of progress.

Do you labor under the impression that you are moving forward when you may be going backward? The telegraph pole stands still, ofttimes slightly bent and tottery.

Don't be a stick; be a live wire. The wires strung along the poles do the business; they furnish the essential spark.

The poles have about served their purpose. They will soon be removed to make way for better conditions.

Prepare to get down upon terra firma with the live wires, speeding up grade by the motive power of quality picture-plays.

Don't count the poles! Figure on material advancement. Selig Red Seal Plays released regularly through V-L-S-E, Inc., are the live wires!

"A Texas Steer," with Tyrone Power, released July 26th, is dependable.

It is Charles Hoyt's rollicking romance, in five reels, a refined comedy guaranteed to make 'em laugh and grow fat. "The Rosary," is another Red Seal Play, released June 28th, that is crowding the theatres. Kathlyn Williams enacts her greatest part.

"The Millionaire Baby," a Selig Red Seal Play in six reels, features Mr. Harry Mestayer and Miss Grace Darmond. An adaptation of Anna Katherine Green's best novel. Released May 31st.

Every Selig Red Seal Play is enjoying long runs and return bookings. "The Carpet From Bagdad," released May 3rd is no exception.

On August 23rd, "The House of A Thousand Candles," by Meredith Nicholson, will be released. Another unusual production.

Other Red Seal Plays coming include: "The Circular Staircase," September 20; "Whom The Gods Would Destroy," October 18; "The Ne'er-Do-Well," November 15th.

Don't stand still; join the march of progress! Get into the advancing procession by booking Selig Red Seal Plays, in four or more reels, released regularly through V. L. S. E., Inc., 1600 Broadway, New York City, and branch exchanges.

"The Blindness of Virtue" Sounds Note of Warning To Girls and Mothers

Every girl in love will be eager to see "The Blindness of Virtue."

Every mother who has the welfare of her daughter at heart should see this great Essanay photoplay.

It sounds a note of warning that checks the girl about to take the step that leads to the path of tears.

It tears away the blinders of ignorance from her eyes and sheds the light of clear vision on the path that leads to a glorious womanhood and motherhood.

Cosmo Hamilton's masterpiece is presented in a setting that is wholesome, pure and sweet, and as intensely interesting as it is instructive.

Edna Mayo, as Effie, the curate's daughter, brings out all the charm of joyous girlhood and awakening womanhood with a beauty and interest that is a delight to all.

Bryant Washburn, as her sweetheart, portrays the role with a strength and clear understanding of the character, that grips every one with its intensity.

It is a photoplay that will appeal to all. It is intensely entertaining; its scenic beauty is unsurpassed and its great moral lesson is good for all to know.

After months of search ——we found it!

For months we left no stone unturned, spared no effort, in our quest for a Master Idea upon which we could base something NEW—something EXTRAORDINARY—in Series Features.

At last we found it!

Then followed months in which we directed all our energies towards converting the Promise contained in this Master Idea, into Reality. Officials of such representative hotels as the McAlpin and Buckingham, of New York City; Auditorium Hotel, Chicago; Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis; Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco; Hotel Savoy, Kansas City; Hotel Mason, Jacksonville, and others of equal prominence, were consulted by us and from the wealth of material thus obtained, we produced

Think of a Series containing all the sensational action of our "Hazards of Helen Railroad Series," plus the wonderful dramatic qualities which have characterized the best Kalem productions! Here in a few words, is a description of "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel."

It is the costliest Series ever produced. One of the stage settings, designed by Edward Siedle, Technical Director for the Metropolitan Opera Company, cost upwards of $5,000, while the sum we paid Mr. Siedle for his design was almost as much as is spent upon the average single-reel production.

But of supreme interest to you, Mr. Exhibitor, is the fact that this great series comes to you in REGULAR SERVICE! We predict a tremendous demand for it. Lest your competitors secure the bookings YOU want, arrange NOW for the Half Way Through the Year

IN compiling this convention issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS it has been our aim to make it a ready reference issue of lasting value.

The same policy dominated the west coast issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, date of April 3, 1915, a remarkable issue of 220 pages, constituting the first full recognition by a trade journal of the large influence of the Pacific coast in this industry and so replete with authoritative data that it has become a standard reference volume within the trade.

IN this convention issue we have outlined in succession the past six months' activities of each of the important producing companies. Other interesting and necessary information is given in these resumes.

In addition we have tried to forecast in the instance of each firm, its general policy for the ensuing six months of the year. We regret that in most instances this forecasting is vague; however, it seems inevitably so.

For reasons of competition the producing company will not divulge its plans far in advance. We have been told of some in confidence. They are of interest and importance. But in these and in all cases we are informed that these future developments will be announced in their proper time in the future advertising pages of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

WE regret that we cannot give this important information farther in advance, because there is a very serious demand for it.

We are constantly in receipt of letters from exhibitors, in particular from the many small town exhibitors who play an important part in this industry, asking this information.

"Can you give us a line upon what's going to happen?" they write. "We want to know what to expect."

They "want to know what to expect" simply so they can make their own plans in advance, just as the producer does—plans often involving building, remodeling re-equipment and the like.

WE endeavored to help fill this want with our series of "Weak Spots in a Strong Business" articles, which have been running throughout this year, and in which grievances were aired, corrections pointed out and all in all perhaps the most definite and down-to-the-ground statements thus far made were issued by the producers.

They served, at least, to let considerable light in upon the very chaotic condition which has prevailed in this industry since the advent of the feature.

IT is difficult for anyone to forecast the trend of this remarkable business.

A new and clear analysis is given very briefly elsewhere in this issue. The production of pictures, says the writer, is an art. The distribution of pictures is still largely a game.

In other words, we have come to a full realization of the fact that motion picture production is an art and science in itself, and all itself. It is not at all a game for the speculator. It is a very risky venture for the tyro.

It demands organization, equipment, experience, ability, capital—all upon a very considerable scale. Good pictures demand all this groundwork, and a man is a fool today not to make good pictures for the present big and discriminating public.

WE know this much—it is a great deal—about the making of pictures; and we know these facts also:

That high class comedies are widely wanted and will be made. Comedies as far removed from the slap-stick as are feature successes from cheap melodramas; comedies made as seriously and with all the preparation, expense and talent now devoted to dramatic features.

THAT short pictures will come back into their former prominence, but will greatly exceed their former quality. Mere footage, the making of reels, not pictures, has been as common and harmful in feature making as it ever was in the making of daily-change programs. We shall have short features as great or greater than the best six-part features; and they will have the recognition from exhibitor and public alike.

And finally we shall see—and this very shortly on a general scale—the full recognition of the story as the most important factor in the making of the picture.

SO much, and briefly, for production. But the distribution of pictures is largely a game—a game of checkers with the moves still to be plotted.

We know that important changes must come. They may be radical. There is too much distribution expense. It is milking the business of millions. Producer and exhibitor alike are feeling it. It is adding a cost today which had better go into the picture or into the box office.

Again, the mere peddling of pictures will cease. Anyone can do this, and the slick salesman can often "get the money." But successful distribution will become a matter of giving service with the picture and not of simply "getting the money" for it.

We shall continue in future issues to discuss the business from these and similar angles.

IN conclusion, we have simply to refer to the complete convention information in this issue, to the detailed program of entertainment, the sight-seeing trip through Los Angeles, and the valuable key maps and information in the loose supplement.

Vol. XII July 17, 1915 No. 2

The Church, the Saloon, the Politician and the Picture

THE exhibitors' convention in San Francisco this year will be more fortunate than any that preceded it in at least one respect—they will enjoy a freedom from petty political turmoil that will permit the exhibitors to give their attention to the numerous important business problems which must accumulate in the course of a year in a field as rapid in its change and expansion as that of the motion picture.

Many problems will arise in the mind of every exhibitor as of sufficient importance to demand the convention's attention.

BUT there can hardly be a question that, of all the crises which can be and must be met largely or solely by the exhibitor, the independence of the motion picture from ill-considered, selfish and predatory legislation is the most acute.

The motion picture industry is in the position today of being the only one of the leading industries of this country which is victimized and preyed upon from without at will and has made no organized attempt to defend itself.

It is an unique position, and a thoroughly inexcusable one. The responsibility for such a state of affairs rests upon all members of the business alike, but most seriously, we think, upon the exhibitor.

THE motion picture has three very powerful and very aggressive adversaries—the church, the saloon and the politician.

Of these, the church and the saloon are hostile to the motion picture solely for business reasons—because the motion picture appeals to the same people for whose patronage they are bidding. The picture, the preacher and the publican are direct competitors.

THE minister and the manager of a picture theatre are, in fact, on exactly the same footing. Both depend, for the success of the institution they are conducting, upon the number of people who come to their place of business.

The chief difference is that the minister takes his audience's money after they have entered his edifice, and the theatre manager makes them pay before they get in.

FOR years the clergy have been combating the saloon. Now, to their dismay, they find themselves confronted with an even more formidable competitor.

The ironical phase of the situation, however, is that the saloon has been as hard hit by the newcomer as the church. And without realizing it, the church and the saloon, ancient foes, have unconsciously lined up together and are fighting the picture with the same weapons.

AS for the politician, he is "neutral"—he doesn't care which side wins as long as he can manage to get something out of it for himself.

He does realize, however, that the churches and the saloons each control a very powerful section of public sentiment, and can deliver it in the form of votes at election.

The result is, that when a body of churchmen or a body of saloon sympathizers point out to him the menace of the motion picture and urge upon him the necessity of using his law-making power to protect the public against it, he is predisposed to see the matter through their eyes.

THE politician, good or bad, knows little or nothing about the business of making motion pictures. He has little or no conception of the power of the screen.

He has been told that fortunes have been and are being made in the new and wonderful business. He has been told that many of them are detrimental to public morals and to the young. He has never taken the trouble to ascertain the truth in either instance. And the motion picture men have rarely ever taken the trouble to tell him the truth.

AGAIN we repeat, the fault is largely with the motion picture men. The average politician is not stubborn nor stupid. He can appreciate the force of an argument, properly delivered and backed up with the kind of organization he has been accustomed to command and obey.

Other businesses have learned this. They are prepared to meet the conditions. They have learned to deal with facts. Every business of any importance in the United States has its defensive organization, except the motion picture business. Why?

IN the autumn the National Congress will convene.

The bill which was introduced at the last session by Congressman Hughes of Georgia, providing for a Federal Motion Picture Commission, will come up before the national body for passage.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

ARE you going to procrastinate, as in the case of the war tax, until it is a matter of hours, then wait for a few men to step into the breach, and afterward complain because they did not do for you what you should have done? The time to begin to fight the bill is NOW.

PREPARE to let Congress know that you do not need such a law, and WHY you do not need it. Engage men who know how to command attention and put your case in their hands.

If you do nothing else, you will have accomplished ten times as much as all previous conventions put together.

FIFTH LEAGUE CONVENTION WILL SURPASS ALL PREVIOUS FILM EVENTS

Committee of Arrangements Expects an Unusually Large Attendance on Account of Great Numbers Who Wish to Take in World's Fair at the Same Time—Geraldine Farrar Will Lead the Grand March with Governor Johnson of California—Huge Roster of Space Holders Indicates Widespread Trade Interest—Parade of Stars, Addresses by Prominent Producers, Sightseeing Tours, and Brilliant Ball Are Among Features of the Week

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS

San Francisco, July 7.

THE plans for the fifth annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America at San Francisco have been completed, the stage has been set in the midst of the greatest exposition the world has ever witnessed, and there is every indication that the gathering will be the most successful of any in the history of the industry, from the standpoints of attendance and practical results. The feature of the convention will be Geraldine Farrar and Governor Johnson leading the grand march the night of the ball. It has been no easy problem to plan this convention so far removed from the places where it has been held in the past, to make arrangements for exhibits, to arouse the interest of exhibitors to such an extent as to attract them across the continent, but all this has been done with a high degree of success by those who have been placed in charge of the work, and visitors will find a program arranged for them that is at once interesting and instructive.

The holding of the convention in San Francisco this year will result in a much greater attendance than could have been possible at any other time, owing to the attraction of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Many exhibitors were planning to come to California anyway, and the opportunity of visiting the fair and attending the convention on the same trip is one that appeals to the most of them.

The exposition in itself is a wonderful study for those interested in the moving picture industry, for aside from the exhibits of machines and equipment, moving pictures have been utilized for educational purposes as never before. More than sixty machines have been installed in miniature theatres on the grounds, some of these in model operating booths, and all operated under the strictest rules of fire prevention.

To both exhibitors and producers the lighting effects that have been produced at the exposition will be of intense interest. The buildings, towers and courts are bathed in a soft light of varied colors from concealed sources. Masked shell standards illuminate the cornices of buildings, producing a twilight effect, and electric cauldrons give rise to mysterious vapors which add mystery to the many fountain groups. A warm amber glow is diffused over wide areas, and colored red and yellow lamps illuminate the great arches. A week's time could be spent profitably by the visitor in studying the lighting features alone.

Convention Almost Part of Exposition

The convention will be held in the great Civic Auditorium, which is a part of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, although erected at the civic centre, and which is one of the most wonderful buildings of its kind in the world.

The seating capacity of its main hall is about 12,000, while there are a number of minor halls, which can be opened into the main one, and which have seating capacities ranging from 300 to 1,200.

The convention meeting and the exhibits will be housed in these smaller halls, while the main one will be used for the grand ball. This great hall has an unobstructed floor area of 38,380 square feet and the dome of the building rises 120 feet above the floor level.

The demand for floor space at the exhibition hall has been very heavy and additional room has been secured as a result. The booths have been decorated in a uniform style and the entire salon presents a very pleasing appearance. Three miniature theatres have been installed, each equipped with the very latest in the line of machines, screens and chairs, and feature productions will be shown here throughout the convention.

Among those who have installed exhibits are: The Paramount Pictures corporation, the Universal Film Manufacturing company, the Morosco-Bosworth company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company, Metro Pictures corporation, World Film corporation, the William Fox corporation, Pathé, V-L-S-E, MinA films, American Film Manufacturing company, New York Motion Picture corporation, Nicholas Power company, Precision Machine company, Enterprise Optical company, National Carbon company, the General Electric company, Charles L. Kiewert company, Pacific Gas and Electric company, American Photo-player company, Rudolph Wurlitzer, George Breck, G. A. Metcalfe, Heywood Brothers and Wakefield, and A. H. Andrews company. Others will probably install displays before the opening of the convention.

Meeting of Executive Committee

Many of the delegates will arrive in San Francisco several days in advance in order to visit the exposition before the opening of the convention, as at least a week's stay is necessary to give this even a casual inspection. The national executive committee, consisting of President M. A. Pearce, W. R. Wilson, Peter J. Jeup, A. P. Tugwell and M. E. Cory, will meet on the afternoon of July 12 for a short conference. At eight o'clock that evening the exposition salon and the theatres at the Auditorium will be opened to delegates in an informal way.

The formal opening of the convention will take place at ten o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, July 13, with addresses of welcome by Governor Hiram Johnson of California and Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco. The annual address of President Pearce will then be given, and following this the appointment of committees will be announced by the chair.

In the afternoon the various committees will meet in conference and the other delegates will inspect the exhibits or attend the exposition. In the evening a special program of entertainment will be given in the theatres and in the exposition room in the Auditorium.

Business will be resumed at ten o'clock on July 14, a feature of the morning session to be an address by W. W. Hodkinson, president of the Paramount Pictures corporation. In the afternoon the visitors will be taken on a sightseeing trip, which will give them a good idea of the rebuilt city of San Francisco and the beauty of its outlying districts. In the evening there will be special exercises at the Auditorium, including an exhibition of fancy dancing by leading moving picture stars.

The features of the Thursday morning session will be the annual election of officers and an address by D. W. Griffith on "The Rise and Fall of Free Speech and Personal Liberty in America." In the afternoon the entire delegation will be taken to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, this day having been set aside by the exposition officials as Moving Picture

MILTON BRYLAWSKI, SECRETARY M. P. E. L., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Day. Special exercises will be held there and the entire afternoon and evening will be spent on the grounds. One of the most spectacular features of the program for the evening will be an aeroplane flight at night, when Art Smith, the famous Fort Wayne aviator, will write the word "Movie" in the sky with his illuminated machine and perform his wonderful loop the loop stunts.

Stars in Parade

The business session will be resumed at the regular time on Friday morning, and at this gathering addresses will be made by Col. W. N. Selig and P. A. Powers. On Friday afternoon at one o'clock an automobile parade of screen stars who will attend the ball in the evening will be held on Market street, and this will be followed by a luncheon at the Portola-Louvre. In the afternoon the picture players will be tendered a reception at the Auditorium.

In the evening the grand ball will be held, and this promises to be the greatest event of its kind ever held. The grand march will be led by Governor Hiram Johnson and Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and will be participated in by more than forty of the most prominent moving picture players from California and Eastern studios.

M. E. Cory, chairman of the convention committee, recently visited Los Angeles and other producing centers and secured a bewildering array of talent. The presence of the following list of screen favorites is assured, and in addition there will be many others from nearby studios: Blanche Sweet, Ruth Roland, Katherine Williams, Mabel Normand, Mary Alden, Mae Marsh, Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, Myrtle Gonzales, Bessie Barriscale, Margaret Thompson, Grace Cunard, Ella Hall, Anna Little, Cleo Madison, Margaret Snow, Beatriz Michelena, Francis X. Bushman, Carlyle Blackwell, Raymond Hitchcock, Owen Moore, Charles Chaplin, Ford Sterling, William Hart, House Peters, William Allen Rector, Francis Ford, Bob Leonard, Herbert Rawlinson, William Duncan, Warren Kerrigan, G. M. Anderson, Harry Todd and Victor Potel.

Headquarters for the convention have been established at the Clift hotel and Hotel Manx, two splendid hostelries in the heart of the downtown district. Special rates have been secured for visiting exhibitors and the accommodations will be of the very best. The convention committee and reception committee will make their headquarters at the Auditorium.

The Committees in Charge

The local committee having the task of arrangements in charge consists of M. E. Cory, H. L. Beach, Robert Abraham, Ralph L. Marks, I, Oppenheimer, A. Goldberg, Louis Greenfield, J. A. Partington, H. J. Gosliner, Joseph Huff, E. B. Johnson, Eugene Roth and Frank R. Macauley. The advisory committee consists of the officers of the state league, as follows: H. L. Beach, president; A. P. Tugwell, vice-president; Ralph L. Marks, secretary; C. L. Mehrten, treasurer, and C. H. Schmidt, sergeant-at-arms.

The convention has been given wide publicity through the press and through the medium of posters that have been sent to exchanges throughout the entire country. The grand ball has been extensively advertised through northern California by the posting of a large number of 24-sheet posters in the leading cities.

Among some of the interesting features of the regular convention program will be an address on the use of electricity in motion picture houses by an expert from the Pacific Gas and Electric, and a talk on music for picture exhibition by an authority in this line.

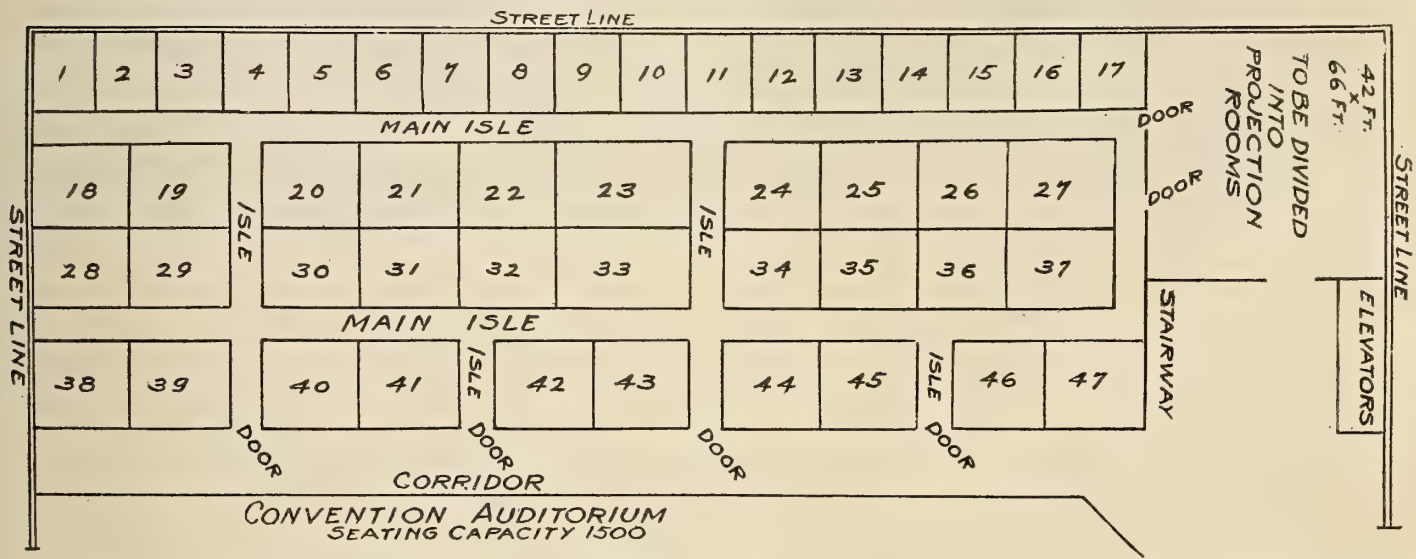
Animal Vaudeville Show Awaits You at Los Angeles

When You Go to Producing Center After Frisking Around the Convention Hall in Frisco, Col. Selig Has a "Get Acquainted Hour" in Store for Visitors

MEMBERS of the Photoplay Authors' League of America will play an important part in the entertainment of visitors who come to Los Angeles on the Selig special, and the exhibitors who come to the film producing city after attending the convention at San Francisco.

The board of control of the league has now arranged a complete program for the entertainment of the Selig special visitors on the evening of July 15. This program provides that the party shall spend the evening at the Selig jungle zoo, where Colonel W. H. Selig will personally aid in making the event one of the most pleasant of the trip.

The afternoon and evening will have a program, first, of a "Get-Acquainted Hour," then refreshments, which will be followed by an animal vaudeville program. During the latter part of the evening, a dance will be given at the jungle-zoo pavilion.



John Robinson, superintendent of the Selig Jungle Zoo, known around the world as the result of his connection with the famous John Robinson's Circus, will supervise the animal vaudeville show and see that his pets do their best for the distinguished visitors. Carlos Bernardo will put his scholars, composed of lions, leopards and panthers, through a very unusual act.

Princess Olga, just home with her five leopards from a tour over a big time vaudeville circuit, will give the second number, and Anna May will, by the aid of her four elephants, give the ladies who attend some new tips on "housekeeping." This act, by a vaudeville manager, is considered one of the best of a comedy nature in which animals take part.

An important feature of the "Get-Acquainted Hour" will be a number of impromptu talks in which it is hoped the visiting writers, publicity men and others will aid in the betterment of film story writing.

Surprises "Ready for Release" at Convention

Many Forms of Entertainment Remain Tantalizing Secrets, but Others Have Become Known, Like the Exhibition of Selig Animals, and a Barbecue (Not Involving, However, the Cooking and Serving of the Colonel's Zoo Inmates) and Auto Sight-Seeing Trip for the Ladies

WHILE the usual number of surprises are being held in reserve by the various motion picture companies that will participate in the convention at San Francisco, many of their plans are "now ready for release."

Both Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and P. A. Powers, the treasurer, will make their third transcontinental trip of the year to be present. They will be accompanied by Joe Brandt, general manager; Nat Rothstein, advertising manager; and Paul Gulick, publicity manager, all of the New York office.

M. L. Markowitz, manager of the California Film exchange of San Francisco, which handles the Universal's business in northern California, and Harry P. Caulfield, general manager of Universal City, will be there with M. C. Jonas and Ford Reebe, of the Pacific coast publicity department.

Among the Universal players who will be present are: J. Warren Kerrigan, Cleo Madison, Grace Cunard, Francis Ford, Herbert Rawlinson, Anna Little, Robert Leonard, Ella Hall, Lois Weber, Phillips Smalley, Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Victoria Forde, Julia Dean, Nat Goodwin, Marie Tempest, Frank Keenan, Helen Ware, Hobart Bosworth, Max Asher, Sydney Ayres, Hobart Henley, Marie Walcamp, and Frank Lloyd.

A Barbecue—Eh, What!

Harry Leonhardt, general western representative, and William Citron, manager of the San Francisco exchange, will represent the Fox Film corporation. Exhibitors are invited to register at the Fox office at 107 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco. Among other things, Mr. Leonhardt and Mr. Citron will probably run a barbecue for the visiting exhibitors.

Mrs. Leonhardt and Mrs. Citron will assist in entertaining the visitors' women folks. Mrs. Leonhardt will conduct a sight-seeing trip for the ladies. A. T. Lambson, manager of the Fox Los Angeles office, will entertain such visitors as may come his way.

July 15 will be Metro day at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Sol Lesser, the exchange man who handles Metro pictures on the coast, will act as host, assisted by Harry L. Reichenbach, the Metro publicity man, who will make the trip from New York to direct the Metro activities.

On that day Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow will receive. The directors of the fair will award gold and silver medals to the Metro players. The likenesses of Miss Snow and Mr. Bushman will be displayed in pyrotechnics and scenes from their first picture, "The Second in Command." It will be given on a special platform fronting the auditorium building. Metro souvenirs will be distributed. Oil paintings of the Metro players, done by artist Kassel, will decorate the Metro booth in the exposition building.

The Selig exposition special will arrive at the exposition, bringing a load of Selig stars. The million dollar Selig jungle-zoo at Eastlake, near Los Angeles, will be open with Selig western players in attendance, including Kathlyn Williams, Thomas Santschi, Bessie Eyton, Wheeler Oakman, Tyrone Power, Tom Mix, Edith Johnson, Stella Razeto and Guy Oliver.

Some of the Selig wild animals will be on view at the San Francisco fair. The exhibitors on the Selig special, together with the scenario writers and players, will find themselves the subject of a photoplay, some of the scenes of which will be taken en route from a specially written scenario.

Reliance-Majestic in Force

Reliance-Majestic will be out in force. D. W. Griffith is already pledged to address the convention on censorship, while the Gish sisters, Mae Marsh, Fay Tincher, Charles Clary, Robert Harron and several others will uphold the photoplayers' end of the delegation.

Perhaps the most distinguished array of stars which will greet the visitors is the honor role of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company. Geraldine Farrar, who will lead the grand march at the big ball, heads the list. Others will be Blanche Sweet, Carlyle Blackwell, Fannie Ward, Charlotte Walker and Lou Tellegen.

The Lasky stars will be present all through the exposition. In addition there will be experts at the Lasky exhibit to explain the effects obtained in Lasky pictures by Cecil B. De Mille and his co-workers. To aid exhibitors there will be on display a tabulated list of coming Lasky features and striking pictures from recent Lasky plays, together with beautifully colored photographs of the players.

"NYMP" Prepares Big Exhibit

The New York Motion Picture corporation will have, at Booth 36, one of the biggest displays of the exposition with Eugene H. Allen, business manager of the west coast studios, in charge. The booth will be arranged like a "drawing room set" for a motion picture. The walls will be covered on the outside with handcolored portraits of the members of the stock company.

Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett will be present, accompanied by Kenneth O'Hara, the west coast publicity man. Among the players present will be Bessie Barriscale, William S. Hart, House Peters, Margaret Thompson, Clara Williams, Rhea Mitchell, Elizabeth Burbridge, Arthur Maude, J. Barney Sherry, Enid Markey, Louise Glaum, Walter Edwards, Howard Hickman, Herschel Mayall, Richard Stanton and Thomas Chatterton.

Among the features likely to be shown are "The Iron Strain," the five-reel feature in which Dustin Farnum appears as star. Possibly "Matrimony," too, will be sent to the Bay City for projection. In "Matrimony" Julia Dean handles the stellar role. Other features likely to be exhibited are "The Last Act," starring Bessie Barriscale, and "The Disciple," starring William S. Hart.

Morosco Stars on Private Yacht

The stars of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company will take in the exposition

WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER, PRESIDENT OF THE INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE COMPANY OF CHICAGO, WHO IS ATTENDING THE MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE CONVENTION IN SAN FRANCISCO

as guests of the company, and will be entertained on the yacht of Frank A. Garbutt. The players will include Maud Allan, Marjorie Rambeau, Myrtle Stedman, Lenore Ulrich, George Fawcett and Maclyn Arbuckle.

The Morosco company does not plan any pretentious display at the exposition but will let its stars speak for themselves. Mr. Morosco himself will be present, a fact which assures activity.

Bosworth, Inc., which is associated with the Morosco company, will offer a novelty in the shape of the ship which figured in its production of "The Sea Wolf," "Martin Eden" and "Peer Gynt," with a projection machine and room installed in the cabin for private exhibitions.

The MinA booth will be in charge of Harry Tudor, assisted by Capt. Jack Bonavita. Captain Bonavita will talk on the subject of wild animal training. Booklets detailing MinA plans will be distributed.

United Photo-plays company will be represented by Wilbur Wynant, the president, and Franc R. E. Woodward, Hunter Bennett, the supervisor of exchanges, will also be on hand.

A special display will be made of the posters of the Dr. George A. Dorsey expedition pictures. These posters, specially designed by Mr. Wynant, include twelve, six, three and one sheets.

Rothacker on Hand

George Breck, the California representative, will be in charge of the Kraus Manufacturing Company booth. The display will include life-size paintings for lobby display, various styles and sizes of glass transparencies, and art publications ranging in size from postcards of six hundred players up to one sheets.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president and general manager of the Industrial Moving Picture company, of Chicago, will be on hand. This concern made all the pictures shown in the Illinois building at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The pictures being shown by the H. J. Heinz company in the Pennsylvania building were also made by this concern.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will have an elaborate display. Mercury arc rectifiers and motor generators for use in projection rooms will be shown. These are on exhibition in the central portion of the Palace of Machinery building.

The Nicholas Power Company also has a display in the Palace of Liberal Arts, which shows a Westinghouse motor generator, switchboard and rheostat in actual operation with a Power machine. W. W. Cope, P. H. Harrison and J. A. Nadon represent Westinghouse at the exposition.

Two Simplex machines are installed in the Precision Machine Company's display at the fair, where pictures are shown with their aid at a special demonstration theatre, fitted with a model operating room.

Details of the exhibit will be found in the Accessory News Section of this issue.

World Film at the Convention

World Film Corporation, at the Motion Picture Exposition and Convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, at San Francisco, will participate to the limit of its opportunities.

W. W. Drum, the Western Division Manager of World Film, will have charge of the managements for assuring that all the branches in his division will be represented. These branches are San Francisco, of which R. H. Clark is manager; Los Angeles, of which C. L. Theuerkauf is manager; Seattle, George P. Endert; Denver, W. E. Knotts; Salt Lake City, Chas. R. Gilmour.

AUTOMOBILE ROW AT RELIANCE-MAJESTIC STUDIOS, LOS ANGELES

These live wire western film men will be at the convention and exposition all the time, ready and prepared to extend a welcome to all motion picture exhibitors in general and those who show World Film in particular. At the World Film booth, Mr. Drum and his managers will have a line of paper of all the World Film releases as well as portraits, and other illustrations of the famous stars, who are seen in World Film pictures, such as Clara Kimball Young, Robert Warwick, Vivian Martin, Alice Brady, Holbrook Blinn and others. The booth will be decorated in the most artistic fashion, and it will provide a rendezvous for all those exhibitors who may care to be present, and get acquainted with Mr. Drum and his managers.

The new catalogue of World Film features, which is fully illustrated, will be distributed among all those who may care to avail themselves of the opportunity of obtaining a copy.

Early in the year Lewis Selznick, vice-president and general manager of World Film, had the honor of being a personal guest of President Moore of the Exposition. The film "The Vauderbilt Cup Race," taken in the grounds of the Exposition, proved a popular World Film feature.

World Film desires to go on record as being heartily in sympathy with the ambitions and objects of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

The Thanhouser organization of New Rochelle gave its convention delegates a rousing send-off on Wednesday, June 30. Peggy Burke, the popular jolly little ingenue, and Harry Benham, the Thanhouser leading man, are the lucky ones. It was decided within twenty-four hours that they should go to the San Francisco convention, and go they did.

Miss Burke will meet the exhibitors with one of the most novel ideas ever exploited.

They will be divided into groups according to the cities they come from, and the exhibitors from the respective cities who are at the convention will be tabulated correspondingly. A big sightseeing car will be used to round the folks up in these groups, and then a moving picture will be taken of each group separately, together with Peggy Burke and Harry Benham.

When the convention is over and the exhibitor has gone back home, he will receive a print of the film with the compliments of Edwin Thanhouser. It will show him at the exposition in the company of Miss Burke and Mr. Benham, surrounded by those people of his city who were visiting the exposition.

Mr. Thanhouser has arranged to send up a series of captive balloons, piloted by Aeronaut Phil Thomas, of Eiffel Tower fame. Each day for four days a differently named balloon will ascend, named, "The Florence La Badie," "The Mignon Anderson," "The Lorraine Hueling" and "The Peggy Burke."

From them miniature balloons will be dropped in thousands, each bearing a picture of the player named. On the last day of the convention twenty-one great gas-bags will float up, each bearing one letter, all of them reading "Thanhouser Consistency."

Harry Benham will handle the arrangements, and his work will also include the inauguration of a Thanhouser Day at six of the biggest children's institutions in the exposition city. He will give them each a free show, consisting of Falstaff comedies, and leave with the kiddies as souvenirs little picture books containing comical drawings by the Falstaff film makers, Riley Chamberlin and Carey Hastings, and the Thanhouser Kidlet, the Fairbanks Twins, Morgan Jones and others.

The entertainment will not fail to make a hit.

FRISCO SCREEN CLUB WILL ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Officers and members of the Screen Club of San Francisco, with their newly furnished home in the Tivoli Theatre building, 70 Eddy street, are planning to entertain all visitors royally, and announce the latch string has been strengthened for convention week—assuring that there will be no danger of it being broken off.

The clubrooms are handsomely and comfortably furnished and will offer to the visitors a very convenient place to meet friends or acquaintances. The officers are: Sid Grauman, president; Charles Stillwell, vice-president; Ralph L. Marks, secretary; and Joseph A. Huff, treasurer.

The directors are: Leon Bories, O. V. Traggardh, Sol. L. Lesser, H. J. Gosliner, A. Goldberg, N. K. Herzog and R. B. Quive.

LESSER AND ASHER PLAN NOVEL SHOW FOR CONVENTION

Sol Lesser and E. M. Asher, general manager and publicity expert, respectively, of the All Star Feature Distributors and Golden Gate Film exchange at San Francisco, have planned and will give the visiting exhibitors a very novel entertainment at the exposition one evening during the convention.

The exact nature of the big event will not be disclosed until the evening it occurs, but the two men who will be hosts on this occasion promise every visitor that it will be the most sensational performance he ever had the good fortune to witness.

Los Angeles Will Entertain Visitors Royally

Studio Managers, Exhibitors and Exchange Men Imbued with the Spirit of Open-Handed Hospitality, Universally Known as the Chief Characteristic of the Inhabitants of the Pacific Coast, Plan Diversions for Film Guests That Will Stamp Events as Memorable

LOS ANGELES studio managers, exhibitors, exchangemen, civic organizations and city officers have combined in planning entertainments for the exhibitors who come to the film producing metropolis, and the days spent here will surely be one continuous round of pleasure.

Advice from chairman M. E. Cory of the convention is to the effect that all visitors will be entertained at the Panama-Pacific Exposition on Saturday, the day following the close of the convention, July 17, which is to be one of the biggest days of the year, known as Liberty Bell Day.

It is planned that visitors will leave San Francisco for Los Angeles on Sunday morning at eight o'clock, reaching Santa Barbara late in the afternoon and spend two hours there, and arriving at Los Angeles about ten-thirty. The same trains will bring back to Los Angeles the stars of filmdom who participate in the exhibitors' ball to be given in Civic Auditorium pavilion on Friday evening.

No plans are being made for demonstration to welcome the exhibitors to Los Angeles, it having been decided that it would be far more enjoyable to the visitors if the money be spent in entertainment.

The program will begin on Monday morning at nine o'clock when in special traction cars all will be transported to Universal City, where they will remain until after a luncheon is served in the very handsome cafe, a part of the largest film producing plant in the world.

800 Expected on Jaunt

In the afternoon the party, which it is expected, will number six or eight hundred, will be taken by traction cars to the home of Griffith subjects, as well as all Majestic, Reliance and Komic releases. After two hours here the party will go by special cars to the Selig jungle zoo, where special features, including filming of big scenes, animal acts, a "Dutch lunch," and dancing in the evening will be enjoyed. Colonel Selig is planning on being present and seeing that every detail of the entertainment here is pleasant.

Tuesday is to be Inceville and Beach Day. Arrangements are being completed for carry-all automobiles with capacity of thirty or forty each to take the exhibitors and their friends to the most picturesque studio in the world, that of NYMP subjects, known around the globe as Inceville. Director General Thomas H. Ince, Business Manager Eugene H. Allen, and Publicity Manager Kenneth O'Hara, are preparing a program which will consume the remainder of the forenoon and permit the exhibitors to give the entire plant the once-over during afternoon.

Before returning to Venice, Ocean Park, and Santa Monica, there will be special events at the greatest pleasure grounds west of New York, the Motion Picture corporation studio. Dinner will be arranged for in the famous resorts including the Nat Goodwin Cafe, Ship Cafe, Sea Gull Inn and other cafes. The party will return to their hotels in Los Angeles late in the evening as they will surely find many pleasures to keep them at the numerous beaches.

On Wednesday morning all are invited to the Bostock jungle and arena at Washington and South Main streets, where they will be guests of David Horsley, owner of this magnificent producing plant and place of amusement. All of the 104 animals will take part in a special performance in the arena, and there will be filming of animal scenes in the newly devised six-part animal studio. At twelve o'clock on Wednesday, there will be a special meeting of the exhibitors' league in honor of the visitors, following which there will be a luncheon by the members of the Film Exchange Men's Board of Trade at Levy's Cafe.

Horkheimer to Entertain

H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer, owners of the Balboa Amusement company, Sixth street, Long Beach, are arranging to entertain the visitors at their studio Wednesday afternoon. Cars will be taken at the Sixth street Pacific Electric station following a luncheon for Long Beach, and Messrs. Horkheimer are arranging with the traction company to have cars on the Seventh street line to transport people to and from their studio, and also give them an observation trip over the principal streets of Long Beach. If present negotiations are completed this entertainment will be furnished by the Chamber of Commerce of Long Beach.

Studio managers, exchangemen, officers of the exhibitors' league, civic organizations, and of the city, are negotiating with the 1915 entertainment committee of Los Angeles for the entertainment of motion picture industry visitors, and while all plans have not been completed, those taking part in planning the event feel sure that the Los Angeles entertainment committee will take care of all transportation to and from the several studios about the city.

The officers of the Chamber of Commerce fully appreciate the great value of motion picture industry to Los Angeles, and will do everything in their power to make the "dealers" of the Los Angeles manufacturers enjoy their stay in the coast city.

The arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors in Los Angeles has been turned over by Chairman Cory to J. C. Jessen, manager of the Los Angeles office of Motion Picture News, and a meeting has been called for an evening the latter part of this week, where all plans will be perfected.

This will be attended by all studio managers, exchangemen, many of the principal exhibitors, officers of the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Los Angeles, as well as representatives of the 1915 Los Angeles entertainment committee.

Floral Parade a Big Event

One of the big events of San Francisco during the convention week will be the floral parade on Friday morning, July 13, now being arranged by the members of the convention committee and the entertainment committees of the various civic organizations of San Francisco.

The flower-bedecked cars will meet the train from Los Angeles bearing the leading players of the Los Angeles studios who go to San Francisco to attend the exhibitors' ball on Friday evening. The train will arrive at nine forty-five at the Southern Pacific station. From there they will pass through the principal streets on their way to the convention Hall in the Civic Auditorium, and later to the Manx hotel, which will be one of the official hotels of the convention.

The parade proper will not occur until twelve-thirty o'clock, when with bands and numerous beautiful floats representing various features of the exposition, the photoplayers will pass through the principal streets to the Portala-Louvre cafe, at the corner of Market and Powell streets, where luncheon will be served to the actors and actresses of the films as well as to the exhibitors and others who attend the convention. The management of the cafe are making plans to make this a "regular feed," to use the words of Chairman Cory, and it will be one of the pleasant affairs of the convention.

During the entire afternoon there will be a reception tendered the visiting artists at the booths by their respective companies in the Exposition Hall of the film convention. This part of the entertainment will last from two until five o'clock.

The grand march at the exhibitors' ball will be a very dazzling event. The ball room has been specially wired so that it will be illuminated light as day so that filming of this climatic event will be possible.

All the visiting stars will make their entrance to the hall over the stage in the mammoth auditorium. At the footlights they will be introduced by Governor Hiram Johnson of California and Mayor Rolfe of San Francisco.

Governor Johnson and Mayor Rolfe Present

Later Governor Johnson and Geraldine Farrar and Mayor Rolfe and his wife, will lead the grand march participated in by the greatest number of film and legitimate stage stars ever gathered together at a single event.

An orchestra of forty pieces, composed of the best dance musicians of the bay cities will furnish the music for the ball from a platform in the center of the floor, which is one hundred and ninety feet square. The galleries and other seats about the auditorium will accommodate fifty-two hundred people, and there will be specially provided booths for the film artists where the exhibitors and other guests may meet them personally.

The committee on arrangements of the convention have purposely placed the great event of this big meeting on the evening of the last day in order to induce all who attend to remain throughout the entire convention.

The film stars will return to Los Angeles on the special trains which bring the exhibitors to the motion picture producing city.

Chaplin Popularity Means Longer Strips of Film

Gloom-Chasing Comedian Is Working on Six-Reeler, Scheduled for Early Release as Special Feature, and Will Produce Multiple Subjects Regularly

CHARLES CHAPLIN and his company have moved from the temporary plant on Court street, Los Angeles, Cal., to the new Essanay studios on Boyle Heights. The Essanay-Chaplin company has been augmented by several new players.

Besides the regular releases of one two-reel comedy every three weeks through the General Film company, Mr. Chaplin will now produce a multiple-reel feature. He is at present working on a six-reel comedy which will be released as a special feature shortly.

The extra number of players were secured largely to take part in the special features, though they also will appear in the regular releases. The special comedies will not interfere at all with the other releases.

Edna Purviance is playing opposite Mr. Chaplin and has sprung into prominence with unusual rapidity, both because of her beauty and ability in mimicry and comedy work.

Billy Armstrong is a recent addition to the company. He was secured in London where he was playing on the speaking stage. Marta Golden, who played with Ferris Hartman, the well-known musical comedy star, is working in character parts with Mr. Chaplin. Miss Golden also worked in Marie Dressler's place in San Francisco at the Gaiety in "The Merry Gambol."

Other prominent members of the company are Paddy McGuire, Bud Jamison, Margie Reiger, Leo White, Harry Pollard, Jack Cherry and Ernest Van Pelt.

Six more Essanay players have gone East to join the company of Essanay players headed by Joseph Byron Totten, to take scenes for plays requiring an Eastern atmosphere, especially along the coast. The players who have just left the Chicago studios are June Keith, Richardson Cotton, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Alfred Gronell, Hazel Daly and Marian Sullivan.

June Keith will play leads in the company. She recently finished taking a leading part in "A Bunch of Keys," the five-act comedy written by Charles Hoyt, which will be released through the V-L-S-E. She also played for a short time with the Essanay company at Chattanooga, Tenn., before going East.

The company is taking several scenes at Pendleton Hill, Conn. The tour of the coast will last all summer.

VITAGRAPH STUDIOS IN HOLLYWOOD MAY BE ENLARGED

Manager W. S. Smith, of the Western Vitagraph studio at Santa Monica, Cal., has been negotiating with property owners in Hollywood and Glendale for a site for a new studio much larger than the one now used by this organization.

All matters pertaining to this have been forwarded to the New York office of the company, and it is very probable that selection will be made and work commenced on the construction of the new studio by the time this appears.

SEEING LOS ANGELES FILM STUDIOS THROUGH THE MEGAPHONE; A "TRAVEL AND SCENIC"

Being Concise Directions by the Rubber-Neck Wagon Orator as to the Convenient Way of Reaching the Photoplay Producing Plants of the West Coast, Reduced to Script by the Editorial Staff of the Exhibitors' Convention Daily Edition of "Motion Picture News," Composed of Ford I. Beebe, Universal Publicity Department; Kenneth McGaffey, Lasky Publicity Department; Bennie Zeidman, Reliance and Majestic Publicity Department; C. W. Pope, Representing New York Telegraph; Kenneth O'Hara, NYMP Studio Department; George Bellman, Seattle Correspondent of "Motion Picture News" and Photoplay Editor, Seattle Times, Motion Picture Department, and J. C. Jessen, "Motion Picture News."

LADIES AND GENT'MEN:

We selected Central Park as our starting point, as it is the hub of the great city of Los Angeles. For the sum of one nickel, half a dime, a jitney—the California state seal—we will conduct you around the great motion picture studios of Los Angeles, where all the motion pictures seen in the world and your home town are made. We will show you the great artists on their native heath, show them both before and behind the camera, show you the wild untamed directors, the skinny-legged ingenues and the proud and haughty leading men all, ladies and gentlemen, all, all, afflicted with sports shirts.

Step up, get aboard, it is only one jitney and see the actors at work. Your only chance to see them doing anything. The young lady on my left will sell the tickets. Have your money in your hand and don't crowd. Keep back there, lady, you will have a chance. Come one, come all. James, crank the car.

We are now passing north on Hill street, which should be spelled with an "e." If you don't believe it ride over it in a Ford. On the left, the noisy place filled with rattle is not the Los Angeles Ford factory, but the station of the Pacific Electric traction company. This is where the 'xtra players and ordinary people take traction cars to the Hollywood "fillem foundries." The extraordinaries ride in those champion noise producers of thirty candlepower.

Our first collision will be that with Bunker Hill, at the head of Hill street. On the tipmost topmost point of this earthen mound is the L. A. Film corporation, where the two-reel laugh maker, "Work," and other Chaplin comedies were made. It is sad to relate, but Charlie was hard on the furniture, and he left before being given an invitation. Now the Rolin Film company keep up the record in the making of comedies for Pathé Frères, under the direction of Hal Roach. The bush just visible over the crest is the mustache of the treasurer, Dwight Whiting.

Friendly Broadsides for Griffith

If our wheeze wagon does not break its back negotiating some of the curves of Sunset boulevard we will soon reach the Kalem Hollywood studio, 1425 Fleming street, in time for a breakfast on "Ham" comedies. This is the workshop of Ham and Bud, who harken to the hog-calling voice of Reub Miller. Miss Gibson is the manager here, and all the players love her, for she hands out checks of value.

Swinging back to Sunset boulevard we will pass westward to 4500. The Birth of a Nation occurred here and Frank E. Woods is accredited with being the god father. David Wark Griffith wore all the grass off the lots at our right in the making of the thrilling Ku Klux Klan charges and discharges.

The censor board aided and abbetted the discharges. Mr. Griffith has never been able to understand why sense was ever put in censor. That is supposed to be an allegory or at least a fade-in. The handsome street scene is for Mr. Griffith's next production, "The Mother and the Law," and the adobe shells in the rear are all that remains of the famous Texas Alamo.

Christy Cabanne brought them in his suitcase to use in "Martyrs of the Alamo." Spottiswoode Aitken is the tall man of mature years yonder telling Mae Marsh of his trouping days in bonnie Scotland. Yes, he's a minister's son. The nine hundred and one buildings on the lot are all additions. The original and first one ever constructed is now being worn as a watch charm by Mr. Epping, who every Saturday slips the elusive shekel to the lowly thespians.

The next stop is the Quality Studio, where the famous movie "idle" Francis X. Bushman, daily cavorts before the festive camera. The busy man is Charlie "Feature" Abrams. Fred Balshofer is today serving on the reception committee.

Led Out of the Wilderness

To our left is the former home of the Universal. From this prison, Carl Laemmle led them to the promised land. There were a lot of promises made. At the farther end of the lot is the historical spot where Billy B. Van was offered five dollars a day to work before the camera, and think of it, he refused the opportunity to become a millionaire. Billy Ritchie, here daily twists his mustache of crepe hair.

Harken, list, I prithee, gadzooks! We are nearing Vine and Selma streets. Hear the sounds of sweet music on the air, 'tis Geraldine Farrar, singing as she works. No wonder she sings, for she receives two dollars a minute for each minute she works. This is the Lasky studio on our right. The selection Miss Farrar is singing is from "Carmen." Will the chauffeur please take up a collection of twelve dollars each for grand opera tickets.

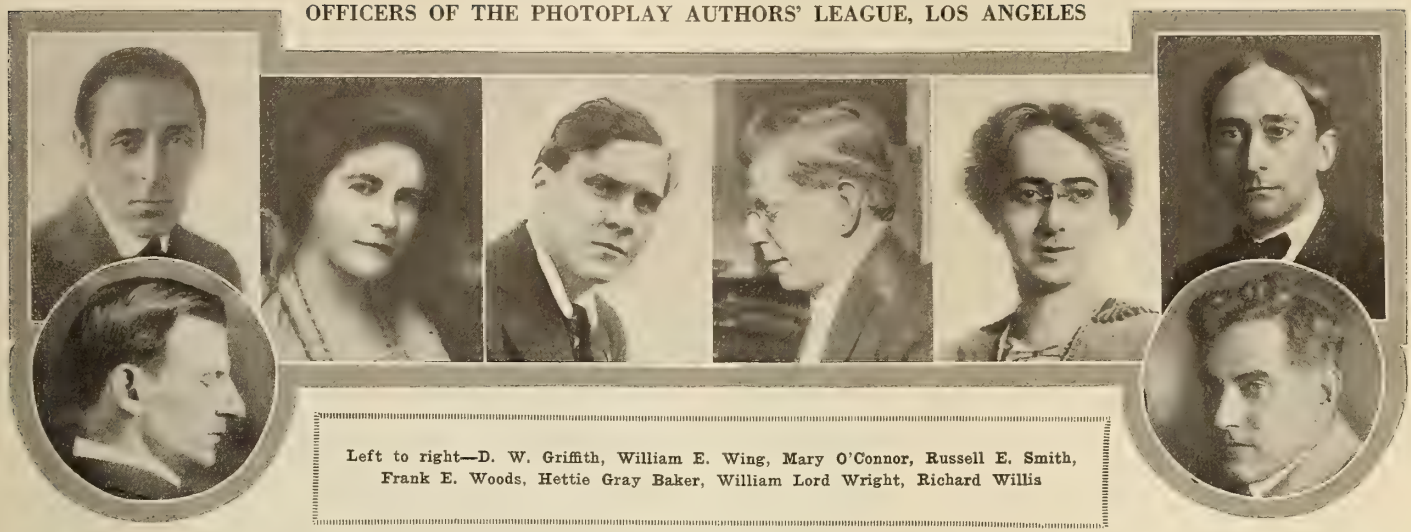
The halation in the distance is caused from the lack of a diffuser over the unprotected dome of Cecil B. de Mille, producer general. The Lasky studio is this morning holding a celebration because Blanche Sweet has arrived on time, the first time in weeks.

We are now on the way to Universal City. This great gash in the foothills is referred to on maps as Cahuenga Pass. Since we are crossing the city limits we will stop here, and following the dictates of E. H. Harriman's conscience, collect another jitney.

This colossal collection of concrete creations is known to the world as Universal City. On the right you will note with pain, the administration building. From this building a storm recently blew three towers of e-e-normous size. There was never more than one tower on it, but we know that three were blown off because Joe Brandt, of the New York publicity office, said so in an exclusive interview to seventeen dailies and four trade journals.

The Smile That Stays

The gentleman with the cherub smile is not advertising somebody's chewing gum with a smile that won't come off, but instead delivering a straight from the shoulder talk to exhibitors. This gentleman is Carl Laemmle, president of this the largest motion picture producing company in the world.



At our left is the largest stage in the world, at the rear of which are the dressing and undressing rooms. But half of the wonders are on this side of the foot hills. Beyond is the zoo containing everything from fleas to Charlie the mammoth elephant. Little Egypt is built here on a moment's notice, and an investigation of the confines will reveal locations from every part of the known and unknown world, and those far off points discovered only by the publicity experts.

Do not wet your feet as we cross the Los Angeles river to the Philippino village. This main thoroughfare is known as Laemmle boulevard. On this hill "The Deluge" was staged with Cleo Madison's tears.

Moved by the predominating spirit of the Native Sons of California we will collect another fare at the city limits. We are now bound for Gower street at the intersection of Santa Monica boulevard. This delightfully homey place is the Oz studio, the present home of the National Film corporation. William Parsons, Bruce Mitchell and Dewey Caldewey form the reception committee here as well as the makers of parlor comedies. A fine will be imposed if you attempt any slap stick joviality.

Bumping the bumps along this avenue we will jolt over to 1702 Alessandro street, the bruise factory of Mack Sennett. Raymond Hitchcock is now juggling a flock of bricks—that is the reason they keep up the "Danger! No Admission" sign. Mabel Normand is now bedecking herself in a handsome new gown and as soon as a certain German face decoration is placed in position a certain comedian will put in an appearance and say "I ———." The great splash just then was caused from Roscoe Arbuckle falling into the sixty foot tank. There is a studio on each side of the street so that players of different companies will not delay production in consoling each other for slight contusions. Look out for the pie!

Their Silver Finish and Sterling Worth

On the left is the Albuquerque company, where Luna comedies are worked out by G. P. Hamilton. This company does not work except during the light of the moon.

On the next corner, 1901 Alessandro street, is the Selig Edendale studio where Colin Campbell works night and day, and two other producing companies make subjects for the General program.

As it requires traveling on the cars of the two traction companies to cross town and no universal transfers are given, we will now collect another jitney for the need of gasoline will become very apparent when we attempt to make the hill in the distance.

We are bound for the famous Selig million dollar jungle studio. That is not a patrol wagon passing up North Broadway, but the red automobile of William Persons, manager of the Selig place of wonders. Watch your step and hold your watch, for on our left is an ostrich farm. Immediately in front of us, at 3800 Mission road, is the $75,000 entrance to the zoo. Don't get lost in the maze of jungles. See the tank town labeled "Bloom Center" from which a series of comedies will soon emanate. The hyena is not laughing today because of a temperamental spasm.

Director Tom Santschi spoke harshly to this address yesterday. The golden light in the distance is caused by the sun playing on the silken tresses of Kathlyn Williams. The small man is John Robinson (Yes, he owned the circus), whom all the animals love. The car will stop here thirty minutes in order that you may have plenty of time to get acquainted with all the leading players of the wild animal dramas and comedies. There are only seven hundred here.

A Few Moments with Chaplin

Jolting over Mission road to Brooklyn avenue, we will swing up the hill and around Fairview avenue to No. 651. The green fence encloses Charlie Chaplin and his warriors who drive away gloom. The management adheres strictly to the "keep out" sign and not even trade paper men may enter the studio.

The fireproof, burglarproof, airtight vault in the center of the grounds was constructed for the protection of Charlie's mustache, his fifty thousand dollar shoes, his English walking coat of the vintage of '59, that cute little bamboo cane, and his million dollar salary.

Charlie is some boy in the picture game, for he writes his own scenarios, produces the picture, plays the whole show and gets away with it in three hours' work each day. This secluded spot was selected for a studio as it is sufficiently far enough away so that no one will be distracted by the falling of bricks, and so forth.

This is the Bostock jungle where MinA comedies are made, Washington and South Main street. The pleasant gentleman in the door is not the mustached villain of a coming production, but allow me to introduce David Horsley, a very genial gentleman. He brought all these roarers from England and is introducing them in the celluloid amusement. There is enough inside these walls to amuse you for weeks.

Ride Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum and fight with the boxing kangaroo. If you should wander into the animal stage arena, you can escape from any beast that attacks you by diving into the water at the edge. All actors on the lot are now good swimmers as a result of this practice.

The collection of freaks here number one hundred and ten, every one of which does his respective turn each day. You must be educated if you would remain here. The same applies to all actors and actresses.

If you would care to see Inceville, the marvelous studio of NYMP brand of pictures, take a Santa Monica car to Second street station and there barter with the stage-coach man for a ride of four miles along the beach road. Inceville is in the pocket of the coast range of foot hills and has the conveniences and advantages of a regular studio in addition to being able to add atmosphere to all its sea pictures by canning the ocean breeze.

Thomas H. Ince has a patent on this process. William S. Hart will greet you with his band of western bad men and a visit to this point will add immense value to your store of motion picture information, providing you will read all the stories that emanate from the publicity department of the lot.

Town of Long Haired People

E. D. and H. M. Horkheimer have their Balboa studio at Long Beach. Take a traction car at Sixth and Main for a ride to this town of long-haired individuals. (Pardon me, the Horkheimer brothers have a barber of their own). Pathé subjects are made at this studio with clockwork precision, and C. M. Peck conducts the plays upon department store ethics. No! There are no bargains there. Go down and see them and you will find out "Who Pays."

Hazardous Helen Holmes has a real-for-sure railroad train and cars to play with at the Kalem-Glendale studio. Take a west bound car at Sixth street, if you would care to see a successful equal suffrage railroader. She holds every position on her individual line from president down to section man.

In addition to the studios referred to by our orator friend above, there are numerous others. The Crown City Film Manufacturing company's plant is located at 40 West Mountain avenue, Pasadena, where Harold Parker resides as general manager. The production here is in charge of Donald MacDonald.

At the extreme southern end of the city, 5821 Moneta avenue, is the work place of D. L. Burke who perfects the Deer brand subjects released on Pathé and other programs.

Far out beyond Edendale, over hills and through valleys and in a decidedly western atmosphere is the Navajo Film Manufacturing company's studio. Here also, are made the Banner Film company's comedies.

The studio of the America-Europa Film company, which has produced for export trade only, has its office in the San Fernando building and studio at Alessandro avenue and Mojeska street.

At the present time the Mammoth Biograph company at Girard and Georgia streets is closed. The entire producing plant of this company comes west January 1 and returns to the eastern studio the first of July of each year.

One of the most complete studios of the west coast is that of Bosworth Incorporated, where Bosworth and Oliver Morosco feature photoplays are made. The studios, laboratories and offices are located at 201 Occidental Boulevard and can be reached by the Temple street yellow car line. Charles Eyton is studio manager and Waldo Walker deals out the publicity.

The Masterpiece Film Manufacturing company has just completed the rebuilding of its studios at 1630 Gordon street, Hollywood, and are planning to begin operations within a short time.

E and R Jungle Has Rare Animals

On the eastern side of Eastlake Park, is the studio and zoo of the E & R Jungle Film company. This organization has made a wonderful collection of rare specimens and are now using them in pictures. Napoleon, the roller skating, bicycle riding, auto driving chimpanzee familiar to patrons of vaudeville houses on big time circuit, and Sally his motherly little mate, are here to be seen following the dictates of the director to the click of the camera.

North of Los Angeles a short distance from Beardstown, is the big Otto animal ranch where the Carl Ray Motion Picture company and the Nash Motion Picture company both produce.

The Vitagraph Company of America has its western studio at Santa Monica, under the management of W. S. Smith. Here, three producing companies are at work at all times under the direction of R. S. Sturgeon, Ulyssus Davis and Dave Smith. The company is soon to move to a larger and more conveniently located studio.

Features Ideal, producing for the newly formed Standard program, is at the present time using the studio of the Masterpiece company, at 1630 Gordon street. Robert Levy is in charge of this organization.

One of the important producing organizations of the Los Angeles colony is that of Capt. Wilbert Melville, known as the Western Lubin company. Studios are located at 4560 Pasadena avenue and at the present time, are of sufficient size to accommodate two or three companies. Captain Melville has just made the announcement that he has purchased additional ground and will begin at once upon the construction of an enclosed concrete fireproof studio to be used during the rainy season. In the near future, companies of Capt. Melville's organization will specialize in sea pictures. He has two of the largest private yachts on the Pacific coast.

An interesting place to visit is the former studio of the Universal company, Gower street and Sunset boulevard, Hollywood, where the H. C. Mathews' Juvenile company is making subjects for the Universal. Practically all the players appearing in these releases are children, the subjects featuring Elsie Albert and Baby Early.

Numerous Industrial Companies

In addition to those enumerated, there are a number of industrial companies, commercial laboratories and other firms where independent subjects are being made at all times.

Now ladies and gentlemen, after returning to our starting point, the greatest trip of your life will be ended. I have given you instructions how to reach the other principal studios. It is beyond us to take you there as the gentleman at the wheel, who has succeeded in hitting every rough spot in the sixty-five miles of thoroughfare we have passed over, informs me that gasoline is low.

It will be necessary for us to make the trip to Central Park by back streets as the principal streets of the city are closed at this hour in order to permit a daily parade. Today, California is celebrating Peanut Day. If you remain in the city tomorrow, you may witness Popcorn Day. Yes! Los Angeles has a street parade almost every day. They do this to jolly the people into thinking no other city in the nation has half as much to be thankful for. Beware of the red lemonade. Tell your friends to take the big blue bus.

LAST "WHO PAYS?" IS RELEASED

The last story of a series of twelve dramas under the general caption of "Who Pays?" writen by Will M. Ritchey, scenario editor of the Balboa Amusement Producing company, and released by Pathé, has just been released.

"Toil and Tyranny" is the title of the final picture, and the subject dealt with is the ever-present contrast between capital and labor.

Without exception, the twelve photodramas of the series have met with praise. It was the intent of the author to create stories that would make people think, and it would seem that this purpose has been accomplished.

KESSEL-BAUMANN-AITKEN COMBINE SIGN STARS

Stage and screen stars are being rapidly coralled by the Kessel-Baumann-Aitken combination. While negotiations are rapidly going forward with many others, the following are definitely announced as having signed contracts to work at the New York Motion Picture corporation studios on the Pacific coast: Orrin Johnson, William S. Hart, Bessie Barriscale, Willard Mack, Forrest Winant, Dustin Farnum, Henry B. Warner, Henry Woodruff, Jane Grey, Julia Dean, Louise Dresser, Mary Boland, George Beban and Helen Ware.

The following stage comedians have signed for work at the Keystone studios: Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, Raymond Hitchcock, Bert Clark and Hale Hamilton.

JUAN DE LA CRUZ, TITLED SINGER, JOINS MOROSCO

The Oliver Morosco Photoplay company announces at its latest capture from the stage, Juan de la Cruz of the Royal opera house of Copenhagen, one of the ablest men in grand opera, who has accepted flattering terms to appear before the motion picture camera.

"Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford" Is at Last in Films

The Whartons Will Produce the Picture for Pathe—De Belleville, Figman and Lolita Robertson, Players of Universal Reputation, Cast for Principal Parts

L. D. and T. W. WHARTON, the Pathé producers, make an announcement of unusual interest. They will put into pictures for Pathé the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" stories of George Randolph Chester, which are now running in the "Cosmopolitan," and have been a big feature in the success of that enterprising magazine. The creation of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" made the fame of Mr. Chester.

The big promoter of shady financial schemes is so peculiarly American, his character is so well drawn, and his adventures so startingly original and humorous that the series should make wonderfully attractive pictures. The rights to produce them were obtained from William Randolph Hearst himself.

The Whartons have engaged for their cast several of the best known players of the stage today. Frederic de Belleville will play "Wallingford," and Lolita Robertson will have the feminine lead. Max Figman will do Blackie Daw.

Mr. de Belleville needs little introduction to the playgoing public. Born in Liege, Belgium, his father was a colonel and his brother a commandant in the Belgian army. One of his great uncles was a prime minister of Belgium in 1830. He played a wide variety of parts in London and Austria, and made his first appearance in the United States years ago in San Francisco.

Some of the famous productions with which he has been identified are "Diplomacy," with Rose Coghlan; "Divorcons," with Mrs. Fiske; "Tess of the Durbervilles"; "The Eternal City," with Viola Allen, and with Mrs. Fiske again in "Leah Kleschna."

Max Figman is easily one of the best known actors of the day. Augustin Daly saw him playing a small part in Philadelphia when young Figman was only 18 years old, and offered him a three years' contract. On the expiration of his contract Mr. Figman went with Charles Frohman, and then with Mrs. Fiske, with whom he was associated for seven years as a producer and leading man.

Then he went starring and for the last eight years has been under the management of John Cort. A recent engagement was with the all-star cast of "Fine Feathers." Mr. Figman has just built a fine summer home at Great Neck, Long Island, but because of his "Wallingford" engagement cannot christen it until fall. He is an outdoor type of man, being especially fond of rowing and fishing among other sports.

Lolita Robertson, in private life Mrs. Max Figman, is a California girl and began her stage career in stock at the Alcazar theatre. After a season or two there she came to New York and was engaged by Henry Miller for "The Great Divide." Mr. Figman offered her a good part in "The Substitute," with which company she remained for two years. The acquaintance thus begun ripened into live, and resulted in her marriage to Mr. Figman.

With such a vehicle and such a cast the Whartons may be expected to make for Pathé a series of extraordinary merit. Work will be started on "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford" at the Ithaca studios on July 12.

ORDER OF PALS INCORPORATED

The Order of Pals has been incorporated at San Francisco for social purposes. Many leading exchange men and exhibitors are members of the organization. The board of governors consists of James M. Hathaway, Fred E. Partridge, Charles McDonald, Sam Haller, Charles Grapewin, and Milt Collins.

Every Branch of Film Industry Forges Ahead at Unprecedented Rate in Twelve Months

Business Is Now on Such Basis That It Ranks with Solid Commercial Lines, and Offers Unusual Opportunities for the Man Who Is Familiar with All Motion Picture Angles, as Exemplified in the History of the Principal Concerns Published in This Issue—Past Six Months Has Brought Great Changes and Furnishes Criterion for Judgment of Future

By George D. Proctor.

GAME, industry or art?

About a year ago John Bunny was one of the speakers at a banquet given by motion picture men at a New York hotel. One of the first speakers mentioned the "motion picture game." Another spoke of "the motion picture industry." A third referred to "the motion picture art."

When Mr. Bunny was called on he began by saying:

"Now that we are all here in the interests of this game-industry-art——" and was obliged to pause a moment while the appreciative smile went around.

The producing end of the motion picture industry is an art.

The business and distributing ends of the industry smack of the chess board. He who can best forecast the coming moves is most apt to win. Yet the moves are governed by the evolution of the industry, and the man who tries to combat the forces, such as public taste, which govern the evolution, is butting his head against a stone wall.

The Type That Fails

The man new to the motion picture business, and many such have entered it during the past year, finds himself facing problems entirely new to him. If the new comer has studied the industry, and its changes he can give a much better account of himself than the man who entered the industry simply because he has conceived the idea that "there's millions in it."

This latter type is the man who enters the business, skyrockets through a meteoric career and, picking himself out of the debris, says the motion picture industry is "hectic," "chaotic," "uncertain" "kaleidoscopic," or things even less favorable. This man bases his judgment on what has happened to him. He forgets that, by his ignorance, he invited certain disaster.

It is just as well that this type of man be not neglected entirely in a broad survey of the industry. He exists and is at least partially responsible for some of the changes in business conditions.

It is very significant that in the series of interviews with prominent persons which recently appeared in Motion Picture News, under the heading "Weak Spots in a Strong Business," that all agreed on one point: that the entry into the business of inexperienced persons constituted the greatest weakness of the motion picture business.

On the other hand, there exist the older, wiser heads who are able to look ahead six months or more with a very fair degree of accuracy and so forward as well as conserve their interests and those of the whole industry.

Out-of-Date Viewpoints

These men constitute the great majority of those in the industry. They look into the future by a sort of mental triangulation. That is to say—they note the trend of one branch of the industry in one direction and the trend of another branch in another direction and calculate with almost mathematical precision where the two will come together.

As a matter of fact this does not require superhuman intelligence. The motion picture industry outgrew the "infancy" stage years ago. Only the recent entrants "discover" that "motion pictures are only in their infancy," or that "the surface has only been scratched."

In addition there are the comparatively few men who seem no less than inspired; the men who make the most radical departures from routine lines and meet with enormous success.

The future of the industry has not been problematical for many years. There is no longer any doubt but that the motion picture is established as a permanent form of amusement and that soon it will take its place as an educational force.

Day of Good Pictures Is Here

It is generally, and rightfully believed, that the day of the good picture arrived some time ago; that the day of better and of fewer pictures is near to realization. The deadly process of elimination, of the survival of the fittest, or of the least unfit, is already in progress.

This naturally leads to the important and pertinent question, "who are the fittest?"

That is a matter of opinion and not to be answered here.

The important companies of the industry give their plans for the future elsewhere in this issue.

But the accomplishments of the past six months are noteworthy in that this period has been productive of many changes, and also because they furnish an excellent criterion by which the future may be accurately judged.

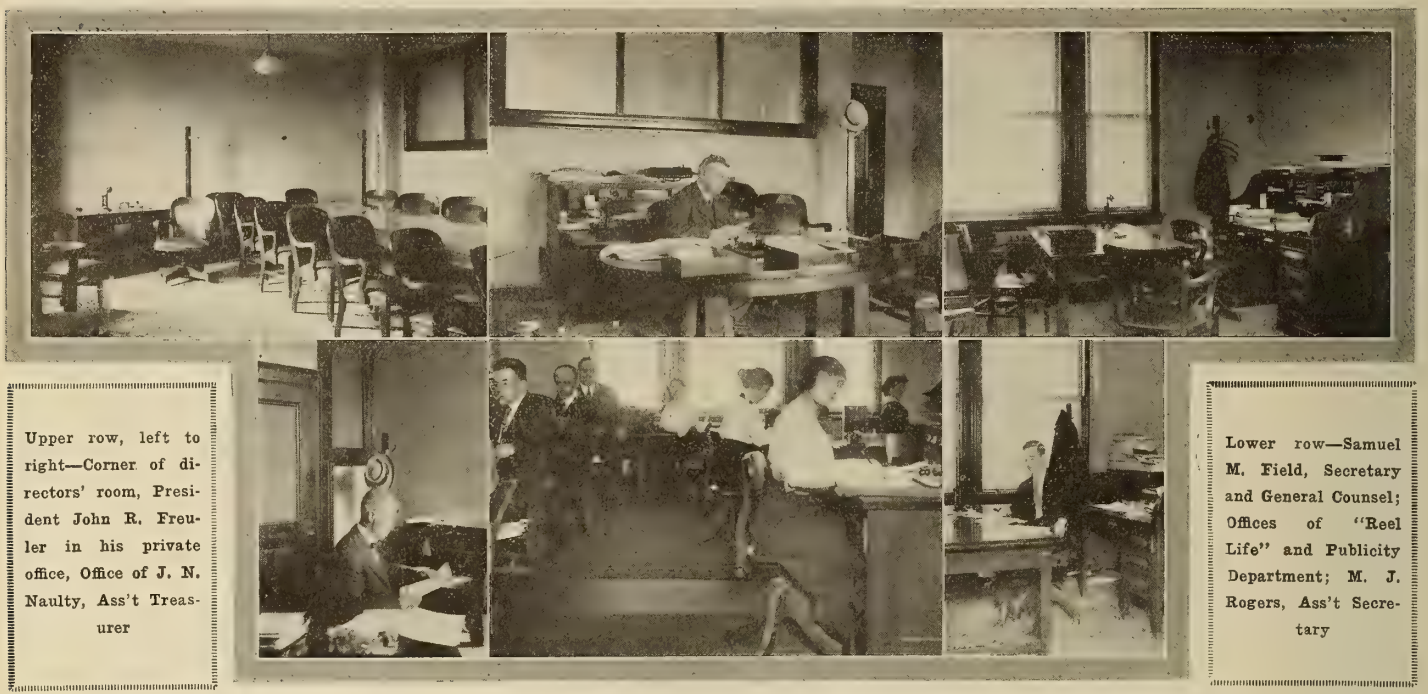
Program Companies Now in Their Third Year

THREE concerns have been furnishing full programs for three years—the General Film company, the Mutual Film corporation and the Universal Film Manufacturing company.

Of these the oldest is the General Film company. During the past six months the General has made no startling changes. Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay decided that the General was keyed up to handle features, and so formed V-L-S-E to distribute their more pretentious features. But the General still carries two, three and four reel features; the three and four part pictures being made by Edison, Kalem and Biograph, while all the manufacturers make two reelers.

Any impression that the General Film company is letting things slide may be authoritatively stated to be a misapprehension. On the contrary plans have been perfected whereby the General will be more active in distributing one and two reel pictures after September first than it has been in the past. The last election brought J. J. Kennedy back to the president's chair, where he will probably remain.

Most Important Mutual Change



The most important changes in the Mutual Film corporation came at the annual election in June, when John R. Freuler of Milwaukee succeeded H. E. Aitken as president, and Mr. Freuler's business associates filled the other elective offices. Within the past six months the Mutual Masterpictures department was started, a department which has released each week two four or five reel pictures of a very high standard of excellence. Edwin Thanhouser returned as president and active head of the Thanhouser Film corporation and to his place at the table in Mutual conferences. The Mutual has been busily and quietly buying up exchanges till it now has forty-nine distributing offices. With such distributing facilities it can, and does, command the services of high class producing companies.

The Mutual producing companies have been marketing their features for the past three or four months through the Mutual Masterpictures department. This feature service has distributed two features a week since its inception. The pictures, by the way, have maintained a very high standard. Among them have been "The Quest," "Ghosts," "On the Night Stage," "The Lost House" and "God's Witness."

Universal's Complete Organization

The Universal Film Manufacturing company has one advantage over the other distributors of full programs, in that its entire program is produced and controlled by the Universal, different brand names being given the pictures for purposes of identification. Thus, if more comedies are desired, more comedies are produced, but only as they are needed.

Lower row—Samuel M. Field, Secretary and General Counsel; Offices of "Reel Life" and Publicity Department; M. J. Rogers, Ass't Secretary

There is ruinous competition among producing forces to see which can produce the most companies.

The officers of the Universal keep in close touch with the exhibitor. Carl Laemmle, P. A. Powers, R. H. Cochrane and Joe Brandt have a list of personal acquaintances and friends among the exhibitors that covers the country. The Universal's producing, business and advertising policy has always been to help the exhibitor, to cater to him.

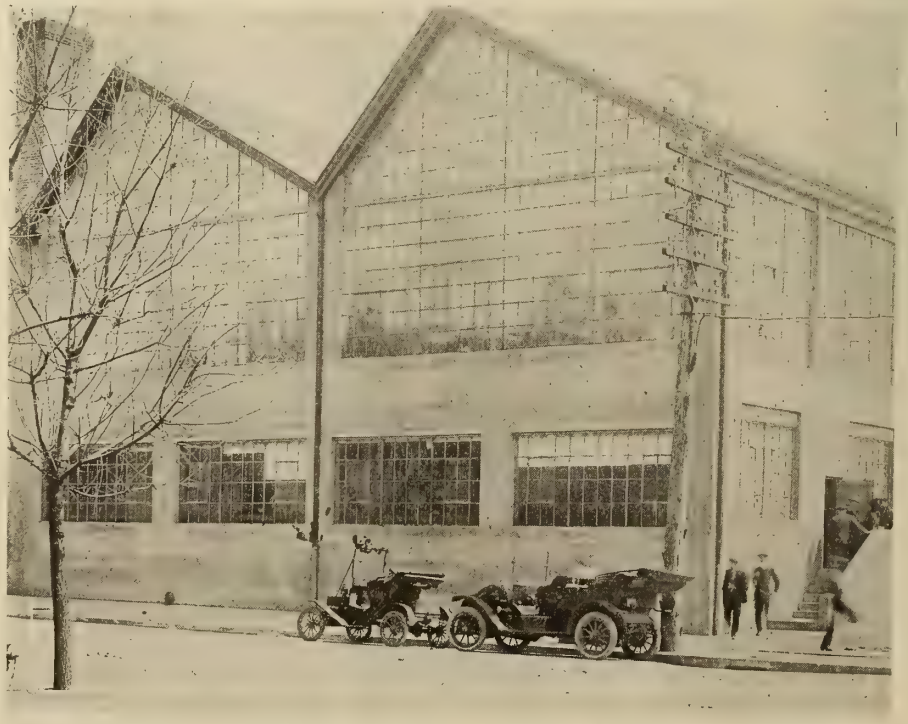
Exhibitors are not ungrateful. Also they realize what the Universal's help has meant to them. Their answer has been sent in over the shelves of the exchanges, with the result that the Universal is rated today as doing an immense volume of business.

"Traffic in Souls" First Big One

"Traffic in Souls" was the Universal's first big, smashing feature success. Since then, even before then, it has been making feature pictures and distributing them in its regular program. Heretofore the players have been members of the various Universal stock companies. But now the Universal, realizing the demand for the Broadway star, will put out a feature a week with a famous star, starting July 12 with Jane Cowl in "The Garden of Lies." The Universal has about thirty big stage stars already signed up with more coming. Those who are especially well received will be retained for several subsequent screen productions.

Probably the most conspicuous recent achievement of the Universal was the completion and opening of Universal City on the Pacific coast near Los Angeles. This is a motion picture city pure and simple, peopled entirely by motion picture folk, and having its own city administration, police force and post office. A special train was run across the continent carrying exhibitors to the exercises attending the opening, and thousands of persons were present from all over California.

Still more recently the Universal conducted a nation-wide beauty contest. The winners were taken on a special excursion to the Pacific coast, and the three winners among the winners have been given positions as actresses in the Universal stock companies.



Thus it is hoped to develop a combination of beauty and talent.

Universal Gets Submarine Pictures

The Universal recently acquired the Williamson Submarine pictures. Their success will lead to submarine scenes being worked into a coming feature drama written along Jules Verne lines. Stuart Paton and a company of Imp players are down in Bermuda now working on the picture.

The Universal has on its list an impressive roster of stars. It has always been the policy of the Universal to corral any loose motion picture players, give them a trial and retain them, if their services were found satisfactory.

So, with twenty-three producing companies, and a competent distributing organization, the Universal is firmly established.

FEATURE COMPANIES COME INTO LIMELIGHT

The Feature Distributing Companies Are: Paramount Pictures Corporation, World Film Corporation, Fox Film Corporation, Metro Pictures Corporation and V-L-S-E., Inc. George Kleine and Pathé Are Also in This, Although They Do Not Set Definite Release Dates On Their Features as the Others Do

THE history of the feature film companies is one of the most interesting in the entire field.

In its year and a half of existence the Paramount Pictures Corporation has made wonderful strides. Not only has it adhered rigidly to its policy of distributing two meritorious features a week, but it has completed two important business transactions. The first was the taking over the control of most of its exchanges, the exchanges covering the richest territory, too. The second was the signing of a twenty-five year contract between Paramount and its regular producers, the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company and the Morosco-Bosworth forces.

Paramount long ago met its first object, that of gaining the confidence of the exhibitor by giving him good pictures. The deal by which Paramount acquired control of its exchanges was probably its most important single stroke. The signing up of its producers on long term contracts speaks well for the confidence of the producing companies, and should create confidence on the part of the exhibitor who may be using or contemplates using the program.

PARAMOUNT'S PREDICTIONS.

"For the future of the Paramount Pictures Corporation there is every indication of even greater things than the past has brought forth," is W. W. Hodkinson's prediction.

"Never in the history of this huge concern have the producing companies and the distributing organization been more closely allied.

"The recent signing of the twenty-five-year contract between the Famous Players Film Company, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company and Paramount points to continued harmony and assures an increase in the excellence of the Paramount program.

"Important plans are under way by which the Paramount of a year from now will be as far ahead of the Paramount of today as the latter realization of an ideal is ahead of the ideal itself as first conceived.

"In the fall the Paramount Pictures Corporation will move into new offices well suited to the size and importance of the company."

Famous Players Is Oldest Feature Producing Company; Plan Three New Coast Studios

THE Famous Players Film Company is the oldest American feature producing company, as well as the oldest of the concerns on the Paramount program. Back when each new feature roused much curiosity and speculation for weeks before its release Famous Players made "The Prisoner of Zenda," with James K. Hackett, and "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," with Mrs. Fiske.

During the past year the Famous Players has kept the pace set by its early achievements. "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick, is probably its biggest single picture, although it has made innumerable features which have had long runs all over the country.

Mary Pickford, the most popular motion picture actress in the world, is a member of the Famous Players stock company, and had been for more than a year at a really enormous salary. About eight, maybe more. Pickford subjects are released every year.

The Famous Players either has started or soon will start to build three new studios on the Pacific coast. Its producing activities under the supervision of Daniel Frohman and Edwin S. Porter will be increased. The present studio and offices in West Twenty-sixth street will probably be retained, the coming Pacific coast studios being entirely in the nature of additional facilities. Famous Players is one of the most highly regarded concerns in the industry, and it is safe to predict that its hold on the public and exhibitor will continue to increase.

DURING its year and a half of existence the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company has built for itself a fine reputation as a maker of high class features. The Lasky studios on the Pacific coast, where the entire producing end is conducted, is one of the best systematized and most orderly studios in the industry. It is pervaded with an esprit de corps seldom found in a business organization.

The same spirit is noticeable in the New York offices, and makes for greater efficiency.

Mr. Lasky is a firm believer in the pretentious feature, as opposed to the cheap production. Samuel Goldfish, the treasurer and general manager, is firmly opposed to sensational pictures, as is Mr. Lasky. So a very fine producing policy is the result. Associated with Lasky in the producing end are David Belasco, Cecil De Mille and William De Mille a triumvirate whose name is synonymous with art in dramatic circles.

The biggest recent achievement of the Lasky company is the engagement of Geraldine Farrar, the famous grand opera prima donna. Miss Farrar is now actively working in the picture on the Pacific coast. The completed production will be released through Paramount. Other theatrical stars recently engaged by Lasky, who will be seen in coming productions, are Charlotte Walker, Laura Hope Crews, Ina Claire, Fannie Ward, Lou Tellegen and Donald Brian. Blanche Sweet, one of the most popular of screen actresses is a regular member of the Lasky stock company, playing leading roles.

In giving Farrar to the screen Lasky is accomplishing much for the whole industry. This move is in line with the Lasky way of doing things.

MOROSCO-BOSWORTH BRINGS OUT FEATURES OF DISTINCTIVE QUALITY

Since the formation of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company and its affiliation with Bosworth, Inc., frequent additions have been necessitated at the Los Angeles plant through the increased activities, with the result that this institution is

FUTURE OF THE LASKY COMPANY WILL BE ALONG THE LINES LAID DOWN IN LAST FEW MONTHS.

The future progress of the Lasky company will be along the lines that have been laid down during the last few months, declare the company's heads. The Lasky company is now constructing in Hollywood, Cal., a studio of gigantic proportions to replace the present studio, which is one of the largest. That the outdoor stage has room for eight companies to work at once is in itself evidence of the proportions to which this business has grown. Further developments on the 10,000 acre Lasky ranch are being made every month.

During the month of July the Lasky company releases four important films of the highest calibre, including one Lasky-Belasco all-star production. At present the company is making an average of not fewer than three releases every month and the possibility is that four a month will before long become the regular routine of this company.

With regard to special releases, Samuel Goldfish has stated that even the Farrar productions will be released through Paramount, and that in the eyes of the company every production it makes must be special in that it represents the very best work possible.

one of the most efficiently equipped and up-to-date producing establishments in the country.

Important announcements involving the acquisition of prominent stars of the theatrical world have followed each other with notable rapidity. The success of the output of this combination in its short period of existence has already placed it among the foremost ranks of American producing concerns today.

Eleven subjects since the debut of 1915 have been released, presenting such prominent favorites of the stage and screen as Elsie Janis, in "The Caprices of Kitty" and "Betty in Search of a Thrill"; Fritzi Scheff, in a screen version of her recent success, "Pretty Mrs. Smith"; Maclyn Arbuckle, in "It's No Laughing Matter"; Maud Allan, the famous dancer, in "The Rugmaker's Daughter"; Lois Meredith, in her biggest stage success, "Help Wanted"; Dustin Farnum, in "Captain Courtesy"; Myrtle Stedman and Forrest Stanley, in "The Wild Olive"; Hobart Bosworth, in "Buckshot John"; Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley, in "Sunshine Molly"; Margaret Edwards and Courtenay Foote, in the most talked about film today, "Hypocrites."

Other stars to be presented on the screen in the near future by these producers are: Lenore Ulrich, of "Bird of Paradise" fame, in "Kilmeny"; Elsie Janis, in an entirely different screen offering from her previous work, "Nearly a Lady," a society drama; George Fawcett, well known star of "The Great John Ganton" and many other triumphs, in "Majesty of the Law," and Cyril Maude, the prominent English actor-manager and star of "Grumpy," in "Peer Gynt," which will be the biggest production yet put on by Morosco.

DRA-KO IS DEVISING NEW SERIES OF COMEDIES

The Dra-Ko Film Company, Inc., George C. Wilson, president, with studios at Tappan, N. Y., is busy making comedies. "His Wedding Morn" is advertised at the Strand for the week of July 4. "York State Folks" is coming in four reels with Jim Lackaye heading the cast. Marketing affiliations are still pending.

Pathe Will Issue "Gold Rooster" Features; First Episodes of "Neal of the Navy" Nearly Ready

"REALIZING the country-wide demand for better films, Pathé has arranged a feature campaign for the fall season that will be without parallel," it was said at the Pathé offices. "We started in months ago by acquiring the picture rights to such famous books as 'The Beloved Vagabond,' 'Nedra,' 'Comrade John,' 'The Weavers,' and 'The Closing Net,' and such plays as Paul Armstrong's 'Via Wireless,' R. H. Davis' 'The Galloper,' and Richard Carle's 'Mary's Lamb,' Edwin Arden, Wm. Elliott, Clifton Crawford, Lillian Lorraine, Fania Marinoff, Gail Kane, Bliss Milford, Ruth Roland, Bruce McRae, and Frederick de Belleville, are among the famous players who have been signed to appear in the big features now being made.

"The quality of these productions will be so apparent that it has been determined to put them on the market under the name of 'Gold Rooster Plays.' A great many of them will be in Pathecolor, a tremendously successful innovation in picture drama. These Gold Rooster Plays will be released at least one a week, and the increased program will consist of American pictures only, with the exception of such extraordinary productions from our Paris house as the justly famous 'Les Miserables.'

"Pathé has also acquired the rights to a number of new brands, pictures under which will be made by the best known players.

"Following the phenomenal success of the 'Perils of Pauline,' 'The Exploits of Elaine,' and the 'Who Pays?' series, Pathé will before long release the first episode of the 'Neal of the Navy' big serial, written by William Hamilton Osborne, and featuring Lillian Lorraine and Wm. Courtleigh, Jr. This serial will be run in hundreds of newspapers all over the country."

The Pathé Exchanges, Inc., allied with Pathé Frères, Inc., the producing firm, though not distributing a full program, handle features, damatic subjects, comedies, travel and education pictures, as well as the "Pathé Weekly" and the "Romance of Elaine" serial.

Pathé Frères is thought to be the biggest and most important motion picture company in the world. The American branch is now receiving most attention of any of its subsidiary concerns, Charles G. Pathé himself having spent much of his time recently in this country.

Before Pathé left the General Film program the Eclectic exchanges were formed to handle Pathé features. When Pathé left the General Film company the twenty-two Eclectic exchanges and other sub-offices were taken over by Pathé Exchanges, Inc., the distributing end of the organization, and the production was put in the hands of Pathé Frères, Inc.

These exchanges are located in the principal cities of the United States and Canada, and it is planned to extend their number even further as occasion requires. Coincident with the taking over of the Eclectic business and organization came the moving of the Pathé forces from Jersey City to 25 West Forty-fifth street, where are now located not only the Pathé exchange executive offices, but also those of Pathé Frères. The "Pathé News" remains in Jersey City at the studio, 1 Congress street.

At 25 West Forty-fifth street the company is occupying two floors. Everything is complete in the various departments.

In addition to importing features the Pathé exchanges buy negatives, wherever good pictures are available, paying prices high enough to command the best pictures. Several firms are making pictures for Pathé and are very much pleased with their arrangements.

The producing affiliations are being extended as fast as good producers can be secured. The "Elaine" serials have been among the most popular of the serial. The "Exploits" are doing their biggest business right now, so lasting has been their popularity.

Pathé in this country bids fair soon to come up to the high position Pathé holds in France, and in France Pathé is probably the leading concern.

World Film Moves Swiftly to Place of Note and Now Pays Dividends on $3,000,000

About fifteen months ago the World Film Corporation replaced the old World's Best Film Corporation, and took the whole second floor of the Leavitt building at 126 West Forty-sixth street. For some time it was the most discused firm in the business. Under the guidance of Lewis J. Selznick it did business in a way which astonished everybody. All were asking if such progress could be made on a firm foundation.

Today the answer seems to be that it is on a firm foundation. Recently the World Film Corporation took over the Peerless studios in Fort Lee, N. J., and now has seven directors at work there. More recently the Equitable Motion Picture Corporation, a $2,000,000 concern, was formed in Richmond, Va., to make pictures for the World Film Corporation.

It is the policy of the World Film Corporation to own or control its producing companies, but that does not deter it from acquiring any good pictures which are to be obtained. Soon it will distribute a news film conducted along new lines, each film containing five hundred feet of local material, no matter what the city where it is shown may be.

The World Film Exchange, on the ground floor of 126 West Forty-sixth street, is one of the finest in the world; there are twenty-six similar exchanges throughout the United States.

World Film a year ago was just breaking ground in the motion picture business. Today it has divided the territory of the United States into five districts, each administered by competent district managers.

One year ago World Film was perhaps not a major factor in the business field. Today it is paying dividends on a capital of $3,000,000.

A year's progress in World Film, if set forth in detail would provide a remarkably interesting chapter in the annals of modern commercial progress. There is every prospect that a year hence the progress achieved by World Film will equal, if not exceed, that made during the past year.

"RED ROBIN" IS A PATHE SUBJECT

"Red Robin," by Fred Jackson, author of the big New York success, "A Full House," will be put into a feature by Wharton, Inc., and released by Pathé.

ASSOCIATED IN NEW AFFILIATION IN THE FIELD

The Associated Film Manufacturers, Inc., Arthur Bard, general manager, is an affiliation of several producing companies: the Santa Barbara Motion Picture company, the Elmira Film Manufacturing company, the Lindblom Motion Picture company, the Navajo Film Manufacturing company, the Ramona Film Manufacturing company and the Banner Film company.

These companies make the Santa Barbara, Empire, Monty, Navajo, Ramona and Banner brands of pictures, which were mostly on the old Kriterion program. Exchange affiliations have not yet been completed. The eastern offices are at 220 West Forty-second street, New York city, and the western office at 719 Grant building, Fourth street and Broadway, Los Angeles.

Balboa Is Synonym for Good Pictures; and Makes Pictures Regularly for Pathé

THE Balboa Amusement Producing company is one of the concerns making pictures regularly under contract with Pathé Exchanges, Inc. The story of that company is that of a winning fight against great odds.

Not so many months ago Herbert M. Horkheimer sat in the office of the Balboa studio at Long Beach, Cal., and told funny stories to the sheriff while the director and camera man sneaked out of the back door to make pictures and keep the company going.

Now Balboa is one of the biggest independent motion picture producers in the country. Its product is sold for five years ahead under contract.

When H. M. Horkheimer started Balboa he got his brother, Ellwood D. Horkheimer, electrical and mining engineer, to join him. Jack London's "Sea Wolf" was the first picture made, and they encountered all sorts of litigation. About this time, "look out for squalls," as the almanac says.

Squalls came in the shape of pressing claims and lawsuits. But fortune began to turn, in the affairs of Balboa, about January 1, 1915. The Fox exchanges then took a lot of Balboa pictures and about that time H. M. Horkheimer conceived and started on the "Who Pays?" series, handled by Pathé in twelve parts, the last one of which has just been released.

Only Subjects That Lend Themselves to Screen Will Be Used by the V-L-S-E In Their Productions

"THE plans of the Big Four for the future embrace the production of stage plays, novels and especially written screen stories; but in all of the subjects selected for film dramatization, the first consideration given each subject, is its adaptability to screen presentation. No novel or stage play will be filmed that does not readily lend itself in every detail, to the peculiar technique of picture play production," is Walker W. Irwin's summary of the V-L-S-E policy for the future.

"The fact that a story or a play has one big situation that could be filmed with success, will not qualify it as a fitting subject for a Big Four release. Each situation in the film drama must be such, as to make a well-balanced picture before it will be accepted.

"Stage stars will be employed in addition to the many prominent picture players under the management of the four pioneer companies.

"These stage stars will only be used after a thorough test of their screen appearance, and their ability to act before a camera. Where it is possible to do so, in keeping with this rule, the same stars that created the characters on the speaking stage, will be featured in the film production but where they do not measure up to the standard set by these manufacturers, other stars of equal ability and reputation will be in all cases featured in the parts.

"The sole aim of the Big Four is to produce big, compelling picture dramas; and to secure the material for productions of this calibre, they cannot confine their efforts to any particular field. They will go into the literary field, and the dramatic field, and will produce especially constructed big powerful picture dramas.

"In the list of features already made public, of the productions that will be released each week until the middle of next November, the announcement of plays embrace every phase of the dramatic art, and the subjects have been secured from every known source.

"In connection with these plays, posters of especially artistic designs are being prepared, unique lobby displays are being arranged for, and new methods for the distribution of publicity matter have been devised.

"The V-L-S-E is redoubling its efforts to assist the exhibitor in the matter of more profitably presenting his feature program, and within the next six months, it is expected that this will be developed to such a degree that the theatres playing the Big Four features will show a marked increase in their financial returns."

Of the feature distributing organizations, the youngest is V-L-S-E, Inc., which takes its names from its component firms, Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay. These four firms, which are also members of the General Film Company, formed V-L-S-E to distribute their feature pictures. The chief problem for this company lies in the distributing end.

This is being met competently. Exchanges are being opened all over the country with well known managers in charge. This phase is proceeding rather slowly, owing to the desire of V-L-S-E to pick its men very carefully, and to wait rather than open an office with an inferior working force.

But there is no difficulty to be overcome in the producing end. The component firms of V-L-S-E are the old masters of the business, the men who started making pictures back in the days when the motion picture really was in its infancy.

Vitagraph, Lubin, Selig and Essanay are all concerns headed by wise motion picture men, men who are among the very few who made really good pictures in the early days of the business. Each of the four firms has two or more producing plants and a large number of favorites in stock. The pictures already released have proved exceptionally popular, and there is no doubt but that those of the future will increase in popularity.

NEW FEATURE COMBINE LOOMS ON THE HORIZON

What may be termed the Aitken-Kessel-Baumann-Griffith-Ince-Sennett combine has been announced by H. E. Aitken, former president of the Mutual Film Corporation. This will be an affiliation of the New York Motion Pictures Corporation, with H. E. Aitken and D. W. Griffith.

Adam Kessel, Jr., and C. O. Baumann are the executives of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, and Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett the supervising directors. H. E. Aitken is financially interested in Reliance and Majestic pictures, of which D. W. Griffith is the director general.

Mr. Griffith is rated as probably the world's greatest dramatic director, and Sennett holds the same place among comedy directors. Ince is a very fine director of drama and spectacles. Kessel and Baumann, and Aitken all believe in making good pictures.

If this combine goes through, it will undoubtedly make pictures at a greater average expense than any other company, and get correspondingly greater prices for its productions.

RAFFERTY STRIKES A NEW NOTE IN COMEDY FILM

The "Peaceful Rafferty" comedy series, produced by the All Celtic Film company, are making a hit on the World Film program. Charles O'Hara is the "Rafferty" of the series, and J. A. Fitzgerald the director.

Rafferty is the silk-hat type of Irishman and makes a lot of good clean fun wherever he goes.

These comedies are increasing in popularity with exhibitors who use them.

Gotham Film Company Will Release a Film a Week Beginning October 1 and Enlarge Studio

"THE increase in the business of the Gotham Film company combined with the carrying out of the plans laid out at the inception of the company, has caused the board of directors to authorize the increase of the capital stock to $1,000,000," said President Taggart in discussing the coming season. "This increase in capitalization will give the company such elasticity that it will allow them to expand in a number of directions.

"The company was primarily formed to release one picture a month putting all its time upon the one production and making it the best that money and brains could produce, but the first release has made such a hit that it has been decided to gradually increase the output of the company until by October 1 it will be releasing one picture a week. This, of course, means an enlargement of the studio facilities, and negotiations are already under way for a plant which will be big enough to handle them. Details of this plant will be given out in due course.

"To keep up the quality of the productions, negotiations are now pending with several prominent Broadway stars to appear in Gotham features, and also for a number of successful books and plays to serve as vehicles for them.

"In the company's last picture, 'A Trade Secret,' Frederic de Belleville, one of Broadway's most successful leading men, and Betty Marshall, the well-known musical comedy leading woman, appeared as the principals. Miss Marshall was so successful in the picture that her services have been retained for all future Gotham productions.

"The company has already entered into contracts with a number of leading exchange men to handle the productions. With the increased capitalization the company will be able to open exchanges in all the principal territories in the United States, and the exhibitor will have no difficulty in securing Gotham features whenever he wants them.

"The selling plan of the Gotham Film company is unique. Its minimum guarantee is so low that the exchange man can afford to handle the pictures without depositing a prohibitive sum with the parent company. He is allowed, in fact, to deposit a very small sum as a guarantee and pay the balance to the company as the picture earns it. By this method the producer, the exchange man and the exhibitor can each participate in the earning power of the production."

"CABIRIA" HERO WILL BE SEEN IN FORTHCOMING ITALAS

"Cabiria" is the biggest thing sent to America by Itala. Also, "Cabiria" was the biggest picture of its time. It was the first motion picture to play in this country at prices up to two dollars.

Itala Films Torino, Messrs Sciamengo and Pastrone in active charge, is one of the biggest of the foreign producing firms and justly noted for pretentious and artistic productions. It made "The Fall of Troy" in two reels, the first imported feature. Then it made "Cabiria," the biggest imported pictures and the most artistic production ever made.

Maciste, the giant slave, was the center of attraction in "Cabiria." He will be seen in forthcoming Itala releases. Itala production has not been stopped by the war and the next few months will see some more big pictures coming over, is the announcement.

ITALA HINTS AT BIG PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

The success of "Cabiria" has emboldened Itala to make very big plans for the future.

"The Itala company's producing activities at Turin, Italy, have not been stopped by the war, as one might imagine," said Harry R. Raver, American representative of the Itala company. "Messrs. Sciamengo and Pastrone, the executives of the Itala company, were much pleased with the success of 'Cabiria' and, from advices from Italy, I learn that something big is under way. Just what it is I am not yet prepared to state, for it has always been the policy of the Itala company to complete a production and fit it for marketing before announcing it.

"However, I know enough about what is coming, so that I have had the Itala offices refitted, made fireproof and a private projection room installed at a cost of more than $1,000. The actor who played Maciste, the giant slave of 'Cabiria,' won such reputation through his work in 'Cabiria' that, I understand, he has been retained for coming productions. When the coming pictures arrive on this side I will be better fitted to talk about them."

CORT FILM CORPORATION WILL FEATURE CASTLES

The Cort Film corporation, an organization built around John Cort, the theatrical magnate, has made one picture, "The Melting Pot," with Walker Whiteside, a fine production, taking well wherever shown. Marketing affiliations are rapidly nearing completion.

Their future plans include an elaborate production featuring Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, which will very likely be ready for marketing in the late summer or early autumn.

FROHMAN IS ASSOCIATED WITH WORLD PROGRAM

The Frohman Amusement corporation, under the leadership of Gustave Frohman, brother of Daniel Frohman, has been making features for the World Film program.

In addition it recently took over the old Gene Gauntier studio on Fifty-fourth street, and leases the studio when it is not occupied.

"The Builder of Bridges" was the latest feature release, and other pretentious subjects are coming. William L. Sherrill is the general manager.

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT IMPORTS WAR FILM

The American Correspondent Film company, of 30 East Forty-second street, is a new concern which is importing war pictures. A descriptive lecture has been prepared by Edward Lyell Fox, a well-known writer and war correspondent.

Plans are now being made to increase the import to a material extent.

Warners and Lichtman Form Standard Program; Many United Program Brands Will Appear

A. L. LICHTMAN, H. M. Warner and Albert Warner have recently formed the Standard Photo-play Distributors, Inc., to handle the Standard program. The brands and firms announced are Empress (Gaumont), Sunshine (Erbograph), Sunbeam (Crystal), Pyramid (Smallwood), Lariat (Pikes Peak Film company), Ideal (E. Otterman), Moonstone (Mittenthal brothers), Premier (O. E. Goebel), Luna (G. P. Hamilton) and Magnet (L. C. Stern). These pictures have been appearing on the United program.

Al Lichtman, formerly with the Famous Players, is known as one of the most able film men. The Warner brothers are a hard working, solid pair of men. Negotiations are going on with exchanges.

The Standard Photo-Play Distributors say it is too early to make any predictions, and neither do they wish to make any flamboyant statements at this time. One thing is certain, however, and that is they have a perfect understanding with the manufacturers as to the quality of the films required. If experience, hard work, knowledge and the confidence of the trade is worth anything, they can safely predict that their efforts will not be in vain.

Mr. Lichtman, the general manager, has always believed that films should be handled on their merit as pictures. He knows that the exhibitor and exchange man only want to pay for such films as their patrons demand; that the buying of superfluous film by an exchange is one of the biggest leaks by which money escapes.

In offering the Standard program an opportunity is offered to re-establish the independent film exchange on a successful basis. Five-year contracts are being signed with exchanges.

The hard work and ability of Albert Warner and H. M. Warner is perhaps best instanced by the success which the old Warner's Features had under the guidance. From nothing the business was built up to a flourishing state in the days when a fifty dollar a day rental fee was but little short of marvelous and absolutely impossible outside of the larger cities.

The producing firms associated with the Standard program are all guided by old and experienced heads. First, last and always the Standard program will endeavor to supply what the public wants and handle these pictures at prices commensurate with their merit.

Bruce Mitchell Formulates Plans for Features; National Film Corporation the Result

THE National Film corporation is a new concern with studios at Hollywood, Cal.

Bruce Mitchell presents William Parsons in "You Can't Beat It," a comedy, and Norma Talmadge, former Vitagraph leading woman, in feature dramas.

Miss Talmadge will first be seen in "Captivating Mary Carstairs." Anthony N. Coldewey is the scenario editor.

Bruce Mitchell, on whom largely rests the matter of production policy, has very advanced ideas on the subject. His views are quite up-to-the-minute.

"So far as I am concerned the pure slapstick comedy is on the shelf," says Mr. Mitchell. "I intend to make comedies with Mr. Parsons that will be merry and unique and still contain thrills. Recently I made nineteen high class comedies in ten weeks. While I do not expect to continue producing at this rate of speed, I do not expect to dally by the wayside."

It is interesting to note that Mr. Mitchell's entry into the motion picture industry is the indirect result of a meeting with Mary Pickford. Two years ago Mr. Mitchell was a constructing and civil engineer in New York. He met Mary Pickford at a dance and her conversation impressed him so with the possibilities of the motion picture industry that he decided to enter the lists. He is applying to his motion picture work the same keen qualities of mind which made him a success as an engineer.

Mr. Mitchell entered the business in 1912, working with Bob Leonard and Otis Turner of the Universal forces. In 1913 he and Donald McDonald organized the Thistle Brand Film company, which was merged with the Crown City Film company in August, 1914.

Anthony W. Coldewey, the scenario editor, is a former newspaper man and writer. He was engaged as a member of the Universal scenario staff in March, 1913. Then he wrote scenarios for Edwin August and acted as assistant director. He returned to the Universal in October, 1913, later leaving to join the Balboa forces.

GLOBE GUARANTEES 1,500 DAY BOOKINGS

The Globe Feature Picture booking office, the result of the former U. B. O. Picture department, has just been organized and will be in a position in about a week to lay out a guaranteed route of 1,500 days for feature pictures.

The various offices will have to play the allotted time within a period of nine months. The Globe will contract to play a feature 1,500 days within nine months on 24 copies. The features will range in price from five dollars to one hundred dollars a day, according to their strength.

"MELTING POT" RIGHTS PLACED FOR 9 MORE STATES

The office of John Cort in the Longacre building announces more sales of state rights on "The Melting Pot," a recent release of the Cort Film corporation.

Illionis and Wisconsin have been taken by the Celebrated Players of Chicago. Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky have been bought by the Apex Feature service, and Minnesota, North and South Dakota by the Western Kriterion Film Service, Inc., of Minneapolis.

One-a-Week Policy of Fox Promises Success; New Studio to Be Completed at Cost of $2,000,000

THE Fox Film Corporation, urged to greater efforts by the favorable reception of its pictures throughout the country, is planning to expand on lines destined to prove very successful.

The company expects to release on September 6 a feature a week. Anticipating the demands this policy will make on its resources, the president, William Fox, has planned a studio which on completion will mean an outlay of $2,000,000.

The features released throughout the coming year will be productions of unusual appeal. Each story will be written by a celebrated author and star a player of note. Contracts are now ready for exhibitors.

In preparation for the new One-a-Week policy, the exchange managers of the Fox company were in session at the home office last week to discuss ways and means for marketing the features to the best advantage for exhibitors.

The policy to be observed by the company was indicated in a recent interview with Mr. Fox, who said:

"It is our object to make each picture better and stronger than its predecessor."

This attitude is the logical development of the policy pursued by Mr. Fox from the first day the doors of the company opened for business. This was only a little over a year ago. During that short period the company has shown phenomenal growth.

Mr. Fox decided on a plan of producing the best pictures within his power. He employed the best directors and players of universal reputation for roles in important dramas.

The ready acceptance of Fox features the moment they are released to the public is the best indication of the effectiveness of the Fox policy.

Some of the Fox successes are: "Life's Shop Windows," "The Walls of Jericho," with Edmund Breese; "The Thief," with Dorothy Donnelly; "The Idler," with Charles Richman; "Samson," with William Farnum; "A Fool There Was," with Theda Bara; "A Gilded Fool," with William Farnum; "Kreutzer Sonata," with Nance O'Neil; "From the Valley of the Missing"; "The Children of the Ghetto," with Wilton Lackaye; "The New Governor," based upon "The Nigger," with William Farnum; "The Plunderer," with William Farnum; "The Girl I Left Behind Me," with Robert Edeson; "The Celebrated Scandal," with Betty Nansen; "Anna Karenina," and "A Woman's Resurrection," with the same world-famed star, and "Wormwood," with one of the most powerful casts ever assembled.

Not so very long ago, as time is considered in ordinary business matters, William Fox, a theatrical and vaudeville magnate, decided to enter the motion picture producing field in earnest. He was already familiar with the distributing end through having conducted the Greater New York Film Rental Company for many years, during which time he well proved his ability as a fighter. Mr. Fox's first step was to form the Box Office Attractions Company and open offices over the country. About this time Winfield R. Sheehan entered the scene as Mr. Fox's associate in active charge of affairs.

WILLIAM FOX

Then it was decided to produce pictures. Later the name of the company was changed to the Fox Film Company. Now the company's policy will be one picture a week after September 1, with eight directors busy making pictures. The large number of directors in proportion to the footage of the output is not to allow them to dawdle over making a picture.

It is arranged so that each director may have a week before he starts producing, in which to whip the scenario around to suit his own liking, and a week, after the scenes are all taken, in which to cut and title the picture. This policy, Mr. Sheehan believes, makes for the "fewer pictures but better pictures" era.

STRIDES OF METRO IN 6 MONTHS ARE IMPRESSIVE

Though in existence only about six months, the Metro Pictures Corporation has already firmly established itself in the hearts of exhibitors. The Metro quickly established its policy as that of a distributing organization handling high class features, but with rental prices below the extravagant class. The origin of the Metro came in a meeting of exchange men owning high class and actively distributing offices all over the country.

The problem of getting good pictures was met by affiliation with its producers: Dyreda, Rolfe, Quality and Popular Plays and Players. These producing companies are now either owned or controlled by Metro or its active heads. In addition, the Metro brand, made by Metro itself, will soon appear. Metro pictures have set a high standard and the most popular stage stars have been engaged, including such players as William Faversham and Ethel Barrymore. Francis X. Bushman, probably the most popular screen actor, is the star of Quality pictures, with Marguerite Snow playing opposite him.

With its impressive chain of distributing offices and excellent producing facilities, which are expanding as time goes on, Metro Pictures Corporation is on a sound basis.

Metro's Policy Will Be to Foster Longer Runs

LOOKING forward to the first six months through the eyes of the Metro board of directors, a period of active, determined, forceful effort is to be perceived.

Numerous stars and numerous plays have been procured by the very ambitious management of that concern during its four months of activities, and the promise of the future is more than glowing.

Of the permanent Metro stars who are to be seen on that program, Francis X. Bushman, Marguerite Snow, Emily Stevens, Ann Murdock, Gail Kane, Madame Petrova, Ethel Barrymore, Mary Miles Minter, Florence Reed, Olive Wyndham and Lois Meredith will be seen at periods and intervals in various well known dramatic success and fictional classics.

During the next fourteen weeks, the Metro will release on its release dates, each Monday in the year, the following stars and plays:

July 12, Edward Connelly, in George Ade's story "Marse Covington"; July 9, William Faversham and Jane Grey in Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way"; July 26, Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow in John Drew's former success, "The Second in Command"; August 2, Dorothy Donnelly in "The Sealed Valley"; August 9, Madame Petrova in "The Vampire," an original scenario; August 16, Ann Murdock in "A Royal Family"; August 23, Edmund Breese in "The Spell of the Yukon"; August 30, Ralph Herz and Lois Meredith in "The Purple Lady"; September 6, Ethel Barrymore in "The Shadow," her most recent stage success; September 13, Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow in "Richard Carvel"; September 20, Emily Stevens and Hamilton Gravel in "The Liars"; September 27, Gail Kane in "Her Great Match"; October 4, Madame Petrova in "My Madonna"; October 11, Emmy Wehlan in "When a Woman Loves."

Then in weekly releases, the following plays will be released: "The Silent Voice," "Pigs in Clover," "Baccaret," "My Wife," "Barbara Fritchie," "The Bridge," "Once to Every Man," "Sky Farm," "Mississippi Bubble," "Empty Pockets," "Rosemary for Remembrance," and other plays and novels.

The Metro directors will not increase their output. They will foster long runs and not so many changes on the part of the exhibitor.

COMPANIES RELEASING THROUGH GENERAL FILM PROGRAM ARE NOTABLE

The Companies Releasing Through the General Film Company, Taken Alphabetically, Are: Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Knickerbocker Star Features, Lubin, MinA, Selig and Vitagraph— Studios Produce Subjects Increasing in Interest and Quality

THE Biograph company of America is one of the oldest producing firms in the business. The old "A.B." trade mark early attained a high reputation. For many years Biograph photography was the standard of judgment.

"Judith of Bethulia" has probably been Biograph's greatest single achievement. This picture has already sold more than three hundred prints in this country, counting re-issues, and will probably be exploited again this fall. As long as the negative holds out for printing "Judith" prints will be easily salable.

Biograph comedies, too, were among the first pictures to be known by the brand name. They still are among the most popular.

Begin to Make Multiples

Of late Biograph has been making more three and four reel productions, distributed through the General Film company. These have been of a pretentious nature. Another move which has won much popularity has been the re-issue of the one and two reel pictures directed by D. W. Griffith.

About thirty of these will be released from the more than three hundred subjects made for Biograph by Griffith. In them are seen players who, appearing at the present time in the same picture, would constitute an all star cast. To get these same players in one picture now would cost an immense sum.

In addition the players are seen with all their youth and attractiveness in the re-issues.

The Biograph company recently built a big studio at 807 East 175th street, New York City. To this studio the producing forces have just returned after spending the winter at the Biograph Pacific coast studios.

The work of production will be resumed without the loss of a day and several big pictures scheduled for early release will be started.

THE FUTURE PLANS OF THE EDISON STUDIO

"We shall continue the work we have been doing on three and four reel pictures, which are being released alternately on Fridays. These have made a strong place for themselves and will continue to maintain their supremacy. On single reels we shall, for the present, issue only two a week, Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Wednesday release will be a comedy and a good one—not slapstick, but brisk and full of action. On Saturday the offering will be a strong drama.

"We have some interesting plans in connection with these single reels which are not yet fully matured, but which we shall be ready to announce in a short time.

"On features we have arranged for a regular production and we are fortunate enough to be able to start with some unusually good plots.

"Recent changes have been made in the studio in the direction of greater efficiency, all of which will be reflected in the forthcoming productions."

HORACE G. PLIMPTON.

SCENARIOS ARE EDISON'S SPECIALTY; MANY CHANGES IN PRODUCING PERSONNEL

Long years of producing high class cleancut pictures with competent players and directors, and good sets has made the name of Edison as well known in motion pictures as it is in the other fields in which Thomas A. Edison is a factor.

Scenarios have long been the subject to which Horace G. Plimpton, the general manager of production, has given his special attention. The result has shown in the general excellence of the stories of Edison pictures.

At the big Edison studio at 2826 Decatur avenue, the Bronx, most of the Edison productions are made. No other permanent studio is maintained, although companies are frequently sent as far away as Florida to take special scenes for some particular picture.

Of late many changes have been made in the personnel of the producing force. These may be definitely stated to have been made with the aim of increasing the general excellence of production. While the official seal has not been set upon future plans it may be said on good authority that Edison plans to go ahead on a larger scale than ever in the fall and make a large number of multiple reel features.

The most pretentious recent engagement by Edison is that of Mrs. Fiske, who will play the leading role in the coming eight reel production of "Vanity Fair."

WALTHALL'S FIRST APPEARANCE FOR ESSANAY IS IN "TEMPER"

Henry B. Walthall's first appearance in Essanay pictures will be in "Temper," a three act production which has just been cut and titled, and which will be released on the General Film program, July 13.

Mr. Walthall is regarded one of the finest dramatic actors on the screen, and the scenario of "Temper" was especially written by H. S. Sheldon as a vehicle for him. In "Temper" Walthall plays Frank Bradbury, twenty years old, who leaves home because of father's ungovernable temper. Frank's temper only got the better of him when a schoolmate annoyed his sweetheart, Rose Claybourne.

Frank becomes engaged to Rose and returns home to get his parents' sanction. He returns to find the father shaking his fist in the mother's face because she encouraged the boy's return. Frank kills his father with a paper weight. Later he is acquitted by a jury on the ground that he was defending his mother and he and Rose marry.

Ruth Stonehouse, the Essanay ingenue, plays Rose. Warda Howard and Ernest Maupain play Frank's parents. The picture is said to make the severest demands yet put upon Mr. Walthall's histrionic ability, demands which he fully meets.

THE FILM DRYING ON THE DRUMS IN THE DEVELOPING ROOMS A CORNER OF THE STUDIO

GEORGE KLEINE MAKES PROMINENT PLACE FOR HIS COMPANY

George Kleine, in addition to his exchanges and producing forces, has a working capital which money cannot buy in the esteem of the whole industry. Mr. Kleine is one of the real pioneers of the industry. With Samuel Long and Frank Marion he started the Kalem company. Leaving that he imported Cines and Eclipse pictures, distributing them through the General Film Company, of which he is still a licensee.

Some time ago he opened his own distributing offices, and more recently started producing pictures again, the most conspicuous of which has been "Du Barry," with Mrs. Leslie Carter. The importation of "Quo Vadis?", the first picture to compete directly with the speaking stage in legitimate theatres at high prices, was a direct stroke of genius. That was only a little more than two years ago. "Quo Vadis?" paved the way for the many pictures which have constituted an evening's entertainment since them.

The pictures which Mr. Kleine is now producing are very carefully made. The majority are high class society comedies adapted from stage successes. Irene Fenwick, a promising young stage actress, is a permanent member of the Kleine forces.

Mr. Kleine's exchanges live up to his reputation as a high class renter, a man who has never deceived the exhibitor, and who has lived up to his own standards, no matter what the business inducements to a compromise might be.

LUBIN COMPLETES "GREAT RUBY"

"The Great Ruby," the famous Drury Lane melodrama by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, has been completed by the Lubin company as a feature production, and will be released under the direction of the V-L-S-E. "The Great Ruby," as a picture production, will undoubtedly attract wide attention and interest because of the dramatic intensity and swiftness of the plot, and the many thrilling and sensational climaxes.

Barry O'Neil is the director. In the cast are Beatrice Morgan, Octavia Handworth, Eleanor Barry, George Soule Spencer, Peter Lang, Walter Hitchcock, William Turner, Percy Winter, Ferdinand Tidmarsh, George Trimble, and others.

Essanay Has Doubled Output Since January 1; Established Two New Companies

SINCE January 1 Essanay has almost doubled its output. At that time it issued regularly six releases a week, all one reel except one two reel photoplay, or seven reels in all. Besides this, it produced one three to four reel feature a month, all releases being through the General Film company. At the present time the present releases through the General Film company include one three reel and one two reel photoplay, making nine reels in all. Besides these it now produces one two reel Chaplin comedy every three weeks, and a four to six reel feature each four weeks, averaging about eleven reels a week.

Essanay has established two new companies at Los Angeles, Cal., still maintaining two at Niles, Cal. It has added three new companies to its Chicago studio, and has established a summer studio at Chattanooga, Tenn. It has another touring through the east to take scenes along the coast for about one dozen pictures. It is sending out more and more companies to various parts of the country all the time in order to get local color.

It expects to increase its output further and to put out more multiple reel features. The V-L-S-E of course, was one of the big steps in the formation of a company to release its features.

It has banished scenarios and is writing its photoplays as dramatic productions for the stage are written, with conversational parts injected, so that the action can be better timed and more realism shown in the picture.

Essanay has three sterling players in Charlie Chaplin, undoubtedly the most popular comedian now on the screen; Henry B. Walthall, one of the very best dramatic actors, and G. M. Anderson.

It has nearly doubled its force of actors and is hiring practically none but experienced players even for small parts. It is getting better players all the time, and is engaging special players for special parts, such as Viola Allen, for "The White Sister." It is working constantly along this line, both to increase its output and at the same time to better the artistry of the productions.

BUSINESS IN MAINE IS GOOD

Business in eastern and nothern Maine is picking up all the time, according to the statement of Manager Ehrgott of the branch exchange of the General Film company in Bangor, Me.

No new houses have been opened in his territory, but he says that a large number are contemplating starting in for the summer business.

PASSING GLANCES AT INTERESTING FEATURES OF THE EDISON BEDFORD PARK, NEW YORK, STUDIO

Kleine Will Soon Make Important Announcements; Hints at New Type of Comedies Now Under Way

DEFINITE plans for the future of his exchange and producing interests have been mapped out by George Kleine. While he does not wish to announce them right now the preliminaries have been consummated, and Mr. Kleine will soon announce very important plans and announce them in their entirety.

An inkling of what these plans are may be gained from Mr. Kleine's analysis of the feature end of the motion picture industry.

"I feel that the feature business is rapidly approaching the very trouble which characterized the business in the old subject program days. That is the matter of footage, of turning out a certain number of reels to fill release dates.

"More and more, I notice, feature distributing organizations are advertising that they will release features at stated intervals, say one a week, and then increasing their output, and advertising two a week. This means that the features must be produced to meet release dates just as one and two reel subjects used to be. I have always been opposed to this, and will continue to give every feature I produce the time necessary to make it a good picture, unhampered by the feeling that it must be released on a certain date.

"One thing I will say about the future. There is now being prepared a series of high class comedies which will be produced with practically the same cast in each comedy, although the pictures will bear no relation to each other in plot or action.

"This cast is being carefully recruited. Some of the players appeared in Broadway successes during the past season; some are motion picture players who have been seen in past Kleine releases.

"The work of producing these comedies will be gone about as seriously as though they were spectacular dramas. The matter of sets, for instance, will not be slighted. Too often comedies lose in artistic values because the producer relies on the fun to carry the picture to success, regardless of the general standard of production. These comedies will be undertaken seriously and earnestly and, I feel, will fully live up to and possibly improve upon the high standard already set by such comedies as 'Officer 666,' 'Stop Thief,' 'Who's Who in Society' and 'The Commuters.'"

ESSANAY ISSUES NEW PUBLICITY SHEET

Essanay now is getting out a new publicity sheet devoted entirely to the V-L-S-E features. The first number has just been issued and is devoted entirely to "The Blindness of Virtue." One sheet will be issued every four weeks for each feature.

This will not interfere with the regular organ of Essanay, "The Essanay News," devoted to all its releases, which is being published as usual.

Horsley Camera and Bostock Jungle Zoo Destined to Increase Popularity of MinAs

DAVID HORSLEY, of the Centaur Film Company, maker of MinA comedies for the General Film program, is a real pioneer, and there are only a few real ones. He is the oldest independent film manufacturer. He made pictures in the good old days (may they never come again), when the backyard served as a studio and the neighbors' washing on the line served as light diffusers.

In those days Mr. Horsley made Nestor pictures, which later went on the Universal program. When he left the Universal, Mr. Horsley built his present studios and laboratory at Bayonne, N. J. There were made the first of the MinA comedies, which were destined to win a place for themselves on the General Film program.

Last fall Mr. Horsley opened his studio and zoo on the Pacific coast, the enormous zoo being one of the attractions of Los Angeles. There he installed the famous Bostock wild animal arena, which was obtainable only through business conditions brought on by the war. Most of the MinA producing is now carried on at the west coast studios. The Bayonne studios are in great demand by persons and companies wishing to hire a well equipped studio, and a lot of commercial work is done in the laboratory.

Chester Beecroft is general manager of the Bayonne plant.

Mr. Horsley has recently perfected a camera by which as many as seven exposures can be taken without running the film through the camera more than once. This is being used in the MinA comedies now being produced. With this and several other technical inventions now in process of perfection, Mr. Horsley's pictures will soon show startling effects.

LUBIN PUTS WORD "SCENARIO" IN LIMBO

In recognition of the development of the motion picture manuscript from a brief and sketchy suggestion into an elaborate and carefully constructed dramatic composition which, as far as the work of the Lubin staff writers is concerned, is far more comprehensive and specific than the usual speaking-stage manuscript, the Lubin company has formally banished the derogatory term "scenario," the proper definition of which is merely "a brief dramatic outline," and established in its stead the expressive and now generally accepted word "photoplay."

Henceforth Lawrence S. McCloskey is "Editor of Photoplays," and the members of his department are "photo-playwrights" by designation as well as in fact. It was felt not only that "scenario" was a misnomer, but that its application to work of such dramatic and technical excellence was unjust.

A PANORAMA OF THE KALEM JACKSONVILLE STUDIOS—THE COMPOSITE PICTURE SHOWS SOME INTERESTING DETAILS OF PRODUCTION ON THE GROUNDS

LUBIN PROMISES PREMIER PRODUCING PERSONNEL BEFORE THE END OF 1915

"Before the end of the year the Lubin company will probably have one of the strongest producing forces in the field. It is toward this end that the company is working at the present time, and to accomplish this money is not being spared at all," is Mr. Lubin's statement.

"A new studio building, located a few blocks from the main studios at Twentieth street and Indiana avenue, Philadelphia, will be opened within the next few weeks. This is a four story building. On the top floor will be one of the largest daylight studios in the country; the third floor will have three artificial light studios, while the first and second floors will contain dressing rooms and property rooms. When completed, no studio will be able to surpass it in equipment.

"With the two studios here in Philadelphia, the Lubin company has, in addition, studios at Los Angeles, California; (also one which is being built at San Diego, Cal.); Phoenix, Ariz.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Atlantic City, N. J.; Betzwood, Pa.; Brooklyn, N. Y., and Newport, R. I.

"There will be a vast improvement all along the line, in an endeavor to make Lubin pictures as near perfection, from every angle, as it is possible to make them."

Lubin Makes New Departure in Comedies; Increases Scale of Feature Production

SINCE the first of the year the Lubin company has been working on one of the biggest and most important programs in its history. The formation of the V-L-S-E gave the company the opportunity to release some of the big important productions they had on hand, and to begin work on others which had been contemplated by the heads for some time.

No efforts are being spared to make these new feature plays the best ever, and to accomplish this the best talent obtainable has been engaged.

The productions vary in type from comedies, featuring such stars as Marie Dressler, Tom McNaughton and Billie Reeves, to popular dramatic successes by distinguished authors.

The various companies making comedies and dramas for the regular program have been greatly strengthened, and many changes have been made in order to improve in every possible way the Lubin output of plays.

The Lubin company has one of the biggest plants in the industry at Betzwood, near Philadelphia. The recent return of Ferdinand Singhi, in an executive position, was followed by several changes in the producing personnel. Mr. Singhi has always been rated as one of the most competent executives in the business. Ira M. Lowry remains as general manager as he has been for some time.

At the Betzwood plant an extensive commercial business is done in developing and printing films for other companies. Lubin is one of the very few companies not crowded for space at present. And still the expansion goes on with no immediate sign of discontinuation.

But if its expansion continues in proportion to the company's future, even the present mammoth plants will be too small. Lubin is one of the oldest companies, and certainly has facilities second to none for picture making.

TYRONE POWER CAST FOR "THE DEVIL-IN-CHIEF"

Tyrone Power, the distinguished actor, now under contract to the Selig Polyscope company, soon will be seen in "The Devil-in-Chief," a Selig Diamond special in three reels.

Power, in the lead, is revealed as one whose hatred for womankind carries even a touch of insanity. There is a terrific double climax impossible to surmise. Lanier Bartlett wrote the photoplay.

Knickerbocker a New General Film Unit; Productions Released Received with Favor

KNICKERBOCKER Star Features is a new company releasing through the General Film program, with its studio on Long Island. This company has prepared "The Kick-Out" with Ralph Stuart, "The Cup of Chance" with Alice Brady, and has just released a sumptuous production of "Hamlet" with Sir J. Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott.

These will be followed by other similar productions on the General Film program.

The high standard of the Knickerbocker Star Features is well instanced by two things. The first is the fact that these pictures have been received on the program of the General Film company, a concern rated as very chary of welcoming new brands. The second lies in the appearance in the pictures of the world's most famous stars.

Take Sir J. Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott who appear in "Hamlet." This famous actor, who has been knighted by the King of England, is known wherever the English tongue is spoken. He and Miss Elliott have just completed their farewell tour of the United States. Their many admirers will henceforth see them only upon the screen. The famous Drury Lane stock company, a British national institution, is seen in its entirety in their support.

Alice Brady, daughter of the theatrical magnate, William A. Brady, appears in "The Cup of Chance," direct from her Broadway successes, in the DeWolf Hopper revivals of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, such as "Pinafore," "Trial by Jury" and "The Yeoman of the Guards."

Ralph Stuart, a noted actor of distinguished personality, appears in "The Kick-out," supported by George M. Howard and Mac Barnes.

Knickerbocker Star Features are confidently expected to support the high quality of the features released through the General Film program.

Selig Polyscope Company Has Moved Into New Offices in Chicago; Red Seal Series Started

THE executive offices of the Selig Polyscope Company were recently moved from 20 East Randolph street to the new Garland building, corner Wabash avenue and Washington street, Chicago. The change was made in order to accommodate the rapidly increasing business of the Selig company. The twelfth floor of the new Garland skyscraper has been occupied by the Selig executive offices, which contain the private offices of Col. William N. Selig, president, and of J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager. Both of these offices are very commodious, and face Lake Michigan on the east.

Adjacent to these offices is located the publicity department, and to the west is the scenario editor's department. To the south is located the departments of the accountants, purchasing agent, cashier and his assistants.

The shipping department is also on the twelfth floor, and to the north of this department will be found the projecting parlors, where Selig Red Seal plays, Diamond Specials in three reels, and the regular releases are shown and reviewed. The new executive offices are said to be among the most commodious and best equipped in Chicago.

The Selig Red Seal plays, which are being distributed through V-L-S-E are pretentious subjects, worthy of the company which gave "The Spoilers" to the screen.

The advent of J. A. Berst as vice-president and general manager is a notable move. Mr. Berst is one of the best known and most able executives in the industry, and he has taken over much of the active work of running things.

The new Selig million dollar jungle-zoo near Los Angeles is one of the show spots of the town, and only one of many instances of Selig progress.

Kalem Inaugurates "Broadway Favorites" Series; New Plays Consistent as Old Is Firm's Policy

THE Kalem company has continued steadily along the path of making consistent pictures. Recently it started making three and four reel pictures, its Broadway Favorites series featuring players known from their work in Broadway attractions.

Kalem has made other serials, including "The Hazards of Helen," which still continues with great success, and the "Girl Detective" series, just ended. This "Girl Detective" series will be replaced by another series of detective stories called "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel," a two reel episode being released weekly. The plots are based upon mysteries which have actually happened and have been gathered from hotel house detectives all over the country.

For this series an unusually pretentious set showing the lobby of the Grand hotel and the mezzanine floor has been constructed. The set is even bigger than the replica of Maxim's seen in "Midnight at Maxim's."

The Kalem company has a permanent studio on West Twenty-third street, where its main offices are also located, and open air studios at Cliffside, N. J., and Jacksonville, Fla.

A glass-roofed studio is now being built at Cliffside so arranged that a big set may be constructed partly under cover and partly on the open air stage. This and the other moves of the Kalem company are in line with its policy of making big pictures.

KALEM'S BELIEF IS FIRM IN ONE AND TWO REELERS

"We propose to give special attention to the production of one and two reel subjects, believing that films of this length are the mainstay of the business," said William Wright, of Kalem. "The popularity of the motion picture enterprise was built up on the one reel drama, then followed by longer and stronger stories produced in two reels. Kalem deems it of special interest to the exhibitor and for the backbone of his show, that one and two reel pictures shall be continued, and that meritorious products of one and two reel lengths are absolutely essential for the future prosperity of the business.

"In addition the company will produce three and four reel feature subjects to be released in regular service. These three and four reel issues will be made from adaptations from popular books and well-known plays.

"Special casts will be engaged for each subject made up principally of actors and actresses who have made successes in New York theatres, always having in mind that multiple reel subjects of three and four reels in length should have a story that warrant such length and be produced by a director capable of handling subjects of this nature."

CHAPLIN'S DEATH IS "EXAGGERATED"

New Orleans, July 6.

Essanay's announcement in Motion Picture News that Charlie Chaplin's "death was exaggerated," is being used to good advantage by New Orleans exhibitors in their poster displays. "Work" has been enthusiastically received at Pearce's Trianon, and has been re-booked for Fichtenberg's Plaza theatre.

It is to be regretted that irresponsible persons recently started a rumor in New Orleans that Charlie Chaplin was of this earth no more. The news caught like wildfire, and motion picture correspondents here and the newspapers were kept busy denying the fabrication.

"ALL FOR OLD IRELAND" IS LUBIN RELEASE, JULY 14

"All for Old Ireland," the first of a series of made-in-Ireland comedy dramas, which will be released by the Lubin company July 14, was finished under the greatest of difficulties last August after the outbreak of the European war.

Sidney Olcott, who directed the pictures, had, the day before the declaration of war by Great Britain, taken a number of scenes on the Island of Valentia, where the great cable station connecting Ireland with America is located.

2-REEL ANIMAL SUBJECTS TO BE ADDED TO SELIG PROGRAM

Selig jungle-zoo wild animal picture plays in two reels, are to be added to the regular Selig program. These highly interesting additions to the General Film market will be ready for release within a few weeks.

It is expected that the two-reelers will be released at the rate of two a month, but all details have not been decided upon. Exhibitors will be given ample notice of the first release date.

Almost every kind of wild beast is to be found in the Selig jungle-zoo, and these wild animals will all be utilized in the jungle-zoo two-reelers which will have not only the essential "punch," but educational value.

MORE DOUBLE EXPOSURES WITH HORSLEY CAMERA

Another of the remarkable photographic effects obtainable by the new Horsley double exposure camera, for the use of which MinA films hold the exclusive rights, is shown in "The Fighting Kid," a one-reel comedy to be released Thursday, July 15, on the licensed program.

Throughout the greater part of the story, Jerry, the principal character, lives in fear of a bully whom he has vanquished when he (the bully) attempted to force his attentions upon an unwilling girl.

Jerry has been visiting the girl he protected, and as he leaves her home he spies the bully lying in wait to wreak revenge. Jerry stops dumbfounded and his limbs shake from fright as he sees the bully transformed into a group of seven, each shaking his fist menacingly. The vision is novel and mystifying and is accomplished by a very simple process with the new camera.

The cast is made up of George Ovey, as Jerry, Ray Lincoln as the bully, Goldie Colwell, as the girl, Louis Fitzroy, Janet Sully and others.

THE PLANT OF THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA, FLATBUSH, N. Y.
AS IT WAS 5 YEARS AGO AS IT IS TODAY

Two New Buildings Added to Vitagraph Studio During the Past Six Months

J. STUART BLACKTON and Albert E. Smith, the two active heads of the Vitagraph Company of America, form a wonderful pair of executives. Mr. Blackton, who is one of the best informed men on the whole picture business in the world, exercises his artistic talents to good advantage in supervising the producing end. Mr. Smith is the technical man. For instance he invented the "framing device" in common use on projection machines. Both are good sound business men.

So it is not strange that the Vitagraph company today holds a position in the very front rank of the producing companies of the world, both in quality and quantity of output.

Two big new buildings have been completed at the Flatbush studio within the past six months, so that the studio now fills four sides of a hollow square. This plant, together with the Vitagraph plants on the coast and the offices abroad, represents an investment of $6,000,000.

The Vitagraph company is distributing its big features through V-L-S-E, of which A. E. Smith is president. It has in preparation more big features, many of them with stage stars in leading roles.

But when it comes to motion picture players—there is where the Vitagraph shines. More than one hundred established stars are in the Vitagraph stock company. Scarcely a picture goes out without four or five real stars in it. Taking that into consideration with the Vitagraph standard of production and the magnitude of its operations, it is easy to account for the popularity of Vitagraphs.

SPEDON TO REPRESENT VITAGRAPH AT CONVENTION

Sam M. Spedon, the genial publicity promoter of the Vitagraph company, left Tuesday, July 6, for an extended vacational trip. He will include in his itinerary stop-overs in Chicago, Salt Lake City and San Francisco, where he will spend two weeks, representing the Vitagraph company at the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Convention and in introducing members of the Western Vitagraph company, with studios at Santa Monica, California, to exhibitors of the east, in attendance at the convention.

On the way back, he will visit the largest cities of the country and make himself acquainted with the local managers of V-L-S-E branch offices. A leisurely trip, which will ocupy about six weeks, will afford Mr. Spedon a breathing spell, which he calls his vacation, the first since his joining the Vitagraph company as head of the publicity department, six years ago.

MUTUAL ALLIED COMPANIES ARE FORGING AHEAD IN PRODUCTION OF PICTURES

Hutchinson, of American, Says Foreign Business Has Increased in Spite of European War—Reviews Successes and Forecasts Future—Reliance-Majestic Has Huge Undertakings Under Way—Thanhouser Declares for Steadfast Continuance of "Consistently Good" Policy He Has Inaugurated—New York Motion Picture Acquires Studios and Stars for Feature Campaign at Unprecedented Rate

"THE immediate future policy in which the management of The American Film Company is concerned is somewhat in advance of the normal development of the art. We are planning some enormous productions which will be notable from the standpoint of the massiveness of the undertaking, the artistic quality of the technique and the dramatic ability as shown by the efforts of both directors and artists; and in addition to this our consistent policy will be maintained, that is, of keeping the highest possible quality in every production which goes out under our name, regardless of length, whether one, two or more reels.

"The tremendous strides which we have made recently are exampled by our expansion, applying to property and facilities, as well as to output. In Santa Barbara, where the largest of American studios is located, a wonderful business growth has compelled almost constant additions to buildings and equipment. The vast increase in the volume of commerce in 'Flying A' and American 'Beauty' films has made itself felt throughout the civilized world of motion pictures.

"Notable undertakings have been achieved by the American. Numerous multiple reel features, including 'The Lure of the Mask,' 'The Quest,' 'The Lonesome Heart' and 'Secretary of Frivolous Affairs' have been released and proved to be big box office attractions everywhere. Many other new features are now ready and soon will be placed on the market. Chief among these are 'The End of the Road,' 'The Girl from his Town,' 'The Tragic Circle,' 'The Gamble,' 'Infatuation,' and a multiple reel film dealing with the great miracle of life.

"American directors have particularly distinguished themselves. Such sterling men as William D. Taylor, who scored the greatest of all triumphs in the production of the stupendous picturized novel, 'The Diamond from the Sky,' Thomas Ricketts, Henry Otto, Archer MacMackin, William Bertram, Reaves Eason, have made contributions to filmdom that stand as living monuments to their ability.

"The scope of foreign business of The American Company has widened, despite the great world war. 'Flying A' and 'Beauty' films are in greatest demand in European trade centers. The London office is literally a hive of industry. In other continents of the world, notably South America and Australia, the demand for American productions has increased by leaps and bounds.

"Pre-eminent among American triumphs has been 'The Diamond from the Sky,' produced by The American Company and distributed by The North American Film Corporation. Never has a continued photoplay met with like success. As a money-making proposition for the exhibitor, this marvelous production has jumped head and shoulders above anything ever produced in moving pictures.

"What we have done in the past is evidence that our ambitious policy for the future will be a magnificent success and we will continue to maintain our position in the foremost ranks of the exponents of the art of motography"

"Diamond From the Sky" Likely to Rank as American Studio's Best for 1915

IN the studios at Santa Barbara, Cal., practically all the producing of the American Film Manufacturing company is done.

The regular companies which produce the "Flying A" dramas, one and two reel subjects, and the Beauty films, are constantly at work, under the able directorship of members of the American staff. Then there are the feature companies, which enact such four and five reel productions as the American produces. Foremost among recent feature releases, are "The Lure of The Mask," "The Lonesome Heart" and "Secretary of Frivolous Affairs."

Greatest of the companies in the American studios is the cast which has gained a world wide fame in "The Diamond from the Sky," the picturized novel produced by the American Film Manufacturing company and distributed by the North American Film corporation. Lottie Pickford, Irving Cummings, Eugenie Forde, William Russell, Charlotte Burton, George Periolat, William J. Tedmarsh and Orral Humphrey, the famous eight of "The Diamond from the Sky," are daily in appearance.

The American Film Manufacturing company was organized in 1910 by S. S. Hutchinson and John R. Freuler. Mr. Hutchinson is president and master producer of the American. Mr. Freuler, recently elected president of the Mutual Film corporation, is president of the North American Film corporation, a closely allied institution, organized for the purpose of distributing "The Diamond from the Sky."

Since its inception, the American Film Manufacturing company has been a leader in the film industry in the all important branches of production and distribution. Actors and actresses under the American banner have always been and will continue to be, favorites with film fans. Exhibitors have sought the American's output because of the stamp of "Flying A" excellence. which marks every production, from the humblest of the early one reel offerings, to the "Diamond from the Sky."

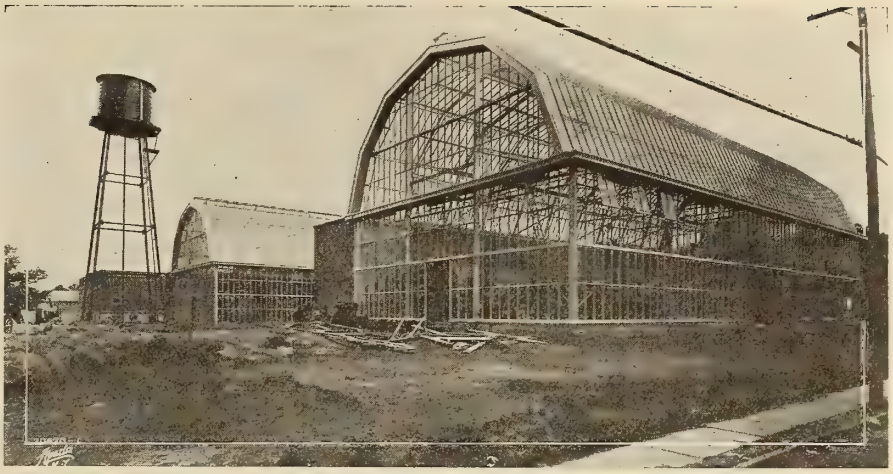
NEW YORK MOTION KEEPS PACE WITH PUBLIC DEMANDS



The New York Motion Picture corporation, which makes the Kay-Bee, Keystone, Broncho and Domino brands for the Mutual Film corporation, is one of the largest companies in the business. Adam Kessel, Jr., and C. O. Baumann, the heads of the company, have always believed in making good pictures, no matter what the cost. The result is that they have built up brand names which are worth their weight in gold; Keystone being probably the best known comedy brand in the world.

This company has large producing forces near Los Angeles, with Thomas H. Ince as general supervisor of the dramas and spectacles, and Mack Sennett head director of Keystones. The producing forces have been increased very largely in the past few months, till now the New York Motion Picture corporation could put out a program single-handed, if it chose. Recently engaged stars of the stage include such names as Raymond Hitchcock, Billie Burke, Weber and Fields, Julia Dean, Bessie Barriscale and W. S. Hart. Those are only a few of them.

The future of the New York Motion Picture corporation, after its contract with the Mutual expires in August, has not yet been announced by Kessell and Baumann. However, H. E. Aitken, former president of the Mutual, has announced a combine between himself, D. W. Griffith and the New York Motion Picture corporation and its producers. But whatever the New York Motion Picture corporation does, rest assured it will make good pictures, so good that they will find a ready market.

FILMING A "KID" DRAMA

Reliance and Majestic Turn Out Subjects of Strong Appeal; New Griffith Features Under Way

The interests of the Reliance and Majestic Motion Picture corporations are closely allied. H. E. Aitken, former president of the Mutual Film corporation, is heavily interested in both, and D. W. Griffith, commonly regarded as the world's greatest director, is head producer in general supervision of both brands.

Mr. Griffith is surrounded in the producing end by players who have been with him for years, most of them prominent screen stars and directors whom he himself has trained. The Reliance and Majestic studios on the coast have been enlarged since last fall greatly, so greatly that a whole program could probably be produced there if needs be.

Mr. Aitken recently announced that a combination had been formed between himself, Mr. Griffith and the New York Motion Picture corporation.

Mr. Aitken did not say whether the proposed change would affect the whole producing force or just himself and Griffith. It is certain, though, that Griffith will make good pictures wherever he may be.

Griffith's greatest work of the past six months, in fact of his whole career, is "The Birth of a Nation," now playing at prices up to two dollars in several large cities.

This was made at the Reliance and Majestic studios with a company of Reliance and Majestic players. Mr. Griffith's next picture will be "The Mother and the Law," not a spectacular subject. He expects to follow this with a spectacular subject, probably "The Quest of the Holy Grail."

AT THE MAJESTIC STUDIOS

A two-reel melodrama, "The Mystic Jewel," is a Majestic subject, being produced by Jack Conway. The cast includes Charles West, Spottiswoode Aiken, Lucille Young, Sidney Owen, and Joseph Hanaberry. The story concerns brothers, their office stenographer, an oriental vampire woman, and the plot centers about a baffling murder mystery.

The film version of the D. W. Wonderley's magazine story, "The Lie," is being filmed as a one-reel Reliance sea drama. This will serve to introduce Adoni Foviri, the French actress, who recently became a member of the Reliance-Majestic stock company. Joseph Singleton appears as the heavy, who following a wreck at sea returns home and tells the wife of his partner that her husband was lost. Three years later, after a child is born, the husband returns. The production is in charge of Ray Meyers.

The Komic company is producing "Safety First," which portrays a love affair in which the villain attempts to win the love of the fair comedienne of the striped gown. Fay Tincher, Chester Withey, Frank Darien, and Max Davison are the principals.

RICHARD CARLE CAST FOR "MARY'S LAMB," PATHE

Pathé announces the acquisition of the picture rights to Richard Carle's big dramatic success "Mary's Lamb," which enjoyed a run of three years upon the stage.

Mr. Carle himself will play the lead in the Pathé picture. The famous player in his own famous play should prove to be a strong attraction.

Thanhouser's Return Signalized by "Consistently Good" Policy in Producing Photoplays

WHEN Edwin Thanhouser returned a few months ago as president and active head of the Thanhouser Film corporation in New Rochelle, home of Thanhouser dramas and Falstaff comedies, things took a decided brace.

Mr. Thanhouser, who was the founder of the company which bears his name, came back after a foreign tour of two years and seven months. His return gave the plant a fresh impetus under which it is still moving steadily forward.

His first act was to announce his policy as the production of "consistently good" photoplays.

To this policy he has rigidly adhered. He started the Falstaff comedies, which have been clean and funny. He also made several four reel productions for the Mutual Masterpictures, among them "The Patriot and the Spy" and "God's Witness."

Mr. Thanhouser, on his return, made several changes in the Thanhouser producing force. Mr. Thanhouser never was a great believer in the "star" system. A star can be taken away by another company, he believes, and it is better to make good pictures and build for brand reputation.

Mr. Thanhouser was recently elected first vice-president of the Mutual Film Corporation and, in his new position, will have an active voice in the Mutual council, as well as direct the Thanhouser Film Corporation's destiny.

THE FUTURE AS IT LOOKS FROM NEW ROCHELLE

Mr. Thanhouser's statement as to the future is as follows:

"I shall continue along my set line of a standardized photoplay. I want the artists of the speaking stage to embrace the film as a sister art, and the producing genius to turn to the film as a wider field for dramatic resource. I shall continue engaging them as fast as my work will allow.

"At intervals, I shall release a standard work, done with an all star cast. My Falstaff comedy brand will be the surprise of the fall season, due to some special contracts I am now making. During this summer I shall erect a new additional studio building with a sinking equatic tank and full rigging for aerial effects.

"Another eight or ten weeks will see me using the Gregory-Moses double image camera, which takes a double exposure without winding back the film.

While it requires a specially constructed stage, it makes double exposures quickly and positively.

"The Thanhouser and Falstaff brands are intended to justify feature advertising by the exhibitor, and no expense will be too great to maintain the exhibitors' confidence in them."

SHERMAN WANTS RIGHTS TO 15 STATES FOR "NATION"

The Elliott and Sherman Film company, Minneapolis, Minn. recently purchased rights on "The Birth of a Nation" for Wisconsin, and had the opening at the Davison theatre, Milwaukee, on July 3. The subject is booked there for two months.

The prices will be twenty-five cents to a dollar and a half evenings, and twenty-five cents to one dollar for matinees. H. A. Sherman was in Los Angeles during the past week negotiating with D. W. Griffith for rights for fifteen other states. Up to this time the outcome of this negotiation has not been announced.

Cranston Brenton Is Now Head of National Board

New Chairman, a Graduate of Trinity College, and for Ten Years a Professor of English Literature, Resigned From War Relief Directorship of American Red Cross

CRANSTON BRENTON, of New York, war relief director of the American Red Cross, has been elected chairman of the National Board of Consorship. He succeeds Frederick C. Howe, who is now commissioner of immigration of the Port of New York, and who resigned some time since. The election was ratified by the general committee of the national board at its meeting on June 30.

Mr. Brenton is a man of about forty. He has had some years of business experience as a superintendent of a manufacturing establishment in New York. He graduated from Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut, with the highest standing in the scientific department in 1899, and subsequently received the degree of master of science from that institution. For ten years, he served on the faculty of Trinity College as professor of English language and literature.

Because of his interest in social and civic work, he resigned this position to assume the duties of executive secretary of the social service commission of the diocese of New York. In October, 1914, he accepted his present position with the American Red Cross. Mr. Brenton is a man of executive ability, of broad interests and experience.

He has a sympathetic appreciation of the importance of the motion picture amusement and in the education of the people. His years of specializing upon literary criticism, drama and dramatic technique has developed clarity of thought and a grasp of dramatic values. Mr. Brenton has an established position as a public speaker and as a student of social questions.

The work of the national board has developed rapidly during the past two years until it holds a commanding place in the thought of the public, the motion picture industry, and students of amusement. Under this co-operative arrangement with the producers and distributors of motion pictures, it viewed last year nearly 6,000 film subjects, approximately 10,000 reels, and has been in close communication with four hundred centres throughout the United States.

Mr. Lester F. Scott, the acting director of the People's Institute, has served as chairman of the national board in the interim between Mr. Bowe's resignation and the election of Mr. Brenton.

KNICKERBOCKER ISSUES FINE PAPER FOR "HAMLET"

The fine quality of paper issued with Knickerbocker Star Features is worthy of commendation. The art and plate work for the two-color half sheets of Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott with the recent release of "Hamlet" are especially fine.

In every instance of these Star releases the lithos are made from artists' sketches of a superior character.

Putting Broadway Features with Broadway Stars on Regular Program Is Universal's Project

"THE great big endeavor which is occupying the attention of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company at the present time, and will for six months to come, is the gigantic undertaking which it has assumed, of putting four and five reel Broadway features, with Broadway stars, on the regular Universal program," said R. H. Cochrane recently. "No other company in the realm of moving pictures has ever attempted anything so radical as this. Already it has involved the Universal in a tremendous expenditure of money for the engagement of stars, the purchase of plays and best selling books, and contract for the services of skillful scenario writers and able directors. These features will be released under the brand of Broadway Universal Features, and will be put on the regular program one a week. The release day will be Monday.

"The features which have been set, and their probable order, is as follows: Jane Cowl, in 'The Garden of Lies,' July 12; 'Scandal,' by Lois Weber, July 19; Lawrence D'Orsay, in 'The Earl of Pawtucket,' July 26; Hobart Bosworth, in 'Fatherhood,' August 2; Ward & Vokes, in 'The Run on the Bank'; 'Jewel,' with Ella Hall, adapted from the novel by Clara Louise Burnham; Marie Cahill, in 'Judy Forgot'; Hobart Bosworth, in 'A Little Brother of the Rich,' adapted from the novel and play by Joseph Medill Patterson; Mary Fuller, in 'Under Southern Skies'; King Baggot, in 'The Suburban'; Charles E. Evans, in 'The Parlor Match'; Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon, in 'The Sphinx'; Helen Ware, in 'Lass o'Lowries'; Marie Tempest, Blanche Walsh, Florence Reed, Henry E. Dixie, Frank Keenan, Wilton Lackaye, Nat C. Goodwin, Julia Dean, Emmett Corrigan, Henrietta Crossman, Cyril Scott, Lulu Glaser, Carter De Haven, Flora Parker and several others, in productions which have not as yet been definitely decided.

"Another tremendous production, which the Universal is undertaking, is the filming of 'The Dumb Girl of Portici,' in which Anna Pavlowa, the most wonderful dancer in the world today, is starred at a fabulous salary in an eight reel production. It is the aim of the Universal to make this production the most gigantic and imposing of its character ever put on in this country.

"The other day they purchased $10,000 worth of scenery, which belonged to the Boston Opera Company, now defunct, and the production will be directed by Phillips Smalley and Lois Weber, who is adapting the scenario. A great many of the scenes will be filmed in Chicago, where the company is playing an engagement at the present time. After that the entire company will be taken to California, Universal City, where the exteriors will be taken.

"The Universal is also finishing the largest glass inclosed studio in the United States in Leonia, N. J., which will represent an expenditure of at least half a million dollars, and probably before all of the bills are paid it will go considerably over this figure. Every conceivable device which could be thought of or invented has been incorporated in the new laboratories and studio, and it will represent the very finest facilities for work under glass which has yet been projected."

Best Known Hotel Brought to Everybody in U Film, "The Earl of Pawtucket," Featuring D'Orsay

IN "The Earl of Pawtucket," the big feature in which Lawrence D'Orsay is starring for the Universal program, Mr. Myers, in conjunction with Frank Beresford, technical director of the Universal Coytesville studios, designed an exact reproduction of the lobby, lounge, and restaurant of the Waldorf-Astoria for the biggest scenes.

They conferred with the famous "Oscar" of the Waldorf and secured sketches, plans and a complete property list of the furniture, furnishings, hangings and statuary necessary for the huge set.

Fifty masons, carpenters, scene painters, decorators and electricians worked steadily for more than a week before the completion of what is purported to be the largest hotel lobby scene ever filmed. The services of five structural iron workers were also enlisted for the sole purpose of installing two steel elevators leading off the lobby.

The stage on which the set is built was especially constructed and is 150 feet deep and 75 feet wide. One hundred and twenty-five pieces of furniture, such as leather settees, tables, and tabourets, are arranged in the lobby and lounge adjoining, while in the restaurant leading off the lobby fifty tables decorated and set with costly linen, cut glass and silver and two hundred chairs are placed.

Five thousand yards of muslin was used in the sun diffuses which were made especially to diffuse the light, and were handled by ten stage hands exactly like sails on a ship.

Sixty scenes will be enacted on this immense stage, some showing its entire length and width, others different sections as the restaurant, lobby, registry desk, cigar stand, news stand and elevators. It is estimated that $2,000 has been expended on this scene, which will be used only for about twenty hours.

Harry Myers is not only directing, but also playing the juvenile lead, while Rosemary Theby is playing opposite Lawrence D'Orsay.

ROSEMARY THEBY TO PLAY OPPOSITE D'ORSAY

Rosemary Theby, the Universal leading woman, has been selected to co-star in the massive film production of "The Earl of Pawtucket," in which Lawrence D'Orsay, the well-known actor, made his greatest stage success.

Miss Theby is, without a doubt, one of the most popular screen actresses of today, and has appeared in such plays as "The Hard Road," "Baby," "Mumps," and "The Prize Story."

Rosemary Theby has been playing leading roles in the films for more than four years, commencing with the Vitagraph and working her way gradually to the top. She can play comedy roles as well as dramatic parts with the same ease and technique, and considers her work with the Universal her best efforts.

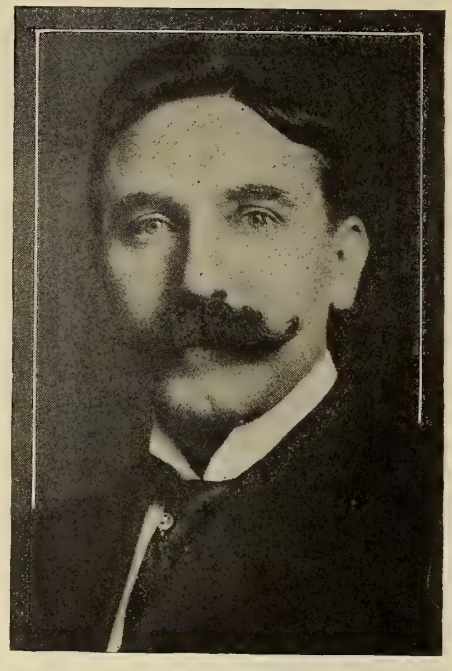
In "The Earl of Pawtucket" this charming star is seen to great advantage as the much-pursued American girl.

DONALD BRIAN BEGINS WORK IN "THE VOICE IN THE FOG"

Donald Brian has started work on the photo-drama version of "The Voice in the Fog," adapted from the original novel by Harold MacGrath. The scenes are being made at Hollywood, Cal., in the studio of the Lasky Feature Play company, which will release the photodrama through the Paramount Pictures corporation.

For several years Mr. Brian has been the foremost musical male comedy star in America. The late Charles Frohman raised him from the ranks into stardom, and for the past few seasons he has appeared in "The Siren," "The Marriage Market" and "The Girl from Utah."

DWAN WAS NOT HEAD DIRECTOR



Through an inadvertence, Alan Dwan director recently engaged by the New York Motion Picture corporation, was referred to in the last issue of Motion Picture News as having been "head director with Famous Players."

Although Mr. Dwan directed important productions, he was not head director. That position is held by Daniel Frohman and Edwin S. Porter, who have immediate supervision of Famous Players' productions.

Growth of the Cosmofotofilm Company During the Last Year; Allied with Famous Authors

THE London Film company, England's most highly regarded producing organization, is represented in this country by Cosmofotofilm, with Paul H. Cromelin in charge.

Now a little more than two years old, the London Film Company has sent to this country many very fine dramatic subjects. Harold M. Shaw, the head producer, and George Loane Tucker, a director, are both Americans. The pictures they have made in England are worthy, photographically, of our best American sunlight, and far superior to many American subjects dramatically, and in the matter of production.

PAUL CROMELIN

The war has not curtailed the producing activities to any appreciable extent. No decrease in the quantity or quality of pictures coming in is to be feared.

Among the most recent productions handled by Cosmofotofilm may be mentioned "Brother Officers," sold to Paramount; "The Middleman," sold to Metro, and "Liberty Hall," which has just been received.

Harold M. Shaw certainly has set an enviable production standard for the London Film Company, one which many American companies might well strive to reach.

In making the announcement of its first anniversary, the Cosmofotofilm company was in the unique position of advertising the fact that it had four big successes showing in the leading New York theatres during the month of May. These were, "Brother Officers," which had its premier at the Strand theatre; "Incomparable Mistress Bellairs," which had a week's run at the New York Hippodrome; "The Middleman," which was shown first at a trade performance at the Broadway theatre and which was exhibited to the public for a very successful run at the Eighty-first and Broadway theatre, and "Bootle's Baby," which played to delighted audiences for a week at the Broadway theatre.

This was certainly an extraordinary showing for a company new in the United States market, and illustrates the quick strides which this company's product has made in the United States.

The Cosmofotofilm company moved into new offices on the sixth floor of the World's Tower building the middle of June and will from now on be better equipped to handle the large increasing business with which it is being favored.

The company's principal release for July will be a four-part film presentation of R. C. Carton's play, "Liberty Hall." This was produced by Harold Shaw, and it featured Edna Flugrath, Ben Webster and C. B. Clarence. "Liberty Hall" was for many years a stage favorite and was the play in which Edward Terry gained his greatest success.

The London Film company's policy has been to film the works of the great author's, using only the very best artists. They have contracts to film several more stories by Conan Doyle, Hall Caine, W. W. Jacobs and a number of other leading writers. The announcement of these will be made from time to time as the films are ready for the market.

OSBOURNE PROVES VERSATILE IN MINAS

Jefferson Osbourne, now with MinA films, is a versatile player. In the six years that he has spent before the camera he has played almost every imaginable kind of a part, some of the sensational ones so realistically that more than once his life was in danger.

Osbourne started his professional life twenty years ago with W. S. Hart, who was then starring in the legitimate drama, but who is at the present time working in pictures.

His first season was practically uneventful, but thereafter his career took on an interesting aspect. He was with many companies, and as he expresses it, some were good, some were bad and some were indifferent affairs. In nine years he played everything from legitimate drama to slapstick comedy.

He had his ups and downs, but he did not falter and kept pegging along. He next went into vaudeville and for five years played the United and Orpheum time.

Six years ago he worked in his first picture. It was a Nestor comedy, produced by David Horsley and directed by Milton Fahrney. After working several pictures in the east, Osbourne was brought to California with the original Nestor organization.

Since then Osborne returned to the east, working with Pathé, Edison, Biograph and several other companies. Recently he went back to California and was immediately made a member of the MinA company by Director Fahrney, his old friend and his first director.

Director Fahrney, aware of Osbourne's versatility, casts him in characters of any description, without the slightest objection from the player.

AFTER a week of strenuous business sessions and equally strenuous entertainment, the managers of the branch offices of the Fox Film Corporation from all over the country left for their various offices last Tuesday, inspired by contact with William Fox, with galvanic energy and determination to make the year a record one.

The convention started July 1, and ran through to the fifth. Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, opened the meeting with a comprehensive address, outlining the growth of the company during the past year, and indicating the great possibilities lying before it.

Addresses were also made by Abraham Carlos, general representative of the concern; Louis T. Rogers, manager of the New York branch; John H. Goldfrap, general publicity manager, and other officials of the company.

Business sessions of the branch managers were held every morning and afternoon in the convention hall of the Astor Hotel. Various problems that present themselves for consideration were taken up and discussed carefully by the managers of the various branches, William Fox summing up briefly the suggestions for the betterment of the Fox service.

Plans were also perfected for the new Fox One-a-Week policy, for which there has been such an insistant demand from exhibitors all over the country.

One-a-Week Policy

In discussing the One-a-Week policy, Mr. Fox said: "Beginning on September 6, the Fox Film Corporation will release every week one great feature, written by a celebrated author and headed by a famous star. The supporting cast will be only a short step from stardom.

"The wonderful success of our productions heretofore, and the acquisition to our directing staff of the best producers in the world, makes me feel sure that this new policy will be a tremendous success. My orders to the directing staff are very simple, and not capable of misunderstanding: 'Make each picture better and stronger than its predecessor.'"

Other matters taken up at the convention were territorial questions and questions of finance.

Numerous Entertainments

The entertainment arranged by Mr. Fox for the visiting managers included a performance of "Chin-Chin," "The Follies of 1915" and a visit to the New Amsterdam Roof Garden. The managers and Mr. Fox were the hosts of the members of the Fox producing staff at a shore dinner given at Sheepshead Bay, after which a trip was made to Coney Island. The directors present at the dinner included: Herbert Brenon, Will S. Davis, Marshall Farnum, Raoul A. Walsh, J. Gordon Edwards, Oscar C. Apfel, Edgar Lewis, Frank Powell and Frederick Thomson.

The visiting branch managers and the members of the main office who participated in the convention were: William Fox, Winfield R. Sheehan, Abraham Carlos, S. J. Irwin, Ned H. Spitzer, Edward Waldo, J. H. Stagg, J. H. Goldfrap, William Alexander, Arthur Dickson, B. P. Fineman, Louis T. Rogers, manager of the New York office; O. P. Hall, Atlanta, Ga.; H. F. FINDS UNIVERSAL BUSINESS GOOD Manager Charles Stern, who has charge of the interests of the Universal Film company at the branch exchange in Bangor, Me., has just returned from a successful business trip which included central Maine cities.

Business is good, he says, and the new Broadway features which the Universal has recently put out are booking big.

"More and Better Theatres" Is the Slogan of Zukor

President of Famous Players, Back from Coast Trip, Sees in These Words More Accurate Description of Conditions Than "Fewer and Better Theatres"

ADOLPH ZUKOR, president of the Famous Players Film company, accompanied by Mrs. Zukor and his son and daughter, returned to New York last Monday from an extended visit to California. While on the coast Mr. Zukor made a complete survey of the various studios, with the view of acquiring a sufficient knowledge of the construction and equipment of western producing plants to assist the Famous Players in the perfection of the studios which they contemplate building in Los Angeles during the coming fall.

Mr. Zukor, shortly after his return, made the following statement:

"It was very gratifying to me to observe throughout the entire country a substantial movement on the part of exhibitors toward better productions and better theatres. When analyzed, this tendency seems to originate with the demands of the public itself. The fact can now be accepted beyond the shadow of a doubt that the motion picture public has been educated to accept and request only subjects of intrinsic merit and estimable standard.

"Some time ago we heard it generally prophesied that within the next year there would be 'fewer and better theatres.' From my observations on this trip, I believe I am prepared to qualify this statement somewhat—there will be more and better theatres; because every day, due to the advancing standard of motion pictures in general, the photoplay public increases and the former followers of the screen are more than ever devoted to this form of amusement, and therefore frequent, more and more often, their favorite motion picture theatres.

"Nothing can be more conducive to an optimistic outlook of the film future than such a trip as I have just completed. The activities and energies of the exhibitors and exchanges that I have visited, and the profound interest of the public in every state, hamlet and village throughout the country, in the development of the screen art, point conclusively to an uninterrupted period of popularity and prosperity for those manufacturing organizations that can keep pace with the growing demands of the public, and provide subjects of sound and substantial value.

"It was of course particularly pleasing to note the tremendous popularity of the Paramount program in the various cities and states of the country. One cannot calculate the great measure of progress made by this program when judged from any provincial view; but when examined in its entirety, and with a perspective that covers the country from coast to coast, the amazing expansion of Paramount activities since the organization of this distributing company, seems almost incredible, when the short time of its development is considered.

Fortunately, the organizations that comprise the Paramount system require no other incentive than that they are contributing to the foremost feature program in the world, yet were further encouragement for the expenditure of greater efforts toward a superior feature service necssary, it could be readily obtained by contact with exhibitors and exchanges throughout the country, whether interested in the Paramount Program or otherwise."

Vitagraph Reaches Out for Best Literary Material

Company Makes Arrangements for Picture Rights of Dazey's "Guilty Man," Gunter's "Surprises of An Empty Hotel" and Other Novels of High Order

THE Vitagraph company, in a comprehensive search for the best in literature adaptable to picturization for screen stories, has succeeded in securing a notable list of subjects by authors of international repute.

Charles T. Dazey's "The Guilty Man," Archibald Clavering Gunter's "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel," and Will M. Ritchney's "The Living Dead," are now ready for immediate production and when completed will be presented in five parts each and released as Blue Ribbon features, the Vitagraph trade mark that stands for the last word in photoplay production.

Each picture will be enacted by a specially selected cast, composed of artists of recognized ability peculiarly adapted to the portrayal of the characters assigned them. Among the other popular books and plays that have been selected, out of a list of twenty-five of the most prominent, may be mentioned "Blue Oceans Daughter," "My Lady's Slipper," "The Fetters of Freedom," and "Sir Henry Morgan, Buccaneer," by Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady; "Who's Who," by Richard Harding Davis; "Black Prince Carl," by Allan Campbell; "Glorious Betsy," by Rida Johnson Young; "The Money Mill," by Roy L. McCardell; "Tootles of Treasure Town," by Frederic Chapin, and many others.

Eugene Mullin, one of the most popular scenario writers of the Vitagraph company, has been appointed a director. Mr. Mullin will be remembered for his picturization of such successful film stories as "Mr. Barnes of New York," "A Florida Enchantment," and "Heights of Hazard" and many original screen dramas that include "Hearts Ablaze," "The Green Cat," "The Lady of the Lake" and "The Night of the Wedding."

Ralph W. Ince has been using over a thousand extra people for the past week in what will be some of the biggest scenes in the Vitagraph serial, "The Goddess."

Scenes representing a strike of miners, staged with startling realism and employing in action a machine gun that figures prominently in a terrific battle between the miners and deputy sheriffs, add blood-tingling thrills to the picture.

Parker's "The Weavers" Is on List of Pathé Subjects

Novel, Never "Put on the Boards," Will Be Pictured with Due Regard to Character Development Expected in a "Legitimate" Production

PATHE announces the acquisition of the picture rights to Gilbert Parker's novel "The Weavers." This novel has never been dramatized before, though it had a tremendous sale passing through a number of editions.

The story should make an intensely interesting picture, being full of unusual and highly dramatic situations. It deals with the adventures of a young Quaker, whose uncle is killed in an insurrection in Egypt, and whose dying request is that his nephew try to reclaim Egypt by establishing Christian standards of living.

The young man by his absolute honesty rises to high power, but the intrigues of jealous native princes finally drive him back to England. His love affair with a beautiful American girl who has married an English title is woven through the story.

"The Weavers" is replete with fine picture situations, and the development of the characters is most cleverly done.

Donald Mackenzie, who is producing "The Galloper," for Pathé, announces that he has signed Fania Marinoff to play opposite Clifton Crawford in that feature. Miss Marinoff is well known to the motion picture public, having appeared in several big features made by well known companies.

Her greater fame rests, however, upon her work in the "legit" with such famous plays as "The House Next Door," "Within the Law," "Consequences," and Arnold Daly's revival of "Arms and the Man."

Many of her appearances in this country have been made in Oriental and Slavic characters, which suit her exotic personality and eastern type of beauty. She is a true Russian, having been born in Odessa about twenty years ago. This will be her first appearance in a Pathé picture.

WOMAN SUCCESSFULLY MANAGES EXCHANGE IN ANDERSON'S ABSENCE

While Lieut. Jim P. Anderson, Washington, D. C., manager of the Fox Film corporation exchange, was in New York attending the convention of Fox managers, Mary M. Jeffries was at the helm, and business was going on just the same as if the boss were there.

"Sig," $4,000,000 Producing Company, Is Launched

Aitken, Baumann, the Kessels, and Griffith, Ince and Sennett Form Corporation Whose Name Consists of the Initials of the Three Directors, Sig—One Five-Reeler a Week Made by Griffith and Two Two-Reel Sennett Comedies Are Planned

WORKING plans have been completed and incorporation papers drawn up for the gigantic new combination of H. E. Aitken, former president of the Mutual Film corporation, and Adam Kessel, Jr., and Charles O. Baumann, the executives of the New York Motion Picture corporation, the union carrying with it David W. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett, directors.

The details were learned from Charles Kessel, of the New York Motion Picture corporation.

The new concern will take its name from the initials of Messrs. Sennett, Ince and Griffith and be called the Sig Motion Picture company. It will be incorporated under the laws of the state of New York for $4,000,000.

The Sig Motion Picture company will be an exchange-owning corporation. It will open, by the middle of September, twenty-five exchanges all over the country.

These exchanges will distribute films made under the immediate supervision of Griffith, Ince and Sennett.

One five-reel feature will be made a week under Mr. Griffith's supervision; one five-reel feature under Mr. Ince's supervision, and two two-reel comedies will be made each week under Mr. Sennett's supervision.

These pictures will be distributed to motion picture theatres under what is known as the "lock reel" system. That is to say, one five-reel feature and one two-reel comedy will constitute an evening's program for a theatre and the same feature will play with the same comedy wherever shown. Thus the exhibitor is furnished with a complete show. By producing two big features and two big comedies a week, two complete shows will be furnished a week.

Will Contract with Theatres

Contracts will be signed with motion picture theatres all over the country for the service. These contracts will be based upon the size of the theatre and the size of the city or town. In cities with two theatres capable of playing the same show for a week's run, two theatres can be signed up, because each can be given a show without conflict. In cities where public demands still dictate a change of program twice weekly only one theatre can be served. The service will be exclusive. The exhibitor can advertise his attractions in advance without fear of any other theatre in his city or town duplicating his show or playing it first.

"The contracts of the New York Motion Picture corporation and of the Reliance and Majestic Motion Picture corporations, with the Mutual Film corporation, the distributing company, expire the last of August," said Charles Kessel. "It has not yet been decided whether or not these producing corporations will continue to release pictures through the Mutual. But whether they do or not, they will make pictures to release through the Sig Motion Picture company.

"It is safe to say that Mr. Aitken, Adam Kessel, Jr., Charles O. Baumann and myself are working together. Mr. Aitken controls the Reliance and Majestic Motion Picture corporations. Should these two companies and the New York Motion Picture corporation decide to continue to produce pictures for the Mutual programs, the producing plants are big enough to make pictures for two programs.

No Restriction on Admission

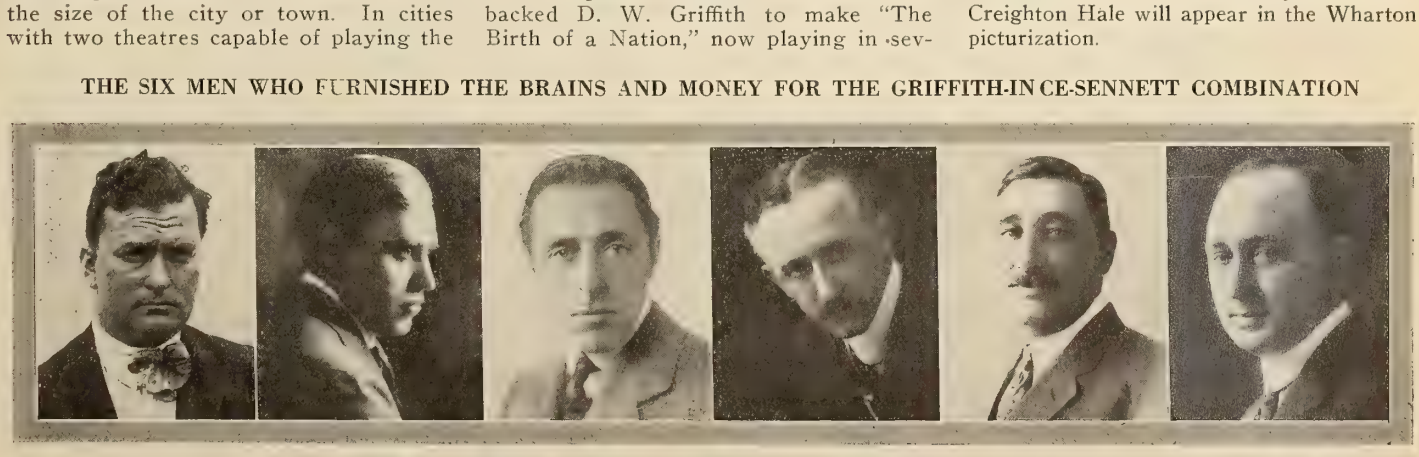
"There will be nothing in the contracts of the Sig exchanges with the theatres indicating what admission prices will be charged. The pictures will be high class enough to be played in two-dollar houses. They will be made for the masses with an appeal to the classes. So they will also be suitable to play in houses catering to the masses, as well as in houses charging ten, fifteen and twenty-five cents admission."

The personnel of the new company is perhaps its most significant factor. H. E. Aitken was president of the Mutual Film corporation and is the man who backed D. W. Griffith to make "The Birth of a Nation," now playing in several cities at prices up to two dollars. Adam Kessel, Jr., C. O. Baumann and Charles Kessel have always believed in making good pictures regardless of expense, as witness the Kay-Bee, Broncho, Domino and Keystone brands of photoplays.

The trade mark values of these brands are enormous. Mr. Aitken is now in thorough accord with the "good pictures first" policy. Both the New York Motion Picture corporation and the Reliance and Majestic studios have been largely increased in size during the past six months.

D. W. Griffith and Thomas H. Ince are probably the two foremost dramatic producers in America. Their most recent pictures are "The Birth of a Nation," by Griffith, and "The Alien," by Ince. Mack Sennett is surely America's leading comedy director.

Huge Array of Dramatic Stars



A startling array of stage and motion picture stars will be seen in Sig pictures, including: DeWolf Hopper, Willard Mack, Orrin Johnson, Weber and Fields, Raymond Hitchcock, Eddie Foy, William S. Hart, Dustin Farnum, H. B. Warner, Henry Woodruff, George Beban, Forrest Winant, Helen Ware, Louise Dresser, Julia Dean, Bessie Barriscale, Jane Grey, Mary Boland, Billie Burke, Bert Clark, Hale Hamilton, Fred Mace, Roscoe Arbuckle, Mabel Normand, Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, Mae Marsh, Lovey Marsh, Robert Harron, Ralph Lewis, House Peters and Syd Chaplin.

"HAZEL KIRKE" TO BE FILMED BY WHARTONS

The Whartons, Pathé producers, announce that they have secured the picture rights to "Hazel Kirke," the play made famous by Effie Ellsler and Charles W. Couldock, and which has been running continuously on the stage for twenty-five years.

Edwin Arden, William Riley Hatch and Creighton Hale will appear in the Wharton picturization.

THE SIX MEN WHO FURNISHED THE BRAINS AND MONEY FOR THE GRIFFITH-INCE-SENNETT COMBINATION

MARGARET WYCHERLY APPEARED AS "GODDESS OF LIBERTY"

Margaret Wycherly, the star of the World Film corporation photoplay "The Fight," appeared last week in a new role, quite in keeping with the part which she took in that very successful film. She impersonated the "Goddess of Liberty" and read the "Woman's Appeal for Liberty" at the Independence Day demonstration of the Empire State Equal Suffrage Party.

It will be remembered that in the photoplay "The Fight," Miss Wycherly was the woman mayor of a city, Jane Thomas, who set out to clean up the vice resorts. She encountered great opposition but was successful in the end. The role she assumed was, therefore, in keeping with her career.

Charter Features Will Issue Dramas in Cycles

Series of Four to Nine Reel Features, Connected by a General Idea of Plot, or a Character, But Each Part an Independent Story, Is Plan

WE have had the series and we have had the serials. And now comes "The Cycle"—the series of big 4 to 9 reel features connected by a general idea, character and plot—a series of headliners coming at intervals, each distinct and independent.

The Charter Features corporation at 110 West Fortieth street, New York city, has maintained offices at that address for over a year. During that time and preceding that, work has been progressing on what has been declared to be the most stupendous motion picture effort ever made.

The Lincoln cycle treats of the adventures of the great president from the days of his ancestors to the day of the president martyr's assassination.

"I had been talking with the promotion manager when I was finally ushered into the room of Benjamin Chapin," said an interviewer recently.

"I had seen Benjamin Chapin in vaudeville when he was a headliner with a salary, I am told, of over a thousand a week. I had seen him in his great American play, 'Lincoln at the White House,' I had heard of him in connection with the Lyceum circuit, and as a lecturer at the great universities of the country. I have come to know Benjamin Chapin as most Americans know him as the 'Lincoln man.'

"I had seen Chapin when he had his makeup on but even now without the dark whiskers the resemblance was so startling that I was taken back.

"To hear Mr. Chapin speak of this, his great life work, is to appreciate that here is not just a commercial enterprise but a work of love.

" 'From my earliest days,' Chapin said to me, 'I have loved Lincoln. There is a cerhalo about him, a certain atmosphere of wonder that appeals to every American heart.'

"After we had discussed the Cycle idea more in detail, I was shown to the projection room and it was my delight to witness 'Old Abe,' the first of the Charter Features' production. It shows the story of Lincoln's grandfather and Daniel Boone back in the pioneer days of this nation and in a vivid manner depicts the adventures of Lincoln's grandfather and his son.

"So faithfully do the producers stick to authentic details that I learned that the pictures had absolutely been taken exactly where the action took place. The story is told by the president himself, and Benjamin Chapin plays the parts of the great emancipator and his grandfather.

"The impersonation given by Mr. Chapin is wonderful on the screen. I am told that the educational leaders, the religious leaders and the political leaders of the nation are interested in the Lincoln Cycle.

"I am told that the alliances that have been made by the Charter Features Corporation with the leading societies, newspapers, magazines throughout the country assure a large attendance from the very start."

Production Begins on Anna Pavlowa Spectacle

Universal Expends $10,000 on Special Studio for "The Dumb Girl of Portici," and Starts Filming of the Picture in Large Park Adjoining Midway Gardens, Chicago

SIGNIFICANT of the magnitude of the production of "The Dumb Girl of Portici," the spectacular photoplay in which will be starred Madame Anna Pavlowa and her wonderful Ballet Russe, is the action of the Universal in having a studio for this production only, at a cost of $10,000.

The first turn of the crank was made on Monday of this week at the Sans Souci, a large park adjoining the Midway Gardens, in Chicago, where Pavlowa has just begun an engagement. During the past month carpenters and scenic artists have been hard at work at their respective tasks turning out interior "sets."

Pavlowa makes her debut in pictures after a season which began early last November and which has continued uninterruptedly since. A special train, bearing the "Dancer Incomparable" and her big company, also a large retinue of servants, costumers and shoemakers, needed to keep the equipment in exhibition condition, arrived in Chicago on Saturday night of last week. Pavlowa at once conferred with Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley to make final arrangements.

In Sans Souci Park are two very large stages admirably situated and amenable to motion picture use. On their spacious boards can be put Pavlowa's entire company of forty-five dancers, including individual stars, such as Alexander Volinine, for five years director of ballet in the Imperial opera houses of Petrograd and Moscow, and for the past two years in entire charge of the ballet of the Paris Grand opera. Also in the company, a star of first importance himself, is M. Clustine, Pavlowa's maitre de ballet and partner in many of her dancing duets. Clustine is choreographic director and maitre de ballet at the Imperial opera houses at Petrograd and at the Paris Grand opera.

Bert Adler, of the Universal forces, is acting as business manager in Chicago, and is handling the huge appropriation needed for the production.

Vitagraph Exercises Great Care with Its Posters

Company Employs An Artist of Ability to Prepare for "The Island of Regeneration" Idealized Portraits and Figures of Principal Characters in the Film

ONE of the most important details connected with the exploitation of the big, multiple reel picture plays, is in the careful selection of posters.

Several attempts have been made recently to turn out paper of a better quality than that in evidence on most film subjects, and one of the most distinctive lines of paped yet seen in that gotten out by the Vitagraph company for its V-L-S-E production, "The Island of Regeneration."

This paper was designed by Artist Popini, who has gained considerable reputation as a painter of strikingly unique figures. Mr. Popini first viewed the film, and then painted the principal characters as they had impressed him.

The result is a series of one, three, six and twenty-four sheet posters that are gorgeous creations in all of the soft, warm pastel shades. The artist has made but slight attempt to portray likenesses, and has, for the most part, eliminated the minor details in the backgrounds. He has idealized the figures, and suggested the backgrounds in combinations of colors and artistic drawings.

Taken altogether, the entire line of paper forms an ensemble that is at once compellingly attractive in its harmonious painting of colors, and convincing in its interest-creating powers.

Bailey Begins 5-Reel Society Melodrama for Cort

OLIVER D. BAILEY, who was one of the producers of "The Melting Pot," for the Cort Film corporation, has just finished casting for the big five reel polite melodrama in which the same corporation will feature Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle. Mr. Bailey began work on the picture last week. For a story, he has one of the novelties of the coming season, it is said, though none of the details have been announced as yet.

Locations have been selected at the most exclusive resorts on Long Island. The courses over which Long Island society hunts have been arranged for as locations, and the beautiful estate of the Castles as well as Mrs. Castle's former home in New Rochelle, will be used. The extra people to be used will number into the hundreds, and the list of those who will take part will contain the names of many people well-known in New York social circles.

A more than ordinarily adequate cast has been selected.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—It is the desire of "Motion Picture News" to include under this heading novel advertising ideas, successful schemes in the management, decoration and equipment of the theatre—everything, in fact, done by the exhibitor to stimulate his trade. We invite every exhibitor to write us about any new enterprise he has; also to come to us for advice or information along any line. Address: Editor, "Motion Picture News," 220 West Forty-second Street, New York City

PROGRAMS HEAVY ENOUGH FOR FANS

PROGRAMS that are heavy enough to be used as fans in midsummer and large enough to give the week's events together with a condensation of the live film news, is the innovation that will greet summer motion picture patrons in the twin cities and Minnesota this summer.

The plan was evolved by H. J. Brenlein, proprietor of the Verdi theatre, 304 West University avenue, St. Paul, and had been taken up by others. The ordinary pasteboard fan does not lend itself to a program of length and a good double heavy sheet of paper will serve as well for making an artificial zephyr. Thus the heavy program is going to be popular in the summer.

Fletcher Russell, of the Windsor theatre, Hampton, Ia., goes a little further and prints a weekly paper. This gives the week's and future programs and all the live film news. From the news the patrons make their selection and tell the management what is wanted. Then the management like good business heads do, gets what is wanted.

Hot weather is always a problem, but in the Northwest and midwest theatres, fans are being used more generously and ice water fountains are being installed at convenient places. Their upkeep is small and they are popular.

CHILDREN'S MATINEES PROVE POPULAR

THE innovation of children's matinees introduced by Stanley Mastbaum at the Stanley theatre, Philadelphia, has proved a big success. Other exhibitors are now trying this plan in the neighboring theatres.

Carl Miller, manager of the Knickerbocker, at 40th and Market streets, announces a weekly Saturday matinee for children, at which films suitable for the youngsters will be featured. This theatre has just put in a temperature lowering device.

A Charlie Chaplin contest in which all will have a chance to imitate this comedian is one of the stunts introduced by Mr. Miller as a business stimulator during the dull dog days.

BALTIMORE NO LONGER A DAILY CHANGE THEATRE

BALTIMORE, Md., is practically a daily change city and the record run there of "Graustark" marks the beginning of a new era in picture exhibitions for that city.

For the first time in its history, the new theatre, upon the advice of J. S. Hebrew, Philadelphia manager for the V. L. S. E., played "Graustark" for the full week of May 10 to 15, and the run recorded the biggest attendance ever attracted to the theatre. On the last day six thousand people attended the exhibition, which, for the city of Baltimore, is phenomenal.

The management of the theatre is so well pleased with the success of the experiment of long runs with its cumulative benefits that they have arranged to handle the "Big Four" features on the same basis as road shows; for the billing they are using two hundred one-sheets, fifty three-sheets and fifty six-sheets; twenty-four sheets will also be used extensively.

This is one more illustration that the value of meritorious features increases with showing.

THE RIGHT GUESS GETS THE GOLD WATCH

ABNER HOLT, manager of the Pendrola theatre, in Lockland, O., carried out a business-booming campaign through a guessing contest, suggested by Manager Holah, of the Cincinnati Pathé office, recently, which, he claims, netted a nice profit in increased patronage.

Holt had been running the "Exploits of Elaine." When the series was started, Holt announced that he would give as a prize a valuable gold watch to the person or persons guessing correctly the identity of the Clutching Hand.

The attendance at his theatre on nights when the serial was exhibited increased at once, and when the last few chapters were shown, he was turning the crowds away at each performance. Of about 1,000 guesses in the contest, one woman was correct and was presented with the watch the evening after the last chapter was shown.

"WAR HORROR" SETTING IN LOBBY AT LOUISVILLE DRAWS CROWDS

THE Star theatre, Louisville, Ky., made use of a good idea recently to advertise a two-days' run of the European war pictures, "The Horrors of Europe." The lobby of the theatre was transformed so as to represent a camp.

There were miniature tents, and on the frames of the posters guns were hung. Guns were also used to represent those set up in European war camps. The display drew big crowds and the capacity of the house was taxed on both days.

PLAY AND MUSIC FIT MANAGER'S NAME

WHEN the Mars theatre, New Orleans, celebrated its second anniversary not long ago, G. B. Mars, its proprietor, one of the most successful suburban operators, had lights strung on telephone poles for two blocks in the vicinity of the show house, with signs: "These lead to Mars," tacked conspicuously.

The theatre was decorated inside and out with real roses, some of which were presented by Canal street exhibitors. A fifteen-piece orchestra played Mars music, while one of the films run—"A Message from Mars"—was entirely in keeping with the occasion.

Mr. Mars is a live, enthusiastic exhibitor, one of the city's best, and increased patronage is responsible for coming improvements to the theatre, one of the largest and finest in the suburban neighborhood. On May 1, workmen started the job of increasing the seating capacity from 600 to 1,000. The stage will be enlarged to 48 feet, 16 feet deep, with a 26-foot opening. To accomplish this, the building next door will be torn down.

RUNS "NEWSPAPER" WITH PICTURE IN JACKSON

A SMALL theatre in Jackson, Miss., runs a daily "newspaper," called the Istrione "Daily Times," in which news of the day is padded so as to affect the picture that is running at the time at that theatre.

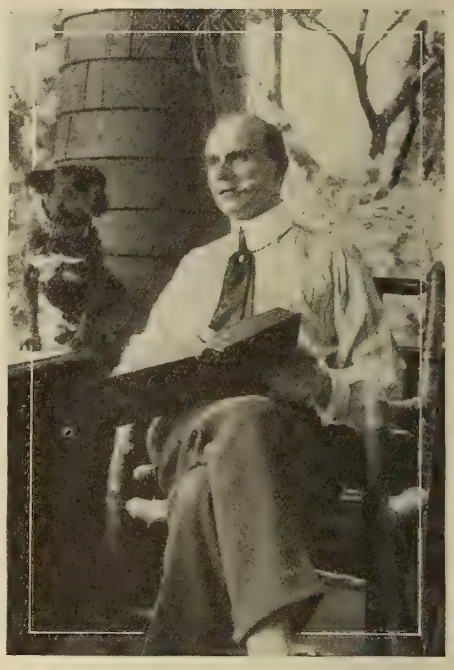
For instance, when "The Pit" was being shown, the exhibitor-editor ran streamers of alleged wild doings on the Chicago 'change across the top of his newspaper, the general idea being to call attention to the film feature.

"CABIRIA" AT FIFTY CENTS IN SOUTH PROVES A SUCCESS

IN Mobile, Ala., The Lyric recently put on "Cabiria," Gabriel D'Annunzio's mammoth photoplay spectacle, at prices ranging from fifteen to fifty cents; then immediately following came Pavlowa and her troupe of Russian dancers, at prices from fifty cents to $2.50.

They jointly advertised the two attractions on one day, claiming they were presenting "the best in the motion picture line, and the best in the 'legit' line."

HARRY LA PEARL—(MinA)



Apfel Is Not Expected to Work Under Forced Draft

New Fox Director, Just Arrived in New York from West Coast, Will Take Up His Duties Under Conditions Most Favorable to Prevent Slips in Production

OSCAR C. Apfel, one of the foremost directors in the country, who has recently joined the producing staff of William Fox, arrived in New York last week with his wife from the West. Mr. Apfel will remain in New York until September or October, when he will proceed to the coast to take up his duties there as director-general of the Fox studios in California.

In the meantime, Mr. Apfel is outlining his plans for his future productions, and whipping into shape a mass of literary material furnished him by Mr. Fox.

When seen by a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Mr. Apfel and his wife were busily going over his correspondence. Mrs. Apfel, be it known, is quite an authority on matter pertaining to pictures, and frequently is of invaluable assistance to her husband. Rowdy, the famous Apfel bulldog, was also in the room.

OSCAR APFEL

"I am immensely pleased," Mr. Apfel said, "with the prospect before me. I am given practically a free hand in dealing with future productions, and, best of all, Mr. Fox guarantees me that there will be no rush orders to fill early specified release dates.

"There is nothing in all the world, to my mind, more likely to spoil a picture as working under forced draft. There are bound to be slips in a production that must be completed by a certain date, whether the director has had sufficient time to do his work well or not. There will be no such unpleasantness under Mr. Fox's policy."

"Do I believe that big features are going to last?" he said, in answer to that query. "I certainly do. The big men in the industry are business men, not philanthropists. They are producing pictures to make money, and they are shrewd enough to have their ear on the ground all the time.

"The people want good features, and they will get them. I sincerely believe, moreover, that the Fox One-a-Week policy will do much to supply the demand for strong, virile, but clean, photoplays.

"Associated with me in the Fox directing staff are some of the most capable producers in the country, as the quality of the work they have been turning out will attest.

"Fox features will continue to maintain their high standard."

Film Producers, Inc., Is Formed in Los Angeles

Releasing Company Consists of Masterpiece, America-Europa, Both of That City; Crown City of Pasadena, and Levy and Associates, of Hollywood

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Los Angeles, July 6.

THE latest addition to the producing colony on the Pacific coast is the Film Producers, Inc., Frank C. Hill, president; R. E. Nathanson, vice-president; Harold A. Parker, secretary and treasurer.

The component firms of the new organization are the Masterpiece Film Manufacturing Company, of Los Angeles, the America-Europa Film Company, also of Los Angeles; the Crown City Film Manufacturing Company, of Pasadena, and Robert Levy and associates, Hollywood Cal. Other companies will be announced later.

The company commences operations with a capital declared to be $1,000,000, and the United States Commissioner has granted permission for the issuance of stock to the full amount of capitalization.

Film Producers, Inc., plan to issue a program made up of one, two and three-reel dramas, comedies and educational films, with one five-reel subject a week, making a total of twenty-one reels. It is expected that the first releases will be made between the first and the fifteenth of September.

Several of the companies which are members of the new distributing concern have demonstrated their capacity to produce satisfactory film. Masterpiece was a member of the Alliance program, during which time that company made and released "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" and "The Truth Wagon." The Crown City company was identified with the Kriterion program from its formation and was one of the strongest elements in that group of releases. The America-Europa company has confined its activities to the export field exclusively. Mr. Levy has been identified with the Universal as manager of production of the Eclair company and has superintended the making of Eclair pictures, first for Universal, then for United.

Film Producers, Inc., will do its own printing, and prepare all its exhibitor advertising even to the making of lithographs. Still pictures will be made in California by the company for use with its releases. The company will also maintain a New York office.

The men in the organization entertain high hopes for its success, and feel that the record of the producing companies will make a favorable impression.

Annette Kellerman Is Signed by William Fox

Diving Venus Will Probably Make First Picture in Yucatan—Special Steamer Chartered for Company—Herbert Brenon Will Be Director

WILLIAM FOX has just written another chapter into screen history by signing up one of the most coveted of all photoplay stars—Annette Kellerman.

Mr. Fox intends to put "The Diving Venus" forward in a series of the most pretentious spectacular photoplays ever made. It is his intention to make the Annette Kellerman photo dramas noteworthy.

Miss Kellerman will be under the direction of Herbert Brenon, who has produced "Kreutzer Sonata," "The Clemenceau Case" and other successes. The first picture in which Miss Kellerman is to be starred will probably be filmed in Yucatan, the land of mysterious ruins and the former home of an ancient and vanished race. A large steamer has been purchased by the Fox Film corporation especially for the use of Miss Kellerman and a company of four hundred people, as there are no regular liners running to the part of Yucatan where it is expected at present advices Miss Kellerman's first picture will be made.

It is estimated at the present time that the cost of Miss Kellerman's premier photoplay will be in the neighborhood of five hundred thousand dollars. Many settings will be very elaborate.

Mr. Brenon himself will have a large part in devising the plot and spectacular scenic effects of the feature in which Miss Kellerman makes her debut under the William Fox management.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

FILM TRADE CLUB STOPS DUES AND REGULAR MEETINGS

PRACTICALLY a few weeks after its organization, the Film Trades Club of New Orleans, composed of those in "Exchange Row," automatically passed out of existence, so far as its powers of organization go.

The Film Trades Club was organized on a large scale, with officers, a paid secretary, and headquarters in the New Orleans National Bank building. Then came a recent announcement that all meetings and dues would be suspended, and that only the name would be kept. It is stated that occasional meetings will be held.

This announcement was made by one of the officers, Al. G. Shear, general manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply company:

"The Film Trades Club recently wrote a similar organization in Boston, and we found that they got along there pretty well without a sure enough association. We called a meeting here, and decided that we had a pretty good thing, socially, and that we would eliminate everything but the social end of it. We shall meet when the spirit moves, and it is liable to be a lively one at any moment."

A prominent exchange man stated that rumors of censorship had about quieted down, anyway. However, that was a day or two before Mayor Martin Behrman made film history for the Crescent City and appointed a board of five women censors to give the quietus to "Twilight Sleep."

It is understood that the Louisiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' association, organized at about the same time the exchange men did, is still active, and it is asserted that there exists a friendly and co-operative spirit between the exhibitors and the exchange men, as formerly.

LAY CORNER STONE OF V-L-S-E IN SEATTLE

THE ceremony attending the laying of the corner stone for a building to be occupied by the Seattle branch of the V-L-S-E that took place on Saturday, June 19, proved to be a gala affair, and was staged with all the pomp and dignity at the command of the Seattle city administration.

All of the Seattle newspapers devoted front page space to the story on the event.

Mayor Gill, of Seattle, played the star role, in what the newspapers called the V-L-S-E release, "Laying the Corner Stone," and the ceremony was attended by the Chamber of Commerce and all of the leading business men in the northwestern metropolis, all of whom, owing to the fact that the occasion was recorded by the Hearst-Selig "Weekly," became, for the time being, moving picture performers.

This building will be a model exchange building in every detail. In designing it, special attention was given to the peculiar and particular needs of a film exchange.

Its occupancy by the Big Four will mark the first building in the world to be used exclusively by a film exchange.

SAM SHURMAN, OF ST. LOUIS WORLD FILM, IS ALERT SALESMAN

THE St. Louis branch of the World Film corporation possesses a very alert and progressive young film salesman in Sam Shurman, who has made numerous friends in his territory during the short time he has been with the World Film. He has four years' experience in the film business to his credit, passing successively from General Film to Warners, thence to Kriterion and finally to World Film.

Mr. Shurman owns that invaluable asset to a film salesman—a pleasing personality; he is devoted to his work, is conscientious and persevering, and will have every chance of achieving a very high position in the service of World Film.

CHATBURN TAKES CHARGE OF WORLD IN MEMPHIS

T. W. CHATBURN, formerly a Mutual and Pathé traveling man, will, in a few weeks, assume charge of the Memphis office of the World Film Corporation. Until recently, Mr. Chatburn was traveling representative of the Mutual's New Orleans office. Then he went to accept a similar position with World Film, and in the words of E. Auger, southern division manager, whose employe he was, "has made good." The Memphis office of World Film will have jurisdiction over parts of Tennessee and Mississippi, Arkansas and Kentucky.

HATCH OF V-L-S-E REPORTS GOOD BUSINESS

S. W. HATCH, manager of the V-L-S-E feature exchange, which opened recently in St. Louis, reports good business and many bookings during the last few weeks.

There is hardly a theatre in the city that does not run at least one or two features a week, and the familiarity of the "fans" with many of the V-L-S-E players may account for the popularity of the features.

LIVE EVENTS IN PITTSBURGH FILM CIRCLES

M. H. BLACKWELL, feature distributors, is a new concern in the Pittsburgh film field. Mr. Blackwell, who is president of the All-Theatres Film company, of New York and Buffalo, and a brother of the screen star Carlyle Blackwell, has purchased the entire list of subjects of the Northern Film company, controlled by the Weiland exchange, and has opened offices at 113 Fourth avenue.

J. L. Fay, formerly of the Northern, is manager of the new exchange, and Alex. L. Feineigle, who was also with the Northern, will also be connected with the exchange.

Both these gentlemen are hustlers, and are well known among the exhibitors. The territory supplied by the new house is western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky.

One of the largest deals in motion pictures that has been put through in this city went over during the past few days. It was a deal involving the sale of the Independent Film exchange, A. S. Davis, manager; part of the film department of the Feature Film and Calcium Light company, D. C. Franc, manager; and the Independent Dislay company, T. D. Miller, manager.

The Universal Film Manufacturing company took over the above named concerns last Monday morning, and W. H. Hoffman, general manager of exchanges, negotiated the deal for his company. The exchange will be continued at its present location, 412-14 Ferry street, with Mr. Davis in charge.

The Universal program was heretofore handled by the Feature Film and Calcium Light company, including the serials, and will be transferred from the office of the latter company to the Ferry street offices.

The Universal program has been most successful in this territory, and while the exhibitors are generally sorry to hear of the change in ownership, they all expressed themselves as highly gratified that Mr. Davis continues as manager.

Oliver McCracken, gas expert of the Feature Film and Calcium Light company, had an accident during the past week that was most painful. He had the index finger of his left hand so badly crushed while working about one of the gas-making machines that it had to be amputated at the first joint. He is slowly recovering from the shock.

Sidney Able, manager of the Continental Film exchange in Pittsburgh, has left that company and is now with the Big Four. It is probable he will be sent to manage the Cleveland office of the company.

Mr. Harvey B. Day, of the Fox Film corporation in Pittsburgh, is in the East on business with the officials of the company.

VAN RONKEL LONG IN THE BUSINESS

I. VAN RONKEL, manager of the Chicago branch of the V-L-S-E, is quite an "old-timer" as time and film history are now reckoned. He has been active for more than a decade in Chicago motion picture circles; first as president and general manager of the American Film service, which he organized in 1905, and then as manager of the three Chicago offices of the General Film company, with whom he remained until his present connection.

Mr. Van Ronkel has been continuously engaged in the film business since the days when a dozen reels and a desk constituted a film exchange. He has been a participant as well as a witness in the rapid strides of the industry, and is therefore well equipped for his new undertaking.

I. VAN RUNKEL

Mr. Van Ronkel says, "I have noted with a great deal of satisfaction the retirement of inferior films, and the introduction of the magnificent productions as represented by the features being released by The Big Four.

"I am indeed proud to be associated with the four companies in the V-L-S-E, for I feel confident that now most of the troubles of the exhibitors will pass into history."

MURPHY OF UNITED IN BOSTON IS AFTER MAINE BUSINESS

THE United Film service, under the direction of Manager Fred B. Murphy, of Boston, has begun a two weeks' campaign for business in Maine. Four roadmen are on the job, and a photoplay news service is being circulated to the papers of that section by Mr. Murphy's publicity agent, the omnipresent Joe Di Pesa.

Mr. Murphy has just returned from various conferences held in New York. He has a lot of unconventional photographs of himself, A. Kessel and others taken at Mr. Kessel's summer place at Port Douglas, New York.

Perhaps the best of these is one of Mr. Kessel in a bathing suit trying to shove a rowboat into the water. Motion pictures of the party at Port Douglas were taken, including, no doubt, one of the obliging gentlemen who fed the party out of his auto hamper after they had suspected him of being an hotel employee at Bluff Point, and had asked him, "Anything to eat around here?"

SALVINI LANDS BIG CONTRACTS

WITH respect to his work as an outfitter of picture theatres, Manager Benjamin G. Salvini, of the Universal Film exchange, of New York, having its branch office at 229 Meadow street, New Haven, Conn., admits that he has no equal in this state.

In the face of keen competition from scores of supply dealers and exchange men in that city, Bridgeport, Hartford, Springfield, Boston and New York, he succeeded in landing contracts for the outfitting of the new $50,000 Strand theatre at Walnut Beach; the Grove Beach Casino, in Clinton, and the Wood and Whitman theatre now in course of construction near Hamden.

The three contracts are rich plums, and Manager Salvini is not compelled to congratulate himself alone.

VERY FEW THEATRES CLOSED IN BOSTON

EXCHANGE managers in Boston are saying that never were so few theatres closed at this season of the year.

Manager Campbell of the Fox exchange went to New York for the meeting of the Fox managers. The Boston office during his absence is in charge of Charles Phillips.

H. J. Rosenberg has come east from the Chicago office to go on the road for the New England office of the World Film corporation. He takes the place of Jerome Sobel, returned to the New York office.

The Picture Playhouse company has placed its war pictures in six houses in Boston.

HEYMAN WINS GOLDSTONE'S PRIZE FOR SALESMANSHIP

HARRY HEYMAN has won the distinction of being the star salesman of the Omaha office of the World Film corporation, taking the weekly prize offered by Manager Ph. Goldstone. Heyman has been a consistent salesman throughout his career, but never attained any unusual degree of success. He is a popular fellow with the exhibitors, as well as his fellow office men, however, and his attainment is bringing him many congratulations.

D. E. Block followed him, a close second, and J. Bonaff registered in third place.

MANN FINDS PARAMOUNT FILMS IN BIG DEMAND

GEO. MANN, manager of the Famous Players Feature exchange, Washington, D. C., handling the Paramount program, has recently returned from a road trip and reports additional advance for Paramount.

He will leave shortly for the Pacific coast and during his absence the exchange will be handled by his right-hand man, V. P. Whitaker, who is a hustling dependable personage not afraid of work.

REDLICH PROMOTED FROM ROADMAN TO SEATTLE MANAGER

E. R. REDLICH, manager of the Seattle, Wash., branch of the Fox Film Corporation, has been more or less interested in the motion picture industry for the past three years.

Mr. Redlich, who was born in Macon, Ga., twenty-eight years ago, acquired an extensive knowledge of the sales business while acting in the capacity of road man for several Pacific coast mercantile houses. He has served as traveling salesman for ten years. Eight months ago he started as a road man for the Fox Film Corporation, and so lustily has he boomed Fox theatres that now he holds the position of manager of the Seattle exchange.

LAKIN IS WITH CAILLE BROTHERS

JOHN R. LAKIN, formerly manager of the Detroit branch of Pathé Frères, is now special factory representative for Caille Brothers company, of Detroit, Mich., makers of the Caille automatic ticket seller.

Joseph Klein, former manager of the Detroit office of the World Film corporation, has been transferred to the Chicago office. He has been succeeded at Detroit by J. O. Kent, formerly city salesman, who has been associated with the World Film office since it was first opened.

KOHN LEAVES APEX IN FRISCO

MARION KOHN, manager of the Apex exchange, conducted at San Francisco for the past year, has given up this position.

Mr. Kohn recently came into the possession of a considerable fortune through the death of his grandfather and has left for New York to make new connections.

SOBEL PLACES BIG ORDERS IN THE HUB

JEROME SOBEL, one of the most popular and hustling young salesmen of the World Film's forces, has returned from Boston to New York after putting in some successful selling work in The Hub.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

Alice Brady Plays Role of Circe in Knickerbocker 3 Part Drama Released July 21

THE beautiful, winsome Alice Brady, a favorite Broadway star and one who has proven by the quality of her work that she is worthy of the enviable name she has won, appears in the next release of Knickerbocker Star Features, a three-part drama, "The Cup of Chance," written expressly for her by the Rev. Clarence J. Harris, a story which represents an entirely new line of work by this author.

SCENE FROM "THE CUP OF CHANCE" WITH ALICE BRADY (Knickerbocker Features)

Miss Brady has added new lustre to an already brilliant career as she interprets with such remarkable skill the life of a girl who has never had a chance in life. Her role as Hope is one of great difficulty which involves an interplay of all kinds of emotion from simple, innocent childlikeness to the extreme of waywardness.

During the filming of this drama, Miss Brady won the esteem and good will of all connected with the studio. She was called there a "jolly good fellow," and she was rightly named, for she made everyone happy as she worked, from the little child in the drama and visiting children to fellow artists and director.

In the range of emotion which Miss Brady is obliged to interpret in "The Cup of Chance," we see her a young girl whose home influence has always been the worst, a home in which motherhood was unknown, and where liberty and license reigned. Here we see innocence in the environment of wrongdoing, the girl so raised that the wrong looked right to her. Hope's sale to a whiteslaver, which results in immediate retribution to the slaver, leads to her accepting a position in an opera, "Circe," while the tragic death of her mother gives her a chance in life for which she is utterly unfitted.

In the role of Circe, Miss Brady interprets the enchanting spirit of Circe from Homer's "Odyssey." Interpreted by Matthew Arnold and others, Circe is looked upon as a goddess of sensuality, and according to Homer, she gathered admiring men about her, only to turn them into swine at her pleasure. Until the arrival of Ulysses, she plays well her part.

While acting the part of Circe in the opera, Hope, impersonated by Miss Brady, lives the part off the stage. At last, however, Hope pays the price for her folly, collapses and flees from society and the stage, only to meet and marry a rich bachelor. Here she meets her first great chance in life, but is unable to grasp it, and the marriage ends in tragedy.

The story is not a preachment. However, it has for its basic principle the fact that on account of the degraded motherhood in many instances, children are reared with false standards of morality, degrading ideals and weakened constitutions, all of which must end in wreckage of character.

More than this, untrue motherhood not only blasts the destiny of the child—it has far-reaching influence in the lives of others, for no one falls by himself.

Miss Brady has outdone herself in her work; she holds one to the last flash of the picture and handles the delicate subject with great genius and skill. "The Cup of Chance" will prove a strong attraction on the General Film program, and Miss Brady will prove in this offering that she is in the front ranks of filmdom, equal to the best, surpassed by few. The film is released July 21.

BASEBALL PICTURE FOR WORLD FILM TO CONTAIN SURPRISES

Ring Lardner, the Chicago sporting editor, recently became famous by the "Saturday Evening Post" route. He wrote a series of articles, describing the baseball and other adventures of a mythical young fellow who made Gus his confident.

Bugs and Gus are the excuse for the making of the series of pictures to be released by the World Film corporation, in which all the great people of American baseball are seen, their very own selves, Roger Bresnahan, Honus Wagner, Schulte, Garry Herrmann, and others.

There is a love interest. Bugs makes up to a pretty girl, but she prefers a husky ballplayer. When Bugs, who has a wealthy parent, tries to play ball, the effects are comic in the extreme. He gets drunk at a dinner at which the baseball magnates are present. He has a dog, whose antipathy to umpires is ferocious.

There are real baseball scenes, with real players plus the comedy element, and the quaintness of Ring Lardner's stories is absolutely rendered on the screen. The World Film anticipates that these intensely funny comedy films will go big anywhere and everywhere.

COQUILLE, NEW ORLEANS COMPANY, TO PICTURIZE NOVELS

The Coquille Film company, producers in New Orleans of the Nola brand of films, recently announced a new policy. From now on the company will picturize popular novels. The settings in most instances will be natural surroundings in and around New Orleans. The concern will experience no trouble in finding such settings, for the city abounds in historical, interesting and quaint places.

The company is producing comedies, but from this date hence, it is announced, it will go heavy on big feature productions. A number of advantageous changes in the staff have been made. W. C. Stillson, former police reporter for several dailies, and their cameraman for a year, has been named technical director. As such will have charge of the laboratory work.

LULU GLASER SIGNS WITH UNIVERSAL

One of the charmed circle of actresses who helped to make musical comedy famous, and in so doing became famous themselves, overcame her scruples to entering motion pictures last week and signed a contract to appear in a Universal Broadway feature. The actress is Lulu Glaser, one of the greatest footlight pets that ever drove the blues away from the tired business man.

George E. Kann, secretary of the Universal, and head of the feature department, is now carefully mulling over a mass of play and book material, with the purpose of finding a vehicle that will dove-tail with Miss Glaser's peculiar histrionic qualifications.

Since 1900 Miss Glaser has been known as a star on Broadway and beyond. It was as Ann in "Swet Ann Page," that she first came into her own with the blare of trumpets and big type on the billboards.

Roles which added to her fame were Angela in "The Prima Donna"; Dolly Varden in the opera of that name, a hit indeed and a great personal triumph for Miss Glaser; Mary Tuder in "The Madcap Princess," the title part in "Miss Dolly Dollars" and "Miss Dudlesack."

She also appeared in "One of the Boys," "The Aero Club," a burlesque of "The Merry Widow," "The Girl and the Kaiser," and "Lola from Berlin."

Miss Glaser is a native of Allegheny City, Pa.

ETHEL CLAYTON WINS POPULARITY CONTEST OF ONYX CLUB

The second annual photoplay favorite contest of The Onyx Club, an organization of motion picture enthusiasts, with headquarters in Denver, Colo., and branches in Missouri, Arizona and California, which has just closed, was won by Ethel Clayton, of the Lubin company, with a total of 378,235 votes.

Last year's race was won by Muriel Ostriche, now with the Vitagraph company, with Miss Clayton, the Lubin player, second. This year Miss Clayton led in the contest on the first day of every one of the nine months during its progress.

By an interesting coincidence the Lubin feature production, "The Sporting Duchess," in which Miss Clayton was featured with Rose Coghlan, was shown for the first time in Denver on the night that Miss Clayton won the contest, and the Onyx Club attended in a body and gave the Lubin star an enthusiastic reception when she appeared on the screen.

MacLARNIE PLAYS THE MINISTER IN "BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE"

Thomas MacLarnie, who played for twenty years on the stage, now is engaged in photoplays with Essanay. His first part was that of the Rev. Mr. Pemberton in "The Blindness of Virtue," the Essanay six act feature to be released through the V-L-S-E.

This is one of the important character roles of the play, and Mr. MacLarnie plays with an ease and unconsciousness as though he had been posing before the camera all his life. He was well known in leading character parts in stock at the Burbank theatre at Los Angeles, Cal.

Kalem's "Don Caesar de Bazan" Is for Release July 26

THE friends of W. Lawson Butt, the English actor who recently enacted the title role of Kalem's four-act Broadway Favorites production of the romantic drama, "Don Caesar de Bazan," have been trying to solve the reason for the particularly happy smile he wears these days. One or two people who have been taken into Mr. Butt's confidence assert that the smile is due to the fact that one of Mr. Butt's keenest desires has been gratified.

For, be it known, Mr. Butt has always wanted to see himself as others see him, when enacting Don Caesar. Prior to portraying the character before the Kalem camera, the star appeared in this role upwards of three hundred and fifty times upon the legitimate stage.

SCENE FROM "DON CAESAR DE BAZAN" (Kalem Broadway Favorites)

Although one of the idols of the English stage, Mr. Butt was unknown to theatregoers of this country until William A. Brady induced him to accept an American engagement.

"The Earth" and "Much Ado About Nothing" were Butt's vehicles during his first year in America. Later, he played character leads opposite the eminent American star, Robert Mantell. Then came a flattering offer from the Lieblers, who eventually engaged the talented English actor under a three-year contract.

Mr. Butt was given his first professional opportunity by F. R. Benson, a prominent English producer. Later came his engagement by Sir Beerbohm Tree, with whom he appeared at His Majesty's theatre, London, in "Ulysses," "Herod," "Twelfth Night" and in other big productions.

Upon completing this engagement, Mr. Butt was secured by William Gillette to enact the role of Professor Moriarity, in his presentation of "Sherlock Holmes," at the Lyceum theatre, London. His next appearance was with Louis Waller, at the Duke of York's theatre, in "Three Musketeers," "Henry V," and "Don Caesar de Bazan."

Like previous Broadway Favorites features, "Don Caesar de Bazan" will be released in regular service. The release date is Monday, July 26.

In and Out of Los Angeles Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Los Angeles, July 5.

THERE was a riot of fun on the mammoth stage of Universal City all this week, which to a more or less extent, prevented the usual efficiency in the work of production. The cause of this was the making of the first multiple reel subjects featuring a Broadway star, under the direction of Al. E. Christie, father of all Nestor comedies.

In this, Marie Tempest appears in the name part of "Mrs. Plum's Pudding." The pudding proper will not, of course, be cut for several weeks as the release date has been set for some time in August, but here is a little inside tip on the story. Mrs. Plum lives in an oil well district.

On the properties of all her neighbors oil has been found, but the experts say there was nothing underneath the sod of the widow's lot. To add to her jealousy a gusher is struck on the adjoining property, and while Mrs. Plum is absent from home, her son, Eddie (Lyons) causes an explosion which completely wrecks the Plum home, and from underneath the ruins breaks forth another gusher that made poor Mrs. Plum several times a millionaire. From that day until she shrewdly outwits the hanger-ons, social dead-beats, and plotters generally, by hiding the deed for the sale of the property in the lining of her corset, there is never a quiet moment.

Lord Burlington, badly in need of ready cash, tells her of his love, and Eddie becomes engaged to the daughter of a financially ruined society woman. A double wedding is arranged, but in the marriage hour it is discovered that the deed has been stolen.

The mother and son find supposed love was not true.

No! "The Papers" Are False

Detective Lee (Moran) Potts is put on the job to recover the stolen documents, and discovers that Mrs. Plum still has them and the stolen ones were false. He is from that time on employed not to find the papers, but it so happens that the lord and the society climber's daughter really do become infatuated with the mother and son, and the pudding is served when their sincerity is proven.

The scenario has been prepared for the feature subject in which Julia Dean will appear, and been given the working title, "Renunciation."

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis De Haven, vaudeville headliners, who closed an engagement with the Orpheum here, have been contracted for appearance in a big U subject which will be taken up in the near future.

In order to keep up the regular releases for the Universal program several additions have been made to the directing staff. Dr. E. H. Stafford, who has been writing scenarios for the Universal for the past two years, will make one, two and three-reel subjects, and Clarence G. Badger, also a former member of the scenario staff, who has written more than one hundred Joker comedies has been given a company.

The latter is now engaged in producing the first subject, entitled "So They Made It a Family Affair." This is a comedy of Italian life, and the principal players are Bobbie Vernon, Fred Ardath and Carmen Phillips. Fred Granville is in charge of the camera work.

Sets Big Boost

For a scenario writer to become a director without experience as an actor or even assistant director, is a new departure but officers of the Universal organization have come to believe that the writers selected will be very capable producers.

Lynn Reynolds, former assistant director, has been placed in charge of the making of one hundred and fifty to two hundred foot subjects to be used as a "Booklovers Contest," which will soon become a feature of the Universal Animated Weekly."

Normand McDonald, formerly director of Francis X. Bushman Essanay subjects, has been engaged by the Universal, and will direct a special company making from one to three reel subjects. Mr. McDonald takes up his work the first of the coming week.

The Fred Hornby National comedy company is this week filming "The Bachelor's Dream," with a cast composed of Russ Powell, Rena Rogers, Constance Johnston, and Kathrine Griffith. A persistent book agent sells the bachelor a copy of Darwin's "Origin of Species," which he reads following a dinner in which welsh rarebit was the principal of the menu. In a dream he sees the improvement of the monkey family during the cave man period, the stone age, and up to the present time, and finally he is awakened when he sees the book agent caressing the original monkey. This two-reel subject has a very unique ending.

It has been decided by Frank Garbutt, president of Bosworth, Inc., that the vaudeville sketch, "Home and Politics," used by Macklyn Arbuckle for two seasons throughout the east and south, will be adapted for a four or five-reel film subject.

This sketch is by Edgar A. Guest who conducts the "Breakfast Table" column of the Detroit Free Press. The filming will be taken up at once as Mr. Arbuckle, who is now at the studio, has an engagement which requires that he be in New York for reheasals by August 1.

Garbutt Contracts With Standing

President Garbutt has just made a new contract with Herbert Standing, who has been appearing in leading character parts of Bosworth subjects for the past year. By the terms of this contract Mr. Standing is to remain the second year with the company and will be featured in a number of subjects: Mr. Standing is one of the best known legitimate stage character men.

UNIVERSAL BEAUTIES TAKING PART IN "BEAUTY INCOGNITO," WITH J. WARREN KERRIGAN—CENTER: REX DE ROSSELLI AND RUTH M. PURCELL, WINNER OF THE CONTEST

Quality Pictures, Inc., took up the filming of their second subject in which Francis X. Bushman will be starred. The title of this is, "The Silent Voice," and it will consist of five or six acts. The cast besides Mr. Bushman includes Margaret Snow, W. C. Clifford, Lester Cueno, Helen Dunbar and Evelyn Greeley, and the direction will be in charge of William Bowman.

Delegates to the National Editorial convention were in Los Angeles this week and were entertained Tuesday at the NYMP studios.

The party making the trip to and from Inceville in carry-all automobiles.

At the motion picture plant a program of more than two hours was given by members of the producing companies, including a welcome address by Thomas H. Ince, vocal selection by Truly Shattuck, late star of "Alma Where Do You Live?" short stories by Willard Mack, Enid Markey and

THE BURTON KING—ADELE LANE (U) COMPANY ON THE TRAIL

Walter Perry, crayon sketches by Clyde Tracy, and numerous western stunts by Inceville cowboys.

A barbacue dinner was served in the elaborate mission set. Music was furnished by a band and Hawaiian ukulele players.

Elaine Stearn, of New York City, a well known scenario writer, is spending a vacation as the guest of members of the Pacific coast branch of the Photoplay Authors' League.

Colonel W. H. Selig has departed for New York, after spending several weeks at the Los Angeles studios. Mr. Selig expects to return to the west coast with the Selig special and personally see that all his guests are royally entertained.

The Tom Mix western Selig company, numbering in all about twenty-five, departed Tuesday for Las Vegas, New Mexico. They took with them their horses and all other western equipment, which consisted of several carloads.

"Jungle Lovers," is the title of a three-reel animal drama by James Oliver Kirwood, being made at the Selig zoo under the direction of Lloyd B. Carleton, with a cast composed of Bessie Eyton, Edward Peal, Edwin Wallock, Gene Fraser, and Roy Clark. This is a story of an accentric scientist who becomes a hermit with the sole purpose of completing experiments.

During his lonely life he recovers two children taken by the Zulus following the murder of their parents, and later by a device that he invented he prevents numerous crimes from being committed in the jungle wilds.

Conscience-Stricken Capital Forks Over

A three-reel adaptation is being filmed from the play, "The Man with the Iron Heart," by Henry Kolker and Dion Titheridge. The scenario was prepared by Emma Bell. This is a capital and labor story in which the president of a big syndicate who oppresses his employes eventually sees the injustice of his ways and makes restitution. Vivian Reed, Al Tilson and Eugene Palatte appear in the principal parts.

"The Adventures of Chang" is a one-reel Selig production in which the big orangutang appears in the name part. The story is by Emma Bell, and the scenes are laid in California and the Isle of Borneo. Ann Drew appears in the principal role.

A political story entitled, "The Clause in the Constitution," of three reels, is being made at the Selig Edendale studio. This is a story of corrupt politics, political intrigue, and concerns the efforts of an honest politician to conserve the interests of the people. Stella Rosetta, Joe King and George Hernandez compose the cast.

The Leonard-Hall Rex brand company are filming "The Little Blonde in Black," in which Ella Hall appears in the name part. This is a comedy drama of a club man who becomes infatuated with the feminine member of a gang of crooks. The club man is played by Robert Leonard. He is induced to aid the thief of a diamond cross, who is the girl, to escape. Many of the scenes will be made in the beautiful grounds of the Beverly Hills hotel, where the girl commits the crime.

ALMA REUBEN AS THE LORELEI IN "THE LORELEI MADONNA" (Vitagraph)

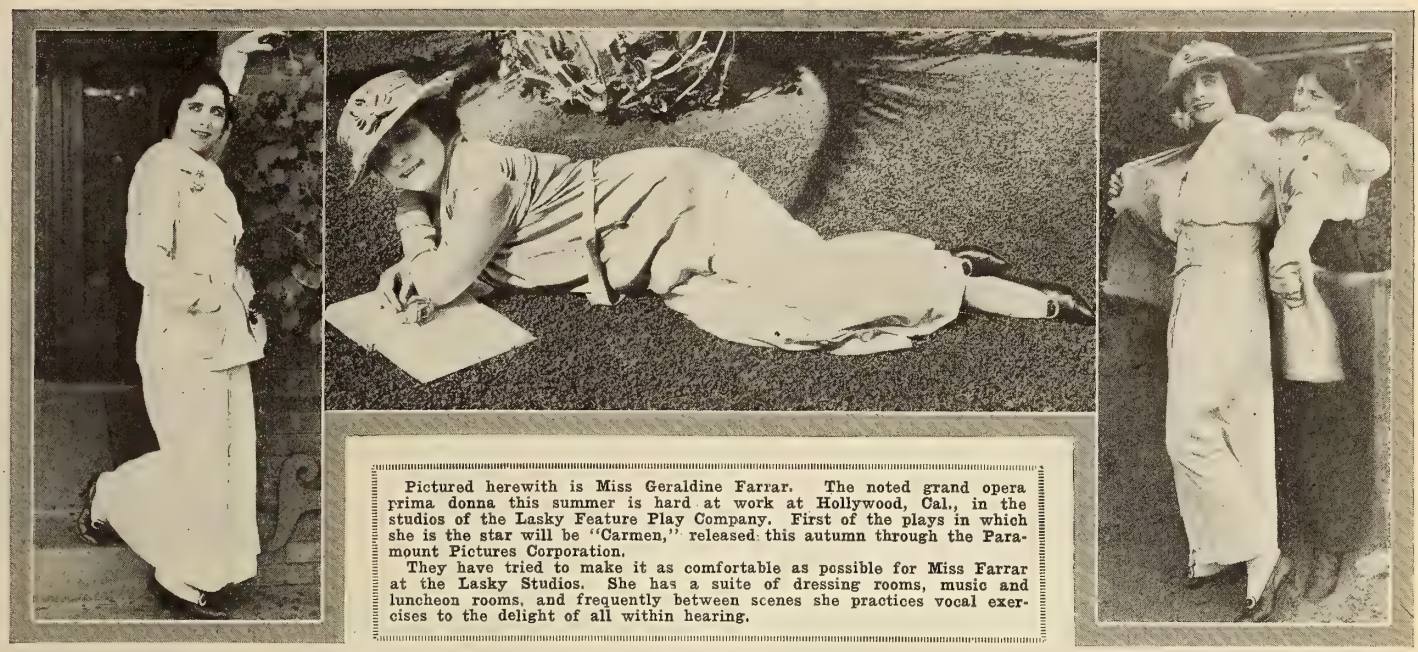
The Victor-Kerrigan company at Lake Tahoe is filming a two-reel subject entitled, "Payment Received," written and produced by Jacques Jaccard. The story pertains to the misunderstanding of a wealthy rancher and his wife with regard to his relations with the daughter of a poor neighbor, but the error is discovered before the home ties are broken.

"Empty Gun" Brings Full Life

A crook story in which a second-story man is persuaded not to rob a house by the niece of the owner, forms the plot for

GRACE AND MINA CUNARD (Universal)

"The Empty Gun." Eventually the girl succeeds in inducing the criminal to forsake the paths he has followed and begin life anew. Marjorie Beardsley and Murdock MacQuarrie play the principal parts in this Laemmle Universal brand release.



James Snyder, member of the Mack Sennett Keystone stock company, while taking part in a benefit baseball game for the widow of a former Pacific coast idol, fell, breaking his shoulder bone, and will be unable to resume work for a number of weeks.

Mack Sennett sent a number of his leading comedians to take part in this benefit game, with the result that the grandstand and bleachers contained the biggest crowd of the season. In the party were Roscoe Arbuckle, Ford Sterling and Slim Summerville.

The arrival of Fred Mace at the Keystone studio a few days ago, marked a very happy reunion taken part in by Mack Sennett, Fred Mace, Ford Sterling and Mabel Normand.

Eddy Foy, together with all the little Foys, have been contracted for appearance in Keystone comedies under the direction of Mack Sennet, and will soon arrive at the Los Angeles studio to begin work in two-reel subjects.

The entire producing staff of the Biograph company which has been working at the Los Angeles studio, Girard and Georgia streets, since January 4, departed the first of last week for New York in a special train of ten coaches over the Santa Fe railway. With but few exceptions, all the staff which came to the west coast returned to the eastern studio. It is expected the company will return here, arriving about the first of the coming year. Prior to the departure of the Biographer's local photoplayers and friends of Los Angeles, gave a number of farewell parties and balls.

Anti-War Subject Named After Song

"I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier" is the title of anti-militarism subject, being made at the Selig Edendale studio by Frank Beal, in which Harry Mestayer has the featured part, supported by an excellent cast composed of Eugenie Bresserer, Guy Oliver, Harry De Vere and Anna Luther. The story brings out the uselessness of war, and is laid in the land of two imaginary nations. The subject will be completed in three or four reels.

Colin Campbell is making the last scene for "The Devil in Chief," a very strong story from the pen of Lanier Bartlett, of the Selig scenario staff. This portrays the life of an anarchist played by Tyron Power, who comes to hate all society and especially women, when the only woman he ever confided in or lovel, betrays him to the police.

In escaping he stows away in an ocean liner which is wrecked, and he is the sole survivor, cast on a desert island. After a lapse of time a girl is washed ashore from another wreck, whom he decides to raise and later sacrifice. His act is prevented by the arrival of a naval officer who causes his hatred of women to change and he becomes the jealous rival of the naval officer. He is killed following a fight when he leaps off a cliff. The photoplay, which will be in two reels, will end by a vision scene in which the anarchist's soul appears at his hut on the island, which he has labeled "Hell." and enters. Tyron Power is supported by Wheeler Oakman, Edith Johnson and Eugenie Bresserer.

Lanier Bartlett, who is preparing the working script for the production of "The Crisis," for the Selig company, is now completing his task. In this there will be more than a thousand scenes for the twelve reel subject, which in all probability will be taken up in the near future.

Joyce Moore, leading woman at the Balboa studio, is absent, owing to illness and a major operation performed at a local hospital.

Maclyn Arbuckle is now playing his second visit to the Bosworth studio, appearing in a special subject. Dustin Farnum is among the others who will appear at an early date.

The filming of the Ibsen play, "Peer Gynt," featuring Cyril Maude, was completed the latter past of last week by Director Oscar Apfel, who immediately departed for New York to take up work with the Fox Film corporation.

Frank Lloyd, for the past eight months director for the Universal, following three years playing heavies with the Otis Turner special feature company, has been selected as director for the Bosworth-Morosco subjects and began his work there last week.

Lloyd Films His Last U Subject

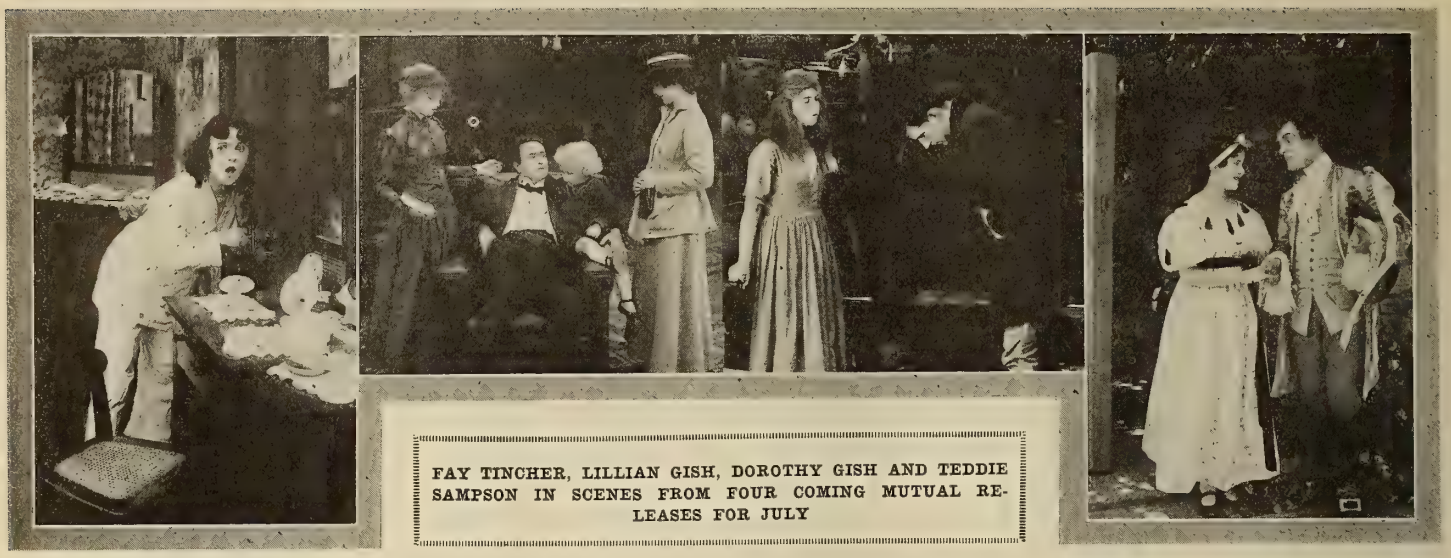
The filming of "Carmen," with Geraldine Farrar in the title part, was taken up this week at the Lasky studio. Included in the cast will be Pedro De Cordoba, Anita King, H. B. Carpenter, Wallace Reid, and Ernest Joy. A great many of the scenes will be completed at the great ranch in San Fernando Valley, leased by the Lasky company. The bull fight scenes will be made at the Los Angeles stadium, where a bull fight will be staged July 11 and 12.

The first photo-drama written by Hector Turnbull, late dramatic critic of the New York "Tribune," is being filmed this week at the Lasky studio, and will feature Charlotte Walker. The title has not been given this subject, which will consist of five reels.

For the first time in the motion picture theatrical career of Blanche Sweet she is impersonating a character of a dual personality. The photoplay is an adaptation from the stage play "The Case of Becky," by Edward Locke. Carlyle Blackwell will play the male lead, and direction will be by Frank Richer.

During the past week the Frank Lloyd-Laemmle company completed the filming of "The Doctor's Dilemma," in which M. K. Wilson, Olive Golden, and Mark Robbins appear as principals. This is the story of a small town physician and the heart-rending experiences he has in waiting for practice, showing the temptations that befall a man when luck plays against him, and that perseverance generally brings the desired results. This will be the last Universal subject for Mr. Lloyd, as he goes to the Bosworth company.

"Haunting Winds" is the title of a one reel being made by the Carl Le Viness company, composed of Sydney Ayres, Doris Pawn and Baby Georgia French. The scenario is adapted from a story of the same name by G. C. Jenks, the adaptation being completed by Earl Hewitt. In this an invalid spends his time in the mountains for his health's sake, and when penniless, robs a hermit. From that time on until he returns the money he suffers mental anguish, the incident being constantly recalled to him by atmospheric conditions.



The two subjects taken up during the beauty contest, "Lizzie and the Beauty Contest" by the Al E. Christie-Nestor company, and "The World to Come" by the 101 Bison company have both been completed. These two companies are now taking up the filming of feature subjects for the Universal feature program.

"Coral" is the title of the four-reel subject to be made by the 101 Bison. This is a story of a sculptor who recognizes talent in the adopted daughter of a fisherman, when he sees an image she has made in the sand. He persuades the fisherman to permit him to educate the girl. Later a series of incidents brings out the fact that the girl is the daughter of a French sculptor from whom she was separated following a sea accident, the girl having been carried by the sea to the home of the fisherman.

Christie Directs Marie Tempest

Director Al Christie is directing a production in which Marie Tempest, the first of the legitimate stage stars to arrive at Universal City, will be featured.

The Jokerites are combining comedy with a fairy story in the making of "Their Bewitched Elopement," in which the youthful lover aids the fairy queen to escape from a bear-trap in which she has been caught, in return for which he is given a magic whistle. Ever after, the lovers are able to overcome the obstacles placed in their path by their father, mother and the rivals. Allen Curtis is directing this from the scenario of Clarence C. Badger, and the usual Joker company is taking part.

The Burton King company is spending a week in the foothills, making exteriors for two subjects. One is "In the Heart of the Hills," featuring Adele Lane as the daughter of a mountaineer who falls in love with the caretaker of a private estate and refuses the hand of the sheriff of the county. Later the girl's father has trouble with the caretaker. A fight follows and the father is badly injured, all of which results in the girl recalling her promise to wed.

The second subject is "His Nemesis." In this Miss Lane appears as the daughter of a mine operator who, with her crippled brother, successfully battles with, chases and captures the lone robber who attempts to steal the money sent to the mine for payday. Supporting Miss Lane are Edward Sloman and Jack Wilson.

The Gold Seal company is making "A Fiery Introduction," in which a playwright and the actress who is to be starred in his latest play meet and fall in love with each other when they are driven from their apartments in the same building by a fire. A. M. Moon appears as the playwright and Cleo Madison as the actress. Direction is in charge of Charles Giblyn.

Policeman Comedy Made by Nestor

"The Rise and Fall of Officer 13" is the Nestor production of the week. It has to do with the fortunes and misfortunes of the policeman who wooed the cook, and because of the intense heat in the kitchen, hung his new uniform coat on the exterior door knob. First the coat was used by a young man who succeeded in preventing a street robbery, for which officer 13 was given a medal. Then a second story man borrowed it and 13 proved to be as unlucky as ever.

The Weber-Smalley company departed for Chicago the early part of last week in two special cars where interior scenes for the eight-reel film version of the opera "The Dumb Girl of Portici," featuring Anna Pavlowa and her company of sixty players, will be made. Those in the party besides the directors were Dal Clawson, cameraman; Frank Ormston, technical director; Rupert Julian, Douglas Girard, John Holt, Hart Hoxie, Wadsworth Harris, William Walbert, Edna Maison, Betty Schade, and Laura Oakley, members of the cast, and technical men Robert Walters, William Carr, Fred Tyler, and Nat E. Watts. The company will return to Universal City to make exteriors about August 1, at which time they will be accompanied by Madame Pavlowa and her players.

Miss Billie Rhodes has been selected as comedienne for the Nestor comedy company No. 1, playing with Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran to succeed Victoria Forde, who has become a member of the Tom Mix western Selig company, which will leave for Las Vegas, New Mexico, in the near future. Miss Rhodes, a former vaudeville and cabaret singer, has been in pictures for the past two years, playing with the Kalem and Universal companies. Since the organization of the second Nestor company she has been playing leads.

"The Broken Coin" serial company are now making No. 10 of the series.

Powers Puts on Heart Interest Subject

"Old Mother Grey" is the name of a heart interest story being made by Director Francis Powers at the Reliance-Majestic studio. This features Josephine Crowell in the name part, supported by Teddy Sampson as a newspaper vender, Bert Hadley, Olga Grey and William Lowry.

The plot unfolds the attempt of a nephew to have his aunt adjudged insane in order to secure the money she has inherited. The news girl first informs the woman of the inheritance and later is of great aid in preventing the nephew from carrying out his plans.

John Emerson, now filling an engagement at the Reliance-Majestic studio, has turned his waiting moments to advantage in writing the libretto for a musical comedy entitled "Step Lively." This has been purchased by Oliver Morosco, and will be produced during the coming season.

"Her Fairy Prince" is the name given a fantastical photoplay with a vein of melodrama, produced at the Reliance-Majestic in two reels by Joseph Belmont. In this a child, while reading fairy tales in the attic, discovers a former convict hiding there and makes him her fairy prince. How she aids him to escape makes an interesting story.

The Los Angeles fire department last week took part in the making of another photoplay, "Soul's Triumphant," a master picture produced by John O'Brien at the Majestic. For the fire scenes a two-story residence with front porch, balcony porch, twelve windows, and having a depth of forty feet and width of twenty-four feet and a height of twenty-two feet, was built and burned.

ANOTHER "SCHOOL" FAKER SENT TO JAIL

Exhibitors of York, Pa., who are eager to see fakers, who bring discredit on the business, shown up in their true colors, are gratified at the sentence imposed by the court there on the man who gave his name as Ralph E. Hermann, of Tampa, Fla., after he pleaded guilty to false pretense in connection with the fake "motion picture school" he established in that city. Hermann was sent to jail for four months.

Hermann recently advertised the opening of a school for motion picture actors and actresses and, it was testified, took five or ten dollars from about forty stage-struck young men and women of York as fees for instruction in acting for the pictures. He failed to provide the instruction, and in fact, it developed that he had no camera or other paraphernalia for making films, all of which he confessed after his arrest at the instance of Mayor Lefean.

TO TEST SUNDAY OPENING IN ANDERSON, IND.

J. R. Denniston, manager of the Grand at Anderson, Ind., and L. L. Richmond, his operator, have been arrested for operating the theatre on Sunday.

Denniston was chosen by the Anderson exhibitors to test the Sunday law, and they have agreed to back the case through the courts. Denniston and Richmond were released on cash bonds.

Maine Court Blocks Entry of Johnson Fight Film

THE attempt to bring into the United States, through Maine, a film of the Johnson-Willard world's heavyweight championship fight at Havana was blocked in the United States district court at Portland, Me., last week.

The presiding judge, Hon. Clarance Hale, after a long hearing, refused to grant a petition by the Kalisthenic Exhibition company, of New York, for a preliminary injunction to restrain the collector of the port or his agents from interfering with the entry of the negatives which reached Portland by express from Canada about a week ago.

What the next step to get this film into the United States will be, counsel for the Kalisthenic company, of which the promoter, John Curley, is president, has not decided. It is not considered likely, however, that the matter will be abandoned. The film now lies in the vaults of the United States custom house in Portland.

"It is incumbent upon the plaintiff to show that the negative is not a pictorial representation of a prize-fight and is not designed to be used for the purposes of public exhibition," said Judge Hale, in rendering his decision. "The plaintiff has failed to make this point clear, and I am inclined to believe that it is to be used for public exhibition from the evidence offered. The fact that such an exhibition is a limited exhibition is not conclusive as to its not being a public exhibition."

Robert Treat Whitehouse, of Portland, former United States district attorney, appeared for the company and stated to the court that the Kalisthenic company was organized for the private exhibition of these pictures. The act of 1913, he argued, in no way prevented the importation of a film when it is not intended or designed for public exhibition. He claimed that the company by its very incorporation is limited to private exhibitions, the public exhibitions, if there ever were to be any, being reserved to the owner, L. Lawrence Weber, as his right. Consequently the owner's rights would be infringed on if the Kalisthenic company made a public showing of the pictures.

He further contended that the negative did not come under the classification of the law which applies to "any pictorial representation which might be used for public exhibition."

As a negative it is incapable of being used for such a purpose. He admitted that positives of the negative could and were intended to be made, but argued that if this negative, which does not come under the law, were refused entry because it could result in making something that was under the ban of the law, then the importation of hundreds of basic materials would have to be prohibited by this country, as many things are allowed to come in at present which may be made into prohibited articles afterward.

He submitted an affidavit of President Curley to the effect that the films were to be shown only privately. He also stated that the owner, Mr. Weber, is now engaged in litigation to secure to himself the privilege of public exhibitions and to prove the act prohibiting the importation of positives unconstitutional.

Asked by the court what a private exhibition is, the attorney replied that the films were designed to be furnished to clubs and shown to the members free.

When the court said that it is a pictorial representation of a prize fight, the attorney contended that it would at present show the fight backward and the black man would be shown white and the victory would go to the loser.

Hon. J. F. A. Merrill, the district attorney, argued that the company had applied for extraordinary relief, and yet had been organized after the making of the law. "Whatever situation of difficulty the company is in," he said, "it has made for itself and is not entitled to extraordinary remedy."

After hearing both sides for nearly three hours, the court proceeded to render his decision.

Censorship in Pennsylvania Gains Empty Victory

IN the opinion of motion picture exhibitors near Harrisburg, Pa., the decision announced by the Pennsylvania Supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the act of 1911 legislature, creating a state board of censors, was an empty victory for the friends of censorship. The picture interests point to the fact that the act, the constitutionality of which was under fire, was repealed in its entirety by the legislature of the present year, so that there was little real significance to the decision which has just been made, for that law already is inoperative. The litigation testing the 1911 act was pending before the 1915 legislature assembled and, of course, before it could have been known that the 1911 law was to be repealed.

The law passed by the legislature this year, taking the place of the repealed 1911 act, is far less drastic than the old law in a number of respects and it is regarded by the motion picture interests as a good deal of a concession to them, though far from being entirely satisfactory. Persons who have studied the legal phases of the situation hold there is nothing to prevent a court test being made of the new law should any of the motion picture interests be so disposed, even though it does maintain some features of the repealed act.

In Pennsylvania the Supreme court is an appellate court. The action which it dismissed was an appeal from a decision by Judge Martin, of the Common Pleas court of Philadelphia, filed by the Buffalo branch, Mutual Film corporation; Mutual Film corporation of Pennsylvania, the Interstate Films company and the Overbrook theatre.

The action was against J. Louis Breitinger and Mrs. E. C. Niver, who constituted the board of censors created by the act of 1911, and who are retained as two members of the board of three censors created under the law of 1915. The action was dismissed by the Common Pleas court and carried to the appellate body by the film interests referred to above.

The complainants, in testing the constitutionality of the act, sought an injunction to restrain the censors from acting, and held that the law was in conflict with both the state and federal constitutions. The Supreme court (in upholding the lower court) said:

"The cases all were disposed of by the President Judge of the court below, whose elaborate discussion of the questions raised below and here leaves nothing that can profitably be added to sustain the decrees.

"It may be suggested that since the decrees were entered the Supreme court of the United States in the Mutual Film corporation vs. Industrial commission of Ohio, and Mutual Film company, of Missouri, vs. Hodges, Governor of the State of Kansas, has considered and decided most of the questions raised by the appellants here, and its conclusion is in accord with the learned Court of Common Pleas in these cases. The majority of the court are of the opinion that the decree should be affirmed.

CHATTANOOGA SUNDAY LAW IS UP FOR TEST BY EXHIBITORS

Six managers of motion picture theatres at Chattanooga, Tenn., were summoned into court last week to answer to a charge of having violated the Sunday law by keeping their houses open on that day. After the summonses had been served by a deputy sheriff, Attorney General Whittaker stated that the state would not prosecute for the reason that the operation of motion picture theatres on one Sunday does not constitute a violation of the law.

He said further that since he had not been informed as to the reasons the theatres were open three Sundays prior to June 27, or as to whether or not they were operated for profit, he regards the exhibitions on that date as the first time the picture men prosecuted their regular business on Sunday, and therefore, under the law, they had not violated the statute.

The exhibitors held a meeting later and decided to have a test case as quickly as possible so as to arrive at a definite understanding as to the law on the matter.

According to the Tennessee ruling, it seems that the theatres must be operated more than one Sunday before it constitutes a violation. The exhibitors claim that the law allows the theatres to do business on Sunday as well as tobacco, drug and other establishments. The announcement that the picture men will continue to do business on Sunday has brought forth a protest from some of the church people of Chattanooga.

BREITINGER ISSUES PASSES BY WHOLESALE

Special to Motion Picture News

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 6.—Motion picture men are protesting against the number of passes recently issued by J. Louis Breitinger, the state censor. Wilkes-Barre exhibitors have not been "pestered" with the "duckets," but reports from other parts of Northeastern Pennsylvania are to the effect that many passes have been presented to ticket takers.

Members of the legislature have been supplied with the passes, which enable them to enter free any motion picture theatre in the state. The tickets automatically make the holder a "state inspector" and must be honored by the owners of theatres.

CAN SELL ONLY ENOUGH TICKETS TO FILL SEATS

Exhibitors of Evansville, Ind., have been notified by Building Inspector Kerth that they can sell only enough tickets to fill the house. The law says that no one shall stand in the aisles except city officials on duty and two employes of each theatre.

"The law is strict," said Kerth, "and I intend to enforce it. The warning I am sending is the last. Every violation henceforth will be followed by arrest."

CORT SELLS MONTANA RIGHTS OF "MELTING POT"

The rights for the state of Montana to "The Melting Pot," the Cort Film corporation's production of Israel Zangwill's great play, have been sold to Dick P. Sutton, of Butte, Mont.

Levey Operates New State Rights Plan with Success

Number of Theatres Governs Price Asked, and Refusing Bids, He Selects One Exchange in Given Locality to Handle His Pictures

BERNARD LEVEY, president of the Reel Photo-Play company, has recently returned from the Pacific coast, visiting many of the important exchanges en route to the east. Mr. Levey has gathered much information concerning the marketing of feature programs.

BERNARD LEVEY

Mr. Levey is of the same opinion of many others in the film industry at the present time. He believes that the most popular program of all is the kind arranged on the style of the Strand theatre in New York City. One big feature, a comedy, a scenic, a news film and an educational, he states, combine to form the desirable program.

Regarding the marketing of the features of his own program Mr. Levey has this to say, "I am against the generally accepted style of selling the states rights on feature films. Of course an established feature program, such as Paramount, Fox, World Film and the V-L-S-E control the greater part of their exchanges and have done away with the states rights proposition altogether, but with smaller distributing organizations like the Reel Photo-Play company, the case is different.

"In marketing my features I measure the sum I expect to receive by the number of theatres in the respective territory. I receive no bids. I have selected an exchange in each territory, I have figured the price that I expect to receive from that exchange and give them first preference on the picture. If they fail to meet with my demands I go to another distributing organization. In other words, my plan puts the business on a pure and simple commercial basis, a basis which I believe in time all the smaller manufacturers and buyers will resort to."

Mr. Levey has had a wide experience in the general theatrical business, and has been connected with the picture business for some length of time. Associated with him in the Reel Photo-Play company are Chris O. Brown and Maurice J. Katz, both competent and well versed film men.

In August the concern will release two subjects, "The Burglar and the Lady," a five part feature, starring James J. Corbett, and "Modern Monte Christo," featuring Claire Whitney. Two other subjects with noted stars are now in preparation.

Mr. Levey is a firm believer in the selection of prominent players to feature in pictures. It is a great advertising asset to flash a star's name from a theatre, and then again he says that the majority of stars that appear in films make good.

Miss Grant Trips Through Lubin Play as Colleen

In "All for Old Ireland," First of a Series of Dramas with Emerald Isle Setting, Released July 14, Dainty Star Is Seen in Charming Role

A DISTINCT novelty in the way of photoplays, and one which no doubt will attract wide interest, will be the first of a series of made-in-Ireland comedy dramas, featuring Valentine Grant, which will be released by the Lubin company on July 14.

These plays were especially made for the Lubin company by Sidney Olcott, one of the best known producers of Irish stories, and were filmed along the rugged cliffs and broken shores of South Kerry and amid the wondrous and picturesque scenery of the Gap, of Dunloe and the lakes of Killarney, so famed in song and story.

The first of the series is "All for Old Ireland," and is a three reeler. In two of the plays Mr. Olcott himself plays opposite Miss Grant in characters that have made him famous in the past as a delineator of the rollicking, light-hearted, and romantic "gossoon." Miss Grant is charming in her roles. Her pretty and sincere conceptions of the ready-witted "colleen" are delightful, and have brought the little newcomer unbounded compliments from all who have seen the private showing of these films, both here and abroad.

The supporting company includes Laurene Santley, Pat O'Malley, Robert Rivers, Charles McConnel, Arthur Leigh, all of whom were taken abroad, and a number of Irish players, among whom are "Sonny" and Eddie O'Sullivan and Norah Hines.

"All for Old Ireland" is a story of the days of '98 when all Ireland was preparing to resist the iron grasp that was about to close around it. It is replete with charm and dramatic interest. Throughout the play runs a rich vein of humor.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By George D. Proctor

ANTICIPATION of the coming national convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and the attendant exposition out in San Francisco, July 13 to 16 is rousing exhibitors. With a chance to see the Panama-Pacific exposition as an added attraction this convention ought to be the biggest ever held, despite the necessary trip to the coast. M. S. Pearce, the national president, and the members of the executive board have been on the job for some time and optimistic forecasts are all one hears.

If this convention isn't the biggest success of any yet, both in the matter of size and of harmony, somebody ought to be ashamed of himself (meaning no one in particular). Time was when the exhibitors' leagues were so split by politics and bickerings that a really high class exhibitor hesitated to join. Now comes the first national convention since peace with honor was concluded. This is the time to prove that peace and harmony are really here and that the league is an organization to help the exhibitor, not for personal aggrandizement.

Some of these days a special showing of a picture will start on time and great will be the wonderment and joy thereat.

The Metro exercises in Times square, on July 5, certainly went off successfully. In the presence of a large crowd and several cameramen, Emily Stevens, a Metro star, pulled the cord that unfurled what is said to be the largest American flag in the world.

The flag was suspended, with the stripes hanging perpendicularly, across Forty-second street between the Times building and the Heidelberg Tower. Its breadth almost filled the street, while it was long enough to wave in the breeze and hit the buildings on the other side of Broadway.

Marcus M. Marks, borough president of Manhattan, made a speech, and Harry Reichenbach's white head on the speakers' platform gave the cameras something to focus on. All in all, it was a howling success.

Sol. Lesser, who dropped in from San Francisco long enough to stay over night, enjoyed it immensely. Sol went back to San Francisco the next day with Harry Reichenbach.

By the way George Weatherspoon, former dramatic critic and advance man, and an able citizen, will sit at the Metro advertising and publicity desk for the next few weeks, while Harry is away.

Sol Lesser brought with him a letter from the Panama-Pacific exposition authorities assuring him that Thursday, July 15, is Metro day at the big fair. Francis X. Bushman and Peggy Snow will receive, and the big flag will be thrown to the air again.

Samuel M. Spedon, managing head of the Vitagraph publicity department, drew two "getaway dinners" on the eve of his departure for Panama on a six weeks' vacation. Eight members of his publicity force tendered him a little dinner at the National Democratic Club while another dinner was given him at the Screen Club with a floral horseshoe on the side. Sam will take a long rest and come back a better tangoer than ever. In his absence John W. Gray is the man.

Benjamin P. Schulberg, the Famous Players publicity and advertising manager, decided some time between last Friday night and Saturday noon just where he would spend his vacation. At any rate he loaded up with fishing tackle. He swears he's going to forget business for two weeks, but one would hate to make a mistake, even in his absence.

And, just as Benny was leaving, Al Kaufman, the studio manager, got back from the coast. Al is going to work at the old Reliance studios up in Yonkers with two companies headed by Hazel Dawn and Mary Pickford. Sid Olcutt will direct one company.

To Master Stanley Meyer falls the honor of being the youngest representative of Motion Picture News. Stanley is the son of Fred S. Meyer, who has represented Motion Picture News for a long time in the north and middle west. Stanley is being trained in the way he should go. The picture was taken during convention week in Minneapolis.

The "Universal Weekly" has been changed to the "Moving Picture Weekly" and made a publication of wider interest. General trade news and Universal, General Film and Mutual release dates are printed. The inside stock has been changed but the size and general appearance of the book remain the same. Paul S. Gulick remains as editor and Bob Doman as city editor. Wade L. Morton appears as advertising manager.

Cranston Brenton has been elected chairman of the National Board of Censors, succeeding Frederick C. Howe, who resigned to become Commisioner of Immigration of the port of New York. Mr. Brenton is an ex-college professor. He also served as executive secretary of the Social Service commission of the diocese of New York, and is a relief director of the American Red Cross. Now he can gratify the unsatisfied yearnings of years and see all the pictures he wants to—maybe more.

Pretty Ethel Clayton, Lubin star, just won a popularity contest conducted by the Onyx Club of Denver, with branches in Missouri, Arizona and California. The next three were Mary Fuller, Charlie Chaplin and Francis X. Bushman, so it was a regular contest. Muriel Ostriche won last year.

Lynde Denig wants Frank Bannon to bring his automobile (rank blarney) around at the Edison private showings. Lynde lives on Frank's route home.

A new magazine, "Film Fun," is on the news stands. That sounds as if it was a film publication. Maybe it is so intended, but the reading matter takes an undeserved wallop at the motion picture when it says that the sums that poor families spend at moving picture shows are the reason why they "never rise above a hand-to-mouth existence." Oh, well!

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Callers at the offices of Motion Picture News last week includes the following exchange managers of the Fox Film corporation: William J. Citron, San Francisco; A. T. Lambson, Los Angeles; E. R. Redlech, Seattle; Frelo Carmichael, Denver, excellent representatives of one of the livest wired organizations in the industry.

Thomas Thompson, manager of the Columbia theatre in Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, is in town looking for new features.

Sol Lesser of San Francisco, made a forty-eight-hour visit.

J. Arthur Eslow, manager of the New England Universal exchanges, was in town conferring with President Laemmle.

CHANGES OF THE WEEK

Lulu Glaser goes with the Universal.

Will E. Sheerer, character man, is now with Selig.

Hazel Buckham is back with the Universal west coast forces after an absence of several months.

Annette Kellerman is to appear in a Fox picture, directed by Herbert Brenon, maker of "Neptune's Daughter," in which Miss Kellerman starred.

J. L. WARNER BUYS ALL-STAR THEATRE IN FRISCO

Special to Motion Picture News

San Francisco, July 5.

J. L. Warner, formerly manager of Warner's Features at San Francisco, but more recently in the exchange business on his own account, operating the Standard Film company, has purchased the All-Star theatre at Fillmore and Sutter streets.

He is also continuing his exchange work, having just moved to the third floor of the Pacific building and installed a large stock of Chaplin films.

The All-Star theatre has been operated for some time by the Kahn and Greenfield circuit and was disposed of to enable this concern to devote more of its attention to its other houses.

World Film's News Weeklies Will Parallel Dailies

In Principal Cities, in Conjunction with Newspapers, Company Will Issue 500 Feet of Local Events and 500 Feet of "Foreign" Happenings

THE World Film Corporation will distribute through its exchanges, starting Monday, August 2, a news weekly conducted along new and novel lines, which have been carefully planned to meet the demands of what the public wants.

This news film will handle news along lines parallel to the way a newspaper handles news. That is to say, five hundred feet will be purely local news and the remaining five hundred feet will be subjects gathered from all over the country.

This will be secured through co-operation with leading newspapers in each of the cities where the World Film Corporation has exchanges. Cameramen, stationed in these cities, will be in close touch with the newspapers, which will keep them informed of current events and also of fires, wrecks and such matters of news interest. The film in each city will take its name from the newspaper with which it is affiliated.

This was first done in Chicago where the Chicago "Herald Movie" has been in operation for some time. In fact, the new film publication is only an amplification of the same idea. In Minneapolis, for instance, the film will be the Minneapolis "Journal Movie." In Milwaukee it will be the Milwaukee "Herald Movie." Other newspapers with which affiliations have been completed are: Detroit "Times," Cleveland "Leader," Buffalo "Inquirer," Baltimore "American." Cincinnati "Enquirer," Philadelphia "Public Ledger," Atlanta "Constitution," New Orleans "Times-Picayune," St. Louis "Post-Dispatch," Indianapolis "Star," Kansas City "Star," Dallas "News," Los Angeles "Times," Denver "Rocky Mountain News" and the Portland "Oregonian." Contracts will soon be closed with newspapers in the few cities still open.

All the papers will carry full page advertisements announcing the inauguration of the news film in their territories. The headquarters of the organization is the National News Weekly at 163 West Washington street, Chicago. H. P. Wayman, who is connected with this firm, is the man who closed the contracts with the World Film Corporation and the various newspapers.

The cameramen in each city will turn in five hundred feet of news film apiece. This will be the local subjects in each issue. Then the remainder of the thousand feet will be selected from the other pictures taken all over the country. In this way a news film of more than usual interest will be obtained.

José Stars in "Silver Threads Among the Gold"

Singer Whose Voice Is Known to Practically Everybody Through Phonograph Records Will Be Seen in Play Founded on Famous Song Associated With His Name

RICHARD J. JOSÉ, beloved the world over, needs no introduction. The public has heard his sweet and unusual voice either in person or in phonograph record. As a child of eight he was known as the boy soprano and startled London and the principal provincial cities of England.

He came to America at the age of ten, and from that time on has toured all over the United States and Canada. No singer in history ever gained such a hold on the hearts of all. For eight years he was a member of the Denman Thompson's company, playing in "The Old Homestead." There was one song that the famous actor never missed hearing—José singing of "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

After Mr. José left the company to strike out for himself as a star, Mr. Thompson would never allow the song to be sung by any other singer in his company, and he told them that when Richard José left him the song went with him. He would never consent to hear anyone else sing it.

Through all the world today "Silver Threads Among the Gold" is without question the most popular song of all. Forty-three years ago it first became popular and swept the country and gradually the grand old song sank into oblivion. Eighteen years ago Mr. José revived it. Since that time "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and Richard José have been so closely allied in the hearts of all that it is but natural that a feature film play was produced with Mr. José as the central figure—a story that will take one back to childhood and up to the present day.

THE BETZWOOD PLANT OF THE LUBIN COMPANY, WHERE MANY OF THE BIG V-L-S-E PLAYS ARE PRODUCED

Galaxy of Stars at Work in NYMP Studios

Frank Keenan and Kathrine Kaelred Join Forces Already Engaged in Filming Features That Are Specially Written for the Players—"Blood Will Tell," by Ince, Is Keenan's Vehicle—"Winged Idol" Designed for Miss Kaelred—Willard Mack, Bessie Barriscale, Lewis Stone and W. S. Hart in New Films

Los Angeles, July 5.

THE greatest producing force the NYMP brand studio beyond Santa Monica has ever had at one time is now engaged in the filming of six features, four of which were taken up during the past week, which was marked by the arrival of Frank Keenan and Kathrine Kaelred. The new subjects, as with all NYMP features, are from original scenarios so written as to be most appropriate to the star who is being featured. In other words, the photoplays are written around the specially engaged players.

A special Civil war story, entitled "Blood Will Tell," has been written by Thomas H. Ince as the vehicle for Mr. Keenan. It will be remembered that this actor made a great success in the legitimate stage production of "The Warrens of Virginia," and for this reason a photoplay of this character was prepared. In this, Mr. Keenan will appear as the iron-hearted soldier of the South. The plot for this story may be summed up in the statement that it is a battle with conscience during the dark days of the Civil war. The direction is in charge of Reginald Barker.

The success of Kathrine Kaelred, who created the part of the vampire in the original stage production of "A Fool There Was," in which Robert Hilliard was starred, has been uppermost in the minds of NYMP producers in the preparation of a special photodrama to feature this character actress. In the name part of "The Winged Idol," original scenario which is by C. G. Sullivan, Miss Kaelred will have such a characterization. Supporting this actress will be House Peters, late leading man with the Lasky company, and Harry Keenan. The production will be marked with many very elaborate sets for which the NYMP subjects have become famous. The production of this subject will be in charge of Scott Sidney.

Treats Triangle from New Angle

"The Man Who Found His Honor" is a drama treating the eternal triangle from an entirely new angle, written by C. G. Sullivan. Bessie Barriscale and Lewis S. Stone, who several years ago played together in the old Belasco stock company in Los Angeles, will be united in this production. Mr. Stone has just arrived from the East for a special engagement. The third leading character of the drama will be taken by Walter Edwards, who will also direct. Mr. Stone will be remembered as the star of the Broadway success, "Inside the Lines."

William S. Hart is playing the name role in "The Disciple," in which this actor, who has won fame by his characterization of the western man, will take the part of a small town western minister, or "sky pilot." Supporting Mr. Hart will be Dorothy Dalton, formerly with well-known stock companies throughout the East, who has just been added to the NYMP stock company.

Throughout the photoplay is a pretty love theme, and as with all former subjects in which Mr. Hart has been starred, this will have plenty of western action. The actor insists that in this characterization he has the best part he has ever played for the screen.

Mack in Hawaiian Drama

The sixth subject of the week is entitled "Aloha Oe," in which Willard Mack, well-known playwright, producer and leading man, will be featured in a character part. The title is from the Hawaiian phrase meaning "farewell to thee," which partially explains the plot in that the leading character is that of a man who, following an unsuccessful career in the States, goes to the Pacific Island possessions, and there has a love affair which results unpleasantly for the native Hawaiian girl. There will be many melodramatic scenes in this, including the eruptions of a volcano, shipwrecks, etc.

The two-reel subjects are also being filmed, and these will probably be the last NYMP brands to be released on the Mutual program. One is entitled "When Love Leads," being produced by Howard Hickman with a cast composed of Clara Williams, Margaret Gibson, Harry Keenan and Jack Nelson. This is a story of how one girl sacrificed herself to save the name of a friend.

The second subject is "The Heart of Jabez Flint," a rural character study in which Jay Hunt plays the leading part as well as doing the direction.

Billie Burke Visits NYMP Studio

Billie Burke, who filled an engagement, appearing in "Jerry" at a local theatre during the past week, paid three visits to the studios of the NYMP corporation, and while she denied that she had made a contract to appear in motion pictures for this company, it is stated on authority that such a contract will be consummated within the very near future.

This is the first motion picture studio Miss Burke has ever visited and the big sets and expensive effects to secure realism caused much comment by the actress. In fact, she became very enthusiastic.

Seven One-Reel MinA Comedies Get Special Showing

All Stock Company Comedians Appear in Fun-Making Pictures, Taken With Improved Horsley Camera, and Exhibited at Stanley Theatre, New York

A SPECIAL exhibition of the new, one reel MinA comedies which are distributed through the General Film company, was held Wednesday, July 7, at the Stanley theatre, Times square, New York. Seven pictures were shown, two of them being pre-release exhibitions.

"A Night's Lodging," released July 8, proved to be a very funny boarding house comedy. The central figure tries to beat the landlady, escapes the police, lifts some money from the bar in a cafe, goes to a hotel, the clerk takes all his money and a general mix-up and chase follows.

"The Fighting Kid," which comes July 15, gives George Ovey a fine chance for his fun-making talents. He plays a fellow who falls asleep on a park bench and dreams of whipping policemen. He awakes to find a real policeman standing over him and then the trouble begins. He fights policemen and toughs, and in the end wakes again to find he was only dreaming.

Comedies which have been released were shown as follows: "Life's Mysteries," June 3; "Father Forgot," June 10; "A Mix-Up in Males," June 17; "The Stolen Case," June 24 and "A Harmless Flirtation," July 1

In all of the pictures MinA stock company of comedians is seen. Among the members are Goldie Colwell, George Ovey, Louis Fitzroy, Janet Sully, Ray Lincoln and Jefferson Osbourne.

Milton H. Fahrney, head producer of MinA comedies, personally superintended the production of the pictures. Mr. Fahrney is one of the most experienced comedy directors in the company and has provided humorous plots and much funny "business." Thanks to the Horsley cameras, the photography is excellent. These new Horsley comedies set a high standard.

National Film Engages Constance Talmadge

Only 16 Years Old, and a Sister of Norma Talmadge, the Former Vitagraph Star Recently Acquired by the Company, She Played Ingenue Lead in "Uncle Billy Broadway"

THE National Film corporation, of Los Angeles, who announced two weeks ago that they had secured the services of Miss Norma Talmadge, have closed contracts with Miss Constance Talmadge, the former's sixteen-year-old sister.

Before affiliating themselves with the National Film corporation, the Misses Talmadge were starred by the Vitagraph company in a large number of photoplay productions.

Miss Constance Talmadge will be remembered as the ingenue lead in "Uncle Bill Broadway," and will play under the personal direction of Bruce Mitchell.

MUTUAL EXCHANGE MANAGERS GET THANHOUSER CIGARS

EUGENIE FORDE (North American)

Big Four Grading Plan Is Fine, Say Exhibitors

Letters Pour in from All Parts of the Country Complimenting V-L-S-E on Its Actions in the Marketing of "Highway," "Juggernaut" and "Regeneration"

SINCE the recent joint announcement by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, and A. E. Smith, of the Vitagraph company, to the effect that the Big Four subject, "Hearts and the Highway," was placed as a class B subject by comparison with "The Juggernaut" and "The Island of Regeneration," and would not be offered to exhibitors at rental charges in excess of fifty dollars, untold comment and discussion has arisen in feature film and exhibiting circles.

At the time of making this announcement, it was distinctly stated that the rental set on the subject in question was not to be construed as a cut in prices, but had been set because exhibitors, owing to the great success of the two preceding Blue Ribbon features, would be inclined to pay an equal amount for this subject, and the Vitagraph company did not wish their salesmen to use the two regular releases as the basis of charge, for this added subject.

Until now the Big Four have made no further announcements on this subject, but have gone ahead and offered their productions to the exhibitor at what they considered fair rental charges.

Hundreds of letters, however, from exhibitors have been received at the general office and by the V-L-S-E branch managers, and the thoughts expressed in all of these letters are identical. With the exceptions of minor differences in phraseology, they might all have been run off on a multigraphing machine.

A prominent exhibitor in the South, writing to W. C. Brandon, manager of the Atlanta branch, says:

"We want to congratulate you and the V-L-S-E in the matter of grading their features. We refer especially to the method of handling the Vitagraph release, 'Hearts and the Highway.'

"Some feature exchanges would not have hesitated in juggling this in with their regular feature program and insisted upon the same amount of rental therefor.

"The fact of the matter is, 'Hearts and the Highway' is much better than many feature producers could possibly turn out, and it would have been heralded with much praise on some programs.

"Now, although most exhibitors are considered 'minus' to a great big extent, by producers and some exchanges, I am sure there is not one exhibitor who does not appreciate consideration of this kind.

"It is commendable if for no other reason than that you have proved yourself to be honest toward the exhibitor.

"I do not remember having received a letter of the sort that was sent out in conjunction with the release announcement of 'Hearts and the Highway' from any other feature exchange, and I expect to use this feature when we get far enough along in our program to carry out this plan."

The tenor of this letter is identical with thousands now in the files at the executive offices of the V-L-S-E, and Mr. Irwin, speaking on the subject, said: "The company is gratified that its efforts to work in close harmony with the exhibitor are so well understood and appreciated."

The Airdome Is Not a Thriving Animal in California

Paradoxical As It Might Seem, the Climate Is Against Its Well-Being—While Days Are Warm, the Nights Are Too Chilly for Sitting Outdoors

San Francisco, July 5.

EASTERN exhibitors who have visited California this year to inspect the exposition at San Francisco have remarked on the comparative scarcity of airdomes in this state, and have expressed the opinion that these could be operated to advantage in some sections where they are almost unknown.

No accurate list has been compiled by any of the San Francisco exchanges in regard to the number of airdomes in California, but it is believed that there are not more than fifty.

In view of the fact that no rains are experienced here between the middle of May and middle of October it does seem remarkable that open air houses are not more numerous. However, the summer climate of California differs materially from the view usually held by Eastern people, who are under the impression that extreme heat prevails.

This is true of some of the interior valleys and of limited sections in the southern part of the state, but along the coast, and particularly in the San Francisco Bay region, the summer climate is much the same as that experienced in winter, the absence of rain being the chief difference.

Here the evenings are cool and warm clothing is necessary, making the use of airdomes unnecessary. Even in the valleys, where high temperatures are often recorded, the evenings are always cool and theatre owners do not experience much difficulty in keeping their theatres comfortable.

Airdomes are operated to advantage in a few such places as Fresno, Visalia, Chico, Oroville, Woodland, and some of the smaller towns. In some of these places rather stringent regulations are in effect governing airdomes and theatre owners are given protection against outside competition.

At Fresno airdomes are allowed, but at the close of the season these must be dismantled. Some of the best places of this character are located in the lower San Joaquin Valley, where theatre owners have built their airdomes adjoining their houses, enabling them to use either at their choice. A type of theatre that is becoming popular in the warm belt of California is that of a house with a removable roof.

LUBIN SCENARIO SCHOOL EXPOSE MAKES HIT

The Lubin two-reel drama "Such Things Really Happen," in which the fake type of scenario teaching school is exposed, has created a great deal of interest and discussion throughout the entire country, judging by the number of letters that have been received by the Lubin company.

Emmett Campbell Hall, author of the Lubin "Road o' Strife" serial, who wrote "Such Things Really Happen," has been almost swamped with letters since the play was released last month.

Hall for some time past has been on the trail of the so-called schools that for a certain price guarantee to make a photoplaywright of anyone.

BEBAN DISCUSSES THE SUCCESS OF "THE ALIEN"

Difficulties of Using Theatrical Climax to Film Drama Heightened by Possibility of Players' Sickness—Neutral on Subject of Motion Picture's Displacement of the Stage—Doesn't Believe the Feature Film Will Ever Command "Legitimate" Prices—Actor Is Resolved to Remain in Screen Ranks

GEORGE BEBAN, the pioneer in the tion picture and the spoken drama, large field embraced by both the mo- who is now starring in "The Alien," at the Astor Theatre, New York, is one of the latest and most renowned of the stage stars who have cast their lots in the production of films.

Few of the motion picture people or the public realize the tremendous venture that "The Alien" embodies. The financial risk of such a proposition was strikingly expounded when a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS questioned him regarding the future of the union of the films and the stage.

Hard to Find Suitable Play

"I entertain no doubts as to the success of 'The Alien,' Mr. Beban said, "but when it comes to successfully exploiting other productions of a like nature I have my doubts. To begin with just suppose that one of the members of the cast that appeared in the final scene enacted on the stage should have been incapacitated. A substitution would be impossible. In such a case we would have to return to California and take each of the scenes in which this player appeared all over again. And that was so impracticable that it was next to impossible. For this reason many theatrical men would not care to risk their money in such a production. For this very reason too, I had myself and my players heavily insured against accident and sickness of any kind.

"Then on the other hand it would be exceedingly hard to find a play suitable to be produced as is 'The Alien.' 'The Alien' has a great big human interest theme, a theme that so works the audience up that they are readily able to stand the sudden change from the silent to the spoken drama. With other plays who knows but what the shock of transcending from the film to the stage would serve to lessen the interest in the story. But with my play the case is different. Mr. Ince and I worked night and day before we finally arranged the scenes in such a manner that the change would appear natural. It comes just at the pyschological moment too, and a stronger moment than the psychological moment of 'The Alien' would be hard to find in any other play."

Discusses Admission Prices

When asked as to what he thought on the question of the films ever replacing the spoken drama Mr. Beban declared himself as neutral on that subject. "I think that both have a fixed place in the sun," he said, "but there never has been a better opportunity afforded to judge on this subject than 'The Alien,' there we have both the forms of the drama, and the possibilities of each can easily be discovered by close comparison."

Mr. Beban had much to say concerning admission prices for feature films of the future when asked his opinion on this score. "I do not believe that the average feature will ever command the standard prices that legitimate shows require. Of course there are exceptions like 'The Birth of a Nation,' but I believe that one dollar will be generally accepted as the top price to pay to see a feature picture. It is only natural to assume that the public will rebel at a two dollar admission for a film show on Broadway, when within a few months they will be able to see exactly the same thing at their own theatre for a quarter.

"With a stage attraction it is entirely different. A person will readily pay two dollars admission to see a drama or a comedy enacted on Broadway because they know the chances are they will not see the same show again enacted by the same cast. With a picture they can afford to let the Broadway chance pass because they will see identically the same picture at some later date."

Will Remain in Screen Ranks

Mr. Beban was asked whether in the future he would devote his entire attention to motion pictures or resume his old place on the legitimate. "I firmly intend to stay in the film game," he answered, "I like working before the camera one hundred per cent. better than on the stage. The work is easier and the same may be said of the money.

"Yes, I intend to stay with the NYMP and when through with 'The Alien' I will start work on another feature. It is my plan to produce two features a year at the coast studios of the New York Motion Picture Corporation."

Cleo Ridgley, Lasky, Not Lost in Crowd of 400 Now

Leading Woman, Who Left Hippodrome Stock in Early Days to Avoid Losing Individuality, Has Just Signed for Permanent Membership with Hollywood Studio

CLEO RIDGLEY, who for several months has been prominent in leading parts in different productions of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company, has signed a contract by which she becomes a permanent member of the playing organization. She will continue at the Hollywood, Cal., studios, where some interesting work is being laid out for her in the near future.

CLEO RIDGLEY (Lasky)

Miss Ridgley has all the virtues of being born and raised in New York City. For a time in her childhood she lived in Wisconsin, but she returned East. As a small child she once saw her cousin, Victor Moore, the comedian, win the plaudits of an audience, and Miss Ridgley decided then and there to become an actress. She joined the Hippodrome company, where her individuality did not have much sweep in a company of four hundred players.

Thereafter at Mr. Moore's direction, she took up serious dramatic work, which finally led to motion picture playing. She belongs to that coterie of players who are essentially "stars of the screen." Therefore she is excellently equipped for the splendid things which Mr. Lasky and Cecil B. De Mille, director general, have in view for her.

Her first appearance in a Lasky play was in support of Blanche Sweet in "Stolen Goods." She recently has completed characterizations as the duchess in "The Puppet Crown," with Ina Claire and Carlyle Blackwell; as Rose Fanchon in "The Fighting Hope"; with Laura Hope Crews and an all-star Lasky-Belasco cast; as the English actress in "The Marriage of Kitty," in which Fannie Ward makes her debut as a picture star; and in one of the leading roles in "The Secret Orchard," with Blanche Sweet.

WEISS JOINS METRO IN CHICAGO

Probably one of the biggest surprises in Chicago film circuits was the resignation, four weeks ago, of Harry Weiss, erstwhile manager of the Chicago office of the World Film Corporation.

Although very few people knew that Mr. Weiss resigned, at the close of business Saturday, June 26, he announced his resignation and Monday morning, June 28, found him with the Metro Pictures Service, as manager of their Chicago office.

"My contract with the World expired on April 29, having run for one year, as originally agreed," Mr. Weiss said.

LOU TELLEGEN CAST FOR "THE EXPLORER," MAUGHAM PLAY

Lou Tellegen, Broadway star and leading man for Madame Sarah Bernhardt on her last two American tours, will make his debut as a photo-drama star under the management of the Lasky Feature Play company, in a film version of W. Somerset Maugham's play "The Explorer."

Arrangements to this effect, completed by cable by Samuel Goldfish, general manager of the Lasky Feature Play company, brings together in a single artistic effort a producer, dramatist and actor who occupy distinctive niches in their country. Mr. Lasky is American in every sense of the word; Mr. Somerset Maugham is English, and Lou Tellegen, artistically, at least, is of French training.

Under the personal direction of Cecil B. DeMille the work of the photo-dramatization in the Hollywood, Cal., studio of the Lasky company will begin immediately. Lou Tellegan already is at Hollywood, enthusiastic over his first photoplay experience and impatient to begin rehearsals.

W. Somerset Maugham, as a dramatist, is well known in the United States as author of "A Man of Honor," "Lady Frederick," "Jack Straw," "Mrs. Dot," "The Explorer," "Penelope," "The Noble Spaniard," "Smith," "Grace," "Loaves and Fishes," and "The Magician."

HERBERT STANDING HAS CREATED MANY ROLES

Herbert Standing of the Morosco-Bosworth forces has probably created as many famous roles on the stage as any man now in moving pictures.

In addition to creating Christian in Sir Henry Irving's original production of "The Bells," he was the first Jim the Penman when it was produced in England, and was also the original Jack Fortinbras in "As in a Looking Glass," a part made famous in this country by Maurice Barrymore.

For over twenty-three years Mr. Standing created parts at the famous Criterion theatre in London in association with Sir Charles Wyndham, part of the time as colessee of the historic playhouse.

LEVY PLANS SPECIAL PICTURE FOR SHRINERS

Joseph Levy, manager of the Fox exchange at Omaha, is planning a special film to be shown on the Shriners' special train to the expositions. The train will go over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, which has already arranged to show Fox features on its big Western trains. The request for a feature film came directly from the Shriners, who are deeply interested in the plan.

REICHENBACH OFF FOR COAST

Harry L. Reichenbach, general advertising manager and press representative of the Metro Pictures Corporation, left New York Wednesday for San Francisco to look after the interests of the Metro concern during the Exhibitors' Convention and to handle Metro Day at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which is officially designated by the directors as July 15.

LOTTIE PICKFORD AS ESTHER IN "THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"—North American

CHILD, PITTSBURGH MANAGER FOR V-L-S-E, ACTIVE IN THEATRICAL CIRCLES

E. O. Child, Pittsburgh manager of the V-L-S-E, prior to his two years of film experiences, was active in theatrical circles for twenty years.

Mr. Child knows the business of amusing the public from the managerial angle, and his knowledge is now a valuable asset to the exhibitors in Pittsburgh.

Two years ago he came into the film business by effecting a connection with the General Film company. He had previously been associated with the theatrical business in the capacities of road manager, theatre manager, and vaudeville agency director, and his sense of successful exhibition methods has been sharpened by meeting conditions in all sections of the country.

Two years with the General Film company has acquainted him with the particular needs of picture exhibitors.

Speaking with the accumulated wisdom of the thoroughly trained theatrical man, Mr. Child says, "The policy as laid out by the Big Four is as certain of success as its square deal system is refreshing."

3,000 Subjects Is the Record of Vitagraph Company

Commodore Blackton, in Recalling the Earliest Efforts of His Company, Finds That Everything Was Covered from "Life of Moses" to "History of a Sardine Sandwich"

ACCORDING to an announcement made by Vitagraph, that company has completed three thousand subjects since it began business. These subjects, which have been one or more reels, have touched on every conceivable subject, and comedy, drama, tragedy and farce have all been portrayed.

It was also said by Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, in making the announcement, that the future plans of the company involved even more elaborate productions than those of the past.

"We plan," he said, "to touch fields that have as yet not been invaded by the camera. Take for instance our plan to visualize music. I feel that in producing this entirely new subject that we are opening the way for a new art, a combination of the highest in music with the finest in moving pictures."

In reviewing the work done by the company, Commodore Blackton referred to the wide range of subjects.

"I find," he said, "in going over some of our earliest efforts that we have included about everything that possibly could be picturized. For instance I find that one of the films was entitled 'The History of a Sardine Sandwich,' which next to it is 'The Life of Moses' and 'Les Miserables.'

"While there is no disputing the fact that animated photography as an art has improved wonderfully since its inception, a comparatively few years ago, every subject that we have completed could be placed on the screen tomorrow and would be in perfect shape for reproduction.

"During the coming year for the same length of time, according to our present plans, we will turn out more than triple the amount of films that we have since the beginning of the company.

"At the present time we have eighteen companies working at our main studios in Brooklyn, while our studios which are scattered about the country contain ten more. Each one of these companies completes a subject very rapidly and our yearly output has increased so tremendously that there is no real check to be placed on the coming productions.

"In placing a valuation on the films that we have turned out, I should say that it will amount to about $3,000,000, and this is a conservative estimate and does not include the cost of the production, but is our valuation at market figures."

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR VETOES CENSOR BILL

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Springfield, Ill., July 6.

Governor Dunne this afternoon vetoed the motion picture censorship bill.

BUGBEE OPENS METRO OFFICE IN CRESCENT CITY

Carl A. Bugbee, formerly manager of World Film, is now located on the second floor of the new Nola building, 409 Carondelet street, New Orleans, where he has opened up a suite of offices for the Metro Film corporation.

This is the first time Metro features have really gained a foothold in the Crescent City.

WEAK SPOTS IN A STRONG BUSINESS—XXII

An Observant Exhibitor, Who Believes That the Majority of the Public Looks Upon the Question in the Same Light, Declares That Directors Who Fail to Consider Absolute Fidelity to Local Color and Historical Accuracy Important, Are Neglecting a Necessary Part of Their Work.

"IT is rather strange that in the discussion started by the series of articles entitled 'Weak Spots in a Strong Business,' the neglect of little things has escaped the watchful eye of the well-wisher of the mute drama," says Joe E. Rickards, a prominent exhibitor of the southwest, located in Phoenix, Arizona.

"Lack of fidelity to detail, it must be called, and yet the picture makers to a man are going to rise up and resent the bare thought of such an allegation. They are going to cite the wonderful detail in the great picture creations that are daily going out to charm the picture lovers. All of which is true, but there are so many frightfully glaring inconsistencies in so many of the very best pictures that one wonders how directors could possibly have permitted them to creep in to the productions when there is so much care and pains evident in the making and direction of the picture.

Full of Inconsistencies

"To be specific, I sat in one of the best little theatres in Arizona some days ago and saw a big multiple reel picture, now being shown all over the country which is acclaimed a master work by its makers. This picture was taken from a play that enjoyed considerable popularity some years ago and cost a lot of money in the making. It had in its cast a man who has a great name in the speaking drama and he wrote the original play from which this picture story was taken.

"And yet with the author in the cast this creation was sent out with such glaring inconsistencies that a child student of our common school history must have laughed at the faults the director must assuredly have seen when he produced the offering.

"The picture was laid in the days of the first gold rush to California, in 1849. Hardy men of the period, garbed correctly in the mode of that time, fought and died in a great picture spectacle and yet in the midst of this breath of yesterday, a band of men fought with muzzle loading arms, while around the loins of each one of them swung belts filled to the last hole with repeating rifle cartridges.

"In this same big picture was filmed a scene supposed to be a reproduction of a trail leading from Colorado to California in 1849, and down this trail dashed men garbed in the dress of the period—the trail was paved with modern asphalt. I sat next to a picture patron who discovered the blemish on this picture almost the second it flashed on the screen. He pointed it out to his neighbor.

Jolting Effect of Anachronisms

"For him the illusion was gone. He was rudely jerked back from the days of '49 to a realization that his evening was only a makeshift bit of history. It was stamped counterfeit on its face.

"This suggestion of atmosphere gave to one big producer of the legitimate stage an international name. Yet in this picture the maker had expended a large sum of money to get that effect, and then sent his product out to be robbed of its very punch and color by a palpably glaring inconsistency.

"In still another creation I saw screened some days ago one of the same inexcusable oversight marred by an otherwise mighty pretentious picturization. I sat well down in the body of a packed theatre, enjoying with the big audience the splendid picture until the oversight of the director flashed on the screen. The audience was following the story with wrapt attention.

"It was a master effort. The illusion was perfect. The acting superb, the settings historically correct, the detail magnificent. Witness the rude awakening. This picture was laid in 1876. In one of its big scenes a modern extensively advertised soft drink sign was the most conspicuous thing in the scene.

"How quickly the audience grasped it was evinced by a itter that developed in a hearty laugh all over the house as the defect in the local color of the picture became apparent. The director had asked his audience to go with him to the locality in which history was laid. He had asked them to witness his cleverness in dressing his actors in the mode of the period he was reproducing.

Prepared for Period's Mannerisms

"He had schooled them in the mannerisms of the time, he had forgotten no bit that would add to his picture to make you think you were watching the story unfold in 1876, until that soft drink sign destroyed the illusion completely, and detracted from the enjoyment of the picture because the charm of the offering lay in its fidelity to the time of its telling.

"The picture patron is not standing still. He is moving forward in many instances faster than the man who is asking him to become his theatre patron. Your picture patron of this day is a critic in himself. It's not so long ago you could amuse him with the ever present 'chase' of a few years back, but if you served him a chase today he would walk out of your house. He is demanding better pictures, and he is quick to see the defects in a picture that you could not have pointed out to him a year ago.

"One of the biggest assets the maker of modern pictures has with which to combat the legitimate stage production is the almost unlimited chance for local color, for settings, for effects, for reproductions on the very spot it is supposed to have happened; and then to throw away after weeks of careful planning for effect in which local color and atmosphere are first, looks like pure carelessness.

This chance for outdoor scenes is the real punch in the best pictures—it is the best weapon in the hands of the producer. Just when the patron is being carried along a Virginia road in the sixties, with his blood afire over the charge of the blue-coated soldiers, dressed, mind you, in the most correct garb of the period, with saddles and sabers and guns historically correct, the patron is rudely shaken by the charge of the gallant defenders of the flag right up to a 'Fotsom Food —There's No Reason' sign blocking the onslaught of the 'brave band.'

"While you are reviewing 'Weak Spots in a Strong Business,' why not suggest to the director, if he is too busy with those things that take up his time, to have an eagle-eyed censor look the route over and eliminate the all too glaring evidences of today that do not belong in the picturization of a bit of yesterday. Let him catch the soft drink signs in the future pictures of 1876. The picture maker must realize that his product with that sort of a defect is not by a long margin a perfect one."

MITCHELL AND CALDWEY BACK ON COAST

Los Angeles, July 5.

William Parsons, president National Film corporation, is home from a three weeks' business trip to New York, where he, in company with Bruce Mitchell, director general of the producing staff, and A. W. Caldeway, scenario editor, transacted important business with reference to permanent release for the company, and that of making a contract for the exclusive services of Norma Talmadge, Vitagraph star, for appearance in National subjects during the next two weeks. Miss Talmadge will arrive on the coast the early part of the coming week.

Motion picture rights were also secured on a number of the one hundred and thirty plays written by Clyde Fitch, and these will be filmed immediately. With the arrival of Mr. Mitchell, who is expected to return during the coming week, plans for the expansion of this company will be made.

It is the intention to have four producing companies busy at all times. The feature company will be directed by Mr. Mitchell, the comedy by Fred Hornby, and the dramatic company by Will Seiter, and another director to be named later.

ENTER FRESH AIR "MOVIES," CHICAGO, THROUGH BELL FEATURE

The White City, Chicago, has inaugurated a new picture play policy to take the place of big band organizations as the leading free attraction feature of the park. The operating booth and picture screen are out in the open Parisian Gardens which have accommodations for ten thousand people.

The Essanay six part production, "Indian Wars Re-fought by the United States Army," distributed exclusively through the central states by the W. H. Bell Feature Film corporation, Chicago, marked the opening of the new idea advertised extensively as "Fresh Air 'Movies.'"

DeCORDOBA, SHAKESPEARIAN ACTOR, JOINS LASKY

The Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company announces that it has engaged the services of Pedro deCordoba, one of the most popular of the younger generation of Broadway romantic actors. Mr. deCordoba left New York last week and has already reached the studios in Hollywood, Cal., where he will begin work immediately.

Pedro deCordoba, of mixed Spanish and French parentage, was born in New York City and early became proficient in playing the violin. His first ambition was to go on the operatic stage, but his voice was such a heavy bass that he could only be cast as the "King" or "father" whereas he always wanted to be the hero. He therefore decided to go on the stage, and attended the American Academy of Arts.

Daniel Frohman observed his work during the graduating performances of his class and engaged him to do minor roles with E. H. Sothern in Shakespearian repertoire.

Mr. deCordoba later became associated with the New theatre, which had just opened under the direction of Winthrop Ames, and appeared there in a number of the leading productions such as "Sister Beatrice," "The Blue Bird" and the "Arrowmaker." Following two years at this endowed playhouse, he returned to Broadway playing such parts as the Prince in "Turandot"; Jacob in the "Five Frankfurters," and the Musician in the "Master of the House."

He also had an important role with Madame Simone in her representation of "A Scrap of Paper" and in the elaborate Liebler production of "Joseph and His Brethren." At this point Mr. deCordoba returned again to the Shakespearian stage, appearing with Mr. Faversham in "Othello," "Julius Caesar" and "Romeo and Juliet."

He then joined Margaret Anglin in her Shakespearian productions, such as "As You Like It," and the "Taming of the Shrew" and in her revival of "Lady Windermere's Fan."

Mr. deCordoba's most recent engagements have been in the "Song of Songs" and "Beverley's Balance."

WILL PAIR SCREEN AND STAGE STARS IN BALBOA SUBJECTS

Contracts have been made with a number of legitimate stage stars for exclusive appearance in pictures made by the Balboa company. The first to go to the coast will be William Elliott. He will be featured in a five-reel subject adapted from the successful play by Samuel Merwin and Henry Kitchell Webster, "Comrade John." Mr. Elliott will arrive there the early part of the coming week. This will be under the direction of Bert Brackin, who made "St. Elmo," and "Beulah."

It was also announced by Mr. Horkheimer that Lulu Glaser and Robert Warwick were going to the coast to appear in Balboa-Pathé subjects.

"We will introduce something new," Mr. Horkheimer said in speaking of the future productions of the company, "in that we are going to feature with every legitimate stage star a well known and popular screen star. Miss Ruth Roland has been selected to appear in "Comrade John."

7 Exposures of 1 Character Is Horsley Camera Record

Character in "The Fighting Kid," a MinA Release, Sees Another Person Transformed Into Seven People, Producing a Startling Illusion for the Audience

PERHAPS the most startling illusory effect ever seen in motion pictures is shown in a scene from "The Fighting Kid," MinA film release for Thursday, July 15, on the General film program, wherein seven exposures of one character are obtained in one picture.

This establishes a record in photographic feats of this kind. When the first triple exposure was made in motion pictures the accomplishment gained wide publicity as being the last word in illusory effects; then when other enterprising photographers, after many experiments, increased the number to four and later to five exposures, the profession marveled at the exploit. But MinA films has done the seemingly impossible by obtaining seven exposures, and thus sets a high mark for such work.

The scene in which this startling photographic effect occurs is that wherein Jerry, the principal character in the picture, attempts to escape the unpleasant designs of a bully by cautiously seeking a roundabout way to his destination.

He is seen gazing into the distance in the hope of finding the way clear. Suddenly he spies the bully, who before his eyes is transformed from one person into seven, each with fists upraised and threatening dire happenings. The forms stand side by side, the action of shaking the fists being perfectly synchronized, carrying out with exceptional effectiveness an illusion that in itself is a surprise. The novelty cannot fail to please any audience.

SCENE FROM "THE FIGHTING KID" (MinA—July 15)

The illusion is accomplished by that "wonder-box," the new Horsley double exposure camera, for the use of which MinA films holds exclusive rights from the inventor, David Horsley. The common supposition may be, naturally, that mirrors are employed. This is not the case, however, as the effect is obtained by the expedient of operating a simple device attached to the camera.

This effect is one of many possible with the new Horsley camera and is sure to add much to the attractiveness of MinA pictures.

Sam Bernard Begins His Antics for Famous

Company Selects an Original Subject, "Poor Schmaltz—Sam Bernard 'In Dutch,'" Adapted to the Diverting Talents of the Comedian

FOLLOWING the announcement recently made by the Famous Players Film Company to the effect that it had secured the exclusive motion picture services of the famous comedian, Sam Bernard, reputed to be the highest salaried comedian on the stage today, comes the statement that this celebrated star has now begun work before the camera in his initial screen appearance.

The subject selected by the Famous Players for Mr. Bernard's introduction to the motion picture public is an original story, so constructed as to display to the utmost advantage the inimitable comedy talents of the star, entitled "Poor Schmaltz—Sam Bernard 'In Dutch.'"

Mr. Bernard will portray the role of a German wig-maker who becomes the principal agent in a side-splitting series of comic adventures and humorous difficulties. The title "Poor Schmaltz" was selected because in the best known of his stage successes he bore this character-name. From the first few scenes already taken, Mr. Bernard has evidenced a remarkable adaptability to screen performance, and the directors of the Famous Players are confident that his first screen impersonation will be surprisingly effective.

The plot of "Poor Schmaltz" has been so designed that it will contain bits from nearly all of Mr. Bernard's successes.

HEFFRON, DIRECTOR FOR THEATRICAL MAGNATES, NOW WITH SELIG

T. N. Heffron is another versatile director of motion picture productions who was recently captured by the Selig Polyscope company. Mr. Heffron is engaged at the Chicago studios of the Selig company in directing the production of Selig Red Seal plays. His first production completed was, "The House of a Thousand Candles," featuring Harry Mestayer, Grace Darmond and an all-star cast. He is now engaged on his second production, "A Black Sheep," with Otis Harlan in the title role.

Before entering the motion picture field Mr. Heffron was an actor, and was also stage director for Mrs. Fiske, John Mason, Charles Frohman, Al. Woods, Cohan and Harris, William A. Brady, Kirke La Shelle, Augustus Thomas and others. He played leading heavies and produced in stock nearly every play available for stock purposes in the principal cities of America.

Mr. Heffron commenced producing feature pictures over three years ago, and has been identified with many of the leading manufacturers of motion pictures. In motion pictures he has directed such stars as John Barrymore, May Irwin, Tyrone Power, Hazel Dawn, Paul McAllister, Edwin Abeles, Marguerite Clark and David Higgins.

RUTH ROLAND MAKES DEEP IMPRESSION ON BALBOA FORCE

Ruth Roland, whose superb interpretation of the different characters assigned to her in the twelve dramas included in the Balboa-Pathé "Who Pays." series, now being released through the Pathé exchanges, is a star of the first magnitude.

During the six months she has been at the Long Beach studios of the Balboa company she has earned the respect and admiration of everybody, from the stage hands and property boys up to and including the management of the corporation.

Her sweet personality and her open-handed friendliness, combined with her sympathetic interest in the welfare of her associates, have endeared her to all. She is now on a well earned vacation visiting the fair in San Francisco.

When she returns she will be starred in a number of five-reel dramas written especially for her. None doubt that she will repeat the wonderful success she scored all through the "Who Pays?" series.

BRYAN PLEASED WITH PITTSBURGH BUSINESS

Harry Bryan, managing director of the Metropolitan Booking Offices, was a Pittsburgh visitor last week, and is more than pleased with the showing made by the Pittsburgh office.

Mr. Bryan has decided that on August first the company would extend its scope in that section and would open an office in Ohio, probably at Columbus. Mr. Rockwell, the Pittsburgh manager, is now on a trip through Ohio. While on this trip he will probably pick out the location for the new office.

"Beloved Vagabond" Is Jose's Picture Idyllic

FROM all accounts Edward José's production of Locke's "The Beloved Vagabond," which is shortly to be released by Pathé, will be one of the most artistic pictures which this well-known director has made, and the beauty of the scenes to be shown on the screen promises to create something of a sensation.

For many weeks prior to beginning work on this production, Mr. José searched the country over for idyllic spots which would be thoroughly in accord with the story, and those who have viewed the scenes so far developed say that he has evolved a pictorial gem of the first water.

Mr. José is an artist and poet as well as a producer, and therefore it is said that he has been enabled to give to Locke's beautiful story an interpretation which it could have in no other way, for as a stage presentation without the beautiful scenes which the book calls for it would fall short of artistic realization. Besides this the story calls for intense dramatic action, and Mr. José's wide experience as an actor has stood him in good stead in this regard.

A prominent producer said of him recently:

"Whatever José does is sure to be artistically correct and pictorially beautiful. In few directors in this country today is the artistic temperament so strongly developed as in Edward José."

Mr. Edwin Arden is to be the star of "The Beloved Vagabond," and he is supported by a large cast of players which include Kathryn Browne-Decker, Bliss Milford, Mrs. Brundage, Eric Mayne, Stephen Grattan, Boris Korlin and many others equally as well-known.

More "Chimmie Fadden" Plays with Moore Coming

Popularity of the First One, Demonstrated by the First Few Showings and Letters Received by Exhibitors, Prompts Lasky to Arrange for a Series Featuring the Comedian

FOLLOWING the extraordinary success of the first public showings of the new photo-comedy, "Chimmie Fadden," with Victor Moore as the star, released by the Lasky Feature Play company through the Paramount Pictures corporation June 28, arrangements immediately were made by Samuel Goldfish, treasurer and general manager of the Lasky company, to present Mr. Moore in a series of "Chimmie Fadden" photoplay productions.

Mr. Moore in "Chimmie Fadden" was the principal feature the first week of its release in theatres booking Paramount productions all over the country. The laughter it provoked and the scores of letters commending the exhibitors and the Lasky company on the attraction, were causes contributing to the Lasky company's determination that Mr. Moore as Chimmie will be seen together many times in the future by photoplay goers.

Congressman E. W. Townsend, of Montclair, N. J., who first wrote the "Chimmie Fadden" stories when he was a reporter for the New York "Sun," saw the photoplay at the Strand theatre, New York, recently. Immediately, he wrote the following letter to Mr. Goldfish:

"Dear Mr. Goldfish:

"Well, as I promised you, I went, but with misgivings—to see your production in picture play of my 'Chimmie Fadden.' I apologize, old chap, for the misgivings. Frankly, I was as amazed as I was delighted with the vitality of the pictures. You have reproduced the group of people Chimmie fought, loved, teased, jollied, not only with quite astonishing fidelity to physical characteristics, but the very spirit of the character is shown. They are not only moving portraits—they live. Let me quite heartily congratulate you and all the Lasky staff and players who had to do with this revelation of the possibilities of motion picture plays.

"Sincerely yours, E. W. Townsend."

The next photo comedy of this series will be "Chimmie Fadden in the West," preparations for which will begin immediately in the Lasky Feature Play company's studio at Hollywood, California.

New York Society Turns Out to See "Eternal City"

Summer Colony at Southampton, L. I., Attends Showing of Famous Players Subject for a Benefit Performance—Film Is Also Shown in Home Town of Director

"THE ETERNAL CITY," the Famous Players Film company's photo-spectacle of Hall Caine's novel and play, which is considered one of the best photo-plays presented in the annals of the screen, was last week shown in Connellsville, Pa., the home town of its chief producer, Edwin S. Porter. Connellsville, which has always been proud of its native motion picture producer, turned out en masse to see his great production to date.

"The Eternal City" last week also presented at Southampton, L. I., to the summer colony there, for the benefit of the Southampton Hospital, to which all the proceeds of the performance were tendered. Nearly everyone of the cottage colony attended the first performance in the open-air Garden theatre, at which it was presented, many occupants of the boxes being such familiar figures in society as Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Claflin, Beatrice Claflin, Mrs. Chas. R. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. S. K. DeForest, Mrs. E. Tiffany Dyer, Mrs. B. A. Ronalds, T. Gaillard Thomas, Samuel L. Parish, Mrs. George C. DeWitt, Mrs. Edward D. Rose, Rev. and Mrs. George J. Russell, D. Stafford McLean, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Munn, Mrs. Clarence Cody, and Mrs. Harry Pelham Robins.

The New York "Sun," which reported the presentation of this subject in its society columns as one of the important social events at Southampton, records the fact that automobiles were lined about the open-air theatre in such numbers as to give it the appearance of a Metropolitan opera house premier. The screen and projection attachment for the theatre was devised by and operated under the personal supervision of B. F. Porter, a brother of the producer.

Edison Comedian Carries Off Field Day Honors

Raymond McKee Captures Silver Trophy Though the 5,000 Employes Numbered Several Professional Athletes, and Also Takes Away a Gold Medal

BEFORE a crowd of over three thousand people at the fourth annual field day of the Edison employees, held at Olympic Park, Saturday, Raymond McKee, the Edison comedian, proved by carrying away a splendid silver trophy against a big field of trained athletes recruited out of Edison's five thousand employes, that the motion picture actor of today must possess all the hardihood of a professional athlete and the nerve of an acrobatic specialist.

Comedy of some motion was furnished by McKee in the obstacle race when he took a dive under the canvas nailed close to the ground, and ploughed up considerable of the muddy field. But he came up smiling and first, which process he repeated again in the sack race and came in third for the 100 yards thin fellows' race. A 16-inch high silver trophy, donated by Studio Manager Horace G. Plimpton, and a gold medal were awarded McKee, very much bedraggled, by Mrs. Thomas A. Edison. He was also awarded a bad knee for his triumph.

The Edison Grand Prix cup, a handsome large silver trophy donated by Mr. Edison personally, was fiercely contested for by eight teams from the different Edison divisions in the 880-yard relay race, but the honors went to the Edison studio contingent composed of S. B. Field, B. H. Geiger, W. E. Graf, and H. D. Gunther.

In all six cups were competed for in twenty-eight events, with several hundred men and girls contestants. A large number of the Edison players were present to see their studio go to glory, the studio having been closed for the day because of the interest in the event.

Knickerbocker's "Hamlet" Is Improved by Cutting

Big Scenes Become More Effective by Condensation of Picture from 5 to 3 Reels—Release Well Timed, Following the Tour of Forbes-Robertson

THE release of "Hamlet," the latest offering of Knickerbocker Star Features, is particularly opportune, since it follows closely the tour recently made of the principal cities of the United States by the eminent star Sir Forbes-Robertson and his famous Drury Lane company. Thus, by timeliness, the great advertising value of Sir Forbes-Robertson's name is further enhanced.

The entire Drury Lane company, together with Gertrude Elliott, support Sir Forbes-Robertson in the picture, this being the first screen presentation and the only one thus far made of this remarkable aggregation of talent. Those who were not privileged to see the great English actor and his company upon their recent tour, and those who did, will relish this opportunity.

It was the original intention of Knickerbocker Star Features to release "Hamlet" in five reels, but the action has been sharpened and greatly improved by cutting it to three; additional emphasis also is thereby given to the big scenes, the duel, the poisoning of the queen, the killing of the king and the famous climax of the crowning of the dead Hamlet.

The next Knickerbocker Star Feature release is "The Cup of Chance," featuring Alice Brady. New stars for future releases are to be announced shortly, adding new and prominent names to the Knickerbocker galaxy of Forbes-Robertson, Gertrude Elliott, Alice Brady, Ralph Stuart, Mary Nash.

All Knickerbocker Star Features are to be had on the regular program of the General Film Company.

MINA PLAYER WAS IN INDIAN FIGHT

Louis Fitzroy, one of the principal members of the MinA Films company directed by Milton H. Fahrney, this week celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his stage debut. His career, as that of his earlier life, has been crowded with adventure.

Fitzroy, the son of an army officer, was born at Ft. Brady, Mich., in 1865. He moved with his father's regiment, First United States Infantry, to Dakota, where he remained until after the Custer massacre. He was in the fight which resulted in the killing of the "Apache Kid," a half-breed renegade, and the routing of the renegades under him.

Later he attended Ohio State University. He left that institution to join a summer stock company under Frank G. Campbell, of Winnepeg. That was in 1886. Since that time he has been with companies under new managers, the most prominent of whom are Klaw and Erlanger, C. B. Dillingham, Charles Frohman, Henry French, B. D. Stevens and Joe Brooks. He was with William H. Crane, Lillian Russell, Jerry Sykes and Francis Wilson, besides less prominent members and organizations too numerous to mention.

His first appearance on the screen was in a series of prohibition pictures. He went to california two years ago and joined David Horsley's Nestor Film company and was with that company when the Universal was formed. Since that time he has been with the Selig and Lubin companies, and three months ago became a member of the MinA Films company.

KNOXVILLE ORDINANCE UNFAIR TO EXHIBITORS

A meeting of motion picture exhibitors was held last week at Knoxville, Tenn., to protest against an ordinance, now before the city commissioners, which will increase the taxes on theatres 250 per cent.

BOOK DISPLAY IN DEPARTMENT STORE WINDOW

Omaha, July 8.

To properly emphasize the nation-wide photo-play book week in Omaha, the Brandeis, the largest department store in the city, not only put on a special advertising campaign, but presented with each copy of a Grosset and Dunlap photoplay title, an autographed portrait, 10½ x 14 inches, of the purchaser's favorite motion picture star.

The store sold a long list of books at fifty cents each and reported an excellent sale. This is a new and successful idea in Omaha territory. A number of smaller towns followed the example and will keep watch of photoplay book weeks in the future.

Minds of Ohio Censors Shift Like Weather Vanes

Board Atones for Its Bad Judgment, However, in Reconsidering Condemnation of "Devil's Daughter," Upon Demand of the Public

Cincinnati, O., July 6.

THE action of the Ohio board of censors recently in ordering the elimination of about 1,800 feet of the "Devil's Daughter," the latest Fox Film corporation production, based upon D'Annunzio's story, "La Giaconda," caused a stir in this city. The protest against this action was general and extended to the theatre-goers as well as the exhibitors. When the photoplay was cancelled by Managers Foster and Weigel, of the Grand opera house, where it was to have been shown on June 25, and the announcement was made that a crusade against Theda Bara had been opened by the censors, interest in the case became general. It was the general impression that the objection was aimed at the acting of Miss Bara, who has been featured as "the vampire woman" in "A Fool There Was," the "Clemenceau Case" and other Fox productions of a similar nature.

The management of the Grand announced in the newspapers that a free, public exhibition of the picture would be made so that the citizens might judge whether the character of the play or the acting of Miss Bara merited the action of the censors. The public exhibition was given on the evening of June 25, beginning when the regular performance closed. The theatre was crowded to its capacity and the show lasted until after midnight. The general opinion expressed after this performance was that there was absolutely nothing objectionable to the picture.

Following this a committee of exhibitors consisting of Charles Weigel, Lew Foster and Amos P. Poster, an attorney, went to Columbus and conferred with the censors. Clippings from Cincinnati newspapers showing how the action of the board was publicly regarded, were submitted and arguments in favor of the film were made.

The result was that the picture was passed almost in its entirety, although a few minor eliminations were made. While the exhibitors interested in this theatre show an inclination to regard the action of the censors as a misunderstanding on the part of A. M. Muller, local manager for the Fox company, this excuse is forgotten by the public in the overshadowing fact that the film was passed after having been rejected and when the public protest was apparent.

12-Reel Weekly Release Is Standard Plan for August

Combined Photoplay Company Expects to Raise This Output to 18 Reels by September 28, Is Announcement by Ludwig Erb, President of the Producing Company

IT can scarcely be called a new combination that brings the Combined Photoplay producers and the Standard program together. Everyone of the manufacturers releasing on the Standard program are intimately and personally familiar with the men behind the Standard program.

Ludwig G. B. Erb, president of the Combined Photoplay Producers, said, "I speak for all our companies when I say that in the light of our experience we have made a decided step forward in releasing through the Standard program.

"As a combination of established manufacturers, we had, of course, many attractive offers for our product, and a wide variety of choice was left us as to exactly how and through whom our pictures would be released. We went over the field carefully and selected the Standard program because we knew that with a business management to take charge of the marketing end, the experience, facilities and reputation of our producing companies would be cashed in with a maximum profit.

"The Warners and Al. Lichtman are essentially business men; their marketing methods are those of business men. We are prepared to make for them any class of pictures which they may require. Men who are so constantly and closely in touch with the film industry as these men are must respond with results embodying the exhibitor requirements.

"We will release our first weekly program of twelve reels on August 30, increasing our output on September 28 to eighteen reels weekly. This is not an estimate or a hope, these are actual definite dates and figures, of what and when our companies will produce.

"At the present time we have six weeks' supply of pictures in hand, yet future releases will only be made as fast as pictures are finished, so that each release will be thoroughly edited and the producers can always maintain their lead of the release."

Metro Flag Flutters in Times Square Breezes

Stars and Stripes, Largest in the World, Unfurled Under Auspices of Civic Associations Before 12,000 People on Independence Day

WHATEVER else the Fourth of July may mean in the history of our country, it meant the biggest day, from the publicity standpoint, that the Metro Pictures corporation has yet enjoyed. At twelve o'clock noon on that date, under the auspices of the city officials and various civic organizations, the largest American flag ever made was flung forth in the summer breezes midst a gathering of twelve thousand people, commemorating, as it did, the sixth month of Metro. Appropriate speeches by Borough President Marcus M. Marks, Fire Commissioner Adamson, Mr. Robinson of the Broadway Association and a score of other dignitaries, were made, paying tribute to the flag and to the Metro corporation in the same breath.

Mr. Marks referred to the Metro company as "typically American" in every sense of the word.

The flag measured one hundred and sixty-five feet in length and probably was as wide. It attracted considerable attention throughout the day and was the object of various topical weekly cameras.

The flag left New York last Wednesday for Los Angeles and San Francisco, where it will be flung again on Metro day, July 15, at the Panama exposition.

Harry Reichenbach left last Wednesday to handle the affairs of Metro at the convention at San Francisco. He will return to the home office August 1. George Wotherspoon, who was formerly associated with Reichenbach in the theatrical business, will have charge of Metro advertising during Reichenbach's absence.

"BLACKBIRDS" AND "HEIR TO THE HOORAH" ADDED TO LASKY SUCCESSES

Arrangements were completed last week by which Samuel Goldfish, treasurer and general manager of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company, has obtained the exclusive photo-dramatic rights to two famous American plays, "Heir to the Hoorah," Paul Armstrong's dramatization of the play, and "Blackbirds," by Harry James Smith.

"Blackbirds," the screen version of which has been prepared by Margaret Turnbull, will be the vehicle in which Laura Hope Crews will make her second appearance as a photo-drama star of the Lasky company. Her first production was "The Fighting Hope," produced by the Lasky company in association with David Belasco.

In "Blackbirds," which tells a tense and gripping story of smuggling and reformation, Miss Crews will have the support of Jane Wolf, Florence Dagmar, Evelyn Desmond, Thomas Meighan, George Gebhardt, Raymond Hatton, Ed Harley and Frederic Wilson, players, who have proved themselves capable of acting difficult roles.

RALPH H. CLARK, MANAGER WORLD FILM SAN FRANCISCO EXCHANGE

"Renegade," Starring Alice Brady, Nearly Ready

World Film Release Is Based on the Play of Paul Armstrong, and Gives Her Opportunity for Capable Acting in Romantic Character

THE World Film Corporation will shortly present the five-part photoplay "The Renegade," based upon Paul Armstrong's drama of that name which had a successful career on the regular stage a few years ago.

Alice Brady is the star of the photodrama. She plays the part of Katie O'Day, a warm hearted girl of Irish extraction, who has a lover in a gallant young officer. A scheming widow sows dissension between them, and a tribe of Indians, headed by a renegade, attacks the post and Katie and her family are in grave danger. However, they are rescued by Captain Lane and his troopers, and he and Katie are married.

The play is full of strongly marked characters. George Ralph plays the part of Sleeping Wolf, otherwise John Found, an educated Indian, who, however, reverts to the primitive when his tribal passions are aroused. A jealous mischief-making widow, the trouble maker, attracts the love of the Indian and when she rejects him there is the devil to pay. There are a number of other Irish and Indian characters in the photoplay (cowboys and squaws), which has a refreshingly strong story that is bound to hold by its intensive interest.

Last year's Lyric theatre, N. Y., dramatic success, "Evidence," which was conspicuous in New York's theatrical season, is forming the basis of a Shubert feature film to be released through World Film Corporation.

A strong and capable cast has been secured for the photoplay. Raidee Wright, who made a success in the play, has the same part in the photodrama. The cast also includes the name of Edwin August, Lillian Tucker, Richard Temple, Lionel Pape, Florence Hackett, Richard Buhler, Morris Falcot Stewart, Jr.

Leslie Stowe, for many years associated with Klaw & Erlanger's "Ben Hur" company, and known internationally because of his long career with the Ecclair company, has been specially engaged to portray the character part in "The Imposter," which will soon be released by the World Film Corporation.

Mr. Stowe is ideally suited for the difficult part, as can be judged from the fact that Mr. Capellani interviewed about fifty well known actors before his final selection. Most of his big scenes are with Alec Francis and Jose Collins, who are the co-stars in "The Imposters."

Films Re-shown Bring Word-of-Mouth Publicity

General Manager of V-L-S-E Impresses Theatre Owners with Benefits Derived from Policy Already Found Effective Wherever Tried Out by Exhibitors

"WE are endeavoring to impress upon exhibitors the benefits to be derived from re-showing films of real merit," said Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E, "and in doing so, are bringing to the attention of theatre owners, a phase of the business that, by reason of its very obvious financial importance, commands the careful consideration of every thinking exhibitor.

"Progressive exhibitors all realize the value of advertising, and in every community there is hardly a theatre of consequence that does not advertise in the daily newspapers. They know that advertising of this kind brings patrons to the theatre, and yet strange to stay, few realize the full value of 'word of mouth' advertising.

"This form of publicity is the most potent of all, and when a feature is shown that has real dramatic value and gives complete satisfaction, the 'word of mouth' advertising it gets cannot be estimated; advantage can only be taken of it when the film is reshown. This condition repeats itself and increases in proportion to the number of times the subject is exhibited until practically all prospective patrons have seen the film.

"This is merely applying the elementary principal of advertising; i. e., obtaining favorable comment to the exhibition of films, and the success of the plan depends only upon quality.

"The Queen theatres of Dallas, Houston and Galveston, Texas, and the Old Mill theatre of Dallas, and the Hippodrome theatre at Waco, Texas, are the highest class houses in each city. None of them seat less than one thousand people, and E. H. Hulsey, general manager of the chain, is so well satisfied with the success of the V-L-S-E features so far shown, that, 'at the risk of having his rental raised,' as he says, advises the company that the volume of business attending the exhibition of the V-L-S-E features, has far exceeded his fondest expectations.

"One of the features was shown at the Old Mill theatre in Dallas for five consecutive days, and the gratuitous advertising of satisfied patrons, accruing from day to day, was such that on the last two days people were turned away. The total receipts for the five days' showing of this one feature exceeded the receipts for any full week's showing of miscellaneous subjects during the past two months."

FILM EXPERIENCE BACKED BY 15 YEARS IN LEGITIMATE

George O. Nichols, who recently joined the Selig western stock companies as a director, has been fifteen years in the theatrical business as an actor and stage director. He started to work in motion pictures in 1906, then returned to the stage and produced "The Love Route" for the Shuberts.

Mr. Nichols joined the Biograph company in 1908 and remained with that company for three years. In 1911 he became affiliated with Thanhouser as a producer and made several notable feature film dramas. Later, Mr. Nichols joined the Lubin company as a producer and took a company to Jacksonville, Fla., where he remained a year.

He went to Los Angeles, California, in 1913, directed for several film companies, and joined the Selig forces in April, 1915.

EVERYBODY WAITING FOR FIRST METRO FILM WITH BUSHMAN

"Despite the fact that the motion picture manager first drops his features with the advent of the warm weather and the exodus of the population to the seashore and the mountains," said Oliver J. Allenbaugh of the Metro Film exchange, Washington, D. C., "we have been able to keep our productions steadily placed."

Everyone is looking forward to the first Bushman picture under the Metro banner.

VALENTINE GRANT (Lubin)

"LITTLE PAL"

(Famous Players—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

HERE appears a new Mary Pickford. Gone are the typical Pickford mannerisms, the sudden flashes of coquetry, the sweetly pouting lips, the tousled blonde curls. Instead Miss Pickford plays a dull, unintelligent, half-breed Alaskan girl, with straight black hair, daughter of a saloon keeper, the drudge around the place, unemotional and stolid. Once or twice "Little Pal," in a sudden excess of temper, pummels her servant, but she does it without sacrificing her immobility of expression.

Black Brand, the town's bad man, wins his saloon and daughter, Little Pal, from Sid Gerue, at a throw of the dice. Little Pal flees to John Grandon, a gentlemanly stranger, for protection. She nurses him when he falls ill with fever and plainly loves him. Just as the sick man is recovering his wife arrives.

The Grandons go back to civilization with only a parting word of thanks to little pal, whose heart is broken. The closing scene leaves Little Pal and her faithful servant about to seek refuge in the Happy Hunting Grounds through their own act.

Mary Pickford has usually been seen heretofore in parts which she alone can play. As Little Pal she plays a part not beyond the ability or personality of other actresses. But for all that she manages to endow it with a good deal of her own personality.

One good touch is the stolid, business-like way in which Little Pal gets the bandages ready whenever a fight starts in the saloon and sits calmly by, waiting till the contestants need attention.

The action is laid in Alaska, in the Winter, judging by the subtitles. But most of the characters do not wear enough clothes to protect them from the rigors of an ordinary New England Winter. Not more than two or three wear fur caps, and those are not pulled down over the ears. The rest wear derbies and felt hats; very few wear any overcoats. Grandon wears a sleeveless, athletic undershirt and his wife a very thin, fragile negligee while sheltered from the cold only by a log hut with inch cracks between the flimsy floor boards.

Russell Bassett gives one of his fine character impersonations as the saloon keeper who shoots himself after losing his all over the gaming table. George Anderson, makes his debut as a Pickford leading man as Grandon. Constance Johnson is Mrs. Grandon. Bert Hadley is a good Indian servant type. William Lloyd is excellent as the old camp doctor and Joseph Manning is virile as Black Brand, the bully.

James Kirkwood directed.

"THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE"

(V-L-S-E—Essanay—Six Acts)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THERE is always a possibility that dire calamity may result from ignorance as to the ways and morals of the world; particularly so is this true when the innocent is a girl. "The Blindness of Virtue," adapted from the play of Cosmo Hamilton's, belongs to that class of picture that preaches against the neglectful practice of many unthinking or over-careful parents, who allow their daughters to grow to womanhood in complete ignorance of their duty.

But the Essanay company has well succeeded in causing "The Blindness of Virtue" to stand out in bold relief. It is treated delicately from every standpoint. No scene at all injurious to one's finer sensibilities is pictured, although the story is just as comprehensive and just as vital under these existing conditions as it would be under any other circumstances.

In describing a certain phase of the picture we will, to all of our knowledge, inaugurate a new term, "atmospheric padding." It may well be applied to this picture, as it undoubtedly contains much padding, but at the same time its atmosphere is strikingly true and realistic.

The locale of the production is England, and the family of a minister and his immediate friends are the central characters of the play. He has brought his daughter up in perfect innocence of the ways of the world. She is happy and carefree, at times undefinably lonely. The minister takes into his home the wilful son of his very dear friend and with great pains succeeds in making a man of him.

The action quickens its pace when a friend of this young man betrays a girl of the minister's congregation. He then awakens to the fact that it is time to acquaint his daughter with the true facts of life. In the meantime his daughter's unconventionality has brought trouble upon the head of the man she loves, her father's pupil.

One morning, after he has returned from London, she skips gaily into his room clad in the same raiment in which she stepped out of bed. The minister discovers them together, but after-developments show the man innocent. Her mother then imparts the long neglected information to her daughter and the story ends.

Edna Mayo is very delightful as the innocent and so unconventional girl who throws all custom to the winds to gain her pleasure. Bryant Washburn as Archie, her lover, is very good, too, while Thomas McLarnie as the minister performs forcibly. The poor innocent girl who "learns" too late is sympathetically portrayed by Betty Brown, while John Cossar, Renee Noel, Harry Dunkinson and George LeGuere complete the cast.

As regards photography and scenery, nothing remains to be perfected. Of its kind "The Blindness of Virtue" is truly one of the best stories that have seen the celluloid.

"LIBERTY HALL"

(Cosmofotofilm—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

SELDOM has a picture pleased so by its clever construction and intelligently rendered characterizations as "Liberty Hall," which relies entirely on these properties for its interest, omitting the slightest atom of sensationalism. It is in reality a perfect production of its kind. If there was a flaw we missed it.

Hartley Owen Chilworth falls heir to a large estate. His cousins, Blanche and Amy, are left penniless. But stifling their pride they accept an invitation from their struggling uncle, Todman, to live with him. Chilworth assumes the surname of Owen and lodges with Todman as his own agent. He studies the personalities of all his needy relatives, and after some of the most delightful situations have been introduced, he throws off his guise and marries Blanche, while Amy is made happy by her honorable Gerald Harringay.

The atmosphere of the play is quite Dickens-like. The living room of Today's home with the old-fashioned bookstall visible through the door is truly an ideal set. The bookstall itself, with old Toddy and the young boy attending, is equally delightful. As for the camera work it is appropriate in every scene; it is subdued and some sections of the film are pleasingly toned.

Every member of the cast exhibits exceptional ability in interpreting their parts, all of which offer unusual possibilities. As Chilworth, Ben Webster plays with a care and finish that is admirable. Blanche and Amy are respectively played by Ranee Brook and Edna Flugrath. Both render well the roles of the humbled sisters. O. B. Clarence as old Toddy is delightful, while Douglas Munro as Briginshaw, the creditor of Toddy, makes a fine heavy. Stanley Benton as the shop boy enlivens the picture with a number of spontaneous comedy touches, while Gwynne Herbert as the housekeeper has another semi-humorous part. Others are Hubert Willis, L. Burton and Wyndham Guise.

The picture was adapted by Bannister Merwin from a play by R. C. Carton and was produced by Harold M. Shaw, who has added another decided success to his formidable list of good pictures. Before all audiences, in particular those of intelligence, "Liberty Hall" will certainly score a triumph.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE JUNGLE"

(Bison Universal—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

HENRY McRAE'S monthly wild animal pictures are a welcome occurrence on the Universal program. Each succeeding production of this nature seems to be better than the one which went before. In "A Daughter of the Jungle" he reaches the height of realism in respect to his handling the numerous lions and leopards that are introduced.

There are two scenes that rival one another for highest honors. The one shows a lion jumping down from a shelf, or a rock, bowling over a hunter who is sitting peacefully below. The other shows another ferocious beast killing the wife of the hunter and her lover. These scenes are true thrillers and whether they were filmed with the assistance of dummies or not, makes little difference in the final summing up.

The atmosphere of the picture is another good asset. It is realistic and the spectacle of the hunters and half-naked negroes fully completes the illusion that the whole thing is transpiring in Africa.

As to the story, which was written by the director, Henry McRae, it is an original one and very entertaining in its entirety, although there are some parts of it that are not quite clear. For one thing too many flashbacks have been utilized to inform the spectator that part of the action is being related by one character to another.

The cast consists of Wellington A. Playter, Sherman Bainbridge, Rex de Rosselli, Marie Walcamp and Betty Schade.

"ON DANGEROUS PATHS"

(Edison—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

THIS is a very fine presentation of dangers that beset the path of girls ignorant of the various lures of the city.

Eleanor Thurston, inspired by the success of her sister in the city, refuses the engagement ring of Roger Sterret and sets out for the city to earn her own living. She becomes a nurse and meets Dr. Sinclair when he rescues her from an insane patient. Roger, coming to the city, meets with an accident and is taken to the hospital. There he meets Eleanor. On his recovery he asks her to go back with him but she, in love with the doctor, refuses.

Roger, angry, in full view of Eleanor, flirts with a strange girl in front of the hospital and leaves with her in his automobile.

That night Eleanor and Doctor Sinclair and Roger and the chorus girl are all dining at the same roadhouse. The doctor shows his hand more clearly. Roger rescues Eleanor. The chorus girl demands an explanation of why she is abandoned, but when the doctor pays her bill and takes her home in his car she doesn't mind at all.

Pretty Violet Dana is Eleanor. Handsome Pat O'Malley is Roger. Robert Conness is a good looking doctor. Grace Williams has a small but important part as the chorus girl. Margaret Prussing, Helen Strickland, William West, Frank Lyons and Mrs. William West are in the cast.

THE END OF THE AFTERNOON

The dramatic strength of the story is well worked up, aided by many well chosen close-ups. The scenes at the roadhouse and hospital are the real thing. John H. Collins directed.

ESSANAY FINISHES LUMBER CAMP SUBJECT

ESSANAY has just begun work on "The Man Trail," a six act feature photoplay written by Henry Oyen. This is a thrilling, red-blooded story of lumber camp life, with the rugged characters of the untamed woods.

This story made a success when run as a serial in "Adventure" and is especially adapted for a photoplay.

HIS life was a great adventure. No melodrama ever pictured could compare with the excitement, intrigue, romance of his brief years. LUCILLE YOUNG, THE R-M ACTRESS, TAKES THE ROLE OF THE ORIENTAL HEROINE AROUND WHOM THE ACTION CENTERS

"THE RUG MAKER'S DAUGHTER"

(Bosworth-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

BOSWORTH, Inc., in association with the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company in this picture afford screen patrons an opportunity to see Maud Allan, the classic dancer, in the name part of the production. The feature comprised part of the Strand bill for the week of July 4, at which place and time it played to crowded houses.

Miss Allan is given a few small, although well introduced opportunities to demonstrate her talent in the art of dancing, but the interest settles more on her ability as an actress of charm and the romance of the picture more than her terphsicorean calling.

The story is not uncommon to the world of films, but it is laid in not a few beautiful and attractively realistic settings. The Turkish scenes, in particular the interiors, have been constructed with an eye to substantiality and luxurious realism. Then the action that transpires in the American home in New York is laid in scenes that compare well with the most sumptuously outfitted residence in the city while the photography is of a uniform and distinct variety in practically every instance. Bosworth photograph is here well exemplified.

Although the plot is in several instances rather too suddenly developed to convince, the story as a whole manages to entertain without exhibiting anything of a startling and melodramatic nature.

In brief, the plot, concerns one Robert Van Buren, an American traveler, who falls in love with Demetra, the daughter of a Turk. She is betrothed to Osman, a wealthy tradesman, but after the two lovers have experienced numerous hazards, time finally discovers them in America, with not a soul to interfere with their marriage.

Miss Allen is ably supported by Forrest Stanley as the American, Howard Davies as Osman, Herbert Standing as her father and Jane Darwell, Laura Woods Cushing and Harrington Gibbs.

"THE RIGHT OF WAY"

(Rolfe-Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS production of B. A. Rolfe, the main pillar of the Strand theatre's program for the week of July 4, is decidedly striking, in fact almost a classic picture.

The story portrays the conversion of an unbeliever and blasphemer.

However, it is not this theme, but the peculiar and forceful personality of the plot's central figure and the story's development that set the picture in a separate class.

"The Right of Way" was written by Sir Gilbert Parker. It is truly a deep and significant book. The picture, shorn of a few counterplots, follows illustriously in the path of its literary predecessor, being just as deep and just as significant. It is an offering that makes one think and think hard, and consequently will appeal in particular to persons of intelligence.

William Faversham makes his screen debut in "The Right of Way" as Charley Steele, the heretic. The part and Mr. Faversham suit one another to a pleasing degree. Mr. Faversham brilliantly succeeds in making the ironical, ultra-sarcastic character of Steele the replica of the author's creation.

The part as rendered is magnetic and powerful. Then in the latter stages of the story when the much disliked Steele reaches a north Canadian town, where he comes under the influence of love and finally of religion, here, too, does Mr. Faversham continually dominate the picture.

Jane Grey, who appears as Rosalie, the girl who errs that she may save the soul of Charley, gives splendid support to Mr. Faversham in the opposite role. As Trudel, the tailor, Henry Bergman presents vividly the character of the religious fanatic.

Edward Brennan as Joe Portugese, the murderer, is most effective in every scene, while Harold De Becker as Billy completes the named cast.

The direction of the picture was allotted to John W. Noble, who, in his own particular style, has made a big success of it. The village street scene is deserving of special mention, while the scenes taken at night, showing the villagers swarming to the burning church, are most effective. Mr. Noble's use of the fadeout in changing from the closeup to the full scene is employed with very good results throughout the five reels. The photography cannot be criticised.

The story: Steele, a brilliant lawyer, slowly ruins himself through drink. His brother-in-law robs him of money that he holds in trust for charity. He is accused of the crime. In a bar-room fight Steele is worsted and thrown into the lake from which he is rescued by Joe, a murderer who owes his life to the lawyer. For a year Steele's mind is a blank, and when he is finally cured, he discovers that his wife has remarried.

He resolves to stay in the northern town, and then comes his long delayed and hard conversion, accomplished in part by Rosalie and in part by what might be termed fate. In the end, while he is guarding the money of the church, he is shot by Billy, who has sunk to the lowest level. He is mortally wounded, although he dies happy in the love of Rosalie and in his own newly awakened faith.

"TRAITORS TO THEIR KING"

(Pathé—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

SELDOM has Pathé furnished more beautiful color than that seen in this picture. As the title indicates, the story is one of intrigue among courtiers who would overthrow a kingdom for their personal gain.

The action carries the spectator through many thrilling episodes, including hand-to-hand sword fighting in the palace, and also carries a charming love story.

The picture was produced abroad and is a costume subject. These facts however, will not militate against it in the eyes of American patrons. In fact, a costume setting is almost essential for a romantic play such as this. Modern costumes, somehow, rob romance of its flavor.

The work of the French players is very fine throughout. Especially fine is the work of the plotters. It is interesting to know that the actor playing one of the principal roles, a member of the French Pathé stock company, was recently killed in the trenches.

Without exception, the settings and locations are beautiful and magnificent. Foreign producers are masters of subtle touches of artistry, many of which are brought into this production.

Another word about the color work. The registration is perfect. Even in scenes showing a crowd on the screen and with quick action the colors of the different garments worn by the players do not get "off register." The tonings, too, are soft and harmonious. Altogether this picture will delight the eye by its coloring as well as appeal to the mind by its plot.

"THE ISOLATED HOUSE"

(Pathé—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

THIS is another of the A. Conan Dolye-Sherlock Holmes series, the first of which was "The Hound of the Baskervilles." The isolated house referred to in the title is a house which can be sunk beneath the surface of a lake or raised above the surface by two controlling levers. One lever is in the house itself and the other in a secret hiding place in a hollow tree.

The unfaithful steward lures Sir Roger Baskerville and Lady Baskerville to the house. Sherlock Holmes traces them there. When the sleuth breaks in, the steward sinks the house beneath the water. In a fight, a pane of glass is broken and the water comes pouring in.

The steward wants them all to drown like rats in a trap, but Holmes finds the lever that raises the house and rescues the Baskervilles. When they are on dry land he tries to go back to arrest the steward, but the house with the steward inside sinks back under the water before his eyes.

This affords excellent melodrama. The disappearing house is very interesting. In addition, the picture is well produced and has fine photography.

"ALL FOR OLD IRELAND"

(Lubin—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

WHILE this photoplay will be of special interest to those of Irish extraction, the picturization of the trials of devoted lovers interwoven with hairbreadth escapes, Irish patriotism, and English oppression in the days of old, will strike a sympathetic chord in many hearts.

The scenario was written and produced by Sidney Olcott. Only partly finished when the war broke out, much trouble was experienced in completing the film and transporting it to America.

The photography is excellent. The hills and dales, the rocks and rills of the Emerald Isle stand out with vivid beauty. The magnificence of the scenery, however, has been a temptation to pad in places. The cast, while able, would not in America be considered of great stellar importance.

The story is of the troubles of Eileen Donaghue and her true lover Miles Murphy. Fagin, the traitor, in revenge for Eileen's "no" betrays Miles to the English. Eileen manages to get him out of prison before his execution. When he is pursued she hides him in a hay wagon on which she and her mother ride to market. He catches a French ship and promises to send for his sweetheart and her mother when he is safe. There are several exciting scenes, but the last one seems lacking in strength.

Valentine Grant, P. H. O'Malley, Arthur Lee, Robert Rivers, Laurens Santley and Charles McConnell constitute the cast.

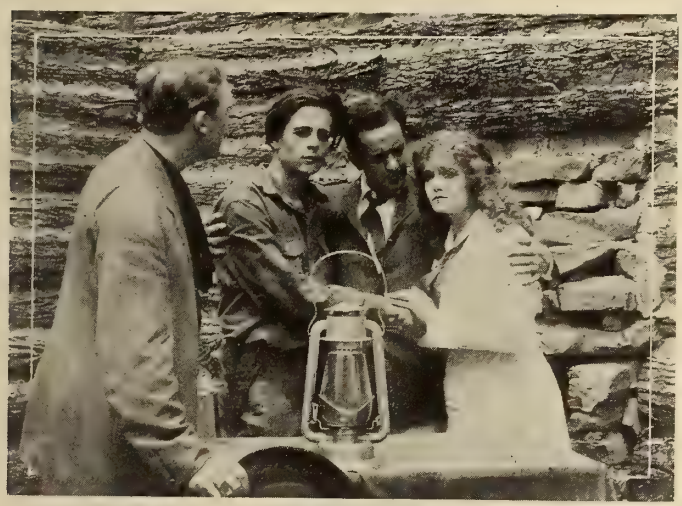
"JANE OF THE SOIL"

(Essanay—Two Parts)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD



THIS picture was produced in the mountain regions of Tennessee, where a company of Essanay actors was sent to secure local color for a series of backwoods mountain stories.

Beautiful wild scenery reproduced by excellent photography serves to counterbalance a rather weak plot and to make this an enjoyable offering.

The cast, which includes Lillian Drew, Richard C. Travers, Edmund F. Cobb, Marian Skinner and Grant Foreman, do good work. Edmund Cobb's portrayal of the mentally deranged man is particularly worthy of praise, and Lillian Drew as "Jane of the Soil" makes an attractive heroine.

The story tells of a wild care-free girl of the Tennessee mountains who, much against her will, is forced to go away to boarding school. Here she meets John Doyle, the brother of one of her schoolmates, and falls in love with him. In the meantime, Ralph Doyle, John's worthless brother, has secured a job near Jane's mountain home.

At vacation time Ralph runs across Jane wandering through the woods and attacks her. She shoots him and, overcome with remorse, flees to John, confessing her crime. John shortly after receives word there is a wild man answering to his brother's description wandering at large in the mountain regions.

John departs to find him; Jane also has returned to the scene of her crime, and one night the three meet in a deserted hut. A shock brings back Ralph's memory and all ends happily.

FRANK CRANE ON THE WORLD FILM OPEN AIR STAGE AT FORT LEE, N. J., ADDRESSING THE CAST OF "AN INDIAN DIAMOND"

"A HOUSE OF CARDS"

(Lubin—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

AN interesting analogy—that of life to a game of cards—lends a touch of novelty to this film. While cards in one shape or another have been a feature of many former pictures, the method here introduced is unusual. A large pair of hands appears on the screen, shuffles and cuts a deck of cards and shows each time a deal that corresponds to the caption of the scene.

Thus when John Allen goes to town from his country home "The deck is cut." When he gets a good position, "The deal is on." When he becomes a junior partner in the firm there is "A lucky draw." When he forgets Mary, his country sweetheart, she becomes "The discard." John "Chances a four card draw" when he dabbles in stocks with the firm's securities in order to marry Myrtle, the head partner's daughter. Thus the card metaphor is carried to the end.

John has a wonderful vision of a house of cards that collapses when, driven by conscience, he visits his home town to find Mary dead. Here he has a wire telling him of the failure of his deal, thus making him an embezzler. So all is lost.

L. C. Shumway and Velma Whitman are assisted by Melvin Mayo, Grace Huntley, George Berrell, Adelaide Bronte, George Routh, in the capable cast.

"LETTERS FROM BUG TO GUS"

(World Film—One Reel)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

RING M. LARDNER'S "Big League Stuff" in the "Saturday Evening Post" has amused thousands of readers every week by its eccentric and spontaneous humor. Transfered to the screen with the sub-titles extracts from the original writings they bid fair to become an equally popular series of pictures, if number one may be taken as a criterion.

Bug, the rube ball player, has a girl that is wont to watch him play the game. But, alas, along comes a fop who to alienate the young lady's affection, joins the team himself. He wins out and the picture closes, leaving Bug greatly disgruntled and feeling, as he puts it, like a piece of cheese.

Scenes taken in the ball park of the Chicago Cubs, showing many of the players, including Manager Bresnahan, combined with the humor of the sub-titles, make this both pleasing and funny.

"TRADE SECRET," AT GOTHAM, EXCITES INTEREST

FOLLOWING the success of "The Man Who Beat Dan Dolan," the first Gotham film production, inquiries have been pouring into the offices of the company regarding "A Trade Secret," featuring Betty Marshall and Frederic de Belleville.

Many of the biggest exchange men of the country have written or called during the past two weeks, and negotiations with them have ended in the closing of all territories in the United States, with the exception of Texas.

"THE OCTOPUS"

(Selig—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

"THE Octopus," a very interesting and widely read story, written by Charles Belmont Davis, supplies the material for this three-reel Diamond special, which will be shown on July 15. Thomas Santschi's work both in directing the production and in interpretating the role of Thatcher Thole, a daring and unscrupulous master of high finance, is deserving of praise. His supporters, Lillian Heyward, Leo Pierson, Lafayette McKee and Marian Warner, are well cast in their respective parts.

Archie Sheldon decides to go to New York to start in business. His mother gives him a letter to Thatcher Thole, a well-known financier who, she tells him, is a friend of the family. Under the tutelage of Thole, Archie learns the game of crooked finance, and is used in many shady deals as Thole's go-between.

Thole has a falling out with Mrs. Slade, a wealthy widow, through an affair in which a jealous chorus girl is involved.

When Thole asks Archie to assume the responsibility for a scathing letter that has fallen into Mrs. Slade's hands, Archie refuses to further surrender his manhood for his benefactor. It then develops that Archie is Thole's illegitimate son. In scorn Archie leaves him and returns home to his mother. The story, dealing as it does with the gay life in a large city, depends upon a number of cafe scenes for its proper atmosphere. These are well staged, as are also the scenes taken in fashionable homes.

"JUST OUT OF COLLEGE"

(Frohman-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

"JUST Out of College" is a real comedy. You are not obliged to look at the producer's announcement to discover this fact. Its diverting qualities are quite evident.

The picture is so funny that the spectator is kept in a constant state of laughter from beginning to end. Naturally one might suppose that a George Ade comedy could not help being a laughmaker, but even his farcical effects would be lost without skilful picturization. Nothing important was overlooked in this screen version of a well known stage hit.

As an instance of the director's efficiency, the use of subtitles might be cited. Instead of trying to work out visionary theories about the development of photoplay action based on the doubtful supposition that the perfect screen drama should have no leaders, he used sub-titles wherever a question of clearness might arise. Consequently there was no intricate Chinese puzzle to solve—motive, plot, characterization—all were followed without the necessity of becoming a mental gymnast.

At the same time the director did not disclose prematurely any of the dramatic surprises. These were kept well in hand and, like properly trained rabbits in a prestidegitators hat, popped into view only at the right moments

Many of the sub-titles consist of dialogue taken from the original play, and the lines sparkled with additional lustre in their new setting.

The cast assumed their respective roles with an air of rollicking abandonment. They entered into the spirit of the farce, and conveyed the impression that they rather act the parts than do anything else. This unison of attitude toward their work gives the picture unusual verve and spontaneity.

Nobody but a cigar store Indian or a professional lecturer on the psychological aspects of laughter could sit through the picture without smiling in complete enjoyment of its uproarious fun.

"THE ZACA LAKE MYSTERY"

(American—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

"THE Zaca Lake Mystery," which will be released on July 12, deals with the escape and eventual capture of an outlaw in the western mountains.

Winifred Greenwood plays Nell, the daughter of a western miner. Ed Coxen takes the part of a forest ranger, and George Field is seen as the outlaw.

The outlaw wandering through the mountains comes upon a miner's cabin just as the miner is showing his daughter a bag of nuggets. The outlaw finds and gags Nell and escapes with the gold.

The father and daughter chase him through the mountains, and in the cabin of a ranger they find a "Mr. Bond, of San Francisco," who says he is looking for his twin brother, who has been lost in the mountains. Nell sees the resemblance between "Mr. Bond" and the outlaw, and consents to go canoeing with him.

THE CULPRIT CAPTURED AT LAST

Shortly afterwards the real Mr. Bond staggers into the cabin. He tells how an outlaw has compelled him to exchange clothing with him. The three rush after Nell and the impostor, but Nell has beaten them. They find her on the shore of the lake covering the outlaw with her revolver.

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

"As It Happened." (Biograph. Mon., July 12.)—The new foreman, in love with the ranchman's daughter, is jealous when he sees her affectionately greeting her brother. Later he saves the young man from being cheated by card sharps and finds out that he is the girl's brother who had just stolen the money with which to gamble, from his father. The foreman is replacing the money which the boy stole, in the safe, when the ranchman comes in and denounces him as a thief. But the arrival of real brigands clears the foreman's honor and he wins the girl. A western subject with plenty of action. Harry Carey is the new foreman and Claire McDowell the girl. Produced by Tony O'Sullivan.

"Coincidence." (Biograph. Two reels. Tues., July 13.)—The long arm of coincidence establishes Marietta, who has treated an old blind violinist kindly, as his long-lost granddaughter. The discovery comes through the violinist hearing that a notorious desperado is dying in jail. The desperado is the man who married the violinist's daughter. Questioning reveals the whole story.

This western picture might have degenerated into an ordinary subject with less skilful direction than that given it by Wray Physioc. As it is, it is one of the finest two reelers seen in a long time. Mary Maletesta plays the granddaughter and Madge Kirby the daughter. Jack Drumier is the violinist. Walter Coyle, Ivan Christy and Frank Bates play frontier characters.

"The One Forgotten." (Biograph. Thurs., July 15.)—Grant Allen, from the city, has an affair with Marie, a backwoodsman's daughter. Returning to the city Allen marries. Next summer Mrs. Alen, on a vacation in the woods, meets Marie strewing flowers on the grave of Allen's baby. Confronted by the two women, Allen takes his wife in his arms and implores Marie's forgiveness. Frank Newberg is Allen, Isabel Rea is Marie, and Edward Cecil, her father. George Morgan directed.

"The Little Runaways." (Biograph. Sat., July 17.)—A cute little comedy drama about the gardener's boy and the rich man's little girl who run away. Their rebellion only lasts a few hours, though. Zoe Bech and George Stone are the "kiddies." Gus Pixley is the gardener and Jack Mulhall and Irma Dawkins the rich couple. Edward Morrissey directed.

"Cartoons in the Laundry." (Edison. Wed., July 14.)—A clever combination of the animated cartoon and the phoptoplay. A girl waiting for her skirt in a Chinese laundry laughs at the cartoons in a book; so does the Chinaman; so does her sweetheart; so does the audience when the cartoons appear in animation on the screen. Raoul Barre is the artist.

"For His Mother." (Edison. Sat., July 17.)—A strong one reel drama of the love of a son for his mother. The principal parts are allotted to capable hands. Carlton King plays the son and Helen Strickland plays the mother. Miss Strickland also played the mother in "The Stoning." Her work in "For His Mother" is fully up to her ability. Harry Beaumont directed.

"The Rev. Salamander, Unattached." (Essanay. Mon., July 12.)—Rev. Salamander, an athlete in his college days, becomes the village hero when he acts as relief pitcher at the ball game and saves the day by striking out two men and then making a home run himself. This feat alone wins him the village belle. An adaptation from the "Short Stories" magazine. John Thorn is the Rev. Salamander and Beverly Bayne the village belle.

"The Pipe Dream." (Essanay. Thurs., July 15.)—A tramp, in his pipe dream, is consorting with a beautiful fairy queen. He awakes when he falls out of the tree. Billy Mason is the tramp and pretty Ruth Hennessy the fairy queen.

"Jane of the Soil." (Essanay. Two reels. Sat., July 17.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Fable of the Scoffer Who Fell Hard." (Essanay. Wed., July 14.)—The George Ade fable wherein a baseball enthusiast falls for the game of golf, at which he has always scoffed. Harry Dunkinson is the business man, Betty Scott his wife and Sydney Ainsworth the golf bug who does the converting.

"A Flashlight Flivver." (Kalem. Tues., July 13.)—This week's "Ham and Bud" comedy is as laughable as the rest of the series. Ham is a photographer and Bud his assistant. Pretty Ethel Teare is another assistant. Bud fixes up the camera with a seltzer bottle so that it squirts over the subjects, the first of which is the village fire department. The other subject is Angelica, who wants to pose slightly draped, to the anxiety of Ham and Bud.

"The Straight and Narrow Path." (Kalem. Two reels. Wed., July 14.)—Marin Sais, as the girl detective, works on a department store theft case. Harris, the manager, has had his eyes on Frances West, a pretty employee, played by Ollie Kirby. He forces her, under pain of losing her job, to attend a gay party. Humiliated, Frances later tries to kill herself, but is prevented in the nick of time by the girl detective who soon nabs Harris rifling the store safe.

"The Fighting Kid." (MinA. Thurs., July 15.)—Jerry is the fighting kid of this comedy. Dreaming that he is in a harem he kisses a tramp while sleeping on a park bench. That starts the first fight. Then he rescues Nellie from a masher's attention. Finding the bully asleep, the next day, he removes the bully's shoes, sprinkles the ground with tacks, and then pummels him. The bully and his gang attack Jerry later as the hero is serenading Nellie. The last fight is stopped by the arrival of the police who drag Jerry off to jail. A funny comedy, full of laughs.

"A Deed of Daring." (Kalem. Sat., July 17.)—Another of the "Hazards of Helen" series. Helen Holmes, as the heroine, foils a Chinese smuggling plot. The locomotive which Helen is driving in pursuit of the train with the Chinamen overhauls and passes the other train. Helen jumps from the top of the train to a bridge, goes along the brace-bar hand over hand, and drops onto the second train when it goes under the bridge. The daring of Miss Holmes seem supernatural. In addition it is a corking good picture.

"What a Cinch." (Lubin. Split reel. Tues., July 13.)—with "Studies in Clay." A mixed up, impossible plot of a girl, a chief of police, his lieutenant and a pawnbroker. Both officers being in love with Molly, she favors the one who can first get five hundred dollars. Both then try to work schemes in conjunction with the pawnbroker. The lieutenant gets the money, the chief gets left, the pawnbroker gets a beating. Cast: Babe Hardy, Raymond McKee, Frances Ne Moyer, Billy Bowers.

"Studies in Clay." (Lubin. Split reel. Tues., July 13.)—With "What a Cinch." Rather a new idea in animated cartoons is here shown. The sculptor, lascking inspiration, consoles himself witih a schooner of beer, and at once sees all sorts of things happen to his piece of clay, which jumps from the rough to the finished model with bewildering rapidity, causing not only amusement, but to the uninitiated the eternal wonder "How is it done?" This is drawn by Vincent Whitman.

"An Hour of Freedom." (Lubin. One reel. Fri., July 16.)—Suggested by the story "The Road to Thursday," this clean little comedy drama has a sentimental appeal that will please audiences in general.

Arthur Johnson and Lottie Briscoe invest their roles with enough plausibility to make natural the characters of Tom and Edith. George Clark, Eleanor Blanchard and Howard Mitchell perform their parts creditably.

Tom and Edith, betrothed, feel the lack of romance in their engagement. Each secretly seeks "an hour of freedom" just before the wedding hour. Their unconventional adventures end in a secret marriage, while they are being searched for by frantic relatives. The couple return in time for the formal ceremony, which they can bear now because they have had their little fling of romance first.

"Wifie's Ma Comes Back." (Lubin. One reel. Sat., July 17.)—A new kink in the world-old mother-in-law joke is portrayed in this comedy, featuring Billy Reeves, supported by Mae Hotely, Patsy De Forest and Billy Potter.

When Bill finds his wife's mother is coming on a visit for her health, he, by prescribing strenuous exercise, gets a chance to maul her about in boxing lessons.

Later the tables are turned. Ma-in-law takes real boxing lessons, and turns the tables by beating Bill to a frazzle. After this he is perforce content to do as he is bidden.

Billy Reeves is more comical in boxing stunts than in any other, and this slapstick comedy gives him another chance to induce laughter in those waiting to be amused.

"Road o' Strife." (Lubin serial—Part Five. Mon., July 12.)—With this installment, "The Coming of the Kingdom," this interesting serial comes to a fitting end. When Robert Dane is convicted for abstracting the silver cup, Alene sells her princely jewel to get the money to pay his fine. Prof. Gershom's mysterious idea materializes when the ambassador offers Alene the throne of her father, if she will wed an allied prince.

While the director and all the cast will doubtless heave sighs of relief that this story is over, because the new method of captions made such trying work for all, it must be said that Director John Ince made a big success of this new caption idea as well as the scenes of the serial itself.

Whether the picture-going public will demand thits form of caption—namely, the flashing in and out of the words on the picture itself—remains to be seen.

Mary Charleson has established herself as a film favorite by her appealing work as Alene. Crane Wilbur proved an ideal Robert Dane visually as well as dramatically.

"The Smouldering." (Selig. Two reels. Mon., July 12.)—Rachel St. John, the fallen mother of Gerald, who has been adopted by the Strathmores, is a drug addict. Homer, Gerald's rival for Dorothy's hand, sends a note to Dorothy's mother, attacking Gerald's parentage. To save her son the mother appears at a reception, again the grand dame, abandons drugs by sheer will power. She saves the day for Gerald and Dorothy but at the cost of her own life. Eugenie Besserer plays the mother. Frank Mayo is Gerald, Martha Boucher is Dorothy and Harry De Vere is Homer. Frank Beal directed, this being his first picture since his return to Selig.

"The Parson Who Fled West." (Selig. Tues., July 13.)—The title tells the story. The parson flees because he is suspected of another man's crime. Just as he is caught in a frontier town the guilty man confesses to stealing the $10,000. The guilty man was the parson's brother-in-law whom he shielded.

"Lives of the Jungle." (Selig. Sat., July 17.)—This is a Selig jungle-zoo wild animal picture. The wild beasts have convincing parts. There is a wealth of jungle scenery and versatile acting.

"Pup, the Peacemaker." (Selig. Wed., July 14.)—The pup, by finding the lost child of two quarrelling parents, reconciles them. Written and produced by Burton L. King.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"The Mountain Girl." (Majestic. Two reels. Sun., July 11.)—Dorothy Gish is Nell, the mountain girl, who lives with her grandfather, played by Ralph Lewis. Nel nurses back to life a stranger, found dying in the woods by her sweetheart, played by W. E. Lawrence. The stranger, on recovering, makes forcible love to Nell. The doddering old grandfather, summoning all his strength, chokes the stranger. The lover arrives to find Nell safe, but both the grandfather and the stranger dead. Frank Bennett plays the stranger. Ralph Lewis gives a fine bit of character work as the grandfather.

"Tracked Through the Snow." (Thanhouser. Sun., July 11.)—Little Helen Badgely is starred in her first western role, that of a little girl who is lost in the mountains and tracked by her dog. The dog summons the sheriff and the posse captures the outlaws. Oodles of snow—a welcome sight in July. Riley Chamberlain, Boyd Marshall, Ernest Wade and John Lehnberg in the cast.

"Beppo, the Barber." (Komic. Sun., July 11.)—A one reel comedy with Fay Tincher as the manicurist. Beppo, to win an heiress, impersonates a count. Both the count and the supposed heiress are wanted by the police. So there are plenty of mix-ups. Elmer Booth, Chester Withey, Max Davidson, Frank Darien and Louise Achiel in the cast.

"The Arrow Maiden." (Reliance. Mon., July 12.)—An Indian gets the medicine woman to cast a spell over his rival. The rival dies and the first Indian is made medicine man. The medicine woman, realizing that she has been tricked, raises the other from the dead. Resurrected, the second wins the heart of the arrow maiden. Billie West is the arrow maiden. Others are Eagle Eye, Dove Eye, H. Moody and Dan Davis, respectively.

"Zaca Lake Mystery." (American. Two reels. Monday, July 12.)—Reviewed at length in another part of this issue.

"Applied Romance." (Beauty. Tues., July 13.)—A comedy drama showing how a young man prevents two unscrupulous lawyers from cheating a wealthy girl out of her fortune, and eventually wins her love. Beautifuly arranged settings and an exciting automobile accident make this both an interesting and pretentious one reel picture. Neva Gerber and Webster Campbell lead the cast.

"Mercy On a Crutch." (Thanhouser. Two reels. Tues., July 13.)—Mercy, the little cripple of a mining camp, tries to save from the sheriff a stranger who had been kind to her. After a wonderful ride she reaches the stranger in a cave. There the sheriff finds him. Then Mercy learns that the stranger is the sheriff from another county and that he was guarding the wanted criminal in the cave. Helen Fulton plays Mercy. John Lehnberg, Carey Hastings, Helen Badgely, Wayne Eric and Thomas Hand are in the cast.

"A Ten Cent Adventure." (Majestic. Tues., July 13.)—A comedy-drama played by the Majestic juvenile company, something sure to please the women and children. Joe, the poor boy, finally aids the bank in capturing a band of bandits. He and Dorothea, the bank president's daughter, become firm friends. George Stone is Joe and Carmen de Rue is Dorothea. Richard Cummings, Eleanor Washington, Violet Radcliffe, Charles Gorman and Jack Hull are other players.

SEE TABLE OF CONTENTS, PAGE 130, FOR REVIEWS OF FILMS NOT FOUND ON THESE PAGES

"A Breath of Summer." (Reliance. Wed., July 14.)—The romance of a factory girl who wants to send her mother to the mountains. Mansfield Peters, a rich bachelor, plays the rescuer, sends the mother to the country and marries the girl. Francelia Billington is the girl and Charles Clary plays the bachelor in his distinguished way. Cora Drew is the mother.

"To Melody a Soul Responds." (American. Wed., July 14.)—Much excellent use of fade-ins and double and triple exposures are made to portray the appropriate visions in this interesting drama, which tells how the playing of a phonograph record made by a celebrated violinist prevents a husband from shooting the man caught making love to his wife. Joseph Galbraith, Vivian Rich, Jack Richardson and Ashton Dearholt make up the cast.

"The Ruse." (Broncho. Two reels. Wed., July 14.)—Two most exciting reels depicting the adventures of a westerner and a stenographer while matching their wits against a bucket-shop gang. William S. Hart and Clara Williams have the principal parts in this story, which is one of the best of its kind. The development of the theme is very good, the utmost suspense being retained at all times.

"The Burglar's Baby." (Domino. Two reels. Thurs., July 15.)—This subject is based on the theme of the man who, destitute, robs to save the life of his child. A touch of originality is added in the final scenes when the doctor who comes to tend the baby turns out to be the man robbed by the burglar. But influenced by the pleadings of the father the physician makes no arrest.

This drama is very well worked out and while each scene is most familiar the picture will please. Walter Edwards gives his usual effective performance as the burglar, while Leona Hutton as his wife and J. Barney Sherry as the doctor complete the cast.

BE SURE YOU GET THE FOUR-PAGE SUPPLEMENT OF THIS ISSUE OF THE NEWS

"His I. O. U." (Thanhouser. Fri., July 16.)—Nan, a newsgirl, lends fifty cents to a little orphan to start him in business, taking his I. O. U. Later she needs help. Calling on the senator she finds he is her old friend and holder of the I. I. U. Romance and a happy marriage follow. Mildred Manning is the girl and Ray Johnston the boy.

"The Tide of Fortune." (Kay-Bee. Two reels. Fri., July 16.)—A drama of the days just after the Civil war. A southern girl marries a federal officer. Her father disowns her. Later the son-in-law gets the father a federal appointment, thereby effecting a reconciliation. J. Barney Sherry is fine as the father. Estelle Allen is the daughter and George Fisher her husband.

"Dot of the Day Line Boat" (Falstaff. Fri., July 16.)—Mignon Anderson plays a girl reporter who outwits a financier by pretending to be a lonesome school girl and worming all the facts she needs out of him while on the day boat to Albany. She even gets his picture. Arthur Bauer is the financier and Morris Foster is Dot's sweetheart.

PATHE EXCHANGE INC.

"Laughing Gas." (Pathé-Starlight. One reel.)—This is a "Heinie and Louie" comedy showing the two fun-makers as the proprietor and patron of a dental parlor where laughing gas is administered. A pretty girl in the dentist's chair adds to the general fun. Several mix-ups take place and Heinie and Louie are as funny as ever.

"The Butterfly." (Pathé-Balboa. Two reels.)—This is a very interesting and well produced subject showing the adventures of two girls, a society butterfly and a waitress, who exchange places through the society girl's desire to see the realities of life. In the end the butterfly is awakened to a sense of deeper responsibility and the waitress acquits herself well as a society girl. Madelene Pardee is the waitress, Dorothy Davenport the society girl and Henry King the hero. The hotel sets are very fine.

"Andalusian Scenery." (Pathé. Split reel.)—A very pretty short subject showing Spanish mountain scenery. On the same reel with "Benares."

"Benares." (Pathé. Split reel.)—Indian scenery and natives. Very interesting. Views of the Ganges and fakirs. On the same reel with "Andalusian Scenery."

"Col. Heeza Liar, Dog Fancier." (Pathé Split reel.)—One of the funniest of these animated cartoons showing the colonel and his frankfurter hound. On the same reel with "Lourdes."

"Lourdes." (Pathé. Split reel.)—A pretty scenic on the same reel with "Col. Heeza Liar, Dog Fancier."

"Pathé News," No. 53. (Pathé. Week of June 28.)—Scenes are shown of a suffragist ball team in action at Newark; a game with living chessmen played at the DeWitt Clinton High School, New York; the judges pick a beautiful girl to play the Goss Electra, Florence Cassassa winning; women making ammunition in England; cowboys, cowgirls and "Buffalo Bill" at Cheyenne, Wyo.; fashions; Harvard class day exercises, and the eye-witness at the front and in the campaign in the Vosges mountains.

"The Romance of Elaine." (Pathe. Two rells.)—This episode, number four of the new series, is subtitled "The Submarine Harbor." Marcus Del Mar, the foreign agent, played by Lionel Barrymore, has established a submarine refuge for the spies of various foreign nations. In addition, Del Mar's agents have a secret hiding place reached through a narrow crevasse in the rocks bordering on the lake.

Elaine and Jameson plan to send the message which they intercepted in the previous chapter, to Washington. Del Mar's men hold Jameson up and take the message. They bind and gag Jamesson in the cave, where he is rescued by Elaine. Meanwhile Del Mar continues his negotiations with the spies of other nations in his submarine harbor, to which he escapes, despite the fact that his motor boat is hotly pursued by a speedy power boat. An exciting chapter. Pearl White and Creighton Hale as Elaine and Jameson, of course.

"Safety First." (Pathe-Starlight.)—A one-reel Heinie and Louie comedy. One of the best done by these two comedians. Slap-stick humor, but good of its kind.

"Where the Trail Led." (Pathe-Balboa. Two reels.)—A very good frontier-Mexican drama. The rancher husband gambles. He borrows the money to pay the mortgage just in time to be arrested as a hold-up man. But the real outlaw, who had been befriended by the wife, comes to the rescue and confesses his guilt. Excellent acting by Dorothy Davenport as the wife and Rupert Julian as the outlaw.

"An Intimate Study of Birds." (Pathe.)—The third of the birds series. Mostly close views of old and young tom-tits. Very interesting. On the same reel with "Police Dog" cartoon.

"Police Dog Gets Piffles in Bad." (Pathe.)—One of the funniest of the ploice dog animated cartoon series. On the same reel with "An Intimate Study of Birds."

"Moorish Granada." (Pathe.)—Pretty Spanish scenic. On the same reel with "On the Banks of the Creuse" and "The Mongoose."

"The Mongoose." (Pathe.)—Interesting study of this little omnivorous animal in its native haunts in India. On the same reel with "Moorish Granada" and "On the Banks of the Creuse."

"On the Banks of the Creuse." A good scenic of views along this French river. On the same reel with "Moorish Granada" and "The Mongoose."

THE MASTER MODEL

Read this letter from Mr. E. Davidson of the Washington Opera House, Maysville, Ky.:

"The other two shows in Maysville have just installed new machines; one put in a ————, the other a ————. We are getting the business. They say that our pictures are the clearest in town, and I am going to hold on to my STANDARD."

After the story has been planned and written, the scenes photographed, the film made; and after the reel finds its way to the photoshow, then it is up to the projector. Without the projector there would be no photoshow. And because the motion picture machine plays so important a part in the equipment of his house the exhibitor should select and buy the best one on the market—The American Standard MASTER-MODEL.

of the broken coin. They are Count Sachio, (Ernest Shields), and a greedy Apache. Sachio has already procured one-half of the valuable coin.

Nothing definite happens in this episode, although the action remains most intense. Count Frederick manages to quell the rebellion of the peasants and by so doing restore himself in the good graces of the king, who showed himself a contemptible coward when his throne was threatened.

"The Garden of Lies." (Broadway Universal Features. Five reels. Mon., June 12.)—Reviewed at length in issue of July 3.

"When Father Had the Gout." (Nestor. Mon., July 12.)—A mediocre comedy produced by Horace Davey with a cast including Billie Rhodes, Herbert Stanley and Harry Rattenberry. There are some few laughable moments when the lover is assuming various disguises in order to be near his sweetheart.

"The People of the Pit." (Gold Seal. Two reels. Tues., July 13.)—This is a good strong story centered about the fluctuations of the stock market. It is a well conceived subject replete with situations that create no little interest.

The love story is doubly entertaining for the reason that the girl's father and her sweetheart are playing against each other in the market. The leads are played by Cleo Madison, Ray Hanford and Joe King.

"When Hearts are Trumps." (Rex. Tues., July 13.)—A group of juveniles displays a good deal of talent in this comedy drama, which is based on the eternal love story. Many may rightfully ask why not some childish story for children?

"His New Auto." (Imp. Tues., July 13.)—The experiences of King Baggot and Jane Gail with a very diminutive and perverse motor car result in a considerable amount of laughter in this reel. It should please the most critical.

"His Prize Story." (Victor. Three reels. Wed., July 14.)—A young man writes a scenario in which he is the hero, his sweetheart the heroine and his rival the villain. In the story he rescues the girl from a gang of thieves.

A good fire scene is staged. The fire consumes a gaudily striped black and white setting creating rather a pleasant effect, as before it was painful to the eye. The story is accepted by the Universal Film Manufacturing company and the young man receives a substantial prize of a thousand dollars. Thus he is enabled to marry the girl. Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby are the leads in this melodramatic number which is, all in all, entertaining.

"The Opening Night." (Big U. Two reels. Thurs., July 15.)—Another of the pictures produced by Burton King vividly depicting theatrical life. It is a melodrama, and as such is good. The girl, an actress, has a spendthrift brother.

In order to blackmail her he threatens to ruin the first night's performance unless paid. She refuses. On the opening night he connects the real telephone to the stage instrument, and when she, playing her part, lifts the receiver and speaks into the 'phone, he declares his intention of committing suicide. Unmoved she goes on.

He kills himself. The only questionable point in this is the reason for the suicide. Adele Lane, Edward Soleman and Olive Adair are the principals.

"Dear Little Old Time Girl." Laemmle. Thurs., July 15.)—Tired of flippant society girls the idealistic young man ardently welcomes a little unsophisticated country girl who has come to stay with one of his city friends. A plain subject which will entertain because of its pleasing scenes and characteristic acting. William Dowlan and Violet McMillan are the principals.

"Captain Kent's Educated Seals." (Powers. Split reel. Thurs., July 15.)—On the same reel with "The Wizard of the Animals." An interesting vaudeville act is here screened. Various tricks performed by trained seals make the half-reel very entertaining.

"Friends of the Animal Wizard." (Powers. Split reel. Thurs., July 15.)—On the same reel with "Captain Kent's Educated Seals." Another most interesting and instructive number made by Professor Raymond L. Ditmars, showing habits of animals unfamiliar to the public.

"The Eleventh Dimension." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., July 16.)—An attempt at a drama that is hardly worthy of a place on the Universal program. The story shows a demented professor's attempts to secure a subject to operate on to prove his theory in an after-existence.

The photography is poor, there are too many closeups, while the story as a whole is too improbable to entertain. The last scenes, it must be admitted, create a good bit of suspense, but as far as elevating the entire picture, they cannot do the impossible. William Welsh, Howard Crampton, Allen Holubar and Frances Nelson are in the cast.

"The Trust." (Victor. Fri., July 16.)—A picture depicting the manner in which a burglar reconciled an estranged couple at the risk of his own life. This story is rather ineffective as it develops with undue rapidity. Lon Chaney, Vera Sisson and William Quinn carry the principal roles.

"Her Rustic Hero." (Nestor. Fri., July 16.)—The girl, ambitious to become an author, meets Eddie summering in the mountains and takes him for a rustic. Eddie takes her for a lunatic, but carries on the deception, finally forcing the girl to marry him. She is furious, but when she learns the truth about Eddie she is delighted. This is an average comedy written by Harvey Gates. Eddie Lyons and Victoria Forde are the leads.

"The Toll of the Sea." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., July 17.)—This is a good melodrama that thrills despite considerable padding. The shipwreck effect is very good and will be responsible for a great deal of excitement. The only fault is that several views of the ship after it is wrecked do not coincide.

This story is typical of Henry McRae and the Bison company. Every Universal exhibitor knows what that means. Sherman Bainbridge, Marie Walcamp, Welington Playter and Rex de Roselli are the leads.

"The Stranger." (Powers. Sat., July 17.)—A familiar subject which takes some time in getting to the bottom of things. The gentleman burglar reforms a couple estranged because of the loose ways of the husband. Sydney Ayres, Val Paul and Doris Pawn enact the important parts.

"Freaks." (Joker. Sat., July 17.)—This is way below Allen Curtis' standard offering. A great number of the scenes are too dimly photographed to comprehend without eye strain, while the leads, made up as freaks, are anything but pleasant to look at. Milburn J. Moranti especially, as the human skeleton, is quite repelling. Others in the cast are William Franey, Gale Henry, Lillian Peacock and Max Asher.

"A Doomed Hero." (L-Ko. Two reels. Sun., July 18.)—This subject much resembles the general run of L-Ko's. It contains scenes that are very funny and others that are boresome. Billie Ritchie, Peggy Pearce and Henry Bergman lead the cast. The Baron's groom, played by Ritchie, poses as the baron and the consequences can best be imagined.

"For His Superior's Honor." (Laemmle. Sun., July 18.)—Another of Frank Lloyd's pleasing dramas. A private at the regimental barracks prevents the wife of the colonel from eloping with an old lover by a very clever ruse.

A Universal exhibitor cannot afford to miss this one, as besides containing a cleverly formed plot, it is full of pleasant human interest touches. Millard Wilson, Gretchen Lederer and Marc Robbins, are the principals.

NEW HAVEN HOUSE IS PERFECT IN ARRANGEMENTS

TWO new theatres, handsomely appointed and equipped throughout with the most up to date appliances known, opened within two weeks of each other, in New Haven, Conn.; and a third, the most beautiful and luxurious in the state, abandoning a vaudeville-picture combination for a straight feature picture policy, give conclusive evidence of the rapid progress New Haven is making toward becoming a motion picture center.

The Lawrence theatre, in the heart of New Haven's most exclusive residential district, is a departure from motion picture theatres in general, so far as location and artistic effect are concerned. Rebuilt from an old church, the structure can hardly be recognized from the outside, and not at all within. The exterior has been remodelled and built up so that it is one of the most attractive in the city. The name Lawrence on a huge electric sign is impressive.

The Lawrence Is Commodious

The theatre is unusually commodious, and while it only seats somewhat over seven hundred, has room for more than four hundred others to stand without crowding. The aisles leave nothing to be desired in the way of ample room for exit, and in every respect the theatre is one of the most up to date in the vicinity.

Manager Michael P. Hessler himself assumed charge of the interior decorations when the structure was remodelled, and hit upon an old rose and steel grey color scheme that is earning praise on all sides for his ability as a decorator. Beautiful old rose hangings, shades, lights, relieve the dull, rich grey of the walls and the seats.

Heating and ventilating plants of the most improved order have been installed, so that the theatre can be kept as fresh and cool and clean in summer as it can be made warm and snug in winter. Numerous emergency exits have been provided, and so arranged that with windows open (but shuttered), exits open, small electric fans and two giant exhaust fans in operation, the house is almost cold in midsummer. The heating system is one of the most ingenuous ever devised, and bound to prove a winner when the cold season returns.

The screen is an unusually large one, and is the patent product of an old Indian chief residing in that vicinity. The pictures projected on it are wonderfully clear and distinct in every respect.

The operator's booth is an extra-size asbestos affair, situated in the center of an artistic balcony. The technical equipment is of the most improved type, consisting of two Simplex projecting machines, motor, generator and fireproof film containers.

Arrangements for the operator's convenience are better than anywhere in the city, and safety devices are employed wherever possible. All electric wiring is conducted through serpentine insulators.

On the main floor, at the right of the entrance, is a ladies' rest room, beautifully furnished in the same color scheme and equipped with easy chairs. To the left is the office of the manager and the ticket booth.

M. P. Hessler, C. J. Rausch and H. C. Armbuster are the owners of the new theatre, which is commended highly on all sides.

They have invested a large amount of money in their enterprise, but witness with pleasure their returns as they note that their patronage is from the most exclusive circles in the city. Automobiles lined up in the street before the door at night are not an uncommon sight.

Hessler Uses Only Best Pictures

Mr. Hessler is manager of the theatre, which is located at the corner of Lawrence and Nicoll streets, and he dictates the policy of the house. "Nothing but the best," he says, "and all of that we can get." Manager Hessler shows multiple reel feature productions, with stage stars, every day, in many instances before they appear in downtown houses.

He has an orchestra of three pieces furnishing appropriate music for his pictures. And above all he is a firm beli in newspaper advertising, as shown by the space he in local dailies.

TTINGS T

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE IS LISTED FOR FILM DRAMA

ANNOUNCEMENT was made last week that the Boston opera house, built but a few years ago and one of the finest opera houses in the country, would next fall be devoted to the showing of two-dollar feature films, under direction of the Shuberts, and with E. D. Smith, of Boston, as manager.

When the Boston opera company went into bankruptcy recently, because Eben D. Jordan, its "angel" since its inception, refused longer to stand for the annual deficit, it was learned that the Shuberts had taken over the house, which had been run separate from the company, and that they would use it as a workshop in preparing their big productions.

Now the information comes from Lee Shubert that the policy of the house next season will be like that which prevailed at the Hippodrome in New York until recently, music spectacles and feature films. Only the more pretentious feature releases will be shown.

The opera house was used for motion pictures last year under the direction of W. R. MacDonald, who put on a program of excellent pictures.

1828 SHIP IS FOR "THE BONDMAN," A FOX RELEASE

THERE are few American built ships on the high seas today as old as the schooner "Signal," which is known to every coasting master from Kingston, Jamaica, to New York. The "Signal" was built in 1828 at Hempstead, L. I., and is a fine example of the craftsmanship of the early Yankee shipbuilders.

Director Edgar Lewis, who is directing William Farnum in his latest William Fox production, "The Bondman," based upon Hall Caine's famous book of the same name, found in the old

Who's Who In the Screen World

WILLIAM F. ALDER, cameraman and laboratory superintendent for the Quality Pictures, Inc., has accomplished what has been referred to as the impossible in the making of motion pictures. His latest subject when projected by the regular devices will present a stereoscopic effect giving depth to the image on the screen. The first subject of this company, "The Second in Command," will contain many scenes which will have a stereoscopic effect. Mr. Adler is the inventor of the camera which makes the stereoscopic effect possible, and has interested Fred J. Balsoffer in his invention.

Nothing but standard equipment is necessary for the showing of these pictures.

In the making of a sixty-five-foot scene for "The Second in Command," Mr. Alder simultaneously introduced several features including making a close-up diaphragming, "panoramaing," tilting, inserting a vision, and changing the focus while the camera was moving backwrad all at one time.

A remarkable feature of this scene is the fact that the vision crossed the stage first in front of the actor standing there, and behind come articles of furniture.

Another series of scenes for this subject worked out by Mr. Alder is that of following the leading players over a ballroom floor during the time they were dancing. This enabled him to secure close-ups of the principals during the entire dance and use the other members of the cast and extra players for backgrounds. This is the first time this has been accomplished for pictures. By cameramen these scenes are spoken of as most exceptional photographic effects.

Mr. Alder is a deep student of photography, and is the owner of perhaps the most elaborate private laboratory in America, where he has forty-five hundred dollars' worth of equipment, including a complete photo micrographic apparatus for making motion pictures for bacteria. He is constantly consulted by leading cameramen, and is now delivering a series of lectures to members of the Static Club of America on the subject, "The Nature and Composition of Light."

His next talk will be on the subject, "The Carbon Compounds and Their Photographic Importance."

AGNES VERNON, who advanced from the ranks of an extra girl to that of leading woman in the Gold Seal Universal Company, in less than six months, and who has since always played lead parts, is featured in the name part of a delightful Gold Seal Universal military drama written especially for release on July 4. The title of this is, "Jane's Declaration of Independence." This attractive star gives a most creditable performance in this.

Soon Miss Vernon will be seen in "The Last Reasoning." During her experience of sixteen months Miss Vernon has appeared in excellent subjects released under Big U, Nestor dramas, and Gold Seal.

JACK LIVINGSTON, leading man, is one of the late acquisitions of the Pathé-Balboa studios at Long Beach. His first appearance of this brand will be in the three-part subject, "The Counsel for the Defense," wherein he appears in the name part.

Mr. Livingston will be remembered for his excellent work in Masterpiece subjects, supporting Max Figman in "The Hoosier School Master," "Jack Chanty" and "The Truth Wagon." In the latter release he gives a very excellent portrayal of the dope fiend reporter.

The appearance of this leading man in films follows a six-years' experience on the legitimate stage, where he played with many successful road shows, and also leading man in such stock companies as that retained at the Bush Temple at Chicago.

In "The Counsel for the Defense" he first serves as public defender for a burglar charged with murder, who induces the attorney to do everything to prove his innocence by telling the attorney where he will find the jewels that were stolen. Some time later the attorney has the jewels reset as a wedding present. As the couple are preparing to depart on their honeymoon, the crook freed earlier in the photoplay, enters the room, steals the jewels, kills the bride, and when captured refers the officers to "My Attorney Morgan."

The scenes that follow afford Mr. Livingston a wonderful part.

FRANK D. ORMSTON has been engaged as technical director to supervise the making of settings and arrangement of same for multiple reel subjects produced by the Universal Company, and his first work will be that in connection with the eight or nine-reel subject now being made, featuring Madame Anna Pavlowa, the dancer of international fame.

Mr. Ormston has a very enviable reputation for work of this kind. He is a graduate of Columbia University, was for a time a student of Bridgeman, is a member of the Art Students' League, and his vast experience connected with various New York theatres and motion picture companies of the past few years, gives his employers absolute confidence in his work.

Of the big productions of the past few months, Mr. Ormston had charge of the preparation of all sets for the Universal "Sampson" picture, in which J. Warren Kerrigan was featured and thousands of people took part. Likewise he supervised technical work for "Richelieu", "Merchant of Venice", "Hypocrites" and similar productions. In the falling of the temple in "Sampson," in which scene more than two thousand people took part, no one was injured.

His most recent success of this kind was the dynamiting of a bridge on which two hundred and fifty people were standing,

F. M'GREW WILLIS, one of the principal scenario writers of the big staff at Universal City, California, has just completed the preparation of a scenario for the five-reel picture which will feature Nat Goodwin. The title of this subject is, "Business Is Business," and will make a very delightful comedy.

In the two years and a half Mr. Willis has been writing scenarios he has prepared on the average scripts for four reels each week. Included in his many successes are: "The Quest," the first Mutual Master-Picture released on the new program. This was produced by the American Film Manufacturing Company, and by critics pronounced a success. The entire scenario, scene plot, and synopsis was prepared by Mr. Willis in one day.

In the near future a pretty theatrical story, "The Opening Night," produced by Burton King featuring Adele Lane, will be released. Following this will come "Out of the Flames," in three reels; "The Valley of Regeneration," in two reels; "A Woman Who Did Not Care," and Hilda Pavlowa, in a foreign story in three reels. Another multiple reel subject written by Mr. Willis is "The Adventures of a Madcap," consisting of five reels and featuring Jackie Saunders.

AL. E. CHRISTIE, the father of all Nestor Comedies, has been given a distinct honor by the Universal company, in that he has been selected to supervise the preparation of the story and scenario, and produce the first subject made at Universal City featuring a Broadway star.

The title of this is "Mrs. Plum's Pudding," in which Marie Tempest will appear in the name part, supported by William Graham Brown, and all members of the two Nestor companies, including Eddie Lyons, Violet McMillian, Lee Moran, Billie Rhodes, Neal Burns, Jack Dillon and others.

Mr. Christie, who for more than four years has been writing two comedies a week in addition to supervising the production of the same, is going to make this his masterpiece of masterpieces, and with a sly wink insists that it will be just as good as the title sounds.

Six stories were written before a final decision was made to use this one, and it may be added that comedy situations of all six of the stories have been twisted about so as to be applicable.

James Dayton and Eddie Lyons, aided by Mr. Christie, are the authors of this story.

ADELE LANE, who recently became leading woman with the Universal, is soon to be seen in a part in "The Valley of Regeneration," a two-reel drama laid in the Philippines, which is most to the liking of this well-known emotional actress. As a woman of the underworld who is given opportunity to see the folly of her life by the kind offices of a member of the army, she is brought face to face with the task of making a decision between returning to the bright way, attempting to win the love of the man who befriended here from the girl who has just arrived from the States and is soon to wed him, or following the advice of Sister Marie and entering a convent. Ultimately, she decides upon the latter course, but the well-founded logical story gives Miss Lane opportunity to display her wonderful talent as an emotional actress, and she takes advantage of every opportunity, giving a delightful performance.

Miss Lane was for a year and a half leading woman for the Selig Company at the Los Angeles studios, where she played scores of highly emotional parts.

Her picture experience followed the life upon the legitimate stage, taken up when she was a mere child.

DAL CLAWSON, cameraman of international reputation, and maker of the marvelous double, triple and sextuple exposures, and in some instances as many as twelve used in "Hypocrites" to show the appearance of Truth, has completed a picture which outrivals this for marvelous photography. The title of this recent success is "Scandal," produced under the direction of Phillip Smalley and Lois Weber, and is to be released by the Universal, July 12.

In "Scandal" a horrible image appears every time the busybodies and gossipers meet, and to show this on the screen, required that the negative film be run through the camera a large number of times.

Users of kodaks and cameras making negatives as small as 4 inches x 5 inches, who have attempted double exposures, have experienced much difficulty in perfecting their pictures, even on that size of a negative.

When it is considered that a frame or picture of a motion picture film is but 1 inch wide and three-quarters of an inch deep, the care that must be taken in making twelve or more exposures will be appreciated. In addition to this the lighting effects form a most important part of the film, and additional trouble is given cameramen because of ever changing light in open air studios.

Mr. Clawson has received scores of compliments from the directors and officers of the Universal Company, exchangemen, and many who have viewed this remarkable piece of photography. Phillips Smalley pronounces it the most intricate ever attempted, and says it was executed to perfection. The multiple reel subject featuring Madame Pavlowa, which is in course of production during the celebrated Russian danseuse's engagement in Chicago, is now being photographed by Mr. Clawson.

In the new six part photo play

"SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD"

Owing to the "Sullivan Law" we are not permitted to carry a gun, therefore we cannot Shoot the Bull, so we submit the following abbreviated press comments:

"This is something more than a picture. It is the simple old rural romance told again freshly and truly. The story runs along smoothly and convincingly. The acting is natural. The backgrounds and photography are also commendable."
—The Moving Picture World.

"The picture has a really stirring hold upon the tender feelings of its audiences. It harks back to the elemental surprisingly well. It is astounding how much the picture does get under the skin. Six reels are none too long for a subject. They register a big heart punch."
—The N. Y. Dramatic Mirror.

"A realistic story in pictures, as sweet as the scent from a field of clover. 'SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD' is going to be one of the great photoplay successes of the coming season."
—The Scranton Republican.

"A splendid theme, free from all suggestion and conveying the most wholesome of moral lessons."
—Atlantic City Daily Press.

"Every inch of the film means something worth while. A play of heart and home with a blending of quaint humor that drives a tear away with a laugh, with a moral that makes one feel better after viewing it."
—Atlantic City Daily Press.

"Yes, My Darling, You Will Be Always Young and Fair to Me."

"'SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD,' as presented at the Lyceum Theatre last night is a photo play which would delight the heart of anyone. The theme of the picture, which is in six reels, is as fine and as vivid as the song from which it gets its name, and greatly delighted last night's audience."
—The Scranton Times.

"Something new in the way of pictures and the cast is a large and good one."
—Sunday Telegraph.

"A most beautiful story woven around the sweetest of old songs, nothing finer in moving picture creation has ever been brought here. Mechanically the pictures are the final word in photographic art."
—The Scranton Daily News.

"There are numbers of incidental features which are high above the common standard." —Atlantic City Review.

"Appropriately, the story is given a rural setting. The production is quite adequate."
—Motion Picture News.

"'SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD' makes the entire run of the human emotions. It is the mirror of life untouched and yet convincingly told. It will touch every heart and brings to mind boyhood and girlhood days."
—New Haven Register.

Motion Picture Projection Simplified

Q. 16—What would you do after that?

A.—I would make sure that the rotating light-interrupting shutter was properly set. Usually instructions for setting the shutter come with each machine. There are several kinds of shutters used on projectors of different makes.

All inside shutters such as are used between the film and the lens are generally of the two-wing type having one large and one small wing or two equal width wings, one or both of which are sometimes perforated.

The exception to this style of shutter is with the Motiograph machine which uses a special shutter made in two sections, rotating in opposite directions. The Motiograph shutter is of the cone type and each shutter is provided with two blades as a general rule, but for more exacting conditions with minimum flicker there is sometimes added to each section two narrow interrupting blades illustrated in Fig. 7.

Motiograph Shutter.

Illustration Fig. 8 shows the action of the Motiograph shutter relative to the aperture plate. It will be observed that due to the shutters working in opposite directions the light is cut off rapidly and is of course re-established more rapidly than with shutters working in one direction only. Special instructions are given for the setting of the Motiograph shutter which are simple and easily followed.

With machines using an external or front shutter the general custom is to use three-wing shutter for D. C. having one of the three blades wider than the others. The wider blade is set so that it will cover the light ray at the instant the film begins to move downward, as illustrated in Fig. 9, and the shutter continues during its rotation by means of the widest blade to cover the light ray until the film has been moved down one complete picture and has come to a stop as illustrated in Fig. 10.

With A. C. the two-wing shutter having two equal blades is generally used. With this kind of a shutter it does not make any difference which blade is set to cover the ray of light while the film is under motion.

I have, however, during the past two years, had made for me special shutters for use with any make machine on which the shutter blades of the three-wing type are made of equal width, as illustrated in Fig. 11. This form of shutter necessarily, on account of requiring three wide blades of equal width, shuts off considerably more of the illumination on the screen, but the result is pleasing and absolutely no flicker is noticeable.

With this form of shutter it does not make any difference which blade is set to cover the ray of light while the film is under motion.

Q. 17—If the shutter appears to be too narrow; that is, if the film should continue in motion after the large blade of the shutter has completed its covering and uncovering of the lens, which side would you favor with the shutter, the beginning or the end of the film movement?

A.—I would rather let the film start to move just before the shutter blade entirely covers the lens. I would never let the film be in motion after the shutter blade begins to uncover the lens, because at that moment the eye is more susceptible to the film movement, because it has been superseded by an instant of darkness.

Q. 18—What causes a travel ghost on the screen, which is mostly observable on the titles by showing a double image either above or below the real image of the title?

A.—A travel ghost is caused by either the shutter being set too far ahead or behind the movement of the film. On old machines the travel ghost may be caused by wear of the gears between the intermittent movement and the shutter shaft. This wear will cause back lash or an oscillating motion of the shutter, which causes the picture to be covered too late, or uncovered too soon, showing the image of the picture or title while it is still in motion.

If no adjustment can be made on the machine to take up this lost motion between the shutter and intermittent movement, I would secure new gears or parts to replace the worn parts, or I would send the machine to a reputable repair shop.

POWER'S SALESMAN FINDS MIDDLE WEST BUSINESS EXCELLENT

HERBERT GRIFFITH of the Nicholas Power Company, has been in Omaha, Neb., for two weeks, demonstrating new devices on a new model of motion picture machine which will be on the market soon. Griffith came to Omaha from the north section of the country where, he said, business prospects were exceptionally good.

The condition of the motion picture machine market is always a good indication of whether business is good or bad, he says, and from everything he has been able to observe, it is very good. Griffith is a booster and made a "hit" with exchangemen in Omaha.

WALNUT BEACH, CONN., HAS $50,000 STRAND

RITTER and Leigler, newcomers in the local field of motion pictures, have opened what may safely be said to be one of the most beautiful theatres in southern Connecticut, at Walnut Beach, Milford.

At a cost of about $50,000, they have erected and equipped the Strand at that popular summer resort, as a first-class, modern photoplay theatre. That it will prove a successful venture cannot be doubted.

The house is attractive externally and internally. Constructed of concrete blocks, it has an appearance of dignity not common in buildings of the same class, and in addition is absolutely fireproof. Though enclosed, it is perfectly ventilated and cooled, so that it is comfortable on the warmest day. An extensive heating plant is part of the equipment, so that the theatre may run summer and winter.

One of the largest houses in the state, its eight hundred seats, without crowding, still leave more than ample space to meet any requirement, and allow considerable standing room. The seats are of the beautiful opera chair type, tinted to blend with the interior decorations, which were conceived by a local artist.

The depth of the theatre requires an unusually long throw, but two Simplex projecting machines overcome the distance to perfection. Clearer pictures are made possible by a Mirroroid screen and a novel "shadow box," setting back several feet on the large stage, which has been erected for use in amateur theatricals and vaudeville exhibitions when given.

A No. 2 Johns-Mandeville asbestos booth completes the equipment, which was installed by the local branch of the Universal Film exchange, of New York, under the supervision of Manager Benjamin G. Salvini.

Full Universal service, features and serials are used, and the management advertises extensively, but with great discrimination. The front of the theatre is made attractive with a huge electric sign, flashing the name of the theatre along the principal highway and out over the waters of Walnut Beach.

Late Motiograph Model Is Marvel of Improvements

THE Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, has its 1916 Model Motiograph now ready for delivery.

There have been some radical changes in the mechanism and other parts of the machine, so as to meet the demands of the exhibitor, which means a machine that will stand up under heavy grind with very little wear and which is also simple and easy to operate.

The Motiograph 1914 and 1915 models have been giving wonderfully good results throughout the field. However, with all this in its favor, the Enterprise Optical company's expert mechanics have improved the machine and increased the high standard of quality already produced in the Motiograph.

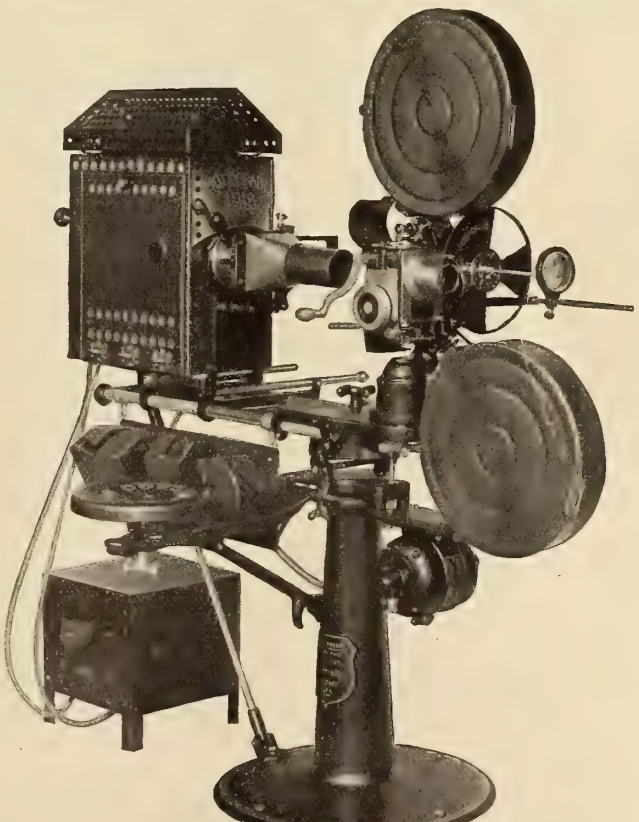
Figure C

You will note further on in the description that the connection between the framer and the mechanism which has been commonly termed the "ball arbor," has been discontinued and a sliding disc connection has taken its place, as represented by the cut.

This connection has been thoroughly tested in the factory, and also in several theatres, and under severe tests has been found to show no wear. This enables the exhibitor to increase the speed of the machine when necessary, without showing a wearing effect on the sliding disc connection also to produce rock-steady pictures after many years of use.

The action of the framing device and intermittent movement mechanism as illustrated herewith is as follows in figure B.



A A—represents the two balance wheels. The one shown at the right is built into the mechanism itself and supported by bushings M and O and driven by gear N. The balance wheel illustrated at the left is secured to the end of cam shaft K and mounted in the framing device, which moves up and down to frame the picture, as in former models of the Motiograph. The up and down motion is accomplished by means of Disc C, the action of which is illustrated in the lower portion of the drawing.

This disc made from high grade steel and hardened, is approximately 3-32 of an inch in diameter and may be rightly called a floating disc since it slides between grooves on parts B and D. The use of this device to accomplish framing is entirely new in motion picture mechanisms, and was not adopted until it had been put through an exceptionally rigid test, at the end of which it showed absolutely no wear.

Geneva star and sprocket are shown as E and G, respectively, and Geneva cam as K, which is cut from one piece of steel and supported in eccentric bushing L. The cam shaft is made very heavy being 5-16 of an inch in diameter, and is also supported by bushing P, which has a two-fold purpose, also preventing oil in the oil chamber J from leaking out. It can be readily seen by one familiar with machine design that wear on a mechanism of this kind must be reduced to a minimum.

The large bushings and equal balance on cam shaft keep the Geneva cam in perfect alignment with star, consequently reducing the wear and at the same time insuring steady projection.

The accurate adjustment of star and cam is accomplished in the usual Motiograph method except that the bushing on the frame cap is held in place by three screws which should be unscrewed before adjusting eccentric bushing, and then slightly revolving eccentric bushing by means of set screws which hold it in place.

The 1916 Motiograph Ready for Use

A new front shutter of improved design is also included, the shutter being driven by spiral gears from the machine and set at approximately 4 inches from the center of projection lens.

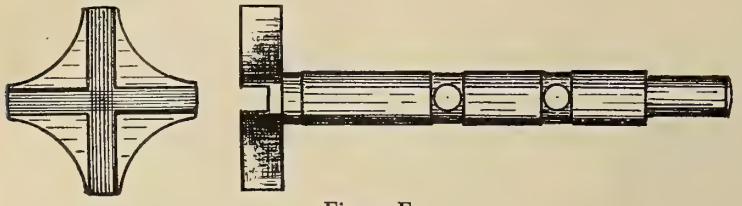

Figure E

All former models of the Motiograph have carried a double inside shutter and although endorsed and recommended the company will substitute the front shutter to meet the demands of persons who have faith in this type.

Another feature is an adjustable film tension. Should the operator for any reason desire to run his film at a greater than normal speed, he can add a slight additional tension by means of an adjusting screw, and as a result the picture will remain absolutely steady without undue strain on the film.

The lamp house and general equipment will be much the same as that of the 1914 and 1915 models, consisting of a large lamp house and arc lamp, the arc lamp being very heavily constructed and especially designed for projection under heavy amperage. A change has been made in the condenser mount whereby the operator can make a quick change in case of condensers breaking.

As to proofs of the above statements it might be added that the new mechanism was put to exceptionally severe tests, several machines having run for months at a stretch without a stop, considerable tension being continually applied to the intermittent sprocket. To positively prove its merits these machines were occasionally allowed to run twenty-four hours per day with proper oiling and without any adjustment whatever; when tested with film it was noted that the pictures were absolutely steady and the machines noiseless.

All Parts Made in Motiograph Factory

The inventors are thoroughly convinced that it will stand the heavy grind of long runs, and especially because of the fact that it requires little or no adjustment and care on the part of the operator outside of proper lubrication.

The star, cam and sprocket are made from light grade steel hardened and ground. All parts are made and treated in the Motiograph factory.

As lubrication for the intermittent movement a special grade of medium oil is advised. The Enterprise Optical company, is making a special grade of oil which is ideal for this purpose and is recommended for this use.

Another feature of the mechanism is that all oiling can be done from the outside without removing door or plates; all oil holes being easily accessible to the operator.

Pay-As-You-Enter Device Overcomes Ticket Problems

OUT in California, the exposition heads have solved the ticket selling problem by installing Potter automatic turnstiles. Both San Francisco and San Diego have them exclusively, and are not only making more money for themselves by the use of these automatically correct devices, but are pleasing their patrons, who enjoy the novelty of not having to wait in line for tickets, and the mechanical correctness of their change in every case.

For use in picture shows, the Coin Machine Manufacturing company of Portland, Ore., the manufacturer of the Potter coin handling devices has perfected the Pay-As-You-Enter and Automatic Change Maker.

Coming as an answer to a very live question, the Potter Pay-As-You-Enter machine is being welcomed everywhere by motion picture show men. The device accomplished two distinct results. It saves money for the house, because it does away with the employing of a ticket seller. By handling crowds fully one hundred per cent. faster and making errors in change mechanically impossible, it pleases patrons and holds their patronage.

Unlike the usual type of new devices which are more or less annoying to get started with patrons, the Potter Pay-As-You-Enter machine is simple to operate, and possesses a distinct novelty which seems to bring business—at least while it is still new.

In houses where this device is already in use, managers have found to their surprise that the cash, at closing up time, is often as much as ten per cent. more than previous to the installation of this machine.

The Potter Pay-As-You-Enter and Automatic Change Maker is not for sale, but leased to picture houses by the Coin Machine Manufacturing company, whose representatives install the machine and keep it in satisfactory maintenance at all times.

The monthly lease price is so low that from the very day of its installation, it reduces the expenses of the house, and this is a point of which the manufacturers make much. The saving derived through the use of this device is not at all problematical or open to discussion, as the actual saving can be proven from the first day.

As a result, progressive motion picture house managers are most anxious to install this device, and the first allotment placed on the market was immediately snapped up. The first theatre in a locality to have this device invariably draws crowds who are curious to use the new device into which they drop their coin and have the correct change "shoot out."

DEATH OF BOY STIRS MICHIGAN MARSHAL

AS a result of the death of a boy in the operating booth of the Savoy theatre, at Hancock, Mich., State Fire Marshal John T. Winship is determined that proprietors of picture theatres who violate the law hereafter will be severely punished.

Mr. Winship says that exhibitors must comply with all of the provisions of the theatre law, especially that section which prohibits the employment of operators under eighteen years of age.

SCREENS

EDITOR'S NOTE: The question of a projection surface is one of the most difficult to answer satisfactorily today. The exhibitors want facts and results. The News has therefore asked the various screen experts to contribute their individual opinions on the subject of screens as perfect projection surfaces. In this way we think the subject will become clearer and that the definite aim of each company will be brought out with the result that exhibitors will realize exactly what is being striven for

THE ESSENTIAL FEATURES OF A GOOD PROJECTION SCREEN

By E. R. Anderson

THE first essential of a projection screen should be a surface that will act as a true reflector of light; that is, picture light. The ideal screen will absorb the harsh and discordant rays and throw back the true neutral light that carries the picture to the audience, with all of the depth, tone, color, harmony and feeling that perfectly projected pictures should have.

The absence of distortion is another absolute essential to the perfect screen. This can only be had with a perfect surface. There must be harmony between the shaft, or beam of light emanating from the arc and the surface it impinges upon. When it is attempted to blend a positive light on a negative surface, or vice versa, a glare and haze results. The surface must be neutral, tuned to the shaft of light that strikes it; with this, distortion is impossible.

Guarantee Against Eye Strain Essential

A guarantee against eye strain is another important essential. To soften the light and throw back just the proper proportion has been one of the most difficult problems met with in the science of projection. It may be stated, however, that a screen that possesses the proper elements that will cause it to reflect pictures free from distortion, will also be free from danger of eye strain.

The reflection properties of a screen from a standpoint of economy is another important thing to be considered. The reflecting surface must return only the light that will give the perfect picture, without any jarring or inharmonious rays, but at the same time it must be very closely gauged to prevent the absorption of true picture light along with the false rays, and a consequent increase in electric bills.

The greater amount of what may be termed raw reflecting qualities a screen has, the greater the possibilities of false light. There is where so many makers of projecting surfaces, and especially exhibitors who try to make their own screens, wreck their boats. They know something of the Anderson Method of semi-prismatic reflection employed by the Minusa Cine Products Co., and simply procure a roughened surface, coat it with shiny paint of some kind, stuff that reflects all the light, good, bad and indifferent, and drives the audience to the optician for tired and aching eyes, and earns the art of moving pictures another slam from its enemies.

Faults That Are Made By Amateurs

And when these amateurs discover that the glare of their screens is not the reflection of true picture light, they smear something else over the screen in an attempt to neutralize it, that absorbs the light, good, bad and indifferent, and up goes the juice bill. They try to apply a scientific theory without understanding its principle and the moment they do this there is trouble in store for them.

The mounting of a screen is an essential that unfortunately is often overlooked. A screen should be mounted with a slight bevel to the frame. This not only adds to the appearance of the screen, but allows for the expansion and contraction of the fabric, or matt of the screen which is a very important matter with every exhibitor.

Installation, while it is mentioned last, is not the least important, and no screen should be installed without the proper measurement being taken. A scientific survey, made according to specifications prepared in our laboratory, is made before any of the screens from our plant are installed. This plan has always proved satisfactory.

SOLVING THE SCREEN PROBLEM

By Frank T. Highfield

IN deciding the great question that confronts the exhibitor of motion pictures—that is, the purchase of a projection screen, quite a number of essentials must be considered. Heretofore too little attention has been given this most important factor. Today, when competition is keen and the much harassed purchaser is pressed from all sides, the following suggestions will clear the way for an unbiased opinion and help materially in a faultless selection.

A slightly rough surface is superior to one of perfect smoothness, although many users obtain splendid results from the latter. This roughness may not necessarily be prismatic or regular—indeed, if the method of application is somewhat irregular a better result will accrue on account of the many changes in the film and the condition of photography. The refraction of light must not be bound to one set rule when the character and position of the subject varies. Then, too, each ray from the arc must be utilized lest an unnecessary wastage occur in the "juice." In order to take advantage of this saving one should see to it that the roughness is concave instead of convex in character. The answer to this one question should lead to a decision very quickly.

Too Bright a Picture May Be a Fault

It is true the average metallized screen produces a bright picture—in many instances too much so, tending to create havoc with the eyes of the patron. The wide-awake exhibitor quickly realizes this fault, but not knowing how to remedy it, voices his complaint to the salesman, who in turn cannot either explain or rectify. The great fundamental principle so necessary in the perfect blending of screen, film and light is lacking. While a beautiful result is shown—no doubt a most splendid product—yet, without the harmonious combination of chemicals and metals the result is unsatisfying. Therefore, one must look further than brightness. The element most necessary is one that gives depth, perspective and natural shadings, together with a total absence of eye strain.

Most manufacturers follow the rule that a golden hue attains these ends most nearly, provided they have found the proper combination. Gold blends with the ultra violet rays from the arc, and this together with other elements will produce what the exhibitors are looking for. Bear in mind, however, that simply daubing a piece of cloth with metal will prove disastrous in every respect.

Question of Mounting Arises

With this part of the question settled, a minor one of mounting comes up. In the use of metallic screens a frame is a necessity inasmuch as all wrinkles must be removed. Of course, one isn't bound by any ironclad rule in this respect, for the reason that stretching is simplicity itself. Great care, though, should be exercised in the trimming. A deep black border of cloth or other dark material adds very materially in the proper projection of pictures. In other words, the qualities of a fine screen may be much lessened by the absence of a suitable shadow box or drapery. The deep black creates a contrast pleasing to the eye, the appearance of the stage is wonderfully improved by tastefully decorating and in this way one is meeting two issues and conquering them.

The selection of projection surfaces which have just been set forth is more or less generally kept in mind by practically every manufacturer of motion picture screens. Certainly has this been true in the case Radium Gold Fibre, the first of the metallic surfaced screens to be widely exploited. Our product now embodies every known improvement in projection surface method necessary to better pictures.

Simplex Projectors At The Panama-Pacific Fair

ALMOST any visitor to the Panama-Pacific Exposition is bound to be impressed with the number of motion pictures which attracts his attention. It will be almost impossible for him to go into any exposition building or amusement zone and not see motion pictures.

You will find the United States Government showing them in the Mines Palace and the Machinery Palace. The United States Steel corporation is showing motion pictures and is using two projectors in the Mines Palace. The United Shoe Machinery company has two Simplex machines in the Palace of Education; the Live Stock Congress of the World in Congressional Hall; the California Viticulture Association, and the Seattle Malting and Brewing company, in the Food Products Palace; the Electrical Products company, Cleveland, in Machinery Palace; the National Cash Register Co., in the Liberal Arts Building; Hunt Brothers, China, the Philippine Islands, the Hawaiian Islands, Canal Zone, Porto Rico, and most of the army posts of the United States. They will be used by the chaplains in the army to entertain the soldiers stationed at these various points.

How Directors Equipped Model Theatres

That the directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, in planning this wonderful display, which excels anything of its kind that has ever been held, considered motion pictures an important factor, is apparent in many ways. Probably the most important evidence of this fact is the two model theatres in the Palace of Education.

In planning these theatres the directors, after careful investigation, realized the importance of having the very best equipment obtainable. Day and Night screens are used, Mestrum dissolving stereopticons Automatic arc controllers of the Speed Controller canneries in Horticultural Palace. Projectors are being used by the Washington state building and by the Panama-Pacific Exposition company in two complete model theatres in the Palace of Education.

These are a few of the Simplex machines in use at the fair, and indicate the varied interests and wide field of influence that motion pictures have in this present exposition. No one can say that motion pictures have not come to stay. The demand for motion pictures in every field of activity is increasing by leaps and bounds.

In industrial and educational training, thousands of teachers and students all over the world are beginning to realize the importance of motion pictures as an aid to instruction; and manufacturers and industrial executives of large corporations are making the motion picture projectors a part of their regular equipment to teach the employes not only the processes of manufacture, but to demonstrate to the public the methods used, indicating the purity of their products and also to impress upon employes the modern safety-first methods of carrying on the daily routine and conducting themselves under hazardous conditions.

Machines in All Government Departments

Further, in government work, there is hardly a department which has not or does not contemplate buying a motion picture projector. The Bureau of Standards has a Simplex projector and the Department of Agriculture is using motion pictures to illustrate to the farmers the experimental results of that department.

The experts in the Reclamation service are using motion pictures in conservation work in connection with irrigation projects, and the army and navy engineers, in connection with their experiments in numerous directions.

These are only mentioned to indicate the field covered by the government alone.

You will find that we have not mentioned the amusement field in any way, and a minute feature of this is the recent purchase by the War Department of sixty-six Simplex projectors for use by the army posts all over the world. These include machines sent to Company, and Westinghouse motor generator sets, and Westinghouse rheostats.

The accompanying illustrations, showing only one theatre, indicate the large scale on which this exhibit was laid out.

OLD TOWN, MAINE, OPENS FINE 720-SEAT HOUSE

THE Strand, at Old Town, eastern Maine's newest motion picture theatre, a particularly attractive and well equipped house, opened its doors to the public recently in that city, under the management of Henry J. Thibedeau.

The owner and proprietor, E. E. Boucher, has expended a large sum in making the theatre one of the cosiest in this part of Maine. The building is covered on all sides with steel and has a cement floor, being practically fireproof. Generous exits have been provided and all regulations in regard to safety have been carefully followed.

The seating capacity of the theatre is 720, and the seats are all on the main floor, there being no gallery.

The lobby is well designed and the entire front of the theatre is of white stucco, there being a handsome archway with cupid designs. A large electric sign is to be installed.

The Sturtevant system of heating and ventilating has been put in providing for abundant heat in winter and cool clean air in summer, the air changing completely in the auditorium in every three or four minutes.

The air is delivered, heated in winter, and cooled in summer, through a large concrete conduit, which is placed on three sides of the building under the floor. A sprinkling system and plenty of fire hose has been provided for fire protection.

A Gold Radium Fibre screen has been installed, and there is a motor generator set with the Simplex projecting machine.

The heating plant will be in a brick building outside the main theatre, and will be erected in the fall.

THE FEASTER FILM FEED MACHINE

LAST week while on a visit to the office of Byron Chandler at Broadway and Forty-second street, New York City, I had the opportunity to carefully investigate in detail the Feaster Film Feed machine which was illustrated in these columns some time ago.

This machine is a wonderfully simple and clever invention. It has made practical what for years has been the desire of many to accomplish, namely:

The production of a device which would permit using the film over again without re-winding after it has gone through the motion picture machine once.

Figure 1 illustrates this device applied to Power's 6-A Cameragraph. Figure 2 shows the very same device as designed for application to Simplex projector.

The Feaster Film Feed machine has been designed and is constructed so that it can be applied to a Power's 6-A machine in a few moments by merely first removing the upper magazine, which is unnecessary. On the Simplex projector the upper magazine is also dispensed with and a new top plate for the mechanism to which the Feaster Film Feed is attached is furnished with the machine, so that there is no drilling or tapping or other fitting required to apply the Feaster Film Feed machine to either the Simplex or Power's projectors. The work can all be done with a screwdriver and a pair of pliers.

Understanding of Main Features

In order that the main features of this machine should be understood I herewith submit illustrations, Figures 3, 4 and 5, to which the following description applies:

Figure 3 illustrates the special split reel which is furnished in the proper quantity required without extra charge with the Feaster Film Feed machine. The reel is large enough to take about 1,100 feet of film.

When the film comes from the exchange, if it is in proper position on the reel to run, it is rewound on the special reel illustrated in Figure 3. This gives the operator at the same time an opportunity to examine his film before the performance. The reel fits on any ordinary rewinder and is 11 inches in diameter.

Suppose you have a maximum of eight reels to re-wind, then eight special split Feaster reels are furnished, free of charge and these reels after re-winding can be kept in the regular reel cases or in a suitable fireproof film closet.

When it is desired to put one of these specially wound reels which you understand now has the beginning or the title end on the inside or around the hub, it is only necessary to throw a lever which allows the side B to be disengaged from the opposite side A, as illustrated in Figure 3.

Please note that the hub is flexible, being made in sections so that when side B with the tension hub C is removed from the other half of the reel the remaining part of the hub on A slightly collapses or gives so that the entire reel will be loose and will fall off A when the reel is put in position as illustrated in Figure 4. The reel illustrated in Figure 3 is an ingenious and important part of this machine.

Referring to Figure 4, the illustration shows the application of the Feaster Film Feed machine to a Power's 6-A machine.

E with its lid is the Containing case, which is fastened by proper bracket to the upper part of the mechanism the same as the regular magazine would be. Within the case E there is a rotating disc or plate D, which is very light, being spun from aluminum. This plate has a large hole through the centre and an outer edge bent up, so it looks almost like a pie plate with a five-inch hole cut in the centre. Three ball-bearings support this disc and guide it so that it may be spun around with very little friction, even though the film reel should rest upon it. The object of this disc is to support the reel while it is being unwound as it is fed through the machine by sprocket G.

Object of Rollers

N is a circular frame upon which is supported ten rollers F like those used in the ordinary film magazine valve. The object of these rollers is to always guide the inside layer of the film, which is thereby kept to a uniform diameter. The operation of these rollers is so perfect that when the machine is running, disc D may be held without in the least interfering with the unwinding of the reel which will then slip on D instead of rotating with it.

A SLIDING disc connection, consisting of a grooved face plate on each shaft, the two being connected by a sliding or floating disc, having a tongue on each side to connect the framer with the framer drive shaft.

All three parts are made of hardened and ground tool steel, are as solid as a rock, as simple as A. B. C., and have wonderful durability, as shown by many months of service.

This connection takes the place of the ball arbor used on former models.

An extra balance wheel on the cam shaft keeps the geneva cam in perfect alignment with the star, prevents back lash, eliminates wear, and insures steady projection.

A cam shaft extra large in diameter, one inch longer than regular models, is another improvement.

Star and Cam made of hardened and ground tool steel to insure accuracy and long wear.

A new mounting for the outside shutter, so arranged that either outside or inside shutter may be used. In ordering state which shutter is wanted.

New quick change condenser mount. Can be removed with condensers in fifteen seconds, enabling a quick change in case of broken condensers.

Large light cone on lamphouse.

All screw adjustments for arc lamp.

Note all of these improvements and that still the price remains the same.

chine. This gear engages the regular large gear M on the motion picture machine. On the opposite end to gear J there is another beveled gear engaging a gear on the vertical shaft (also a part of the Feaster machine) on which is mounted the feed sprocket G. The gear J is so proportioned that the feed sprocket G runs at exactly the same speed as the upper and lower machine sprockets.

The turnbuckle L is provided to take care of the adjustment of case E which should, as a general rule, or whenever possible, be maintained in the horizontal position. When the machine sits higher than the screen this buckle is turned so as to lengthen the rod which it controls, which causes the front part of the magazine to come up, thus maintaining the magazine or case E horizontal.

Figure 5 illustrates the inside of the magazine or case E when one is looking down on top of it just as the tail end of the film is pulled down through the machine.

Details of Operations.

The operation is as follows: Place reel on plate D. Take the inside or beginning end of the film through the opening O. Push the sprocket G in towards the centre, which is done by a lever below the magazine. Place the film on the sprocket and let it come back in normal position. Turn the crank until the proper length of film has come through sprocket G for threading.

Put the film through valve rollers H down through chute K, then on to the upper sprocket through the machine in the regular way. Before adjusting the film on the upper sprocket set the loop I so that it will just fit nicely within the frame N. After this loop has once been set it never changes and there is no strain whatever on the film at this point. As a matter of fact my tests prove that there is less strain by far on the film with this device as compared with the old magazine.

It is a well-known fact with the old magazine that the reel sometimes runs away. Then when the machine catches up with it there will be a sudden jerk on the film which is injurious from many points of view. Experience and tests have demonstrated that there is absolutely no strain on the film with the Feaster Film Feed machine if the upper reel unwinds faster, due to the momentum, than it is used through the machine.

The application of the sprocket G is the main feature of this machine. It has made it practical and it works beautifully.

In order to always keep this machine up to date and in perfect working condition Albert E. Rollins, who is general manager for Byron Chandler, Inc., tells me that this machine will not be sold outright but will be leased to the exhibitor. The rental price for a complete outfit, including all necessary special reels, is two dollars per week for one machine, but if more than one machine is installed the price is $1.50 per week for each machine. The machine remains the property of the company, which also keeps it in perfect working order and takes care of all renewals and repairs free of charge outside of the rental.

The advantages which follow the use of this machine are many. The wear and the injury, due to scratching of the film with ordinary re-wind method is great. These troubles are overcome altogether with the Feaster Film Feed machine.

As all re-winding between reels is done away with, one operator can take care of two machines equipped with the Feaster Film Feed machine providing, of course, the machines are motor driven, which is now the general case.

When any given reel is run by the operator for the last time, instead of putting on the special reel in the lower magazine he puts on the reel upon which the film was shipped to him, which obviates re-winding the reels after the last performance. The only change necessary on the machine in addition to removing the upper magazine is to uncross the take-up belt.

The device is beautifully designed and perfectly constructed and works easily and to perfection. I take pleasure in highly recommending it to all those who are looking for another important improvement in the projection equipment.

SIMPLEX USED IN FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

MOTION pictures played an important part in the "Safe and Sane" Fourth of July celebration in Richmond Hill, Long Island, N. Y., when the community decided upon a substitute for the usual stunts associated with similar occasions.

An elaborate program of pictures was thrown on the screen. A Simplex projector was used for this purpose.

THE QUESTION

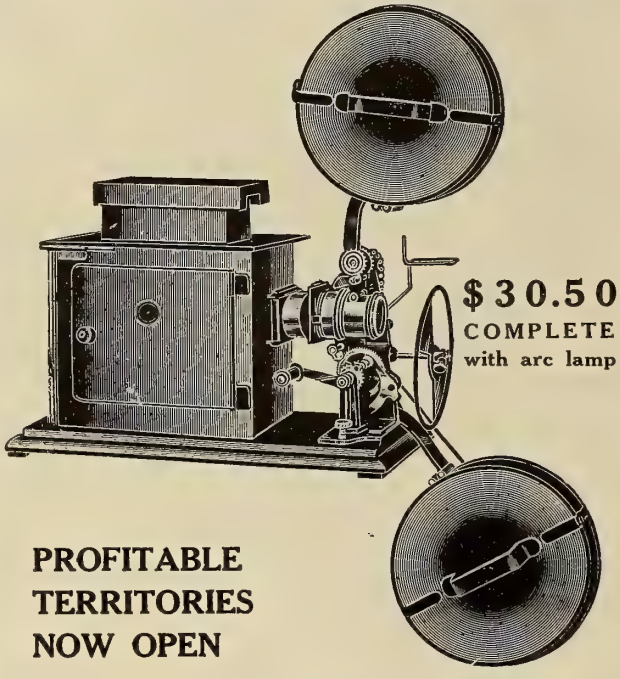
Would it pay the wine maker to labor ceaselessly to produce a priceless vintage if it was tasted only in a sour smudgy glass?

Would the incomparable chef at the Waldorf put his equisite efforts into a repast that would be served two days old, cold and spoiled?

THESE WOULD BE WASTED EFFORTS

Does it then pay you, you the leaders in your field, to strive for fine negatives, smoother action, perfect lenses, more light, beautiful scenic effects, those gripping plots, swift registering of emotions, facial expressions, artistic and commodious theatres,—if the final product, the finished film is reeled off on a screen which buries all your efforts in a smudgy picture?

THE ANSWER



Acquaint yourself with the Minusa Gold Fibre screen. Knowing it, insist upon its use. It is the screen "BUILT BY BRAINS" to fit the theatre.

HIGH GRADE PROJECTION LENSES.

In conversation with George Kleine and the manager of the supply department, Frank L. Hough, at Chicago a short time ago, I was much impressed by the important claims made by these gentlemen for a certain high grade motion picture projection lens, imported by Mr. Kleine. I have often wondered why such great refinement is applied to motion picture projection in general and how improvements are made frequently in all other branches, but in the make of a perfect and very efficient lens.

It seems impossible to conceive that we have reached the limit in lens perfection. Every little while I receive a notice of new lenses developed and put on the market for the photographic trade and for ordinary, as well as motion picture cameras.

I do not believe I have heard of an improvement in projection lenses since the Gundlach Optical Company and the Precision Machine Company, makers of the Simplex projector, announced the advent of their new lenses quite some time ago.

I do not understand how exhibitors will stick to the old style undeveloped projection lens when modern lenses of many times higher efficiency can be secured. Motion pictures are taken with lenses of the highest grade. Every care is taken in continually following the process in the manufacture of the film and reproduction thereof which will secure perfect results.

Exhibitors are spending hundreds of dollars and in some cases thousands for high class machines and electrical equipments. With all of these great refinements, we often see a lens costing from five dollars to ten dollars projecting the originally beautiful picture in a flat and uninteresting manner without the detail which a good lens would produce.

The Kleine Optical company gave me a demonstration of a new lens, which costs from fifty dollars to one hundred dollars, or more. Believe me, the workmanship on these high grade lenses is wonderful and while I have not as yet made actual comparative tests, I can see that a great improvement is obtained. In the near future special tests will be conducted on all high grade lenses and in this column, there will be given comparative test values of the different lenses.

I invite discussion on this subject, as there may be exhibitors and operators who have appreciated the value of the very best lenses, and are using special expensive projection lenses. I also invite correspondence from manufacturers of lenses who may have something to say on the subject of the advantage of a more perfect lens for motion picture projection.

WHEN TO USE TWO-WING SHUTTER.

Frank B. Francis, Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows:

Dear Sir.—Want you to settle an argument. Am running Standard machine—Fort Wayne Compensarc, 75-foot throw, A. C. 60 cycles, 220 volts, 40 to 50 amperes.

Now I claim that a two-blade shutter on A. C. current will not flicker like a three-blade shutter will. I have always used a two-wing shutter with success on A. C., but find a three-wing shutter will flicker. My manager claims a three-wing shutter will not flicker as much. Which is right and why? Hope to see answer in early issue.

ANSWER.—You are right, a two-wing shutter should always be used on a machine operating with an arc maintained on a 60 cycle A. C. All alternating currents have a period during which there is no power developed and consequently during that short space of time while the current reverses there is no light at the arc excepting the glow from the heater crater, which, of course, does not have time enough to cool off.

With a 60 cycle current supply the periods during which the light is on and off are just of the right frequency to allow a three-wing shutter unnecessarily to cover the picture when the arc is at its maximum intensity, thereby losing much illumination on the screen and introducing an additional or auxiliary shadow wave which appears as a flicker and seriously interferes with the steadiness of the projection.

If you will test a two-wing and a three-wing shutter without a film in the machine you will find that at low speed, that is, 30 or 40 crank turns per minute, it does not make much difference which shutter you are using, but when you come up to 55 or more crank turns per minute, you will discover that the two-wing shutter is decidedly the better.

You will find reference to alternating current and the effect of frequency on the light in a book entitled "Motion Picture Electricity," which costs you $2.50, postage paid.

PROTEST AGAINST FIRE LAWS FOR SMALL THEATRES IN DETROIT

A PUBLIC hearing took place in the assembly hall of the city hall in Detroit, Mich., on Tuesday morning, June 22, for the purpose of hearing both sides of the new ordinance recently introduced into the common council, requiring minor theatres (those seating four hundred or less) to install fire alarm boxes.

In a test case in court, Peter Jeup, of the Luna theatre, defeated the fire department, which had made every effort to compel the fire alarm installation to be made in the Luna theatre. There is an ordinance that requires fire alarm boxes to be installed in regular theatres, but Mr. Jeup contended that this did not include minor theatres. He won his case.

For some reason or other the fire department is determined that the minor theatres come under the same ruling as the larger theatres, so through the common council an amendment has been introduced which would extend the regular ordinance to include minor theatres.

Owners of these smaller theatres do not believe they should be compelled to do the things required of larger theatres because a theatre seating only four hundred, with sufficient exits, can be emptied very quickly and before any loss of life in case of fire.

In behalf of the exhibitors, Peter Jeup took the stand and gave his reasons why there should be a distinction, and why owners of minor theatres should not be put to this extra expense, which is twenty-five dollars per year for the maintenance of the fire alarm box system.

The ordinance committee took the matter under further advisement and will make some definite recommendation inside of the next two weeks.

THE POWER'S 6 NOT POWER'S 6-A MACHINE, LATTER WILL TAKE 2,000-FOOT REELS

THROUGH an unfortunate error on page 120, "Hallberg Helps" Accessory News section of Motion Picture News of July 10, Mr. Hallberg was made to say, in replying to an inquiry from Thomas Forhan of Griffin's New theatre, Owen Sound, Ontario, Can., "A Power's 6A machine is fitted with twelve-inch magazines. A two-thousand foot reel requires fourteen-inch diameter clearing space. In view of this fact it is evident that you must purchase a new lower and a new upper magazine for the Power's 6A before it can be used for two-thousand foot projection."

This is, of course, incorrect. The Power's 6, not the 6A machine, was the one about which Mr. Griffin inquired, and regarding which Mr. Hallberg made the statements quoted above. One of the numerous features of the Power's 6A machine is that it is designed to accommodate 2,000-foot reels.

LOS ANGELES THEATRES ARE ATTRACTIVE

LOS ANGELES has scores of pretty theatres, modern in equipment and appointment, and also has the distinction of having the largest theatre devoted exclusively to the showing of motion pictures west of New York. This is Clune's Auditorium, located on Fifth street, between Hill and Olive. The seating capacity is three thousand.

Practically all of the motion picture theatres are located on the main thoroughfare of the city—Broadway. Beginning at the extreme north the first is the American at 448, a ten cent house with about four hundred seats. In the next block south is located the Superba, seven hundred seats; Clune's Broadway, eight hundred seats; and the Comedy with three hundred. In the six hundred block are two houses, the Symphony of seven hundred seats, and the Palace of Pictures with four hundred. In the eight hundred block are three, eight hundred seat houses. The Garrick, Majestic, Tally's Broadway, and the Woodley theatre.

At the junction of Ninth street, Spring and Main streets, is Miller's, having eight hundred seats. All of the above are of ten cents admission or more, most of them charging ten twenty and thirty cents. The Alhambra is an eight hundred seat house located in the center of the seven hundred block on Hill street, and directly west of this two blocks is the Mozart.

On Spring and Main streets, in the retail section, are a number of theatres, including the National in the four hundred block on Main, and the Optic in the five hundred block. On Spring street between second and third is the Lyceum, and in the five hundred block is the Isis.

Los Angeles exhibitors are very proud of their theatres, and believe the city has more pretty houses than most eastern cities of the same size. Here practically all of the theatres have been built expressly for this purpose, and are not made-over store-rooms.

SILVER SPOON WITH FILM STARS DISTRIBUTED THROUGH SCREEN THEATRES

ONE of the most novel and attractive souvenirs ever introduced in connection with motion pictures is now being produced by the National Stars corporation. This souvenir consists of a handsome and skillfully wrought silver spoon, with a sculptured reproduction of the favorite film stars, with their birth-month flowers delicately designed on the reverse side.

These spoons, which bear the trademark of the famous silversmiths, "Wm. Rogers & Son," are to be distributed on a novel plan known as the National Film Star spoon plan through the motion picture theatres throughout the country.

The exhibitors will be greatly benefited by adopting this plan, and are not called upon to handle any spoons or buy any merchandise.

The National Stars corporation are inaugurating a comprehensive national advertising campaign to acquaint photoplay fans in all parts of the country with the details of the National Film Star spoon plan, linking up the theatres with their newspaper and magazine publicity. In this manner the theatres connected with the plan will derive a great deal of beneficial publicity without any cost whatsoever.

The National Stars corporation has already secured the exclusive rights to use the photographs of all the most prominent screen stars on these spoons.

The spoons are guaranteed ten years, and are thoroughly useful as well as ornamental.

FOUR REELS BRING 25 CENTS ADMISSION IN ALASKA

MOTION picture theatres, though operated under adverse circumstances, prove successful in the most northerly possession of the United States—Alaska. Practically all in this section are conducted along the same lines. Service is secured through a film exchange at Juneau, seventy or eighty reels being shipped to each exhibitor at one time because shipping service cannot be depended upon.

THE DREAM THEATRE, KETCHIKOU, ALASKA

The reels are returned in packages of four or eight, as soon as they are used. At most of the Alaskan towns, four reels of regular program are shown for twenty-five cents. Practically all the theatres have a singer and use illustrated songs. The feature or multiple reel subjects—five reels or larger—are handled as road show attractions, a man from the exchange going with each film over the circuit of theatres.

The feature films are never shown for less than fifty cents. The most northerly theatre in Alaska along the coast is that of the People's Picture Palace at Skagway. This has 325 seats and daily plays to good business in this 1,500 population town.

A recent visitor in Alaska brings back a report that the Indians who engage in the fishing industry along the coast are the best patrons of the theatre. Their greatest enjoyment is roller skating, but they will even pass this by when there is an opportunity to see a new picture.

With the natives, the western picture with action and gun-play is most popular. At all of the towns will be found many men who have just come out of the interior mines where they have spent six or more months, and consequently their desire to learn the world news causes the weekly subjects to be most popular. They are always run longer than any other kind of a subject.

ONLY THEATRE WITH ENTRANCES ON FOUR STREETS IS IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH'S newest playhouse, the unique structure which will have entrances on four thoroughfares, has been named the Davis theatre, in honor of Harry Davis, of the Harry Davis Enterprises company.

There is not another playhouse in the United States with entrances on four important arteries of travel, and in this respect, as in several others, the Davis theatre is unique.

H. E. Kennedy company has designed innovations in the interior arrangement that afford convenience and comforts for patrons. One of these is a beautifully decorated and elegantly equipped Chinese tea room. The carpets are black, and the walls black and antique gold. The lighting scheme consists of lanterns of teak wood and hand-painted glass, imported from China.

The theatre has a capacity on the ground floor and one

I have always contended that one of the biggest problems in the exhibition end of the film business is "the atmosphere" of the theatre. Of course good films are necessary, but given the same films, the preference goes to the house which is well conducted even though the price of admission is greater. As an example, which will clearly drive home this point, I will mention a case in a small town on Long Island where there were two houses, one well conducted, which received an admission of 15 cents, and the other run in slipshod manner, which received an admission of 10 cents.

Recently the 15-cent house booked a feature comedy with Charlie Chaplin in it, and after making the booking the Chaplin film was advertised in advance. The rival house heard of this booking and arranged to have the same film on the same night to be shown at 10 cents, and advertised the fact. That night the 15-cent house played to capacity and the 10-cent house played to forty people. The public want well-conducted theatres, and are willing to pay for what they want.

N. Y. Eve. Mail, June 3, 1915.

The 15c Theatre with S.R.O.—the 10c Theatre with 40 seats filled—WHY?

Not because of a difference in pictures for both theatres were running and advertising the same feature.

This newspaper account of the incident gives as the only explanation of the 15c. theatre's greater popularity, its possession of the "atmosphere" that theatre patrons want and are glad to pay for.

There is no more certain, no less expensive way to produce for Your Theatre or Airdrome this so-called "atmosphere" that makes people come and makes them remain loyal to Your Theatre than to install an

ESCALATOR

More than any other one equipment can, the Escalator impresses your patrons with your provisions for their comfort and with the refinement of your theatre.

It permits you to raise prices, but, because of its few cents a day operating cost, no higher prices are necessary to a profit on the investment. As theatre after theatre has found, the Escalator's influence in increasing patrons and regularly filling all balcony seats, soon returns in cash all the money the Escalator cost and from that point begins to make big money for you.

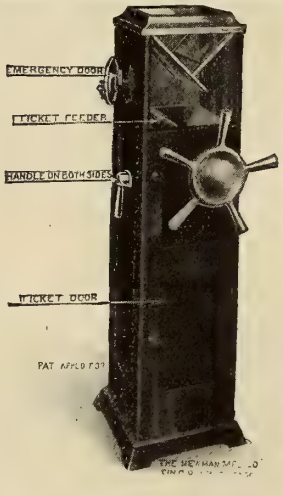
balcony in excess of 2,500 opera chairs. It opens on an arcade leading directly through from Sixth avenue to Oliver avenue, bisected by another arcade through from Smithfield street to William Penn place.

The entrance to the theatre on William Penn place will probably be most generally used for theatregoers who come in private conveyances, automobiles and other means of transportation. Flanking this entrance and facing the main facade of the new William Penn hotel the theatre building contains a group of five store fronts and second-story lofts.

The theatre is built of structural steel, ornamental terra cotta, stone and concrete and is absolutely fireproof.

The entrances on Sixth avenue, Smithfield street and Oliver avenue facades are designed in the Adam period, a chaste style of English architecture in which the elements of decoration are coalesced with the more material physical architectural form. The architects state that the source of the inspiration for the decorations may be found in the Petit Trianon and the palace at Fontainbleau.



The entrances to the theatre proper are from the arcade, while broad stairways lead to the mezzanine lounge. Here also will be found a beautiful room in the period of Louis XVI, decorated in the same motif as the Sixth avenue arcade, but having a much livelier interpretation.

From the lounge one enters the balcony and there obtains a splendid view of the theatre proper. Here, too, the period represented in the design is that of Louis XVI. Ivory and gold are the tones of the decorative scheme, punctuated at intervals with a series of portraits representing the celebrated beauties of the French court.

Conspicuous among these are "counterfeit presentments" of Madame Pompadour, DuBarry, Recamier, Marie Antoinette, Madame La Porte, and various other women of the days of the Louises. The architects state that the theatre cost $300,000 completed.

NEWMAN OFFERS NEW TICKET CHOPPER

THE Newman Manufacturing company, with factories located at Cincinnati, Ohio, 101 Fourth Ave., New York, N. Y., and 108 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., manufacturers of brass and bronze poster frames, easels, railings and theatre fixtures of every description, have just placed on the market a new improved ticket chopper, for which a patent has been applied for. This ticket chopper, as will be noticed in the illustration, is provided with a rocking comb attachment, which automatically combs or feeds the tickets into the mutilating knives without the necessity of using any other outside method, such as a wire, or tilting the chopper. The tickets, after passing through the mutilators, are perforated in a manner that it is impossible for them to be used over again.

Another noteworthy feature of the Newman chopper is the fact that they have provided an emergency door under lock and key, as will be noticed in cut. This is used in cases where the coin is accidentally dropped into the machine, and for oiling the machine when necessary. This is a big improvement over the old style way of removing the top in order to get into the box.

Handles provided on the sides of cabinet make it easily handled by one person.

The finish is in mahogany or oak with highly polished nickel trimmings or in solid brass.

The new 1915-1916 catalogue is now off the press and ready for distribution.

AUSTIN AND WURLITZER ORGANS INSTALLED IN WILKES-BARRE THEATRES

THE Savoy theatre and the Sun theatre, both of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., have installed organs. The Savoy purchased an Austin, and the Sun a Wurlitzer.

Both houses are advertising the organs in the daily papers, and organists of local fame have been secured to operate them.

PITTSBURGH, PA. June 16th, 1915.

Mr. W. A. Bishop, General Sales Manager,
Wisconsin Seating Factories,
New London, Wis.

Dear Sir:-

We take pleasure in complying with your request for a reason as to why we signed a contract with your firm for "CASTEEL" theatre chairs in preference to others.

After going into the matter thoroughly from a construction and financial responsibility standpoint, we placed our contract with you, feeling that the "CASTEEL" theatre chairs are without a doubt, superior to the old style construction of chairs.

We think this class of chair will be in full harmony with the new Liberty Theatre which will be the most elaborate and finest theatre of its class in the country.

With very best wishes, I am

Yours very truly,

CALIFORNIA

C. L. JACOBY is making preparations for the opening of the new Park theatre in East Oakland, the house to be thrown open to the public before the first of August. This new theatre is located in the center of a thickly populated residence district and is far enough from the center of town to secure most of the business in the district.

It is of fireproof construction, with a seating capacity of about nine hundred, and represents an investment of approximately $50,000. Mr. Jacoby is well known in the San Francisco Bay region, having formerly conducted a house at Napa.

A disastrous fire occurred at Turlock recently, totally destroying the Wonderland theatre, conducted by G. Bailey. The total loss is estimated at about $9,000.

A moving picture theatre will be opened at Camp Meeker shortly for the summer season, under the direction of Captain Meeker.

The Wigwam theatre, at Fresno, is now known as the Jitney, the change having been made to take advantage of an expression now in popular use which indicates the price of admission.

W. S. Roney has started a suit at Oakland for an accounting of the business done by his partner, H. A. Arvidson. According to the complaint Roney and Arvidson became partners for the purpose of conducting moving picture theatres at San Leandro and Berkeley. Roney alleges that the Berkeley house, the Rex, was neglected by Arvidson and closed, and he wants an accounting of the profits of the San Leandro house.

A moving picture house with a seating capacity of 4,000 is to be erected shortly at Oakland, Cal., by Turner and Dahnken, of San Francisco. This will be the largest theatre of any kind on the Pacific coast and will be devoted exclusively to moving pictures. The location chosen is at Eleventh and Franklin streets, but one block from Broadway, the main artery of the city and easily reached by car lines.

The new house will cost about $175,000 and the value of the property is placed at almost that much more. No expense will be spared to make it the most perfect playhouse of its kind in existence, as far as the convenience and comfort of its patrons is concerned.

In spite of the large seating capacity, there will be but one balcony and this will be reached from the lobby by an incline, instead of by stairs. This large capacity is made possible by the size of the lot, which is 100 x 175 feet. Architects are now working on the plans and the work of construction will be commenced as soon as these are ready.

GEORGIA

Manager James H. Jackson, has recently installed in the Savoy a Day and Night screen.

The Strand, one of Atlanta's newest and most costly theatres, recently changed hands with the retirement of B. Lee Smith from the management. The theatre, which was highly successful and popular under Mr. Smith's management, has been bought by a firm of which D. Zakas is president, T. B. Gleen is acting as manager.

Mr. Gleen is keeping the Strand up to the high standard set by Mr. Smith, and the theatre continues to enjoy the widest popularity.

Mr. Gleen is soon to install a blower fan which will pass through the house every minute 20,000 feet of "washed" air.

The Strand shows Fox, Metro and Mutual Masterpiece pictures.

IOWA

A. C. Schunneman, owner of the Isis theatre at Webster City, Ia., is remodeling the house and increasing the seating capacity to five hundred. He has installed a new ventilating system and a new pipe organ, with all late comfort devices. He is strong for the regular programs, and believes in giving his patrons the very best he can. His prices are five and ten cents.

J. W. Liddle has opened the Royal theatre at Walker, Ia.

The Casino theatre on Locust street, in Des Moines, Ia., has been enlarged to include the room left vacant by one of the saloons driven out of business. It is showing World films, also.

W. S. Porter has bought the Grand theatre at Eldora, Ia., where he is showing features.

W. Bender has closed the Cosey theatre at Ida Grove, Ia., during revival meetings there. The meetings would not have detracted so much from his crowds, but he might have been criticized for remaining open while the meetings were on, he said.

E. M. Beardsley, owner of the Empress theatre at Shenandoah, Ia., has opened an airdome. It is one of the most ornamental and attractive airdomes in that part of Iowa.

INDIANA

E. T. Allen, of Sullivan, Ind., has leased a room for a moving picture theatre which will be opened in the near future.

F. W. Myers is going to open an airdome in the near future at North Vernon, Ind.

The Royal theatre, at Rockville, Ind., has been bought by John Pruett. This makes the second theatre Mr. Pruett owns in Rockville. He is going to remodel the Royal.

The Majestic theatre of South Bend, Ind., is being remodeled.

Isaac Brown and G. H. Summitt, of Sheridan, have leased Tucker Hall, at Whitestown, Ind., and will open a motion picture theatre. A Victrola will furnish the music.

An airdome has been built at Whiteland, Ind., by T. O. Ballard and son, of Franklin, Ind.

F. M. Osborn has opened a picture show at Bruceville, Ind., with a seating capacity of three hundred persons.

F. H. Wyatt, of the National Motion Picture company has closed a contract with Mrs. Ohming, of the Starland theatre, Michigan City, for a series of motion pictures of local scenes which will be shown at the Starland. He is also making similar contracts at Laporte, Niles, Mich., and Dowagiac, Mich.

O. R. Sebring, who formerly had charge of the Wallace theatre at Peru, Ind., has bought the Royal theatre, in West Market street, Indianapolis, from Gail Allen. Mr. Sebring is running Apex features.

Prizes are being offered for the best solution of a local film being put on at the Orpheum theatre, Terre Haute, by the Terre Haute "Tribune" and the Orpheum theatre, entitled "The Mysterious 'Tribune' Girl."

MISSOURI

The Maryland theatre, 1860 South Thirteenth street, St. Louis, after trying many schemes in the early days to improve the projection of pictures, has at last found and settled on a system that proves satisfying and equals any in the city. Robert Miksicek, proprietor and manager of the Maryland, first had a gasoline engine to convert the alternating current to a direct current, and just recently he has had installed a single phase motor in the engine room, which supplanted the gasoline engine.

Mr. Miksicek's experiments have cost him more than three thousand dollars, but until his projection was perfect, he spared neither time nor money. The Maryland is a very clean and attractive theatre, and for the first time in the five years it has been running, an airdome was built this summer about a block away from the theatre, to which the program has been moved.

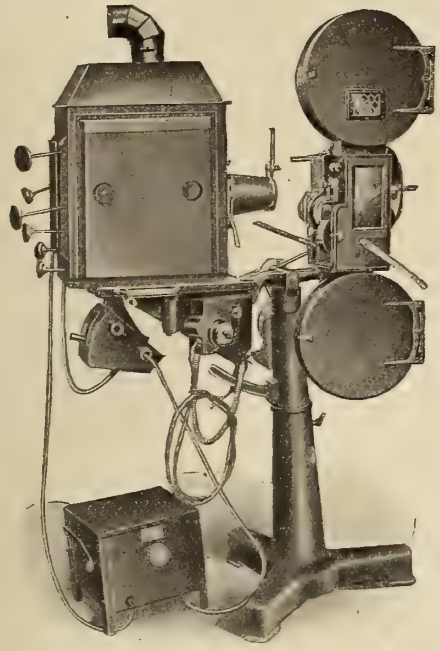
The Marquette theatre, Eighteenth and Franklin avenue, St. Louis, is closed while the alterations planned several months ago are in course of construction. George Plaikos, the proprietor, is having the entire front of the building torn away, and the west wall is being extended, taking in the space formerly occupied by a meat market, next door.

The new front of the theatre, and the increased seating capacity made possible by the alterations, will add to the appearance of the house and to the value of the investment. The Marquette will be completed in time for the fall season's opening.

The ONLY airdome, on North Seventh street, between Morgan and Franklin avenues, St. Louis, has closed recently. When the ONLY opened, several years ago, it was the "only" airdome in the downtown district.

NEBRASKA

William Oliver, original builder of the Movies theatre at Falls City, Neb., which has been copied all over the country, has repurchased it. He has also opened a new airdome which is said to rival the theatre for attractive appearance and comfortable shows.



J. Wolf, of the Rex, Nebraska City, Neb., has closed it for a few weeks to enlarge and improve it. Wolf is looking forward with great expectations to the business of his life when the fall season opens. The summer season is remarkable in the middle west, he says, but the fall season will break all records.

Mrs. Hoffman, owner of the Lyric, Sac City, has been forced to close it during revival meetings there.

The Brandeis theatre in Omaha, said to be one of the largest and best equipped legitimate houses in the central west, has been showing big features since the regular theatre season closed. Although its success in that field was good, it changed last week to showing a stock company. However, it will probably go back to pictures shortly.

F. W. Bowman, of Bruning, Neb., is a booster. Although Bruning has a population of only four hundred, Bowman's new theatre will hold five hundred, and he shows the best pictures.

J. Neff is the new owner of the opera house at Hamburg, Neb. Neff is one of Iowa's most progressive exhibitors, and is constantly showing pictures to large crowds.

Roy Barker has purchased the opera house at Neligh, Neb., from Freeman Brothers.

Beckett and Richardson, at Vermillion, S. D., have opened a new, modern, up-to-date opera house. They showed the World Film corporation's feature, "Salambo," on opening night. They own the other theatre in Vermillion.

King's opera house, at Albia, Ia., has been opened by F. Lambert, who has enlarged the seating capacity, repainted the building and added to its appearance and comfort in many ways. Before he turned it into a motion picture theatre it was one of the many closed "opera houses" about the country. Now it is still the opera house, but is a scene of activity.

Peregine and Tinsley, at Corning, Ia., have closed the opera house for the summer. It may be reopened for pictures, however, as Corning is a wide-awake little city.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Concord is to have one of the finest and most modern theatres in the state, and the general manager will be E. J. Caron, owner of the Star theatre in that city.

The playhouse will cost $50,000, and will be situated at the corner of Pleasant and Main streets.

Work on the superstructure of the Concord playhouse will begin immediately, according to announcements. The building will be the most modern theatre devoted to moving pictures in New Hampshire, having been planned and constructed by New York architects along the plan of the Strand in New York.

It will seat 1,200 people and will have one large balcony. The orchestra will be placed upon the stage, where the music may be better enjoyed. Brick and granite will be used in the building construction. The house will have a 75-foot frontage and extends back for 115 feet. The new house in Concord will be opened by September 15, showing nothing but the best of feature photoplays.

OHIO

Cleveland's New Center, East Ninth street, Huron road and Prospect avenue, is to have a new theatre. It will be known as the Strand and will be backed by a Pittsburgh motion picture syndicate. Tentative plans call for a seating capacity of 1,000, and by early fall the new house will be opened. This house originally was to be located on Euclid avenue, on the site adjoining the Hotel Statler, but that location has been found unavailable. The new house will be located in the Erie building, on the Prospect avenue side.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Globe theatre at Juniper and Market streets, has inaugurated a new policy for the summer season. Instead of twenty-five cents the price of the best seats will be fifteen cents during the heated term. There will be a daily change of pictures instead of semi-weekly as heretofore.

The Chestnut street opera house at Tenth and Chestnut, run by the Keith interests, has closed its doors for the summer season.

The opera house had a very successful winter season with long runs on big features; but being out of the radius of summer travel, it was decided to keep the house closed until autumn.

TENNESSEE

The new Lyric theatre at Chattanooga opened July 3, with the Vitagraph feature, "The Island of Regeneration." A new pipe organ, said to be one of the largest in the South, has been installed. The management has offered a prize of twenty-five admission tickets to the person sending in the best written description of the opening.

A large outdoor picture theatre opened July 5 at the Glendale zoo near Nashville. Seating capacity for thousands of people has been provided and the shows will be run every night during July and August free to the public.

VIRGINIA

The Trenton theatre, Lynchburg, Va., has closed with Paramount, Metro, V-L-S-E and William Fox for their attractions, commencing July 12. Manager Trent's program will include features each week from this array of producers. The National theatre, which is the only house in Lynchburg equipped with a pipe organ, is now under new management, a change in the control becoming effective on July 5. The National has been operated for almost a year by M. L. Hoffheimer, of Richmond. A card in the "Daily Advance" on July 4 stated that "the new management will not be responsible in any way for any bills, contracts and so forth, made prior to this date."

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Liberty Park, opened a short time ago, has been able to do business during the recent settled weather. Up to the present time, airdomes have been losing propositions on account of the sudden and unexpected showers. Only where these parks form an association with a closed house have the managers been able to secure any financial returns of consequence. The Liberty Park is exploiting features with a country store weekly.

The Eastern, under the management of Mrs. J. P. Anderson, has a neat sign over the exit door which reads, "Thank you, call again." Patrons leaving cannot help noting this, and from the attendance, it appears they accept the invitation.

The Empress theatre has changed from Paramount and returned to Universal service. The Empress was the initial house in Washington to stand up for the cause of the Independent films, as the manufacturers were called who opposed the association rulings. The present manager, John R. Heine, is filling his role to the satisfaction of his patrons.

Dr. H. Coblentz has assumed the management of the Truxton, of which he is owner. This was caused by the resignation of W. A. Hovey.

The Randolph Park, a new airdome just opened at the corner of First street and Randolph place, northwest, has proven a magnet in this section of Washington, D. C. Although located within three blocks on either side of three other theatres and two parks, the new airdome is proving a success from the start.

A varied program, with feature bills, makes up the weekly programs. Many attractive features are also introduced during the week for the pleasure of the patrons. J. F. Brady is manager.

$250,000 THEATRE IN NEW HAVEN NOW ALL-PICTURE HOUSE

THE Bijou, in New Haven, Conn., one of the houses on the vast Poli chain of theatres and probably one of the most elaborate theatres in New England, being erected only three years ago at a cost of about $250,000, has abandoned its vaudeville policy and taken up motion pictures exclusively.

Over $30,000 were spent on improvements and additions during a week that the theatre was closed recently, and it now compares favorably with some of the leading houses in New York.

Programs of from eight to ten reels in length, featuring only the latest and best star releases, are shown, being changed only twice a week. The house is located in the center of the city, and attracts such patronage that it is not an uncommon event for hundreds to be turned away from the doors at certain performances. The admission prices are ten, fifteen and twenty-five cents.

A large, new Choralcelo organ, costing $25,000, has been installed, and part of each program consists of recitals by famous players. Many people attend merely for the sake of listening to the sweet music.

The Bijou advertises more extensively than any picture theatre in the state, carrying large spaces in all of the daily papers. In addition, the front of the house is attractively hung with immense banners announcing productions as they are shown. For the past two weeks the Bijou has introduced a novelty stunt, in the form of a re-run of all Charlie Chaplin releases for some time back. A young man attired like the famous Chaplin and acting as nearly as possible like him, roams the streets at all hours, attracting large crowds by his queer antics and comical capers.

The Bijou's newest idea is an electric clock installed between bulletin boards in front of the theatre. Above it appears the legend: "Time to see the show. Performances from 1:30 to 11 P. M."

CONCERT MASTER OF METROPOLITAN TO LEAD RIALTO ORCHESTRA

FOLLOWING closely on the announcement that he had engaged the well known composer, Alfred G. Robyn, as organist of the Rialto theatre at Forty-second street and Broadway, comes the statement from Managing Director S. L. Rothapfel that he has placed under contract as director of his orchestra Hugo Riesenfeld, formerly concert master and one of the directors of Hammerstein's Manhattan opera company.

Mr. Riesenfeld, who was born in Vienna and was a student at the Royal Conservatory of Music there, is equally well known on both sides of the Atlantic as a violin soloist and conductor. He first attracted the attention of Gustav Mahler, of the Philharmonic and the Metropolitan, who, when he heard him play abroad, engaged him as first violinist for the Imperial opera house in Vienna. While there Mr. Riesenfeld composed a ballet and two dance pieces constructed on the music of Chopin, and thereafter became conductor of ballet music in the Imperial opera house.

Heinrich Conreid brought him to this country as concert master of the Metropolitan, but released him to Oscar Hammerstein, with whom he remained for three years in a similar capacity, also conducting the rehearsals of such noted works as "Lohengrin," Tannhaeuser," "Elektra" and "Salome." Mr. Riesenfeld, while under the management of Klaw & Erlanger, composed the music for "The Merry Martyr," and also conducted some of that firm's other musical productions. He was thereafter engaged to reorganize the orchestra for the Century opera company and was one of that organization's conductors.

Mr. Riesenfeld will have under his direction the largest orchestra ever installed in a motion picture house, and his musicians will be chosen for their particular capability in their various lines and from symphony orchestras all over the country. Mr. Rothapfel has given him a free hand to make the Rialto orchestra the most notable organization of its kind in the country.

RAIN BLOCKS BUSINESS IN ST. LOUIS

JUNE was the rainiest month St. Louis has known for forty years. As a result of this cool and rainy weather the airdomes all over the city have suffered from lack of attendance and inability to run their programs on nearly every night because of showers that came up expectedly and unexpectedly.

May was even worse . Only four nights in the whole month were suitable for exhibition purposes, and those nights were cold, almost too cold to sit outdoors with any degree of comfort.

The many theatres with airdomes in connection were fortunate in being able to move into the house at a few minutes' notice, and as most airdomes in St. Louis are run in conjunction with theatres, the loss to exhibitors is not as great as it might have been. But the twenty-five airdomes, more or less, that are run independently, have been playing to small audiences, even when it was possible to show the program at all.

If the weather warms up, however, and the rainy season closes, the airdomes will have a chance to make up for lost time, and it is possible that they may run until the middle of October.

As an instance of the increased popularity of outdoor theatres, the Paris airdome, on Morganford and Juniata street, had just double the attendance on opening night this year that they had on opening night in 1914. The Paris is not connected with any theatre.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO JUDGE OR DETERMINE THE BEST SCREEN FOR MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION?

TRY THESE TESTS

First: Examine the composition of screen—whether same is paper, window shading or canvas.

Second: Note whether the finish surface is as flexible as the material to which it's applied, thus removing all chance of cracking or peeling.

Third: Try creasing or bending to see if coating will crack.

Fourth: Try tearing to determine its toughness or tear-resisting qualities.

Fifth: Try soaking in water to prove if it's waterproof.

Sixth: Try stretching.

Last, but not least, look up NOT ONLY THE GUARANTEE, BUT THE MANUFACTURER BACK OF THE GUARANTEE. Find out how long manufacturer has been in existence and in this connection, ask yourself one question, viz.—HOW DOES A MANUFACTURER KNOW HIS SCREEN WILL LAST FOR FIVE YEARS WITHOUT PROVING DEFECTIVE, WHEREAS THAT SAME MANUFACTURER AND HIS SCREEN HAVE ONLY BEEN IN EXISTENCE SIX MONTHS OR TWO YEARS?

BEAR THESE FACTS IN MIND

Mirroroid Screens have been in use for the past six years, AND ARE STILL IN USE.
Mirroroid is guaranteed against the defects previously mentioned by the J. H. Genter Co., Inc., Newburgh, N. Y., who have been in business under the same management at the same location, for the past six years, and are STILL BEHIND THE MIRROROID GUARANTEE. THINK IT OVER.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Luz

EDITOR'S NOTE.— This department is maintained for the exhibitor's assistance with a view of suggesting proper musical illustrations for current photo plays. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be pleased to help solve any difficulties the exhibitors may have with their musical programs. All communications should be addressed to the Music and the Picture Department.

THE EXHIBITOR AND MUSIC

I TAKE it for a fact that music has been the greatest care of every exhibitor and the one part of his entertainment wherewith he has met with the least success.

This musical discontent makes me feel that the exhibitor has tried, is trying and will continue to try until his efforts meet with success; for which reason I address the exhibitors with the view of obtaining their co-operation and support in my agitation for that which is necessary for the continued success and betterment of the motion picture theatre.

At a recent banquet given by film men in New York City, to S. L. Rothapfel, late managing director of the Strand theatre, he said, among many things, "I suppose I will be accused of riding a hobby when I say something about the combination of music and the pictures, but you will all admit the tremendous part that the music plays." Few exhibitors having been able to meet with marked success in the combination of music and the picture, gives him the privilege of calling it a hobby, but I can assure you it was Mr. Rothapfel's stock in trade and the stepping stone to his every past success. His knowledge of music has been to his great advantage.

To give every exhibitor the same opportunity, thereby creating legitimate competition in music, I place my views and methods before you hoping for your honest support and co-operation.

Picture Theatre vs. the Legitimate

The continued advance and improvement of the picture theatre has placed it in direct competition and on an equal footing with the legitimate. Why then is it not every exhibitor's right to expect the same assistance from the producers of his performance as is given to the working force of every so-called legitimate theatre, in advance of the playing company's arrival?

This advance information calls for all that is necessary for a perfect performance of each and every play in the form of plots, such as property, electrical or musical.

What do we get in the picture theatre? Nothing but advertising and an unknown quantity of film. Music must be thoroughly thought out and set up in advance. When this advance information is furnished, you, Mr. Exhibitor, will truly be a dangerous competitor to the best in the legitimate, and you will find yourselves catering to the refined and intelligent patronage of your communities.

Is it not therefore to the mutual benefit of the industry at large that a concerted movement be started to bring about such conditions? Mr. Exhibitor, it is high time that each and every one of you become managing directors of your theatres in spite of the fact you may not be practical musicians or operators.

The One Man Instrument

Nearly all exhibitors have been approached on the subject of the One Man Orchestra. The subject has been kept continually before me in the last year. I have heard repeated demonstrations on many different instruments, playing many myself and feel sure that some of the latest patents will fill a much needed want among exhibitors, whose seating capacity does not permit the weekly cost of an orchestra.

The lone picture pianist or the piano and drum are no longer picture theatre attractions. On the contrary, they have become a musical insult to even the less intelligent audiences. No exhibitor should allow himself to believe that these instruments can take the place of an orchestra. That is far from true. When conditions are such that he can afford only two or four, not always capable musicians, such an instrument with one good performer will surely give him better musical results. Many of these instruments require only the services of a good pianist to get good results.

Others are so laborious for the player that the exhibitor has no end of trouble with performers after installation.

These evils are being corrected in some of the late patents, which when perfected will make them possible as an orchestral equipment, making them possible with orchestra and practical as an orchestra relief, for an overworked orchestra is monotonous.

The greatest drawback of all One Man Orchestra instruments is the faulty salesmanship shown in presenting their proposition as a cheap way of getting picture music results when it is really not cheap.

Every cheap instrument that I have heard has been good for nothing and those that were good cost real money. The price of admission to the picture theatre is continuing upward, consequently the picture theatre does not beckon for that which is cheap, but demands musical class. The one-man orchestra does cost money, but it is worth the price you pay for it.

In the larger theatre where the admission is fifteen cents and more, the pipe organ is the solution. It augments the orchestra, relieves the orchestra, and does away with that which is most abominable in all picture theatres, viz., the lone piano.

There is no limit to the results obtainable on the pipe organ, for it can be added to from time to time, always adding tonal effects that are new. While it is an expensive equipment it is lasting, and it holds out a welcoming hand to the best in music, requiring a musical student or master as a performer.

Objections to Pipe Organ

With all the musical possibilities known to the modern pipe organ, its monotone becomes tiresome if heard continually for an hour or more. The proof of this is found in the fact that the more progressive exhibitors and theatre managers use it as an auxiliary instrument.

In such cases it has seldom been necessary to decrease the size of the orchestra, but on the contrary business improvement has allowed the orchestra to be augmented. It is safe to say that no mechanical contrivance will ever supplant the orchestra in avoiding monotone musical entertainment.

The solution of the many one-man instruments, ignoring the piano, which is no longer a factor, must be decided by each exhibitor according to his seating capacity, the maximum admission obtainable and, above all, the class of audience he entertains .

I know of no one-man instrument that would not be an improvement over the piano or piano and drum. The latter combinations will surely keep the more intelligent patronage away, which is the audience wherewith the moving picture theatre of today will thrive.

Losses of the Past in Musical Speculation

No exhibitor can estimate the loss to himself when he fails to properly equip himself musically, even should he be playing to capacity, for a competitor may enter the field at any time who has made a study of the musical possibilities and surrounded himself with capable musicians.

After such competition starts to take your patronage it is impossible for you to equip yourself in short enough time to stay the tide of business, and were it possible you become an imitator, which is the best advertising your competitor can have. At this point you suffer the loss of musical speculation, for it is musical speculation to the exhibitor who has not given it proper forethought and study. You cannot properly equip yourself musically in a day, week or month, under present conditions. It is therefore wise that every exhibitor give the music and the picture some serious thought in this time of peace, while he is still free from competition, at a time when musical speculation will not be a financial loss to him.

There has been in the past, and always will be, a tendency on the part of many to exploit the field of picture music. Less than two years ago prominent men in the picture game, as it was professionally termed then, remarked to me that no one who read music could play well for pictures. These same men are today searching with diligence for players who can read the right music at the right time for pictures. The time is past when we should use the piano. I can safely say that in the near future the piano fakirs will all be back on the street cars. Every manufacturer of instruments maintains a school of instruction and can only use capable performers.

The present patronage of the picture theatre demands good music, well played, which can only be accomplished by the best musicians. At the present time the best musical directors in this country are available for the picture theatre work and await the time when they can get such advance information as is necessary for them to know they can fill such positions satisfactorily and not to the detriment of their individual reputations.

When I say that a score of directors and musicians have suggested their apprentices to learn the work of picture playing, you will readily understand the fever of musical inclination which is now on, making me more positive that the next year will see every possible loss in musical speculation a thing of the past and the present musical troubles of the exhibitor reduced to a minimum.

A WOMAN'S SUGGESTION FOR MUSICAL SCORES

By Alice S. Burton

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following article, by Alice Burton, of Honolulu, an expert motion picture pianist, well known in the Hawaiian Islands, is a reply to one appearing in a recent issue from the pen of E. A. Ahern.

First Idea: I think it advisable for the manager to give the pianist a rehearsal with the picture before it appears to the public. How many managers consider this necessary? What the pianist should do, is to study the names of the films to be played, which is in most cases the "cue" of what to expect—not always, but usually.

They should use ordinary common sense, and not play waltzes and jig music during a "death scene," or "love scene," of a picture, as so many do. The average pianist (like so many other lines of business) works simply on the get-the-money plan, and doesn't care what he plays; giving little thought to the artistic side.

Likewise, managers should demand proper music, and by so doing would increase their box receipts, for without doubt the music is the life of the picture. But why use different measures of different pieces, or play one piece in different tempo, as in Mr. Ahern's remarks on "Notre Dame"?

The changes in a picture are too sudden to allow of skipping from one piece to another, and also each picture has its own individuality, no matter what class of picture. For example: "Eyes so Blue and Tender" and "Unlit Sea" are alike, generally speaking, but the character of each picture is entirely different and requires a different musical setting for each.

If pianists hold the audience, they must make the picture interesting and restful, not discordant. I used for "When Sea" "Lorely," by Selig, using the one piece, the same as a background, for a picture, and improvised or composed to suit the different changes of the picture; modulating from one key to another, fitting each scene—either sad, or storm, and dashing of waves; ending with my original theme "Lorely."

For "Eyes so Blue" I used Ronde d'amour, by Westerhout. I did not have the song, and found this piece suited nicely, as it was something of the song-ballad style of music; treating this picture likewise, fitting the different changes to suit the action of the characters.

When the girl denounces her would-be sweetheart, on the rocks, strong agitato movement, which requires an entire change of key. Then again, when he breaks the "Night Light" and "Sneaks into the room very slowly," staccato movement to chords, following his movements until he sees "her" on the shore below. Also follow her as she walks into the surging sea, follow every movement closely, until where she is found by her sweetheart, washed ashore, then very sad, pathetic melody, and finish with my original piece, letting the music die away. A silence over the entire audience—and many in tears.

"The Escape of Jim Dolan," my version of this two-reel Western drama ("Too Much Mustard") until jail scene, then improvise a "lento" movement, in same key, until breaking out of jail—entirely different key and movement—in A Minor; follow all changes closely until captured by the Indians; then full Indian music, suitable to war whoops, running and so forth, until he drops from his horse, then "Adagio" movement in C.

On the road to recovery, back to my original piece "Too Much Mustard," in key of F. I mean by "Composing" and "Improvising" musically. And it must be legitimate—not faked, as many do.

Some attempt this, and it sounds like a broken hurdy-gurdy; in this case, silence would be golden. Some very good effects for the picture may be obtained by a moment's silence at the right time and place. To play one piece from beginning to the finish of a picture is enough to drive the people and the manager out of the house.

The pipe organ is the most responsive instrument. A beautiful effect may be obtained when a lot of women are screaming, as in "Burning of Troy," by combining melodia, flute and voxhumana, viola-cello and echo-horn. You can follow the imaginary voices with the foot swell, using your pedal bass for the male voices.

If the picture pianist would only study effects a little more, managers would pay more, and audiences would certainly appreciate it. Put ragtime in its place; likewise all other music.

CHARLES FRANK, BOSTON PIANIST, OUTLINES SCORE FOR "WILD OLIVE"

PATRONS at the Park theatre in Boston are congratulating its new manager, W. Fred Bossner, for retaining as his musical conductor a man who has done so much for good musical accompaniment for pictures in Boston as has Charles Frank. Mr. Frank was at the old Orpheum, no being torn down, for several years, and was connected with vaudeville for seventeen years. He is a director who insists upon playing only worth while music for the films, and he believes the musical side of the film has a great future.

Mr. Frank and Mr. Bossner view the Paramount reels a week in advance of their showing at the theatre, and Mr. Frank has devised a code system in which he jots down the sort of music to be played with each section of the picture. His musical library is probably one of the most extensive possessed by any theatre orchestra conductor in the city, and from this library his orchestra since last December 7, has played 1,115 selections, the only repeats being the melodramatic hurries.

Mr. Frank has given the NEWS the following music plot for "The Wild Olive," playing at the Park:

While cast is being shown, "Solitude," waltz by Waldteufel. For the letter "Lovey Mary," by an unknown composer. For the Wild Olive caption, "Sleeping Beauty," Tobani; chopping down tree, "Butterflies," Steinke; for the fight, melodramatic hurry; after the fight, "Serenade," Pierne; interior change, "To a Star," Leonard; struggle, agitato movement; interior change, "Song of the Waves," Johnston; change to green shack in woods, "Mysteryosso"; change of scene to home, "Reverie," Vieuxtemps; morning scene, "Nightingale and the Frogs," Eilenberg.

At Norrie's escape, organ, waltz; ready at sunset, andante moderato; six months later, light music; letter, andante; exterior, waltz;

THE ONE-MAN-ORCHESTRA IS BEST FOR THE PICTURE

THERE seems to be one most important fact overlooked in the present rush to install the various forms of one-man-orchestras in the motion picture theatre. No matter how well known or famous the organist, no matter how expert the pianist, if the pianist or organist is not an adept at "playing for pictures," all their reputation and skill so evident when playing their respective organ or piano counts for naught when they try to play for pictures.

If the respective manufacturers of these one-man-orchestras would take an expert picture player, one who has served his time on the old standby piano, and train him to use their instrument for pictures, something might be accomplished that would be worth having from a box-office standpoint. But this fad, and it is nothing else, of taking an organist, famous for church or concert organ recitals, and letting him play one of these one-man-orchestras for the pictures in a theatre is nothing short of a joke, to say the least.

To be fair, there is nothing that sounds so well or would please the average audience more than a classical or an operatic selection played or rendered by a famous organist or pianist, for an overture or between shows; but where would these selections fit in for a straight drama or light comedy picture?

The scenes following one another in any picture would hardly allow for more than a few snatches from any selection, let alone the rendering of an entire selection. The adept picture player so arranges his music that the different selections are so blended together as to make a harmonious whole, and there is no getting around the fact that the concert player, whether he is an organist or pianist, cannot apply this same arrangement to his repertoire without some first practice or intently watching and learning from some expert picture player.

There is no reason why the average piano-picture-player cannot adapt his playing to one of these one-man-orchestras, and his rendition of picture playing one one of these instruments would only be a questin of time before he could play his regular "piano stunts" with the addition of having an organ, and probably a ten-piece orchestra, at the command of his fingers on the keyboard.

When it is taken into consideration that the one-man-orchestra combines all the instruments mentioned, and one or two of them are combined with the piano in addition, these instrument are the logical musical equipment for the picture theatre. But only when played by a picture player. The concert organist or pianist must first learn to play for pictures.

PORTLAND, ORE., THEATRES TO MAKE MUSIC AN ATTRACTION

EARL RANSOM, drummer at the National theatre, Portland, Ore., has taken over the management of the Orpheum, at Seaside, for the summer season. Special music and vaudeville, in connection with Mutual Masterpictures, will be the attractions offered. Mr. Ransom is in touch with many clever acts, and intends to present only the best.

Mr. Ransom's plan is to secure the best musicians possible, and perhaps the location of his theatre, being at a seaside resort, will aid him greatly in securing good talent. The hours will be short, and he will pay his musicians liberally, in order to specialize in musical numbers. Among the acts, Mr. Ransom reports a zylophone duo, which will remain as a permanant attraction. He also plans to secure three or four of Portland's most noted pianists, during their vacation, and will perhaps head the list by Clifford L. Carney, for many years identified with Melvin G. Winstock, at the Peoples' theatre, now with Mr. Winstock at the National.

THE MOTION PICTURE MAN'S GUIDE TO SAN FRANCISCO AND LOS ANGELES

SAN FRANCISCO is a discouraging town for the visitor in that it is almost impossible to find even a Native Son who can, without referring to a map, outline the lay of the land. The writer tried this on three exchangemen, who had been fixtures in the bay city since films became films. The cause is that half of San Francisco is on the bias with the other half. In other words, all streets north of Market are diagonal with Market, while those south are perpendicular or horizontal with the spinal cord of the city.

Fortunately San Francisco has but two means of entrance, which greatly simplifies matters. You must either arrive by the ferries which dock at the Ferry building, foot of Market street, or at the Southern Pacific railway station on Townsend and Third streets.

If you come by the ferry, take any uptown numbered Market street cars, except those numbered three or four. This will take you direct to the Civic Auditorium, Larkin street, where the convention will be held. The same applies to any car on Market street, whether taken at, or above the Ferry building.

Those who arrive by the Southern Pacific can transfer from Third street cars at Market, and by Market street the visitors can return to the main business portion of the city, where practically all theatres, hotels, exchanges and other business establishments of the film industry are located.

The Auditorium is very conveniently located, in that it gives access to cars to all parts of the city. Van Ness avenue, on the west of the Auditorium, runs direct to the Panama-Pacific Exposition ground entrance.

All firms of the film industry in San Francisco are preparing to entertain the visitors, and the following directory of the various firms will be of interest to the visitors.

WITH but very few exceptions all film exchanges and accessory houses in San Francisco are located on Eddy, Turk or Golden Gate avenue.

All three streets run parallel with each other, diagonally with Market street, and are south from the ferry in the order named above.

The General Film exchange is located at 138 Eddy street, where Leon Bories presides as manager. This institution is one of the handsomest exchanges on the coast and it is convenient in every respect.

In the center of the next block, at 234 Eddy, is the All-Star Feature Distributors, and the Golden Gate Film exchange of which Sol Lesser is president and manager; L. V. Netter, assistant manager; and E. M. Asher, in charge of publicity and sales departments. From this studio many of the big independent features, all exposition features and Metro program subjects are distributed.

At 158 Eddy street is the accessory and theatre supply house of Davis brothers, Sam and Moe. It would be hard to think of anything that cannot be found here.

The Pathe exchange, under the management of H. W. Oviatt, is at 67 Turk street, being a half block off of Market. Mr. Oviatt's assistants include C. S. Alderman, booker; W. M. Kofeldt, cashier, and J. H. Hart, manager of the publicity department.

Directly across the street, north, is the accessory and supply house of George Breck, where there is much of interest, the equipment being arranged for display purposes to form a model theatre.

In the next block west, 162 Turk street, is the Mutual exchange, where J. R. Crone is manager; X. K. Stout, assistant manager; and C. A. Roeder, manager of serial department.

Golden Gate avenue has become the center of the film companies, and on this thoroughfare, not less than seven are located, five of this number being clustered in the second block, two on one side of the street and three on the other.

THE World Film corporation exchange is at 104 Golden Gate avenue, where they have very elaborate quarters. Ralph H. Clark is manager, H. B. Seller, office manager, and F. H. Locher and Joseph Deitch, salesmen.

The Independent Film exchange is two doors distant, at 116, where G. E. Chamberlain is owner and manager. Independent feature subjects marketed by the states rights plan are handled.

A few steps farther is the Union Film and Supply company of which O. V. Traggardh is president and manager. This exchange specializes in state rights features.

On the opposite side of the street will be found the Fox Film corporation in charge of W. J. Citron. Adjoining this is the equipment and supply house of G. A. Metcalf, who is distributor for Power, Simplex and Baird machines. W. L. Stearn is sales manager and W. E. Butler in charge of the repair and installment department.

The California Film exchange, distributors of the Universal program, is at 121-27 Golden Gate avenue, under the management of M. L. Markowitz, who is aided by Abe Markowitz, in charge of the booking department, and Joe Celloa, manager of the supply department. This exchange has floor space of nearly five thousand square feet, with elevator service from main floor to the basement, where there is a comfortable projection room.

The exchange was started by Mr. Markowitz in 1909, and three times it has been necessary to move to larger quarters. During the time other branches were organized, one at Los Angeles and the other at Phoenix, Ariz. Early this year the three exchanges were sold to the Universal company.

At the corner of Golden Gate avenue and Market street is the San Francisco branch of the V-L-S-E corporation. This is in charge of C. B. Price. In the Mechanics' building, Turk and Market streets, is the business headquarters of the Exhibitors' League convention, prior to the time of opening the meeting.

The Blinkhorn exchange, in charge of L. C. Williams, is also located in the Mechanics' building.

IN the adjoining building, 942 Market street, is the attractive office of Turner and Dahnken, circuit of motion picture theatres. This firm has a very complete establishment here which looks after all details of the business, including advertising, projection repairing and scenic effects.

The Progressive Film corporation, which has exchanges in a number of west coast and mountain cities, has its headquarters in the Pacific building, corner of Fourth and Market streets. Henry Webber, one of the principal stockholders of the corporation, is in charge, and assisted by Kenneth Hodkinson and Mrs. Gertie Huff.

The Nat A. Magner exchange, under the personal supervision of Mr. Magner, has its home office in the Pacific building. This exchange specializes in state rights feature productions.

Other exchanges in San Francisco are United Film Service company, 217 Taylor street, under the management of J. H. Allen; Apex Feature Film service, in charge of Ernest Brue, and the Globe Film exchange, owned and managed by I. Litchenstein. Both are in the Pantages Theatre building.

THE principal motion picture theatres of San Francisco and Oakland are: The Alcazar, O'Farrel near Powell (now showing "The Birth of a Nation"); Imperial, 1073 Market street, 1,700 seats, Jack Partington, manager; Portola theatre, 779 Market street, 1,500 seats, Eugene Rolfe, manager; Tivoli theatre, 70 Eddy street, 2,200 seats, Turner and Dahnken, managers; Edison, 27 Powell street, 500 seats, H. J. Gosliner, manager; Odeon, 747 Market street, and Unique at 757 Market. Each have three hundred seats and are owned by Joe Huff; Fillmore, 1327 Fillmore street, seven hundred and fifty seats, Greenfield and Kahn, managers; Acme, 1249 Stockton street, Ralph L. Marks, manager. This is near Chinatown, where the Orientals and Occidentals rub elbows; Silver Palace, between Third and Fourth on Market, five hundred seats, Bert Herzog, manager; Strand, eight hundred seats, College avenue and Ash Beach, Berkeley, Beach and Krahn managers; De Luxe, Bancroft and Shattuck avenue, Berkeley, twenty-two hundred seats, Turner and Dahnken, managers; Majestic, near the University of California, one thousand seats, Frank Edolph, manager; Franklin, at Fifteenth and Franklin street, Oakland, one thousand seats, Krueger and Midgley, managers; Photoplay, Broadway at Sixteenth street, eighteen hundred seats, Turner and Dahnken, managers.

LOS ANGELES FIRMS WILL BE FOUND IN "FILM ROW"

THE convention exhibitors who come to Los Angeles, will find the exchange accessory houses and other firms connected with the exhibiting end of the business, clustered in what is known as Film Row. This, at the present time, is scattered over a larger area than formerly, but now all business houses will be found within three blocks.

Keep this with you ana enjoy your trip to the Pacific Coast

THE MOTION PICTURE MAN'S GUIDE TO SAN FRANCISCO AND LOS ANGELES

The seven hundred block of South Olive street, which is two blocks west of Broadway, was first given the name of Film Row. The most northerly exchange is the Fox Film Corporation, at number 734. This is under the management of A. T. Lambson, and also serves as the home office of Harry Leonhardt, general western state's representative.

In the adjoining room to the south is the home of the Universal Program, and from here it is distributed all over southern California, a portion of Nevada and part of Arizona. Dan Markowitz is manager, ably assisted by Dave Bershon and Joe Goldberg.

Directly across the street is the Los Angeles exchange of the Union Film and Supply company, which handles a number of very successful state rights' features. O. T. Saylor is manager.

The Los Angeles exchange of the Mutual Film corporation has just moved to new quarters at 825-29 South Olive street. Here, Manager Johns has added every convenience for his patrons, which includes a large pre-view theatre and comfortable reading rooms. The regular program department is handled by Newt Levy, the Mutual Master-Pictures by Edward S. Holmes, and the serial pictures by Charles Cochard. This exchange is modern in every way and built especially to requirements of the new fire ordinances.

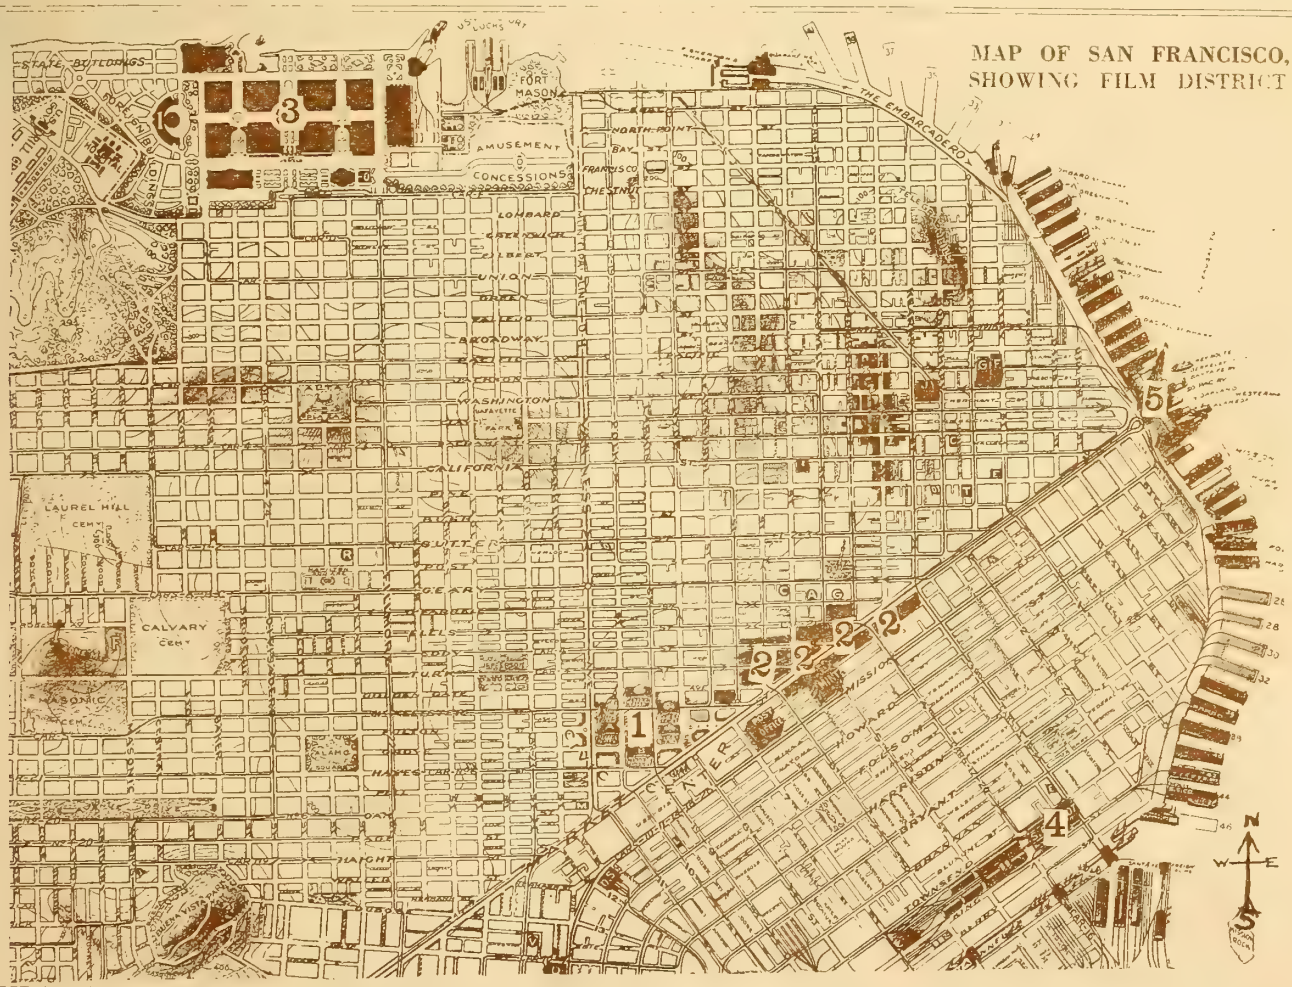
ON Eighth street, one half block west of Olive street, is the southern California branch of the All-Star Feature Distributors and the Golden Gate Film exchange, of which Sol Lesser, of San Francisco, is president and general manager. E. H. Emmick is the manager of this exchange, assisted by Ted Bargman as salesman, and R. S. McIntyre is in charge of the booking department.

United Service exchange is at 527 West Eighth street, and is ably managed by A. B. Lamb. Sam Barnett is in charge of booking.

The World Film corporation is at 822 South Grand avenue, under the management of C. L. Theuirkauf, who is aided by H. Rweenie.

The General Film company's Los Angeles exchange occupies the entire fourth floor of a newly constructed building at 822 South Broadway. The offices and the several departments are most conveniently arranged and furnished. The projection department is the most important feature of the exchange, which is in charge of H. H. Hicks. This branch serves the exhibitors of southern California, a portion of Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and a part of Oklahoma and Texas.

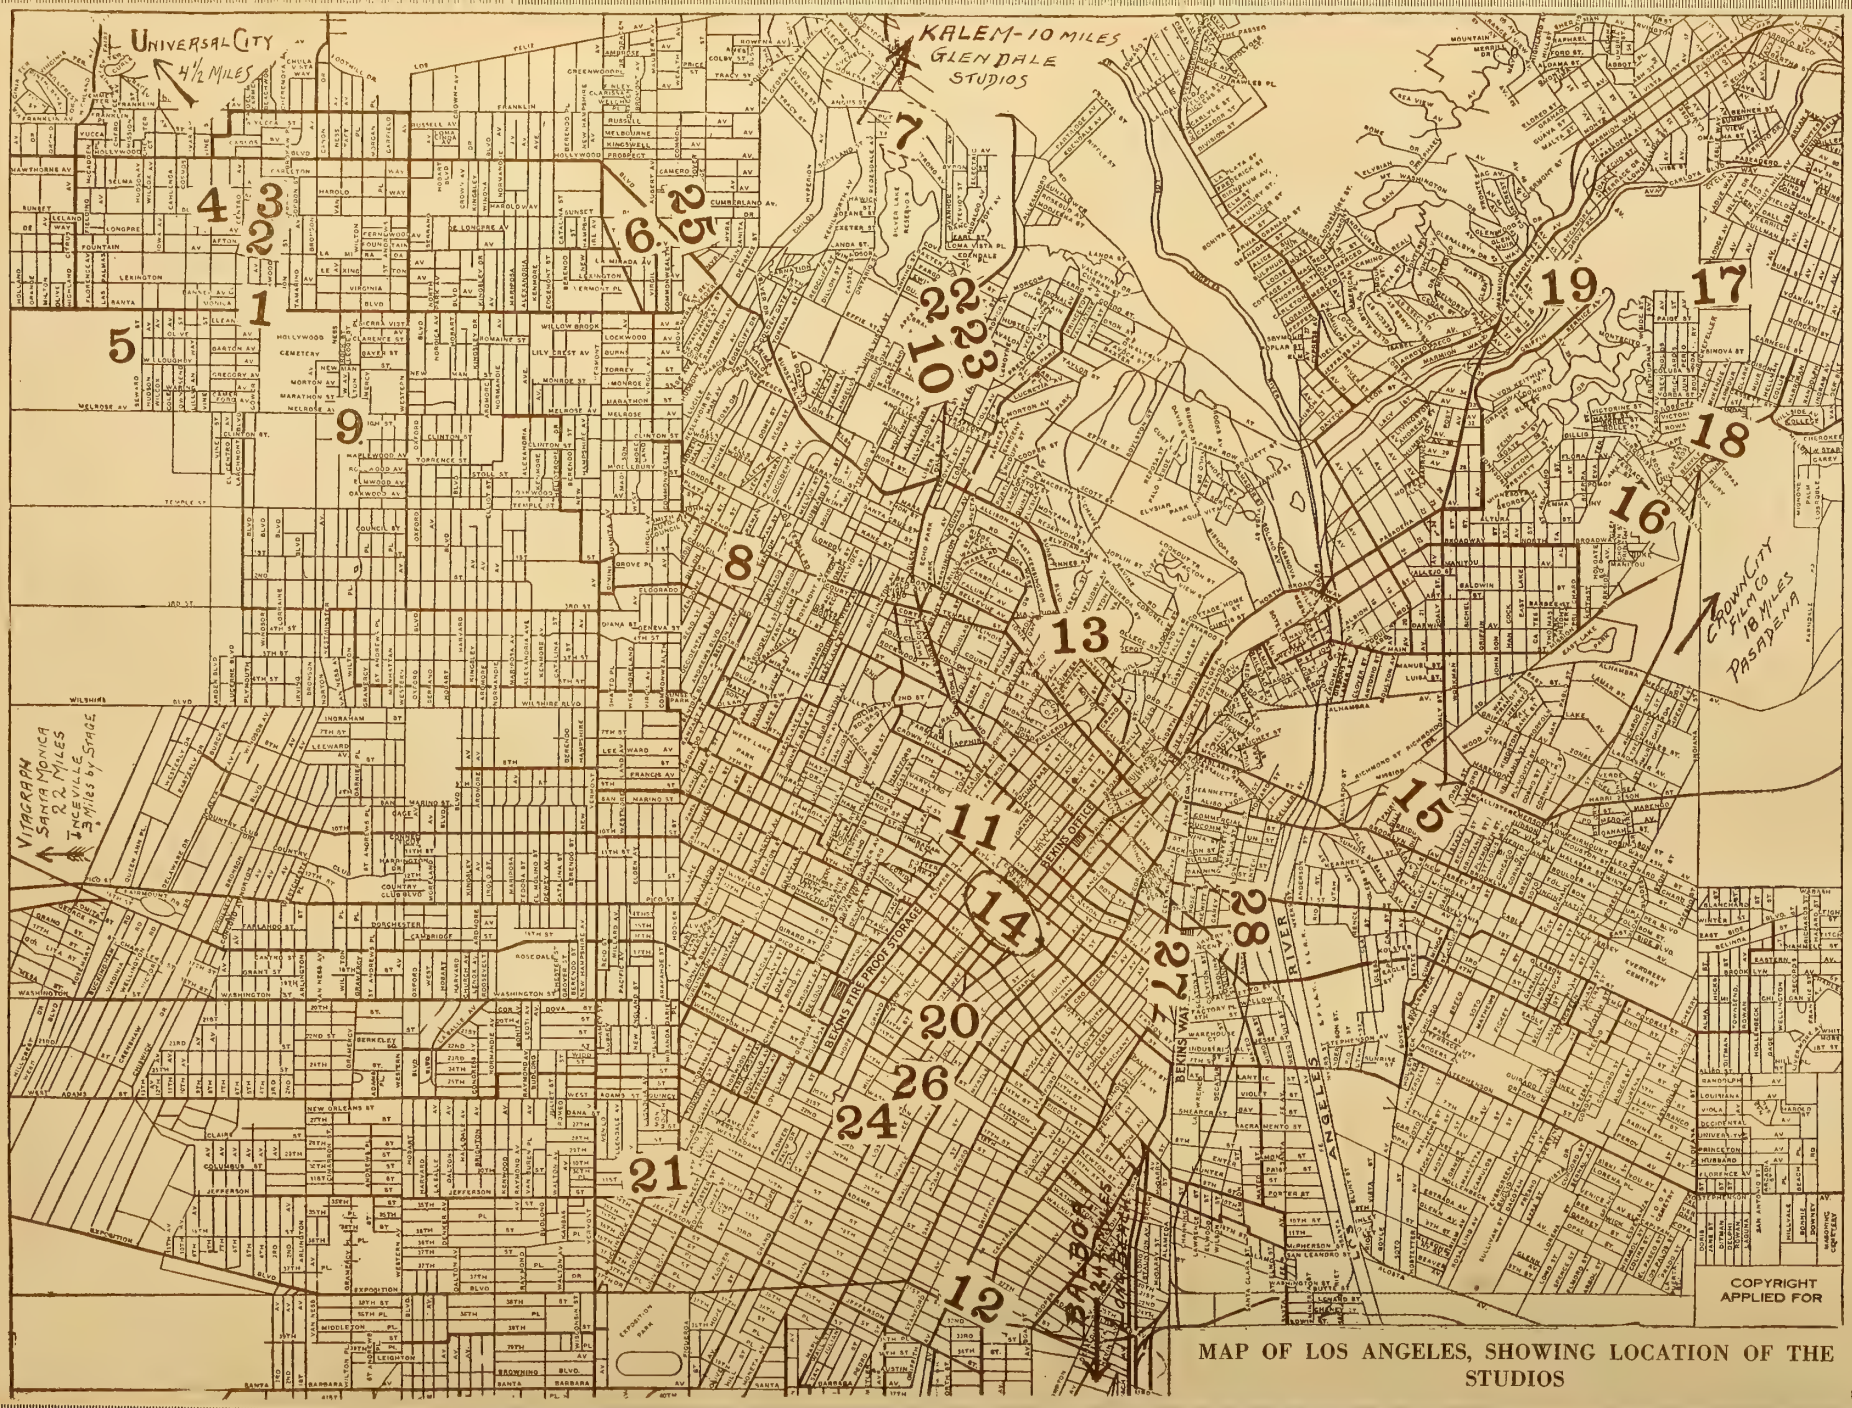
The home of Paramount Pictures is on the third floor of the Marsh-Strong building, Ninth street at Main. M. L. Lewis is manager of this exchange with Lewis T. Thompson in charge of sales, and Byron Spry assistant to the manager.



The Pathe exchange occupies a large first-floor room at 114 East Seventh street. B. E. Loper is manager. This exchange is also the parent organization of "Southern California Pathe Weekly."

The Nat A. Magner company's Los Angeles branch, in charge of J. C. White, is located in suite 224, Los Angeles Investment building, corner Eighth street and Broadway.

The office of the Film Exchange Men's Board of Trade of Los Angeles, is located on the sixth floor of the Marsh-Strong building, Ninth and Main streets. The members have extended an invitation to all visiting exhibitors and exchangemen, to call here and meet the manager of the board, C. J. Marley.



The largest inclusive motion picture theatre equipment and supply house in Los Angeles is that of the Pacific Amusement Supply company, 200 Severance building, corner Sixth and Main streets. H. E. Van Duyne is general manager, and the other members of the firm take care of the outside sales work and the installation.

"The Blindness of Virtue" Strikes A Human Chord That Sets The World Vibrating

Once in an epoch there comes a photoplay that carries a special appeal; that reaches the depths of the inner consciousness and awakens an entire nation to a new view of life.

Through every heart runs a vein of human emotion, which touched, responds in all alike.

"The Blindness of Virtue" carries this special appeal. It strikes this universal chord that sets the heart of the world vibrating.

This six-act Essanay photoplay, written by Cosmo Hamilton, is more than entertaining; it is fascinating. Its artistry of production is perfect; its scenic beauty is unsurpassed and the acting is supreme.

But above all there is a heart appeal to mothers, to fathers, to daughters, to sons. It calls for the saving to the nation of the flower of its womanhood by teaching the truths of life and love. It is this special appeal that lifts this photoplay above the level of the merely excellent play to the plane of a masterpiece.

Edna Mayo and Bryant Washburn, in the leading roles, bring out all the strong points of the play with a mastery that makes ever heart respond.

THE NEW WILLIAM FOX POLICY

If You Have Partners Read this Message Aloud to Them

ON September 6th, next, William Fox president of the Fox Film Corporation, the man who has made film history more rapidly and effectively, since his entry into the business, than any other manufacturer engaged in the industry, inaugurates an entirely new policy. A policy that means much to the exhibitor. So much, in fact, that every exhibitor is earnestly urged to read with unusual care the facts which follow and which have purposely been set forth as tersely and crisply as possible and are designed to answer all the questions he may feel inclined to ask, so that, when he has perused William Fox's argument, all he will have to do will be to fill out the application for contract form without delay or questioning.

Beginning on September 6th, the Fox Film Corporation intends releasing every week one great feature, written by a celebrated author and headed by a famuos star. Beginning on that date, the One-a-Week policy will be inaugurated and contracts with exhibitors, which are now ready, will read from Monday, September 6th, 1915, to Friday, September 1st, 1916, inclusive, guaranteeing the exhibitor Fifty-two (52) of the most magnificent features it is humanly possible to produce.

This innovation has not been entered into with undue haste. There has been no headlong hurry about it. This policy is a natural development of what Mr. Fox, ever with an alert "ear to the ground" for the exhibitors' needs, feels is a necessary step. Exhibitors throughout the country have expressed their desire for a William Fox One-a-Week service, basing their demands upon the enormous success they have met with in booking the William Fox features in the past. But the wonderful qualities of those features called for the services of directors capable of meeting the high standards set by Mr. Fox—and such men do not grow on bushes. Not till now has it been possible—after combing the entire field, both here and abroad—to assemble a producing staff that Mr. Fox feels measures up to his requirements; the grade of picture, for instance, represented by Theda Bara in "The Devil's Daughter," "The Two Orphans," "The Clemenceau Case" and "A Fool There Was"; Betty Nansen in "Should a Mother Tell?" "A Woman's Resurrection;" William Farnum in "The Bondman," "The Plunderer," "The Nigger," "A Gilded Fool" and "Samson;" Nance O'Neil in "Princess Romanoff" and "Kreutzer Sonata;" Wilton Lackaye in "Children of the Ghetto;" Charles Richman in "The Idler," and Dorothy Donnelly in "The Thief." The features to come under the new policy will transcend even the notable hits enumerated in every way, impossible though it may sound.

Impossible it would be, too, were it not for the unequalled facilities acquired by Mr. Fox while his plans to accomplish the greatest service yet for the exhibitors of the land, were ripening. This opportunity, therefore, is taken to announce that there is now being constructed for the Fox Film Corporation a studio that, when completed, will represent an outlay of $2,000,000. It is the finest and most completely equipped for the making of great feature pictures in the world, and contains the very latest results of the investigations of the most eminent kineographic experts. Under the same roof with the vast glass studios, and their attendant shops and offices, will be housed a complete laboratory and developing and printing equipment, assuring unequaled facilities for handling the William Fox Features, from the raw film to the finished product, directly under the personal supervision of the President of the Fox Film Corporation himself. With such an equipment it will be possible to manufacture greater and more perfect pictures than even the most fervent admirer of the Fox features so far turned out ever dreamed was possible. The law of the studio as laid down to the Fox producing staff is simplicity itself:

"MAKE EACH PICTURE BETTER AND STRONGER THAN ITS PREDECESSOR."

Nor does the William Fox Service stop there. You must call to mind the fact that the president of this concern is himself not only a maker of films for sale, hire or lease, but is the controlling power of a great chain of the handsomest picture houses in the country, numbering more than twenty, and having respective capacities of from Sixteen Hundred to Four Thousand. The William Fox Features are packing these houses. If they do that for William Fox they will do it for every exhibitor in the land. Doesn't that sound like horse-sense?

From the theatrical branch of his enterprises alone, Mr. Fox has amassed a fortune far greater than he can ever spend. He has an annual income that is many times larger than he requires. Mr. Fox is not harassed by financial uncertainty. The Fox Film Corporation does not rest on the shifting sands of stock-jobbery and notable feats of frenzied finance. Instead it is rooted firmly in the living rock of a sound foundation of financial security. Its directors number such men as Thomas N. McCarter, president of the great Public Service Corporation of the State of New Jersey; Colonel Anthony R. Kuser, Vice-President of The Prudential Life Insurance Company, world-famous for its slogan, "the strength of the Rock of Gibraltar;" Uzal H. McCarter, president of the Fidelity Trust Co. of Newark, N. J. Among the other directors of this corporation are John C. Eisele and his partner, Nathaniel King, of the banking firm of Eisele and King. Mr. King is one of the directors of a dozen banks and big business enterprises. Mr. Eisele is equally prominent and well-known. These are the men upon whom, with Mr. Fox, the business integrity of the Fox Film Corporation rests. But above and beyond all this is the unique position that Mr. Fox occupies in the producing world. His interests and yours are identical. He could not afford to give you a mediocre picture, for his own success as a theatre owner depends upon a rigid adherence to the pace he has set.

Right here, you may feel inclined to say, "Well, I've got a good theatre in a good location. I pack them in right along. Why should I switch from the brand of pictures I'm using to the William Fox features?"

In reply, we give you the following facts: We are the only large firm in the producing business that does not buy a single fraction of outside film. We are the only firm that applies the acid test, administered by Mr. Fox himself and an advisory board of twenty-five of the keenest minds in the film business to every inch of product. We are the only firm that presents a strictly "hand-picked" program and whose program is not made up of the products of several manufacturers.

"What's the matter with a program made up of the productions of several manufacturers?" you ask.

Well, the writer happened recently to take dinner in a New York restaurant. At the adjoining table four manufacturers, who are contributing to one program, were talking, and this was part of the conversation he overheard:

Manufacturer No. 1 said, addressing his remarks to Manufacturer No. 3: "The last picture you made and contributed to our program is a terrible looking thing. I don't see how any exhibitor can pay a rental and earn a profit from a picture of that kind."

Manufacturer No. 3 replied to Manufacturer No. 1: "You've got a h—— of a nerve to talk to me about the quality of my picture. It is a darn sight better than the one you contributed to our program two weeks ago."

And so these four manufacturers were consoling themselves with the bad goods that they were making, and the fact that each of them felt, anyhow, that the other manufacturer was making goods just as bad as he was! Making, as we do, all our own goods, William Fox follows only one single undeviating standard—to make each succeeding production better and stronger than the last. Our competitors argue that we are not making money! The truth of it is, Brother, we aren't making money YET. The rental of film received from exhibitors does not yield us a fair and reasonable profit because the quality of our pictures is so high, the salaries of the celebrated stars featured in our productions is so huge, that, right now, YOU are getting the profits while Fox, serene and unperturbed, is putting out the best and strongest pictures ever and waiting with cool self-confidence for his returns. How's that for a frank admission? Would any of the "assembled program" firms dare to make it? Not on your terrestial existence! But we WILL make money. It is a case of the survival of the fittest. Fox knows, and his associates in this great business know, that we are turning out "the fittest" and that the Fox Film Corporation will triumphantly survive and earn its deserved profits.

What a pity it is that you cannot be present at the reviewing and assembling of any one of our productions and see in session our executive staff, numbering twenty-five, fighting, arguing and working till all hours of the dawn, discussing how and in what way the picture can be assembled and released so that it has the greatest merit, value and drawing power. We frankly admit we are in this industry for the purpose of doing a legitimate business and to earn an honest profit, but we feel that you should know that our ambition runs in a far greater channel, and that is that the world at large may acknowledge that our Company has made, and will make, a larger number of great and tremendous subjects than any other manufacturing company in the world. To further that ambition we are willing to sacrifice a large portion of our profit and, in a good many productions, ALL of the profit.

Those not using our features profess to feel bad about the character of our pictures because our pictures deal with Life. The Fox features don't adopt a sugar-and-water attitude towards the facts of existence. They are real pictures of real men and women, not pictures of sweet-scented substitutes for human beings, behaving as no mortal beings ever did or ever will. That is why the William Fox features are so immensely popular. Because they are real, and sincere, and they do unerringly appeal to the hearts and imaginations of everyone who sees them. We defy anyone to see one of our pictures and not find food for thought and conversation in it long after he has left the theatre where it is being shown. And that's the best sort of advertising any theatre can possibly get.

Now, here is where the suppositious exhibitor advances another objection.

"But my theatre is in a dandy location. I am doing a corking business all the year round. If other manufacturers' pictures are inferior to yours why do they fill my house?"

You've answered your own question in the first part of it. Don't you realize that it may be that very "dandy location" that accounts for your success with the "rose-water" drama of some manufacturers? Don't you suppose that a very real reason why the "rose-water" producers are up in arms is because they can read the handwriting on the wall? They can't "catch-up" and they're sore. The old-timers can't make the money they used to with any old catch-penny feature since William Fox entered the field and showed them what real pictures are; and make no mistake—That dull rumbling in the distance is the Doomsday bell sounding the knell to big profits on junk pictures.

"Well," we can hear the satisfied exhibitor saying at this point, "I'll admit that I do get pretty sad stuff put over on me once in a while and maybe what you say about location is right, and if I wasn't so advantageously situated I might see my business falling of and myself with more troubles than Mr. Carter has pills. But, things being as they are—well——"

Listen! Location is a whole lot but it isn't everything. A strong picture in a weak location is apt to, and does, pull business from a weak picture in a strong location. Day by day more and more people are beginning to realize that the Fox Film Corporation's pictures are better than the best, and they are comparing them with the class of pictures that you, Mr. Complacent, Satisfied Exhibitor, are showing. By-and-by—and the time is shortening—the demand for Fox features will be so great that you will HAVE TO PUT THEM IN. How will you feel when that time comes to find that some long-headed showman has got ahead of you and secured the One-a-Week service?

Moreover, Fox feels that he has a mission to perform for the less luckily situated showman no less than for the satisfied individual we have imagined. His efforts will go on and on, despite the sore-head producers, till he makes "STANDING ROOM ONLY" blossom out on theatres not so fortunately located by giving them the best productions and greatest programs ever released.

We intentionally do not give the names of the noted stars we have signed, the celebrated plays and books the motion-picture rights to which we have acquired for Mr. Fox feels that to do so at this time would be to give away the secrets of his business and let his competitors see his hand. But—Every exhibitor who has read what has gone before, and every exhibitor who has ever had experience, directly or indirectly, with William Fox features, or with William Fox personally, knows that his confidence will not be misplaced. The one ambition of Mr. Fox, which he has instilled into every member of his producing staff, is to produce features that will be BETTER THAN EVEN THE BEST OF THE PAST. For we realize that our exhibitors must be able to earn good profits to continue our contract and pay us promptly. So that you are doubly insured for a program of surpassing merit and pulling power. If you fall down on this it will be your own fault. If you can't get your contract it will be because you delayed in sending in your application.

Said one of these men: "Mysteries far more remarkable than those contained in the most absorbing plays or books, are matters of frequent occurrence in large hotels." Here is what the Dramatic Mirror had to say about this production the other day:

Right and Wrong Methods of Exhibiting

A CASE of cut-throat competition on the part of an exhibitor—and a very lamentable case in some respects—was brought to our attention the other day. It deserves comment and criticism at some length.

* * *

TWO theatres, in a small town in the middle west, are bidding for practically the same patronage. The town in question is, apparently, not populous enough to support two theatres situated so close to each other as these without pretty lively competition.

One of the theatres is conscientiously giving its patrons the best service it can afford—the manager and owner we will call Smith.

Though Smith admits an inability to pay first-run prices and show the latest features, he books carefully and discriminatingly, obtains the best features the house can pay for, provides special musical programs—in short, makes every legitimate endeavor to draw and hold the crowds.

JONES, the owner of the opposition house, is frankly engaged in an attempt to exterminate his weaker competitor.

He crowds from three to five more reels into his program than the house across the street can carry, piles one, two and three vaudeville acts upon this, and offers the entire bill at the same price that prevails at the first theatre.

UNDER normal conditions, the two could exist side by side comfortably and profitably by the simple expedient of arranging their shows so that the theatre-going people of the town would, as in many communities of the same size, visit both theatres in the course of the evening.

As it is, Smith is being slowly driven to the wall, Jones is waging a ruinously extravagant war of extinction, and the theatregoers are the only ones who are profiting, for they are spending only half as much as they would if an "entente cordiale" existed between the rivals.

The exchange men of the district in which these theatres are located agree that there is plenty of business for both Smith and Jones, provided Jones will abandon his dog-in-the-manger attitude.

IN this town—and it is probably typical of numerous others all over the country—the exhibitor who is losing money has the right ideas about exhibiting motion pictures, and the exhibitor who is prospering, or is, at least, ahead in the competitive warfare, has exhibiting ideas that are utterly wrong.

They are so radically wrong, in fact, that though Jones may drive Smith out of business, Jones's theatre will suffer for it more severely than if he had been content to divide the field with his opponent.

AND the reason is just this:

Jones, who has made up his mind to have the entire town to himself, is spending every available penny upon the features of his program, at the expense of every other detail of theatre management.

It is not necessary to enumerate by name or by company the pictures he is booking. But knowing them and the producing capacity of a theatre in such a town, it may safely be taken for granted that when he has paid the exchange, and paid for his vaudeville acts, he will not only have nothing left to devote to the general upkeep of the theatre, to advertising, to music, but he will not find a dollar's profit on the ledger at the end of the week, even with an unbroken series of S. R. O. nights.

He is running his house at an unavoidable loss, cutting prices, piling up expense and increasing the probability that he will go out of business with, if not before the theatre he is endeavoring to paralyze.

SMITH, on the other hand, who is in danger of being compelled to shut down largely because he lacks the financial resources to wear out his competitor by standing pat until Jones has reached the end of his "war fund," is conducting his theatre on thoroughly sane, modern and what would be, except for the fact just mentioned, successful principles.

He puts every cent into his program that he can afford, but he refuses to lower the standard of his theatre at one point to make a flourish somewhere else.

He may not be able to offer his patrons the costliest and the most recent features on the market, but he sees to it that every picture he books is a "quality" picture, regardless of its age.

AFTER investing every cent in his program that can be judiciously spared from the other expenses of the theatre, he distributes the rest wisely and well throughout the house.

There is special music, again the best he can afford, a courteous and attentive staff of attendants, the best of projection, a modest but attractive announcement card of current and coming attractions for the convenience of his audience, consistent advertising, and numerous other accessories, each playing a small but important part in creating a reputation for the theatre among the townspeople.

Yet he is being forced to the wall.

IT is not a healthy condition of affairs, and in the end it will not be a profitable one for Jones.

Suppose that Smith does go out of business. To save himself from a similar fate, Jones must immediately commence a policy of vigorous retrenchment. He must cut down expenses to recoup his losses.

Four or five reels are lopped off his program. He books cheaper and poorer pictures because he can afford to do so since his is the only theatre in the town.

He offers the least he dares for the admission he charges.

* * *

DISSATISFACTION begins to breed among his patrons. The word goes around that "there is a fine opportunity for a man who knows how to run a theatre well and put on a good show up in Blankville." Some enterprising man looks over the ground, sizes up Jones and his little absolute picture monarchy, hears the story of his victory from the town gossips and comes back with the determination to make Jones disgorge.

* * *

AND the chances are ten to one that not only will Jones be constrained to divide the spoils, but, if the newcomer takes the right tack, and uses his opportunity, there will be a "For Sale" sign on the Jones pictorium within six months. In the meantime, what has Jones gained?

Two Governors on Motion Picture Censorship

THERE is at least one Governor in the United States who is capable of resisting the political clap-trap that is circulated every time a motion picture censorship bill is introduced into a state legislature, and determined to exercise calm and intelligent judgment in the matter.

That man is Governor Dunne of Illinois.

His action in vetoing the censorship bill is the more noteworthy because it stands in refreshing contrast to the action of Governor Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania, and ex-Governor Cox of Ohio, when confronted with a similar situation.

* * *

IN all three instances, a bill providing a state censorship of motion pictures was cleverly engineered through the state legislature to the Governor's desk for his signature.

In all three instances, the name of public opinion was taken in vain by the politicians who were personally conducting the measure through the legislature.

In all three instances, the Governor had an opportunity to ascertain for himself the measure of the necessity for and the demand for the bill.

OF the three governors, Governor Dunne was, apparently, the only one who exerted himself to confirm second-hand information with fact.

Ex-Governor Cox permitted himself to be convinced, by gentlemen who knew better, that even the theatre managers of Ohio wanted censorship.

Governor Brumbaugh regarded the question of whether the public wanted censorship of motion pictures as a secondary one, since he had already made up his mind that they needed it.

GOVERNOR DUNNE took time to study the circumstances of the case. Then he vetoed the bill, because it would create double taxation for Chicago motion picture exhibitors, and was not needed by the rest of the state.

The last of these reasons is especially significant.

The Governor of Illinois did not believe that motion picture censorship was needed by the rest of the state.

THE same pictures that are seen in the theatres of Illinois are also sent into Pennsylvania and Ohio for exhibition. Why should censorship of these films be necessary in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and unnecessary in Illinois?

Is the theatregoer of Pennsylvania so different from the theatregoers of Illinois that he cannot be permitted to see pictures which are perfectly harmless to his middle-western brother?

IS the morality and virtue bred in Ohio such a sensitive, perishable plant that it withers and decays at the sight of a motion picture film?

Which one is right—Governor Brumbaugh or Governor Dunne? The burden of proof would seem to be on the Pennsylvanian.

Entertainment in True Western Style

WHATEVER may or may not be the net business gain of the convention at San Francisco, this at least may be said—that no body of visiting delegates was ever more royally entertained than the visiting exhibitors have been by the Pacific Coast film leaders and the municipal authorities of the California cities.

The program prepared for the reception of the strangers within their gates upholds the traditions of western hospitality to the last detail. Not a feature that generosity could dictate, not a detail that cordiality of feeling could prompt is absent from the plans of the exhibitors' hosts. The entertainment of the visitors in Los Angeles alone will occupy as many days as did the convention itself.

Can any exhibitor who went to San Francisco count his time ill-spent? In courtesy to his hosts, he cannot.

12 Cars Make Up Selig Special en Route to California

One Hundred Sightseers on Board—A Coach Devoted to Exhibitors—Everything Is Provided for the Comfort and Amusement of the Colonel's Guests—Director Coleman Will Produce During the Trip a 3-Reel Picture With a Cast Selected from Travelers Aboard the Train.

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Chicago, July 14.

THE Selig Special, a fully equipped and comfortable train of twelve cars is carrying westward a very happy throng of 160 passengers. An entire car is devoted to motion picture exhibitors. The observation car has a piano and singing and dancing are enjoyed there, while the Club car has been fully equipped for "dry" states. Much credit is due Manager H. O. Hoagland for the complete arrangements and smooth management of the big train.

Director William R. Coleman, who will produce en route a three-reel picture to be called "The Seven Suffering Sisters," has made a canvass of the train and selected a wall-balanced cast from those on board. It was his first intention to start work in the C. & N. W. station in Chicago as the special left, but owing to the great throng gathered he was unable to find space in which to stage the opening scenes. The Station at Ogden, Utah, where the special stops for three hours, will be utilized for the purpose and other local scenes will be included.

Complete Picture in Los Angeles

The picture will be completed in Los Angeles. A print made there was exhibited on the train back to Chicago. J. Kull is camera man and the lead is John R. Hope of London, England, who was with George Arliss in "Disraeli." Among those on board are: Edward Kohl, National Theatre Company, Cleveland, Ohio, founder of the United Film Exchange, one of the last exchanges to be absorbed by the General Film Company.

Mr. Kohl now controls the Amphion and Crown theatres and is heavily interested in Luna Park and Forest City Park—all in Cleveland. His first theatre was started in 1891. Others were: L. A. G. Shoaf of Shoaf's Opera House, Paris, Ill., who has been 41 years in the amusement business; Clara A. Kraemer of the Morton theatre, controlled by the Lyric Amusement Company, Block Haven, Pa., one of the oldest and most successful of woman exhibitors; L. S. Roesner, president and treasurer of Colonial Amusement Company, Winona, Minn.; E. W. Humphreys Opera House, Woodtown, N. J.; A. C. Bradley, Crescent theatre, Belzoni, Miss.; Thos. A. Reid, Grand and Lyric theatres, Du Quoin, Ill.; F. C. Burr, Orpheum theatre, Lancaster, Wis.; T. C. Brown, Scenic theatre, Bellefonte, Pa.; M. L. Braver, White theatre, Mellen, Wis.; George W. Heinbuch, Superior Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.; vice-president Cleveland Local No. 1. Mr. Heinbuch is a pioneer exhibitor and has never missed a convention. J. H. Brown, Windsor theatre, Chicago; E. B. Hutchinson, Majestic theatre, Burlington, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Herman, Herman's Play House, Kutztown, Pa.

The following script writers are on board; Chas. Ade, Joplin, Mo.; George Tideman, Chicago; Edwin Ray Coffin, Manson, Iowa; Chas. J. Buckley, Oak Park, Ill.

Others include E. A. MacManus, general manager, Hearst International News Syndicate; Herman L. Dieck, dramatic editor, Philadelphia Record; Willard Howe, Washington correspondent of MOTION PICTURE NEWS; John M. Selig, Carrie Selig, Mrs. Peter Selig of Chicago; W. P. Tourlettor formerly with Kleine Optical Company; Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Merrill, Morgan Lithograph Company, Cleveland; Walter Bloeser, Chicago "Tribune"; Neil G. Caward of "Motography;" William A. Johnston, MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Nobody need suffer from indigestion on the tour, for a walk through the twelve coaches from engine to observation tail will provide a fine after every meal marathon.

Features of the Special

Besides the regular sleepers there were two baggage cars, two diners and a picture theatre on wheels—a whole coach, of the sort we commute in, fitted with a projection machine at one end and a rolling screen at the other. A piano and Victrola were also amusement furnishings for the train.

Early releases of the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial will contain scenes taken at various points touched by the Selig Exposition Flyer.

The flyer, consisting of ten sleepers and a combination baggage and buffet car, left the Northwestern Railway station July 8, at 11 o'clock for a seventeen-days' tour of Western states.

The Selig tourists received a royal farewell. Friends and relatives were at the station.

In the first reel of the special picture, a Selig actor will take the role of the Handsome Stranger and will be handed seven mysterious packages, sealed with seven seals, addressed to "The Seven Suffering Sisters," who must deliver the packages intact to Miss Kathlyn Williams, the movie star, so the "Seven Suffering Suitors," also aboard the train, may win the sisters.

How the "Lovely Villainess," also aboard the flyer, gets possession of all but one of the seven mysterious packages; how they are recovered by the Seven Sisters; the ultimate fate of the sisters and the suitors; what happened when Kathlyn Williams was about to open the seven mysterious packages at the Selig Jungle-Zoo; these and other interesting details of an unusual film story will be unfolded in the film.

The all-absorbing question, "What do the seven mysterious packages sealed with seven seals, and delivered to Kathlyn Williams, contain?" will be answered in the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial.

Cash prizes are to be given to the first who guess correctly the contents of the seven mysterious packages, each contributing one-seventh part of the whole.

On board the Selig Exposition Flyer is a complete printing office, which will issue the "Daily Yelp," chronicling all the eventful doings of the trip. Besides, there is a complete motion picture outfit, and motion picture entertainments will be given daily. Latest releases of the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial will be shown, together with other Selig releases.

One Pullman is equipped as a ballroom, where a stringed orchestra will play.

COHEN SAILS FOR ENGLAND FOR METRO

Harry J. Cohen, of the Metro home office, no sooner returned to New York from his mission to Denver, where he opened Metro's Denver office, the last exchange necessary to complete the circuit of the United States for the distribution of Metro pictures, than he was despatched to England by the board of directors.

Mr. Cohen sailed on the St. Louis last Saturday. His mission is to close up a big contract that has been pending for the distribution in Europe of all of Metro's output. Metro soon will be heard of encircling the entire globe. Inquiries for Metro pictures have been received from far away South Africa, India and Australia.

BENNETT'S "HUGO" IS A PATHE SUBJECT

Pathé has added to the long list of novels and plays by famous men already acquired, "Hugo," by Arnold Bennett, the celebrated English author. "Hugo" is in Mr. Bennett's very best vein, and may be considered to be the best of his works.

To many Mr. Bennett will be best remembered as the author of "Milestones," the play which enjoyed such a phenomenal run on the American stage.

Details as to the cast and production of "Hugo" will be announced later.

HERRINGTON SAYS PENNSYLVANIA ORGANIZATION IS IN GOOD SHAPE

Special to Motion Picture News

Chicago, July 14.

Fred J. Herrington, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of Pennsylvania, and owner of the Coliseum theatre at Mt. Oliver, Pa., stopped in Chicago on his way to the convention at San Francisco.

He says that the Pennsylvania Exhibitors Association is in very good shape. Their organization for combating adverse legislation is continuously gaining strength and it is assured that the success with which they met last spring will continue through their fall campaign.

STARS SPEND SUMMER AT WORLD FILM STUDIOS

The World Film studio at Fort Lee, N. J., is the place where many famous stage stars are spending the summer. For instance: Holbrook Blinn, who is making "The Ivory Snuff Box;" George Nash, "The Cotton King;" Alice Brady, "The Renegade," Robert Warwick, "The Stolen Voice," Clara Kimball Young, "Marrying Money," and Vivian Martin who is to be seen in "The Little Dutch Girl."

Quality and Quantity Problem Is Solved by Standard

Ten Studios Manufacturing for Releasing Company Agree Upon Plan for Regulation of Footage According to Requirements of Story Value of a Plot

WHILE the output of the studios comprising the Combined Photoplay Producers, contributing regular releases to the Standard Photoplay Distributors, presenting the Standard program, consists of a fixed number of one, two and three reel releases every week, a system of selection of subjects for each week's program has been perfected whereby the studios can regulate the number of reels according to the nature of the story and the amount of footage demanded for its most perfect staging.

To make such ideal motion picture production conditions possible a carefully drawn up agreement had to be entered into by the ten different studios of the group whereby they co-operate with each other by keeping in constant touch through the main office in New York, and regulate the stories selected for screening by the number of different length pictures available for scheduling on the program.

Producers have long recognized the fact that some of their finest creations have been ruined because they were compelled to cut them down to a certain number of feet when the legitimate telling of the story and its presentation in the best possible manner called for greater length.

Likewise they have seen the sad result of stretching a photodrama to a certain number of reels when the story would have been more perfectly told, and the photodrama would have had more dramatic and entertainment value if it could have been allowed to occupy only the number of feet of film that its most perfect presentation called for.

The fact that the story is selected for a certain length subject, and has to be released upon a certain date in just so many reels, often compels the producer to sacrifice perfect picture construction, and is responsible for many of the photodramas seen upon the screen which either lack intelligent telling of the story or drag, because of undue emphasis placed upon unimportant action.

It was to correct this lamentable condition of affairs, which the Standard program producers recognize as one of the most serious obstacles in the way of worthy pictures, that they determined upon a plan to give each studio more leeway in the regulation of the length of their subjects.

They found that a system could be devised whereby the studios could call upon each other through the main office for co-operation in the lengths of the subjects produced, and whereby the members of the group, finding that they had miscalculated the number of reels, a story would run could, where necessary, arrange their releases accordingly.

In order to have the plan work out successfully it was found necessary to allow the producers to get many weeks ahead in their releases. From six to seven weeks of completed negatives was found to be ample for the perfection of the scheme. The standard producers have now more than six weeks of releases upon their shelves.

Sex Lesson Is Delicately Conveyed in Essanay Film

"The Blindness of Virtue" Solves for Parents the Troublesome Problem of Informing Their Children Without Embarrassment the Great Fundamental Truths of Life

WALTER W. IRWIN, general manager of the V-L-S-E, in speaking of "The Blindness of Virtue," says, "The beautiful and chaste manner in which this production handles the question so important to the morals of our country; a subject in which all mothers and fathers are at once so deeply interested, and at variance on the advisability of enlightening their children, stamps this Big Four production as a most exceptional achievement in the silent dramatic art.

"It is a well known fact that most parents hesitate to in any way infringe upon that respect and reverence which they have always received from their children, due to the fact that custom has forbidden the discussion or even the insinuation of moral questions in the family councils.

"What children learn from the outside world never enters their minds as applied to their parents, and the fact that they are the children of their parents.

"The question of the proper teaching of the sacredness of life has been discussed and debated in the 'Saturday Evening Post' and many other well-known periodicals, and has come up for serious discussion in various women's educational clubs and societies.

"The opinions on one side of the question are as strong as the opinions on the other side; but the delicate manner in which the subject is handled in the film story, 'The Blindness of Virtue,' shows that the motion picture camera can teach this most important of life's questions in a way that cannot possibly injure the finest sensibilities of a parent or of any young girl.

"Mothers and fathers who have hesitated to take up this subject with their children, either because they do not know how to express their thoughts, or frame the lesson which they wanted to teach, without breaking down that degree of reverence which exists between parent and child, have now the opportunity of taking the young folks to see a picture play, and there, side by side, in perfect silence, can have unfolded a strong moral sermon, told in a beautiful, delicate and chaste manner.

"Dr. Elliot and other great educators consider the subject of sex hygiene so important that they have advocated its being taught in all the schools and colleges. Strong objection has been made to this, mainly on the ground that competent instructors were not available, and in this connection I believe the motion picture steps in as the sought-for instructor.

"With 'The Blindness of Virtue' the silent dramatic art has qualified itself as the greatest of all educational forces, competent to handle the most delicate of subjects, without giving the slightest offense to the most sensitive person."

MILITARY ACADEMY SEES "INDIAN WARS" WITH "BUFFALO BILL"

Thomas A. Edison's prophecy that the motion picture will in a few years be the most valuable agency of education was brought a step closer to realization when on July 9 the Buffalo Bill "Indian Wars Refought," six-reel Essanay, was presented as a medium of instruction to the students of the Culver Military Academy, Lake Maxinkuckee, Culver, Indiana.

Arrangements for the showing were made by Capt. H. F. Noble, with the W. H. Bell Feature Film Corporation, Chicago, exclusive distributors of the feature.

FURNISHES THEATRE PROGRAM IN FORM OF MAGAZINE

Some fifty wide-awake exhibitors of Cincinnati have taken advantage of the unusual opportunity for holding patronage which is offered in the "Reel Revue," a local magazine for motion picture fans which is published in program form. L. M. Parker, advertising man, who has become interested in motion pictures, is responsible for the idea and the product.

By a system of co-operation devised by Parker the little magazine is printed at so much per hundred, and furnished each of the subscribing theatres for presentation to patrons, as though it were the original program of that particular house.

It contains advertisements, snappy editorials of interest to lovers of the screen drama, film reviews and interesting items of news in the field of motion pictures. Photos of stars in the film world are also shown in each issue and a question and answer department is a feature of the booklet.

"Nation" Is No Race Slanderer, Milwaukee Declares

In Spite of Strong Representations Made by Colored Element Against Alleged Objectionable Parts of Griffith Picture, the Citizens Committee Orders Few Minor Cuts

Special to Motion Picture News

Milwaukee, Wis., July 14.

DESPITE the strenuous protests of the colored people of Milwaukee that "The Birth of a Nation" "was a libel and a slander on their race," the Milwaukee board of censors, or Citizens' Committee, as it is officially known, has passed the great Griffith photoplay with but a few minor cut-outs.

The action of the board followed a private exhibition of the production given at the Davidson theatre for members of the board and local newspaper men. The presentation was made with a complete orchestra accompaniment and there was no question in the minds of the audience after that had seen the photoplay but what it would be passed by the board.

So that the colored folks would have ample opportunity to state their case they were allowed a representative to present their side before the board after the photoplay had been viewed. As the negroes had filed their complaint with Mayor Bading, he took it upon himself to be present at the board session and also viewed the pictures.

Mayor Bading, with the rest of the board, failed to see where race hatred could be aroused by the production and he, like the other members, agreed to its presentation. According to the Rev. J. S. Woods, spokesman for the colored folks, "There are scenes in the play which show the negro at his worst and this worst element is held up as the blood and soul of the negro."

H. A. Sherman, of the Elliott and Sherman Film Company, Minneapolis, which controls the Wisconsin state rights to "The Birth of a Nation," was loud in his praise of the action of the censor board. "They proved themselves to be very broad and fair-minded men," said Mr. Sherman. William Schnell, of the Davidson theatre, also praised the censor board highly for their action in the matter.

Heralded by the most extensive advertising campaign ever waged in this city, either for a legitimate or photoplay production, "The Birth of a Nation" opened Saturday evening to a capacity house. Fifty-inch advertisements were run in all papers on Saturday and Sunday and the result was that the local papers granted the production three and four-column lay-outs.

On Sunday the Davidson turned thousands away, while Monday was but a repetition of Sunday on perhaps a bit larger scale. Seats are on sale for three weeks in advance and from present indications the production should have no trouble in playing to big business the entire eight weeks for which it is booked.

Keystone, 3 Years Old, Enters Ranks of Veterans

Company Celebrates Its Birthday on Sunday, July 4, and Forty Long Tables, Each Seating Twenty, Are Necessary to Entertain Guests

Special to Motion Picture News

Los Angeles, July 12.

SUNDAY, July 4, was the happiest day in the life of Director General Mack Sennett, of the Keystone company. On that day the Keystone company was three years old.

Mr. Sennett acted as host to all members of the producing organization, and many leading people of the motion picture colony.

The celebration began by an anniversary dinner. Forty long tables, each with covers for twenty, awaited the members of the eight producing companies, and hundreds of guests upon their arrival at one o'clock. In the afternoon, one big stage was used for dancing, while in the center of another was the "squared circle," where six fast boxing bouts were staged.

A ten-piece orchestra furnished music during the afternoon and evening. There were swimming and diving contests in the mammoth concrete tank, and confetti and numerous souvenirs served to add to the merriment. Motion pictures were made of many of the principal events of the afternoon, and later in the day projected for the pleasure of the large number of guests who were present.

For the first time in the career of the three big producers, Thomas H. Ince, D. W. Griffith and Mack Sennett, these three stood before the camera and submitted to being photographed by the "still" man, as well as one who operates the cinematographic crank.

Among those present were: Mayor Sebastian of Los Angeles, Mabel Normand, Fred Mace, Mae Marsh, Raymond Hitchcock, Teddy Sampson, Ford Sterling, Dorothy Davenport, Roscoe Arbuckle, Minta Durfee, Max Swain, Charles Chaplin, Mae Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Syd Chaplin, Flora Zabelle, Donald Bryan, Wallace Reid, Del Henderson, Morris Guest, Rose Dolly, Hampton Del Ruth, Charles Orling, Gene Swartz, Harry McCoy, Alice Bernard, Harry Booker, "Slim" Summerville, Frank Hayes, Joseph Swickard, Frank Opperman, Charles Parrott, Fritz Schade and many others.

Three years ago, Mack Sennett, Miss Normand and a few players came to the west coast and opened the first Keystone studio at the site occupied by the mammoth plant of today.

ULTRA PLANS TO MAKE BIBLICAL PICTURES IN LOS ANGELES

Special to Motion Picture News

Los Angeles, July 12.

The corporation papers of the Ultra Feature Flm Company will be filed within the next few days, and will show Max Immeglauck, R. I. Ruben and Albert Layton, all of Los Angeles, as directors.

It is the intention of the company to film biblical and educational stories, but first it will make a record of the pageants in Los Angeles during the weeks of July 12 to 17, when the national annual meeting of the Elks is held here.

Following the making of these, filming of "The Great Apostle," being the life of Saint Paul, will be filmed.

KOLKER WILL BE SEEN IN "THE BRIDGE," METRO

Henry Kolker, last seen on the dramatic stage in "Her Great Name," under the management of Henry W. Savage, will make his first appearance in the Rolfe-Metro release "The Bridge." This play was acted with success by Arnold Daly.

Field Day to Fill Coffers Is N. Y. Branch Plan

Benefit Will Be Held at the Brighton Beach Race Track on August 21, from 10 A. M. to Midnight—Sam Trigger Is to Act as Master of Ceremonies—Strength-Taxing Contests Like a Peanut Rolling Race Are in Store for Guests—Manufacturers Ready to Co-operate for Success of Fete

THE New York Branch Number One of the M. P. E. L. of America has decided to give a monster field day for the benefit of the league treasury. The affair will be held at Brighton Beach race track Saturday, August 21, beginning at 10 a. m. and continuing until midnight.

The entire arrangements for the big outing have been placed in the hands of ex-President Sam H. Trigger who will have carte blanche to direct it as he sees fit. Mr. Trigger was called from his retirement by the old guard and asked to accept the position of high responsibility for the success of this undertaking. It was a tribute to the old war horse of the association by the men who have stood behind him in all the vicissitudes and successes of the organization.

Around the league rooms in New York everything seems to be coming to life again. For a while there has been a lull in the affairs of the league but this has not been considered alarming.

Many of the faithful workers had been neglecting their business for a long time and most of them tacitly gave up league affairs for the time being and went back to their various theatres for about a year. Once more, however, the old spirit is in their hearts and on Monday last many of them were at the league rooms dusting off the furniture, throwing out old papers that contained the records of controversies dead and gone, and which it is hoped will never come to light again.

Sam Is in Form Again

Mr. Trigger was there looking happy and healthy, better than he has looked for many years past. The hearts of all these men seemed young again, and if their fresh enthusiasm counts for anything this newest idea is going to be a big success.

There has always been some talk about a midsummer event in the film trade as an alternative to the midwinter events, such as dances, dinners, etc., but this is the first time the idea has come to a practical realization. According to the schedule laid out it promises to be very novel and will no doubt be a big money-maker for the league.

As usual the members of the photoplay profession will play a large part in the active events, only more so perhaps than heretofore, as the range of events will be much greater than that afforded by indoor entertainments.

Prominent actors will participate in athletic and track events. For instance: There will be a baseball game played between twenty well-known leading men. There will be a fat men's race for photoplayers including such cute little heavyweights as Pete Lang, Hughie Mack, James Lackaye, and others of the shrinking violet type. Those photoplayers who do not participate in the events will act as judges of the different contests.

There will be a horseback race with well known leading men as riders and also one for leading ladies. There will also be a cowboy contest for those in the profession who are adepts at the wild west style of entertaining.

There will be numerous other contests in which the public will be allowed to participate and which will be judged by well known photoplayers. One of these events will be a Charlie Chaplin contest. Mr. Trigger is going to move heaven and earth to have Charlie Chaplin in New York for this outing and have him judge this contest himself.

Manufacturers Are Interested

Those of the leading film manufacturers that have been approached have signified their willingness to do anything in their power to make the outing a success. Some of the large film companies are represented by pretty good baseball teams and there will be a number of such games going on representing the manufacturing interests.

It is intended that there shall be a good number of comedy events, such as donkey races by screen comedians and peanut rolling contests by comic photoplayers.

As the schedule is now laid out, everything points to something entirely new in the way of an outing. There has been made a rough schedule of the day's events which will be somewhat as follows: From 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., ocean bathing by the entire trade at Brighton Beach, with moving pictures of same, to be shown that night night at the banquet.

From 1:30 to 2:30, parade of the trade from Coney Island to Brighton Beach race track. From 2:30 to 5:30, field day sports by the trade and public. From 6:30 to 8 p. m., shore dinner for the trade and publice, name of toastmaster to be announced later. At 7 p. m. the dance hall will be thrown open and dancing will continue until midnight. There will be dancing contests between prominent photoplayers for prizes and there will be dancing events for the public apart from those of the photoplayers.

Mr. Trigger will welcome suggestions of any kind, both from photoplayers, exhibitors, manufacturers and friends. All communications of this kind will be thankfully received if addressed to him at the league meeting rooms in the World's Tower Building, 110 West Fortieth street, New York City. As the entries are made for the various contests and as the outing plans develop they will be announced from week to week in the trade papers.

"Legit" Stone Throwers Moving from Glass Houses

Goldfish, of Lasky, Declares That Theatrical Managers Who Object to the Appearance of Their Players Are Among the First to Enter the New Amusement Field

IN the controversy which has been carried on through the columns of some of the New York daily newspapers regarding the relative worth of star of the ligitimate stage before and after they appear in motion picture productions, Samuel Goldfish, executive head of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, summed up the situation.

It is the contention of some of the legitimate managers that the popularity of their stars and leading players suffers through their appearance in photoplays.

"Why should managers object to having their players appear in photodramas when they themselves are making every effort to enter a great and growing field?" asks Mr. Goldfish. "One of the chief objectors is known to me to be making arrangements to leave the legitimate stage entirely and devote his future to the photodrama. In the industry we welcome their activities, as they bring a fund of experience and their energies are directed toward a higher standard of pictures.

"The association of David Belasco with the Lasky Feature Play Company is a high tribute to Mr. Belasco's judgment that the photodrama as an art is as great as the theatre of the spoken word. Nearly all the legitimate managers and producers have lent their names to photoplay firms.

"That artists are paid too much money for their film acting no doubt is true in many instances. The wise artist, however, is one who associates himself with a photo-producer who, he knows, will present him in a beautiful picture, which is, after all, the medium by which he must stand or fall. Good actors in bad pictures never succeed and their legitimate reputations suffer and their worth to legitimate managers diminishes.

"But good actors in good pictures lend to their fame. There has been a like situation in regard to the better class of talking machines. Miss Geraldine Farrar considers the talking machine as having aided her popularity and fame.

"She feels that motion pictures of the right kind will do likewise, and that is why such infinite pains are being taken with 'Carmen' and other plays in which she will appear under our management. Salaries will adjust themselves in time, I believe."

THORN, OF ESSANAY, WAS WELL-KNOWN IN LEGITIMATE

John Thorn recently made his appearance in photoplays with the Essanay company. He was well known on the stage in "The Little Shepherd of the Hills" and "Maggie Pepper" and other plays in which he took prominent parts.

His first photoplay was "The White Sister," on which Viola Allen is featured. Mr. Thorn playing the American artist.

STEWART SIGNS WITH PATHE

Melville Stewart has been engaged to appear in Richard Harding Davis' "The Galloper," to be produced by Donald Mackenzie for Pathe. Melville Stewart has probably created and sung more leading roles in Broadway musical successes than any other man.

Mr. Stewart is also well known as an impersonator, having recently had a considerable engagement at the Winter Garden, and now "doing" Belasco and the German Kaiser with Ziegfield's Follies.

The previous two seasons he was leading man with Trentini in "The Firefly." In addition to his splendid voice Mr. Stewart has fine dramatic talent, and Mr. Mackenzie promises great things of him in "The Galloper."

LONG-RUNS CAMPAIGN OF V-L-S-E BEARS FRUIT

The V-L-S-E campaign in the interest of long runs is bearing fruit all over the nation. Its contention that the way to get the most money out of feature exhibitions is to run them long enough and advertise them strong enough to attract every available prospect in every city, has been successfully tried out by big theatres in every section of the country.

The Liberty theatre in Seattle, Wash., has exhibited "The Juggernaut," for two full weeks, and the Mary Anderson theatre in Louisville, Ky., showed the same feature for nine days.

Others are the Hippodrome in Cleveland, the Majestic in Detroit, and the Strand theatre in Pittsburgh.

The Regular Program Is the Strength of the Business

John R. Freuler, Whose Achievements Qualify Him to Speak, Declares Without Belittling Popularity of Features, That Small Reels, If Good, Are the Bulwark of the Industry

JOHN R. FREULER, whose achievements as a builder of motion picture programs is a record of unbroken successes, and who therefore speaks as a practical authority, hails the regular program as the absolute salvation of the film business.

At the offices of the Mutual Film Corporation, of which he is now the president and general manager, Mr. Freuler discussed the present film situation as follows:

"Speaking both as an exhibitor and as president of the Mutual, I see no cause for unrest in the minds of the motion picture exhibitors. As a matter of fact, the great big firm rock of the motion picture business is the regular program. It was on the regular program that the great business was built, and it is on this foundation that it will continue to be profitable.

"The explanation is simple and plain. Motion pictures are the amusement of the masses who require a pleasant, exciting or entertaining diversion at a cost within the reach of their pocketbooks. This is legitimately provided by the regular program at a price the great masses can pay. So long as motion pictures continue to stick to the field that they have made for themselves they will flourish and be profitable.

"In sticking close to the regular program the exhibitor has both feet firmly on the foundation of the motion picture business. Do not misunderstand me. I am not belittling feature pictures. They are admirable additions to the regular program, and they are business bringers when they are good and when they are properly used. But the line of assured development and positive profit lies with the betterment of the regular program of one and two-reel subjects.

"As far as the Mutual Film Corporation is concerned, no secret need be made about what it proposes to do. It will continue to supply its exhibitors with pictures of a quality equal to the best feature pictures, and in addition to the brands now being shown, it will add, and make a part of its regular program, pictures distinctly novel and entertaining.

JOHN R. FREULER

"One specific instance is a series of comedies with a comedian that will be the sensation of the year. Special attention is being given to the comedy element of the program, and arrangements have been completed so that we can definitely promise an even better program than ever before.

"The shorter pictures of quality are what the masses have demonstrated by continued patronage that they want. A ready example may be found in the brilliant short story as against the long novel. The pictures we have arranged for, and which I have personally seen, are supreme in plot, action, photography and interest, and are fully up to the best of the longer subjects on the market.

"The exhibitor, who is deceived by those who would lure him away from his affiliation with a profitable program, should think twice before he decides to forsake a profitable certainty for a 'pot of gold at the end of a rainbow.'

"I do not think that it is too much to say, that the Mutual program right now is the Gibraltar of the motion picture situation."

The Gold Rooster Is a Bold Booster for Big Business

Three Days' Convention of Exchange Managers in New York Is Scheduled by Pathe for Celebration of $1,000,000 Mark Just Turned in "Elaine" Sales

PATHÉ conducted a three-days' convention in New York, beginning Monday, July 12, attended by all the managers of Pathé exchanges east of the Rocky Mountains, as well as by the officials of the concern.

The first day was given over to the new Gold Rooster features and "Neal of the Navy," the coming big serial, to be followed by a motor car excursion to Brighton Beach in the evening. On Tuesday morning the Pathé program was the subject and the afternoon was devoted to visits to the Pathé studio in Jersey City and the factory at Bound Brook.

An informal dinner in New York City followed in the evening, after which the six-reel production of "The Beloved Vagabond" was shown, together with "Via Wireless," "The Galloper," "Simon the Jester," and "The Spender," the first of the Gold Rooster Plays.

On Wednesday the Pathé advertising in all its phases of trade papers, the new posters, and the new bulletin were estimated in appropriate words and in the afternoon agency accounting was the subject. Wednesday night was the big wind up with a banquet at Rector's to celebrate the attaining of $1,000,000 in business on the great Pathé serial "Elaine," now in its thirtieth episode.

The gratification of the Pathé officials is all the more increased at this wonderful showing of "Elaine" since they remember that "The Perils of Pauline" did its biggest business after the release of the last episode and "Elaine" has still some weeks to run before the last episode will be shown.

Vice-President Charles Dupuis and General Manager Louis Gasnier presided at the banquet which was also attended by the various department heads of the home office.

DE BELLEVILLE IS CAST FOR "WALLINGFORD"

The Pathé producers, the Whartons, announce that through the courtesy of Edward Rush and Abraham Levy of "The Garden of Allah," Inc., Frederic de Belleville has been released from his contract with "The Garden of Allah" that he may play "Wallingford" in "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford," Pathé's next series.

ABRAMS RUNS DOWN TO NEW HAVEN

Hiram Abrams, president, and Harry Asher, general manager of the Famous Players company of New England, paid a visit to their branch at New Haven last week.

WASHINGTON STRIKES PROSPERITY BULL'S-EYE

With Very Little Variation of Receipts Film Circles of the Nation's Capital Pass Through Four Money-Making Months—Public Cheerfully Pays Increased Price for Features, and Exhibitors Hear No Grumbling Over the Change

Special to Motion Picture News

Washington, D. C., July 13.

THE capital of the nation is becoming more and more an amusement film center between Philadelphia and Atlanta, though it does not boast of an established producing company. With a slight fluctuation here and there, the trade in Washington has passed through one of its most prosperous quarters, which is evinced in several ways.

The number of theatres has remained the same, which has curtailed useless competition and permitted the existing houses to offer a better program. There has been an increase in admission in many of the theatres over the entire city. Very few exclusive five-cent theatres remain, though at some of the theatres a five-cent admission is asked two or three days a week.

The exhibitors assert that with the increased price of their program, owing to the demand for features, ten cents is about as low as can be profitably asked. Wherever prices have been raised no decrease in attendance has been observed and no complaints from patrons.

Another feature which points to trade prosperity is the entrance of three new exchanges in this territory. There are the Metro Film Service ably piloted by Oliver J. Allenbaugh, president-manager, and Lawrence M. Day, secretary-treasurer; the Irvine Features, with William H. Irvine, and Alex. G. Irvine, as co-operative managers; and the Exhibitors' Booking Agency, with A. M. Reese as manager. All these have been able to find a place for themselves without harming the profits of those who were already established here.

World and Fox Offices Move

In addition to those the New York Film Rental Service, the Fox Corporation, the World Film Corporation, and Warner's features have moved into larger quarters, while the Universal, Pathé, Mutual and Famous players have increased their forces and improved their quarters. The office of the Electric Theatre Supply Company, a branch from Philadelphia, is now operating from the main office and has closed its quarters here.

The demand for features is more insistent than ever, the two and three reels being just as popular as those of greater length so long as they are intensely interesting. The serials are wonderfully popular at present, while the series of "Who Pays?" and the new photoplay novel of "The Diamond from the Sky" have found a responsive chord with the motion picture patrons.

Exhibitors assert that "The Black Box" was a money-getter and bookings for the "Broken Coin" are almost solid to date. The class of films in demand are those that depict life, with its joys and its sorrows mingled and a happy ending. Tragedy only so far as it is sermonizing and teaches some vital question in life finds favor.

Refreshing comedy is always in demand, and just at present Charlie Chaplin is carrying the city by storm, as was evinced recently when three downtown houses within a block booked a Chaplin subject for two days. This, however, is predicted to be spasmodic.

Same Program Downtown

The large downtown houses retain the same program two and three days always, sometimes four days, and Moore's Strand and Garden will occasionally make a week's engagement for elaborate, popular productions. The smaller downtown houses most necessarily change their programs daily. The resident theatres usually change the program daily, but the larger houses frequently retain a good feature longer.

The tendency to book return engagements of popular productions is rapidly increasing and managers frequently assert that the receipts of the latter often exceed the first appearance of the film. The universal opinion is that photoplays are ever improving in plot, photography, players, appointments and general production.

Favorite players govern the patrons as much as ever and the individual star holds as important a part in the success of a production as the photoplay and the manufacturer. The introduction of stage stars is a drawing card only so far as these individuals are able to cope with those already on the screen and that means real motion picture art.

In this respect Marguerite Clark immediately won the hearts of photoplay patrons; so also did Dustin and William Farnum and a few more; while others still commanding the stage by speech have failed. The old screen favorites continue to hold their own despite the entrance of others in the arena.

Among these must be mentioned Clara Kimball Young, who is always booked for a return engagement. Francis X. Bushman has lost none of his power over his spectators and managers find him the best medium to pull up the box receipts on "off nights." Earle Williams, Anita Stewart, Gertrude McCoy, Edward Earle, Mary Fuller, King Baggot, Harold Lockwood, Lillian Walker, Gertrude Robinson, Beverley Bayne, Irving Cummings and a host of others still form exceptional attractions wherever placed.

Big Bookings for Summer

The exhibitors look to a prosperous summer. Already big bookings have been made. Tom Moore has secured the initial showing of the V-L-S-E special features for the Strand, while the Mutual Masterpictures will still continue a feature for his Garden theatre.

Generally the exhibitors have decided to retain practically the same program during the summer, believing it wisest to keep the high standard established.

While the exhibitors have no complaint to make about the motion picture productions, they do frequently find fault with the posters. Though these have improved considerably over the past, there is still a tendency on the part of some manufacturers to pick out a sensational picture, or one which has little relation with the vital parts of the story. Fewer figures are favored by many exhibitors, while others almost wish that merely the stars themselves formed the paper display, with no attempt to pick out scenes. Harry Crandall wishes there were no posters at all. The use of framed photographs is becoming more general, and occasionally some exhibitor displays the life-size art pictures of the players.

Washington is primarily a resident city, the center of educational institutions and of law-making, its floating population consisting chiefly of the members of congress and sightseers who come to view the government buildings. Therefore it is more domestic in its tastes than most cities and demands that its photoplays follow these lines.

FRED JACKSON TO WRITE SERIES OF 12 FOR PATHE

Pathé has contracted with Fred Jackson, author of the New York dramatic success "A Full House," to write a series of twelve stories called "The Younger Sons," which will be put into feature films of four or five reels each. This is in accordance with the Pathé policy of securing the highest priced and best known authors for the writing of scenarios.

"The Younger Sons" will be full of stirring adventure and relate the experiences of the members of an English club called by that name, all of whom are the younger sons of English noblemen, and who by reason of a strange agreement must seek adventure where it may be found. Such stories should provide a mine of photoplay material of the best sort.

"PEACEFUL RAFFERTY" POPULAR WITH PICTUREGOERS

Charles C. O'Hara, the president of the All Celtic Film, Inc., and the creator of "Peaceful Rafferty," the popular Irish character now making his bow to picture theatre audiences throughout the country, has proven one of the most popular screen comedians that has been offered exhibitors for some time.

Mr. O'Hara, on a recent trip to the various cities of the country, found that many of the better class theatres were playing his films to good advantage and that the audiences took to them immensely, which augurs well for the Rafferty pictures to come.

WHOLE TOWN CROWDS TO SEE MARY PICKFORD

Special to Motion Picture News

Cleveland, O., July 14.

Mary Pickford has had many compliments handed to her, but it remained for Crestline, Ohio, to pay her one that will not be duplicated in a hurry. On her recent trip from the Pacific coast to New York City she found that the train she was on stopped for a few minutes at Crestline. When the train pulled into the station she alighted and stood on the platform.

Instant recognition of her followed and Crestline citizens rushed to the spot to get a view of Mary in real life. They came, they saw and Mary—conquered. As soon as the train pulled out, enthusiastic Crestliners marked the spot and "There's where Mary Pickford stood," is heard often on the Crestline station platform, as the citizens point to the spot that has been marked on the boards.

Needless to say the Crestline picture exhibitors have done a big business whenever the actress appears on the screen, as the film fans there have accepted her as their own motion picture star because she actually appeared in person and gave them a chance to see how she looks in everyday life.

DOROTHY DONNELLY FALLS FROM CANOE

According to Joseph N. Engel, of the Metro Pictures Corporation, who has been superintending the production of Dorothy Donnelly in "Sealed Valley," a Metro release for August 2, directed by Lawrence B. McGill, Miss Donnelly experienced a severe strain when rehearsing a scene, in the rapids of Mad river at Holsbrook, Canada.

As Nahnya, the Indian girl, Miss Donnelly has to rescue a man from the rapids, whose canoe is floating helplessly along the torrent. Her efforts to make the picture realistic resulted in Miss Donnelly capsizing from her canoe ten times and swallowing much good Canadian water before being rescued herself. "Sealed Valley" will be a Metro release for August 2.

STANDARD CLOSES BIG CONTRACT

The Standard program has closed a contract, said to amount to nearly ten million dollars, with the Combined Photoplay Producers, Inc.

This contract calls for the production, distribution and marketing of a minimum of nine million, three hundred and sixty thousand dollars' worth of motion picture films.

The contract covers a period of five years and was entered into by the Standard program to assure the control and permanence of its film supply.

The contracting parties have made provisions to increase the amount of film required, as the conditions may warrant but the contract reflects the confidence of its signers in the fact that it guarantees the payment of at least one million, eight hundred and seventy-two thousand annually.

Picture Featuring Pavlowa Is Making Progress

"The Dumb Girl of Portici" Is Expected to Make the Public Speak Words of High Praise for Universal's Sumptuous Staging of Subject Founded on Auber's Opera

Special to Motion Picture News

Chicago, July 14.

THE filming of the Universal Film company's production, "The Dumb Girl of Portici," featuring Anna Pavlowa, which was started last Tuesday, is going on successfully in a specially constructed open air studio at San Souci Park, Chicago.

The scenario was written by Lois Weber, who with her husband, Phillips Smalley, is directing the production. It is taken from Auber's opera of the same name in which Madame Pavlowa is to appear next winter. A special orchestra plays during the enactment of the scenes, not only those in which Madame Pavlowa appears, but during the minor ones as well. This will make it possible for the picture to be shown to the accompaniment of music which harmonizes with the action of the play.

Twenty-one regular Universal players were brought on from Universal City to take part in the picture. Among these are such well-known names as Lois Weber, Phillips Smalley, Edna Maison, Laura Oakley, William Wolbert, Rupert Julian, Douglas Gerard, Betty Schade, Hart Hozie, Wadsworth Harris and John Holt. This cast is augmented by some three hundred supernumeraries, all people of stage experience.

After Pavlowa's present engagement with the Midway Gardens in Chicago is completed, she will accompany the troupe back to Universal City to finish the production.

Sledgehammer Horseplay Does Not Make Comedies

Day Has Passed When Assault, Battery and Mayhem Are Considered the Height of Subtle Funmaking by the Public, Says MinA Director

THE special exhibition of a number of the latest productions of the new MinA Films, held recently at the Stanley theatre, New York, to acquaint exhibitors in New York territory with the quality of the new MinA Films, is being followed up by an extensive publicity and advertising campaign.

A fact worthy of note in connection with the popularity of the new MinA Films is that another company has been established at MinA's studios in Los Angeles, also to produce one-reel comedies. Their first picture will be finished this week.

Recently, speaking on the subject of one-reel comedies, Milton H. Fahrney, chief director for the company, said:

"The day of the comedy which had for its basis only a jumble of disconnected incidents, beginning nowhere and ending at the same place, is passed. The motion picture patron has grown tired of buffoonery and demands something better and more substantial. The successful comedy of today is that which has more than a mere thread as a reason for its existence. It must be fundamentally strong; that is, have a story which coherently and connectedly unfolds—a story that is really humorous. The comedy should begin in the very first foot of film, preliminaries and introductions eliminated as much as possible."

CATERS TO ALL THE FAMILY

A RESIDENTIAL theatre that is making good at five cents is the Navy, in Washington, D. C. "You must cater to the family," said Manager C. R. Brooks, "and as my families are not wealthy but large in numbers, I keep my admission within their limits. You will notice my patrons come in bunches, the parents and the kids and kidlets, and I pick my program to suit all."

The Navy has a seating capacity of about three hundred and it is paying on five-cent admissions.

A five-cent house that gives one all the comforts of the dime and quarter show is the Avenue Grand, with Manager Kenan at the helm. This is accomplished by capacity, as it seats nine hundred and has all the appointments of a full-fledged theatre, for it was formerly a vaudeville house. There is always a feature on the program with a comedy and an educational.

Mr. Kenan caters to his patrons by seeking their favorite photoplay stars and then featuring them on certain nights in the week.

"I find this a good scheme," he said, "and it keeps the telephone ringing to know when this or that player is to appear. All these inquiries add to the popularity of a house."

PARODY OF TENNYSON'S "BROOK" GETS PATRONAGE

J. C. BENTON, owner of the Comet, at Albia, Ia., besides being one of the pioneer exhibitors of his state, is a humorist and finds humor appeals to his public.

Other theatres in Albia have sprung up, fallen down, changed hands and gone out of existence until the people's attention was attracted. Benton, about this time, came out with little signs, "Other shows may come and other shows may go, but the Comet goes on forever." The people laughed and went to the Comet.

BINDS HERALDS IN BOOK FORM

THE Northampton street Theatre, Easton, Pa., celebrated an anniversary the week on July 5 to 10. Something very much out of the common was provided for a program. The manager took six World Film heralds, bound them up in the form of a book, with front and back covers and distributed them very widely in Easton.

The heralds were those of Beatriz Michelena in "Mignon;" Clara Kimball Young in "The Deep Purple," Julius Steger in "The Fifth Commandment," Beatriz Michelena in "The Lily of Poverty Flat," Wilton Lackaye in "The Pit," and Clara Kimball Young in "Lola."

The booklet of heralds made a very interesting collection of portraits and scenes from World Film features. The idea is an inexpensive one and is certainly worth imitation.

"EDISON NIGHT" DRAWS BIG HOUSE IN ENGLEWOOD, N. J.

THE Englewood theatre at Englewood, N. J., was given over to an "Edison Night" last Monday night when Edward Earle and Gladys Hulette appeared and was introduced from the stage by Director Ashley Miller, whose recent productions were being featured.

The theatre, which is a successful instance of the high admission price in motion picture theatres, was packed and the audience applauded generously the two players who take the lead in "The Working of a Miracle."

Carlton King, who did remarkable work in that film as the crazed religious fanatic, was also billed to appear but got lost in his automobile in the wilds of New Jersey. Director Miller talked on the construction and production of pictures and was greeted enthusiastically. "Only the Maid," which was also written as well as produced by the director, was also shown.

LOBBY DISPLAY OF THE MONTGOMERY THEATRE, ATLANTA, AT SHOWING OF "THE ETERNAL CITY"

"ISLAND OF REGENERATION" DRAWS DESPITE THE RAIN

THE Willis Wood Theatre in Kansas City the week of June 13 had capacity houses every day despite the three days of rain that prevailed. These capacity houses were due to two things, the feature that was being shown, Vitagraph's "Island of Regeneration," and a campaign carried on among the automobile owners of the city by Joseph H. Gildey, manager of the house.

THE WILLIS WOOD THEATRE, KANSAS CITY

The Willis Wood is one of the first class dramatic houses that is being used as a picture theatre. Ten and twenty cents is charged for admission.

PASSES FOR PASTORS DURING CONVENTION WEEK

ALF. V. OLDHAM, manager of the St. Louis Hippodrome, had a happy inspiration when the Catholic Union of Missouri held its annual convention in St. Louis.

Mr. Oldham had booked a film of the parade of the American Federation of Catholic Societies that was held in Louisville, Ky., for the week of the convention, and as this was the largest religious procession ever held in this country, and the films had never before been exhibited in St. Louis, he sent letters explaining the nature of the film, together with six passes, to each of the pastors of all the Catholic churches in the city, inviting them and their assistants to be guests of the Hippodrome during the run of the film.

Mr. Oldham also sent tickets to all the out-of-town delegates attending the convention, which had a monster parade on Sunday, and a three-day session.

"SCRIPT" PAYS TRIBUTE TO NEWS EDITORIAL

Under the heading, "Editor Johnston Drags the Story Situation From Its Lair and Exposes the Reason for Unsatisfactory Pictures," "The Script," the official organ of Photoplay Authors League of America carries in full the editorial appearing in the May 29th issue of Motion Picture News, entitled "About Stories."

When this editorial first appeared in the NEWS, it caused much comment on the West Coast, and the fearless manner in which the subject was handled brought favorable comment from a majority of the scenario writers and producers.

ADOLPH LINK PLAYS IN "SUNDAY" WORLD FILM

Adolph Link, for many years one of the best known German actors, and for over a decade popular in the metropolises of Europe, makes his bow on the screen in the successful World Film drama, "Sunday," recently produced by the George W. Lederer Filmotion Corporation, in which Reine Davies, "The American beauty of the stage," is being starred.

Beaumont, King and Taylor Are Edison Directors

All Are Men Who Won Their Spurs as Players, and Advancement Comes as the Reward of Hard Work—King Is a Versatile Actor

AS a reward for being identified as an actor with many of the most successful Edison productions and as an evidence of his grasp of technique and his ability in the writing of a number of comedies and dramas which have gone well, Harry Beaumont was made an Edison director after the showing of his production, "For His Mother" and of his own play, "The Bedouin's Sacrifice."

Mr. Beaumont is well grounded in stage and screen craft, acquired in a varied and long career in both, for one yet near the quarter century mark. He was always "from Missouri," because he couldn't help it, being born there, but his success since has been proof of the result of the "show me" attitude, in delivering.

The theatrical inclination early reared its head, in his working after school in the business end of a local theatre in St. Joseph, and he was soon leaving in a repertoire company. After a season, he "opened on Broadway" in vaudeville in the then Proctor's theatre at Twenty-eighth street.

He stayed in vaudeville for two years, having his own acts, which he also wrote, and again went to repertoire and later spent one year in the western company of "Under Southern Skies." Then came one year in "The County Chairman," two years with the A. H. Woods productions, another year in vaudeville, a season with David Higgins' "His Last Dollar," in stock in Hamilton, Ont., Brooklyn and Atlanta, Ga.

HARRY BEAUMONT

While waiting for the opening of "Checkers," in which he was featured for a year, Mr. Beaumont played his first role in motion pictures with Vitagraph, staying but one month. After another vaudeville appearance, he permanently joined Edison, where he has been about four years, playing juveniles and heavies, notably the heavy in "The Stoning." Some other films in which Mr. Beaumont has been well liked are "The Librarian," "The American King," "The Witness to the Will," "Her Husband's Son," "That Heavenly Cook," and "In Spite of All."

With the appointment to directorship of Mr. Beaumont, were also that of Carlton King, who is now producing one of Mary Rider's stories, in which Miriam Nesbitt has been featured, and of Edward C. Taylor, from stage managership.

Mr. King is one of the most versatile actors on the screen, for though he earned his reputation on the stage as a featured singing comedian, he has been uncommonly successful in playing serious and accentric character roles and heavies, his most recent, and one of his best, characterizations being the religious fanatic in the feature, "The Working of a Miracle."

Mr. Taylor, though but a comparatively short time at stage managership, made a distinct impression in designing unique, historically accurate and architecturally beautiful sets and effects. Previously he was an artist and spent some time with the Kalem and Lubin companies as a player. Another advancement is that of Bernard Durning from assistant stage manager to stage managership, recently an assistant director to Director John Collins.

A Perfect Cast for Picture Is Joseph Levering's Ideal

Though Director of Alice Brady in "Cup of Chance" for Knickerbocker Is Young Man, He Has Made Record for Himself

JOSEPH LEVERING, who has had a long and successful record as an actor-director, has signed with Knickerbocker Star Features, and has just completed his first three-part feature for them, "The Cup of Chance."

Mr. Levering is among the younger directors in the field and is distinguishing himself as a capable producer in this drama which calls for a wide variety of work for both actors and director. Mr. Levering directed Alice Brady in "The Cup of Chance" and succeeded in surrounding her with a most capable cast of players and showed remarkable ability in the selection of settings.

"The Cup of Chance" was a difficult drama to produce, owing to the fact of its dealing with the shady side of life, a drama which has for its moral the fact that degraded motherhood leaves a lasting mark on the character of the child, all of which so affects its character that the destiny of the child is seriously affected, and through the child other lives are equally involved.

In order to properly portray the story it was necessary to show the inside of life on the margin, all of which Mr. Levering has handled with delicacy and skill.

Mr. Levering's strong feature in producing is in holding true to the story. He believes in a story, and has strong views on the subject of technique, and holds that the scenario has the same relation to the finished drama, as the architect's plans have to the building.

Mr. Levering goes about the organization of a cast and the assembling of properties with unusual carefulness; after thoroughly understanding the author's purpose in the story, he then studies to bring it out in every detail of the production.

In the Knickerbocker Star Features, Mr. Levering is sparing neither time or expense in securing the best from the story to the stage properties and "The Cup of Chance," has already had an unusual reception on the part of reviewers.

ANNA PAVLOWA, NOW APPEARING IN THE UNIVERSAL'S $10,000 PRODUCTION OF "THE DUMB GIRL OF PORTICI"

In and Out of Los Angeles Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Special to Motion Picture News

Los Angeles, July 12.

THERE will be some change made in the Laemmle brand company, under the direction of Burton King, owing to Adele Lane, leading woman, being taken ill, and her doctor recommending that she take a vacation of at least three months. During this time Miss Lane will occupy a bungalow in the foot-hill of Hollywood.

William Desmond, matinee idol of the legitimate stage, has been signed for NYMP brand pictures, according to announcement made by Director General Thomas H. Ince.

Mr. Desmond is expected to arrive at the studios in the next few days to begin a long term engagement.

This is of particular interest to those of the west coast film colony, in that Mr. Desmond was for a long time leading man at the Burbank theatre, where the Oliver Morosco stock company plays.

Director Charles Swickard and a number of NYMP players, headed by Orrin Johnson, are at sea on the company's barkentine "Freemont." During the several days out Mr. Johnson, appearing in "The Three Musketeers" as D'Artagnan, will stage a sword fight, and then leap from the ship with the queen's jewels and swim ashore. Before embarking Mr. Johnson emphatically stated he would not permit anyone to do the high diving for him. In other words, refuses to permit doubling.

Ince Busy on Hawaiian Film

Producer Thomas H. Ince and a number of players, including Willard Mack, spent a portion of the week at Santa Barbara making scenes for the American-Hawaiian production "Aloha Oe," which features Mack. Scenes in and about Santa Barbara are particularly adapted to this photoplay as they closely resemble conditions in the Pacific Island possessions.

Inceville is to be the scene of a big battle of the Civil War period for the production in which Frank Keenan is being starred. In this more than a thousand men will take part, and the military manoeuvers will closely resemble those of about the time of Sherman's march to the sea. Mr. Keenan appears as a southern colonel in this production under the direction of Reginald Barker.

A big, early day western dance hall, saloon and gambling place is being erected in Santa Ynez canyon for scenes in "The Disciple," being filmed by William S. Hart, who plays the name part. This structure will be absolutely different in every detail from those used in previous western subjects made by this producer. Following the making of these scenes the company will go into the mountains where a number of chases will display the riding ability of Hart and his fifty cowboys.

A new 120 x 120-foot stage at Inceville was completed last week and used for the first time with sets for "The Man Who Found His Honor," and "The Winged Idol." In the first Bessie Barriscale is being starred, while in "The Winged Idol," Kathrine Kaelred is appearing in her favorite characterization. Appearing with Miss Barriscale is Lewis S. Stone, her former leading man. In one scene more than three thousand dollars' worth of furniture was used.

A very pretentious set was built for "The Winged Idol," which shows the interior of a vampire woman's home. Four distinct rooms, each adjoining in a manner that gives the appearance of the entire lower floor of a palatial home, were built for this set. Miss Kaelred is having her first picture experience, and Director Scott Sidney emphatically states that the screen work of the actress will eclipse her achievements of the legitimate stage.

The expense to which D. W. Griffith will go in order to secure the proper atmosphere for his pictures was demonstrated when he caused the erection of an L shaped wall eighteen feet high and thirty feet in length to be built. This was made of brick, and required six workmen five days, and additional expense to place four windows and a fire escape on the building. This setting will be used for but one scene which will not exceed twenty feet in length in the forthcoming Griffith subject, "The Mother and the Law."

"The Diamond from the Sky," American company, under the direction of William D. Taylor, spent several days of the past week in Los Angeles and the harbor making sea scenes. During the stay here a yacht and sailing vessel were used.

Last week, Thomas Ricketts and a number of American players were here for a two or three weeks' stay, making exteriors for a number of two reel American subjects.

A distinct novelty is being given the next production of Quality Pictures, Inc. Director William J. Bauman has found that Francis X. Bushman is capable of portraying most successfully parts other than juvenile leads, and for the first time in this actor's picture and stage career, he plays such a part.

Bacon Makes Appearance

This production is a film version of "The Silent Voice," from the play by Jules Eckert Goodman, which served as the starring vehicle for Otis Skinner several years ago. Mr. Bushman appears in the part played by Mr. Skinner on the stage; that of Starr, a good man of none but lovable traits who becomes cynical following a series of misfortunes, and who like Faust, later recovers his serenity of soul.

In this production, Frank Bacon, a very well-known character man who has been featured for several seasons by Oliver Morosco at the local Burbank stock theatre who hereafter will play character parts for the Quality company, makes his first appearance.

D. F. Alder, the cameraman, has worked out some new photographic effects of a panoramic nature which will add distinction to the production. The scenario was adapted from the play by I. K. Freedman, well-known short story writer who has had a life-long experience in literary work, and has a number of very successful scenarios to his credit. One of the most recent releases was "How Callahan Cleaned Up Little Hell."

Director Bauman, in charge of the production, although a young man, had a vast experience as an actor, producer and director both on the legitimate and film stage. His producing experience includes directing for Miller 101 Ranch, Thanhouser, and Vitagraph companies. He has won success because of his ability to invent novel effects and see that all detail is properly worked out. He has a keen appreciation of the resourcefulness of his players, and brings out all their ability.

An adaptation from the Winston Churchill best seller, "Richard Carvel," will be the next subject taken up by the Quality Pictures. Scenario for this is now being prepared by I. K. Freedman.

The filming of "Carmen," featuring Geraldine Farrar, has brought about an innovation at the Lasky studio in that Melville Ellis, world famous pianist, has been engaged to furnish extemporaneous music during the rehearsals and filming of all scenes. A grand piano on an auto truck is taken to all locations. With the aid of this, Mr. Ellis is greatly aiding Director Cecil B. deMille in securing most excellent results.

4,000 Pineapples for "Reckoning"

Another feature of the filming of this subject is that all players are speaking Spanish during the making of scenes. Miss Farrar speaks a number of languages fluently, and Wallace Reid, as Don José, playing lead opposite, having spent a number of years in Mexico, is also able to follow the lines of the opera.

Pedro De Cordoba appearing as Escanillo, the heavy part, is Spanish. Others in the cast are Billie Elmer as Marallis, H. B. Carpenter, as Lillas Pastia, and Gene McPherson as Frasqunta. The introduction of Spanish does not interfere with the producing work, but in the cutting of pictures has brought up many puzzles to Director deMille, who is unable to follow his players in the film, it being impossible to read the lips.

In making "The Reckoning," a canning factory scene supposed to be in Florida, required four thousand pineapples, and during the rehearsals and making of the pictures at the Lasky studio all were chopped up and prepared for the market. The detail of the setting and filming was supervised by the superintendent of a local canning factory. Charlotte Walker, Tom Meighan, and Margery Daw appear in the principal parts of this directed by George Melford.

Promotion of McRae and Caulfield

Lasky studio players were given an entertainment on afternoon this week when a scene in which Carlyle Blackwell was supposed to hypnotize Blanche Sweet was made a reality. Prior to Mr. Blackwell's experience in pictures he made a study of hypnotism, and when this opportunity came up, he displayed his ability. This scene was for the production of "The Case of Becky."

The largest scenery painting frame on the coast is being completed at the Lasky studio. This is of steel construction throughout, and will accommodate a scene forty by ninety feet.

It is the consensus of opinion of Universal officers, directors and actors that the new plan adopted the first of the week when Henry McRae became director general of all producing companies of the west coast studios, and H. P. Caulfield was made business manager, that added efficiency would be the result.

The new director general has been producing motion pictures for the past five years, four years of which he has been making 101 Bison subjects. It is the opinion of President Carl Laemmle that Mr. McRae has every qualification for such an important position, and in addition is well liked by every member of the producing organization.

In the making of western and jungle pictures, this producer has proven his ability and given to the films of this brand punch and realistic finish.

Ben Cohn, member of the Universal scenario staff, arrived home from Lake Tahoe, where he went with the Victor-Kerrigan company, and prepared a number of scenarios suitable for the locations in that vicinity. This company now has a temporary studio erected, and the players are having an outing in that they live in tents. A bungalow has been rented for office use, and all in all the players are most comfortable.

Another addition to the Universal producing staff this week is Norval McGregor, formerly director at the Selig jungle-zoo. Mr. McGregor will direct the Bosworth productions, beginning on the making of "Colorado," to be complete in four reels.

With the completion of the three reel subject, "The Little Blonde in Black," featuring Ella Hall, Director Robert Z. Leonard will take up the filming of the multiple reel subject featuring Julia Dean. The title of this is "Renunciation." The story is by Peter B. Kyne, and the scenario was prepared by Harvey Gates. While Mr. Leonard is making this subject the Rex company will be in charge of Lynn Reynolds, who has been filming "Book Lovers' Contest Pictures" for the Universal weekly.

"For Professional Reasons" is the title of a two-reel drama depicting gangster life in a large city, being produced under the direction of Burton King for Laemmle brand release. The story and scenario are by Harvey Gates, and introduces several very unique and altogether reasonable situations that will make this film one of unusual interest throughout. The story reveals how a gangster, whose sister had elevated her social position by continued reading in a public library, is brought to realize the folly of his ways when he proves to the county attorney that his sister is innocent and the county attorney's sister is guilty of thefts from the physician. The two women are rivals for the love of a physician who attended the gangster's sister when she was shot in a street fight led by her brother.

"Against the Law" Is Under Way

The other Laemmle brand company, under the direction of Frank Lloyd, is filming a one-reel smuggling story entitled "Against the Law," wherein a young fisherman proves his worth to the girl he loves when he aids the sheriff in arresting the young man who courted her, on the charge of smuggling. Olive Golden, M. K. Wilson, Marc Robbins and William Crinley form the cast.

"Bravest of the Brave" is an Allen Curtis Joker single reel comedy, wherein a desperate husband forced to don society togs prefers suicide, and is just in the act of using a gun when a burglar appears, and he saves his life by using the gun to protect his home.

The Gold Seal Giblyn company is making a three-reel subject showing the frailties of society with regard to earthly possessions. How a husband is first in the good graces of his wife and mother-in-law when it is supposed he possesses much wealth, then forced to leave his home when found to be almost penniless, and later brought into good favor when stock supposed to be worthless proves very valuable. Adele Farrington appears as the mother-in-law, Cleo Madison, the wife, Hobart Henley, the husband, and Wyndham Standing the rival for the love of the wife.

A Kentucky moonshine story is being produced by the Rex brand company with Arthur Shirley, Lon Chaney and Elsie Jane Wilson in the principal parts. The scenario is an adaptation from a story appearing in a recent magazine. Exteriors were made in the San Gabriel Canyon.

"The Mystery of the Tapestry Room" is a detective story adapted by H. G. Stafford, wherein a detective in following up a triple murder mystery, first believes his brother guilty because of a will which leaves the wealth of the family to the brother, but before taking action discovers that the son of the brother is guilty of the several crimes, and who in attempting to escape is killed by his uncle. The cast includes Murdock and Frank MacQuarrie, and Frank Newberg. Mr. Newberg was with the Biograph company until their departure for New York, and this subject serves to introduce him in Universal brand pictures.

Sam De Grasse is being featured as leading man in a two-reel Majestic subject entitled, "Tangled Paths," built around the eternal triangle. The woman in the case is Francelia Billington. The plot deals with two pals who are in love with the same girl. After one becomes engaged to the girl, the pals leave to prospect in a new mining district.

The jilted one thinks he has killed his partner and returns and claims the girl, but the injured man is found by gypsies who later have opportunity in bringing the girl and her sweetheart together despite the efforts of the heavy. Alfred Paget appears as the third corner.

"The Bride of the Sea," a one-reel subject being made at the R-M studio, tells the story of how one woman was brought to realize the good qualities of her husband, when a friend awakens her interest by pretending to be infatuated with the husband. Billie West, Frank Bennett, George Barringer and Lucile Love are in the cast. The production is in charge of Francis Powers.

An interesting Reliance subject of the week is, "Billie's Rescue," which will portray the incidents which caused the separation of brothers engaged in the brokerage business, and the final straightening out of the misunderstandings by an accident at the beach. Joseph Henaberry, Bert Hadley, Irene Hunt and Chandler House appear in the cast, which is under the direction of Ray Myers.

Tom Wilson, leading man of the R-M studio, last week celebrated his fifth birthday in pictures. Four years ago he closed a season on Orpheum time here in which he appeared in the playlet "At the Sign of the Song."

Browning Is Recovering from Auto Accident

Director Tod Browning, of the R-M studio, who was badly injured in the automobile accident in which Elmer Booth lost his life, is rapidly recovering at the California Hospital, but it will be several weeks before he is able to resume his work at the studio. George Seigmann, who was also injured in this accident, is now sufficiently recovered to direct his company.

CHARLOTTE WALKER (Lasky)

A three-reel adaptation is being made from the Julian Street story, "The Goings on of a Victoreine," which will be released under the title of "Victoreine." This R-M subject features Dorothy Gish in the name role, as the "side-kick" of the world famous knife thrower of a sideshow.

The angel of the aggregation, played by Ralph Lewis, is desperately in love with the Victoreine, but she has her eyes on the strong man. Walter Long is appearing as the strong man, May Gaston as the tight-rope walker, and William Hinckley as the angel. Paul Powell, who recently made the Mutual master-picture, "Up from the Depths," is in charge of the production.

Director F. A. Kelsey, of the R-M studio, known among players as the "melodramatic kid," is staging thrills for the two-reel Reliance subject, "The Pretender," written by Bernard McConville.

In this Kelsey has George Walsh and Felix Modjeska fighting under water, throwing each other from the decks of ocean liners, and both finally floating to a South Sea island, where it is presumed they finish it. Elsie DeWolfe is the girl in the case, and Vester Perry is the aide to the imposter who attempts to win the love of the girl.

Miss Mary Alden has return to the R-M studio after a vacation of a month, and players say they did not recognize her, "stout" is the word.

Seeks Sweetheart to Complete Simple Life

The magazine story by Zona Gale has been adapted for a one-reel Reliance to be released under the title of, "The Little Boy Who Once Was He." This can be credited as a character sketch of the city man who is fagged by years of strenuous labor in attempting to win success, and finally goes in search of the simple life.

Once this is attained, he longs for his sweetheart of boyhood days, and he returns to the city and reclaims her as his bride. Charley West has the principal part, and is supported by Marguerite Marsh, Spottiswoode Aitken, Jim Foley, A. D. Sears and Buddy Harris. Jack Conway is producing this.

Director John B. O'Brien is busy with the filming of a western melodrama entitled, "Big Jim's Heart," while additional scenarios for multiple reel features are being prepared. Mr. O'Brien has made four Mutual master-pictures, and will take up additional ones in the near future.

The Komic players are chasing rabbits from the bushes in the filming of "The Deacon's Whiskers." In this the head of the family in church forgets his wife and daughter when a beach beauty causes him to keep his eyes busy. While he is flirting with the fair one in surf attire, his daughter elopes and thus bring the ire of his wife upon him. Fay Tincher is the daughter, Max Davidson the father, and Eddie Dillon becomes the husband.

Majestic juvenile filmers are making "The Straw Man," a light comedy with little four-year-old George Stone, who becomes the hero in this photoplay by aiding in the capture of a convict, and thereby winning the "heart and hand" of little Carmen La Rue. The direction is in charge of S. A. and C. N. Franklin.

Kathlyn Williams Writes Animal Story

A one-reel Selig animal subject, featuring for the first time the orangoutang recently received at the zoo, has just been produced by Louis Chaudet. This was made under the working title of, "The Adventures of Chang," from scenario by Emma Bell. The players in this are George Larkin, Edith Johnson, Jane Heckley, George Brownell and Frank Fannell. The plot revolves about a murder which is charged to the animal, but developments in the last few scenes unravel the baffling mystery.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN AND MARGUERITE SNOW IN "THE SECOND IN COMMAND," FIRST QUALITY PICTURES FEATURE ON THE METRO PROGRAM

Kathlyn Williams has written a two-reel animal story with scenes laid in Egypt, which is to be produced by Thomas Santchi who will also direct. This is the first time since the beginning of the Kathlyn series that Miss Williams and Mr. Santchi have played in the same production. The title of this is "Sultana of the Desert." Mr. Santchi takes up his subject after his first vacation in eight years. He has been away from work for the past week, but during that time homesickness caused him to visit the studio daily.

Director Robert Daly has begun the filming of the three-reel subject "'Neath Valvary's Shadow," which will serve to introduce Fritzi Brunette as a Selig leading woman. In this she will be supported by Marion Warner, Frank Mayo, Georgia Oliver and Wheeler Oakman.

The spell of gloom which has been hovering over the Selig jungle-zoo for the past two years was broken when General Managed Thomas Persons laughed at a comedy, number three of the Bloom Center series entitled "The Come Back of Percy," which has just been completed by Director Marshall Neilan and company. Following the showing of the picture, General Manager Persons confessed that it was the first time he had laughed at a comedy for two years, the previous explosion being when he gave "Hiram Buys an Automobile," a split reel scream, an examination before it was shipped to Chicago. The fact that Mr. Persons has not laughed is not a reflection on the pictures, for he goes to the projection room for the sole purpose of finding fault, for that is his business. But the fun play was too much for him.

In fact, after seeing the two-reel subject, Mr. Persons granted Marshall Neilan ten days' vacation in order that the producer could go to New York City and see his son, age six weeks, for the first time.

Two Selig Companies in New Mexico

It has been decided by the Selig management to have two companies at the Los Vegas, N. M., studio, and the second to make northwestern mounted police subjects exclusively. Advice from Tom Mix in charge of the new studio is that a fifty by seventy-foot stage is nearing completion, and he hopes to have the first New Mexico subject ready for shipment within another week.

In casting the players for the three-reel adaptation from the Henry Kolker story, "The Man with the Iron Heart," director George Nichols has selected Al. Filson to play the name part. He will be supported by the cast, composed of Vivian Reed, Lillian Hayward, C. C. Holland, Lafayette McKee. The script for this was prepared by Emma Bell and calls for a number of allegorical scenes of an unusual character.

John G. Robinson, trainer of the Selig zoo animals, has the greatest task of his life in the education of the four buffalos recently received. The management will feature these four animals in several pictures in the near future, and trainer Robinson is now teaching them their A B C's of screen acting.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president and general manager of the Industrial Moving Picture Company of Chicago, and director of Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been in Los Angeles for the past few days, the guest of his numerous friends here, and incidentally getting acquainted with the leading people of the west coast film colony.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

DETROIT UNIVERSAL OFFICE MOVES TO LARGER QUARTERS

THE Detroit office of the Universal Film Company, which takes care of business in southeastern Michigan, has been moved from 87 Woodward avenue to 159 East Jefferson avenue. There is really no comparison between new and the old quarters.

In the first place the new quarters are on the first floor, right off the street, which is an immense convenience in itself, both for the exhibitor as well as for the exchange. The new quarters are nearly twice as large and are more modern in every particular.

The general offices, inspection and shipping departments are all on the main floor, the poster department being in the basement and the mounting department on the top floor. There are two unoccupied floors which will be rented out until such time as the company wants them for its own use.

George Weeks is manager of the Detroit branch, and is assisted by Ray Branch. Joe Deiner is in charge of the booking department, Norman Millard, the shipping department and Emory Gill, the poster department. The size of the new quarters are about 30 by 125 feet.

In the rear a fireproof vault has been built. The front windows of the main floor are used for display purposes and are attracting wide attention not only from exhibitors but the general public.

GOLDSTONE BELIEVES IN PROFIT-SHARING PLAN

DOES the profit-sharing plan for circulators pay? Philip Goldstone, manager of the World Film exchange at Omaha, says, "If you'll just notice, you will see all World employees greet exhibitors and visitors with smiles. Their new attitude, which I am confident is largely the result of the new profit-sharing plan, is bringing to the office big returns.

"I look forward to the coming of the New York mail several times every day, because we frequently get profit-sharing checks because of the work we are doing. I claim it is doing wonders for the force, and helping us keep this office to the front."

V-L-S-E TABLES SHOW INDUSTRY IS THRIVING

THE V-L-S-E private publication, "The Big Four Family," publishes every week charts showing the standing of each branch office in point of efficiency, average price, and collections. A glance at these tables for the last six weeks, indicates the present healthy condition of the motion picture industry.

With the coming of the warm weather, a sharp decrease in business is naturally to be expected, but the business of the branch offices of the Big Four in all sections of the country shows increases. Even the southern offices show gains in the volume of business.

C. R. Seelye, assistant general manager of the V-L-S-E, who has just returned from a visit to the exhibitors in Pennsylvania and Maryland, states that he found business in that section of the country phenomenal for this time of the year.

CARLOS HEADS FOX BUREAU OF SUPERVISION

A "BUREAU OF GENERAL SUPERVISION," is the latest innovation in the exchange system distributing the William Fox productions. Abraham Carlos, general representative for William Fox, is chief of the new bureau, with William Alexander as his first lieutenant.

A. CARLOS

An "SOS" call from any exchange district will bring Mr. Alexander, who will head "the flying column" in the field, to the rescue with a force of swift-working sales experts. In addition, a general policy of vigilance will be pursued throughout the country, and the bureau will be in close cooperation with the Fox exchange men at all times.

PATHE IN BOSTON SPREADS OUT

MANAGER SAMUEL BERNFELD, of the New England Pathé exchange, has been forced by increase of business to hire another room adjoining his office at No. 3 Tremont row, Boston. This room will be used for film storage.

UNITED FILM SERVICE EXCHANGE OPENED IN HARRISBURG

THE United Film Service of Philadelphia, Incorporated, is the latest film distributing agency to open an exchange in Harrisburg, Pa., it having recently established a branch at 317 Chestnut street. The Harrisburg office is in charge of Mr. Julius J. Amsterdam, who has been connected with the company in a similar capacity in other cities before going there.

Mr. Amsterdam says the Harrisburg branch is making a specialty of distributing features of all varieties in that territory although handling also regular service films.

The company had heretofore been serving this field from its Wilkes-Barre office but it was thought wise to establish the additional exchange there in order to get into closer touch with the growing business in the more central part of the state. The territory served by Mr. Amsterdam extends as far East as Lancaster, as far west as Mount Union, north as far as Williamsport and south as far as Waynesboro.

That the advantages of Harrisburg as a film distributing centre are becoming more and more apparent is attested by the fact that there are now five exchanges there whereas a year ago there were but two.

D. C. FRANCE IS IN CHARGE OF BROADWAY FEATURES

D. C. FRANCE, formerly of the Feature Film and Calcium Light Company, Pittsburgh, but who is now in charge of the Broadway Features and serial department of the Independent Exchange, moved into his new offices in the latter named exchange the latter part of the week.

He took his office force with him, which includes Florence McTighe, Sarah Surgenor and several others. Mr. France has already secured a number of new accounts and as he is popular with the exhibitors in this district it is thought he will be able to increase the business of the Independent.

UNITED OPENS ANOTHER OFFICE IN MICHIGAN

THE United Film Service Company, offices in the Campau Building, Detroit, has opened another office at Escanaba, Mich., which will prove a convenience to exhibitors in the northern part of the state.

It was decided to open this office following a two weeks' trip through the upper peninsula of Michigan by Herbert Fowser, the United traveling representative. Until a permanent manager is appointed, Mr. Fowser will be in charge of the Escanaba office.

MAINE EXCHANGES SEE GOOD BUSINESS IN THE STATE

SEVERAL increases in service made with the Bangor film exchanges during the past week go to prove the statement made not long ago by one of the prominent motion picture men of Maine that the state is about to experience a banner season so far as the picture theatres are concerned. Several of the houses in the smaller places which have been showing two and three nights a week have contracted for full week service and are playing to good business. The effect of the tourist and summer visitor business is beginning to make itself apparent, especially in the coast towns.

Places where there have been no theatres are contemplating starting at once, so great is the demand for amusements. Managers of both the Universal and General Film companies who are located in Bangor report excellent business conditions.

J. A. Eslow, of Boston, general manager of the Universal Film company, was in Bangor a few days ago, and he says that there is every indication of a big summer. Good bookings are being received for the company's new Broadway Features, and "The Broken Coin," its new serial, is going good.

V-L-S-E LOS ANGELES BRANCH OPENS IN KNICKERBOCKER BUILDING

THE Los Angeles exchange of V-L-S-E has been opened in the Knickerbocker Building, 643 South Olive street, by manager Harry S. Naugle. The exchange will have a floor space consisting of approximately thirty-two hundred square feet, and divided into offices, poster, film inspection, and film storage vaults.

When all alterations are completed, this will be one of the handsomest exchanges in Los Angeles. F. A. Wagner who has been connected with the San Francisco exchange of this program, has been added to the Los Angeles staff as salesman.

KENT, OF WORLD FILM, MOVES UP A PEG

WORLD Film is keeping up its record for rapidity of promotion among its sales staff. In October last J. O. Kent was in charge of the shipping department of World Film's Detroit branch. He was appointed salesman and was so successful that he was advanced to assistant manager.

Again he made good with the result that a month ago he became manager of the branch. Mr. Kent is only twenty-four years of age. He is very ambitious and popular and having the interests of his company at heart, is bound to go still further in its service.

CROSS, THOUGH A NEWCOMER, TAKES CONTRACTS LIKE OLD TIMERS

AL W. CROSS, manager of the Hudson Feature Film company, 212 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., was in New York last week, buying features for his district, which includes Ohio and Pennsylvania.

While Mr. Cross is comparatively a newcomer in the field, the extent of his business may be judged from the fact that the Hudson Feature Film company advertises a list of forty-eight pictures, ranging from one to eight reels, among which are "Neptune's Daughter," "Alice in Wonderland," "After the Ball," and "Springtime."

Mr. Cross is an experienced showman, and his remarkable success is due to the fact that he has brought to the distribution of film all of the best and successful elements of the older theatrical business. His slogan is "to make the exhibitor make money." He not only believes thoroughly that the successful exhibitor is a successful advertiser, but he puts this belief into practice. He adds complete advertising service to his pictures and makes his contracts with the exhibitor call for liberal advertising; and he himself works with the exhibitor to secure newspaper co-operation and the best possible lobby display.

Mr. Cross is planning for a considerable expansion of his present business. With his principle of service to the exhibitor as a basis, his business is bound to expand.

STOUGHTON INSTALLS BOOKKEEPING SYSTEM FOR UNIVERSAL

N. PAUL STOUGHTON, traveling auditor of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been in Pittsburgh for the past several days installing new bookkeeping systems in the offices there and transferring accounts in the new Universal exchange.

Mr. Pavloski was for seven years a well known film and amusement man through New England States. At one time he operated a chain of motion picture theatres through southern New England.

He was national vice president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America. Mr. Pavloski also operated the Theatre Film and Supply Company of New England, together with the well known Alonzo Vail of Providence, known by exery exchange man and exhibitor in New England. ST. LOUIS BUSINESS MEN TAKE UP INDUSTRIAL FILMS

The Business Men's League of St. Louis is acting as distributing agent for economic and educational films covering twenty-three subjects of commercial, industrial and vocational information. The League loans these films to schools, churches, clubs and other organiaztions who agree to exhibit them free of charge. There is no rental fee on the films, and any town in the State of Missouri may take advantage of the offer by paying transportation charges.

The Federation of Commercial Clubs of Southeast Missouri, with headquarters at Cape Girardeau, applied for all the reels on the subject of good roads. Several ministers of St. Louis churches, among them the Rev. Buchanan, of the North Presbyterian Church, and Rev. John L. Brandt, of the First Christian Church, availed themselves of the use of the films, and have shortened their sermons in order to exhibit the economic subjects.

SILVER LOVING CUP GIVEN BY HOLAH FOR BOAT CONTEST

C. E. Holah, manager of the Cincinnati branch of the Pathé exchanges, arranged for a beautiful silver loving cup to be given the winner of the 18 to 20-mile speed-boat races which were held on the Ohio river, July 3, 4 and 5. This trophy was of a new design, and as it was given by the house of Pathé, offered an inducement for an interesting event.

Motion pictures were taken of the event from various angles around the course, which will be shown in the "Pathé News." A private launch conveyed the Pathé party around the course with pennants flying while the machines were grinding away. Entrants in the race for the Pathé cup were listed among the fastest motor boats in the Middle West.

MOLINE, ILL., PUTS BAN ON BILLBOARDS

Motion picture theatres in Moline, Ill., can no longer put bill boards on the sidewalks in front of their theatres.

The city council has just passed an ordinance prohibiting the placing of signs or other obstructions on the sidewalks. The penalty for violation of the ordinance is a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars.

Fox Builds Mexican "Set" Faithful to All Traditions

Conditions in Southern Republic Prevent Filming of "Sorceress" Below Rio Grande and Compel Erection of Village, Equal in Appearance to Any in "Land of Tomorrow"

IT is perhaps no longer a new thing for motion picture companies to erect entire streets to obtain the proper atmosphere for a feature picture. For the Fox release, "The Sorceress," being directed by Frank Powell, producer of "A Fool There Was" and "The Devil's Daughter," a Mexican setting was necessary. Unable to go to the southern republic to make the exterior views, because of the unsettled condition of the country, it was decided to erect an entire Mexican village outside the Fox studios in New Jersey.

There is nothing lacking but a group of half naked children playing around the fountain in the Plaza, the water peddler, with his great earthen jars slung over his donkey, and a few dark-eyed senoritas and dashing cabelleros to complete the picture.

The set covers ten acres, and is complete in every detail. The old mission church, the palacio of the jefe politico, the quaint, if somewhat dirty inn, all are there. The building of the set took two weeks, with over three hundred men working in double shifts. Thousands of

For this purpose, J. Alan Turner, the master scenic constructor, who had erected Dreamland and Steeplechase Park in Coney Island, the buildings of the Pan-American and Jamestown expositions, and a great part of the San Francisco exposition, was called into consultation. Mr. Turner took a flying trip to San José, a small village in the Senora district, in Mexico, to obtain the proper atmsophere, and on his return, submitted to Mr. Powell and Mr. Fox a model of a village he proposed erecting.

At first his estimate for the cost of erection seemed prohibitive, but as it was the only way to secure the desired effect, he was told to go ahead.

The result more than justified the expenditure.

feet of board were used in the construction of the village, thousands of yards burlap cloth, gallons of paint were used to color the houses, and tremendous quantities of plaster were used to obtain the mud and stucco effects. Altogether, the set is the most ambitious ever attempted by Fox and will form a fitting background for Nance O'Neil, who plays the title part.

Los Angeles Now Has a "Three-in-One" Company

Film Producers, Inc., Launched by Frank C. Hill, R. A. Nathansohn and H. A. Parker, Is First Concern Producing, Manufacturing and Releasing in the City

Special to Motion Picture News

Los Angeles, July 12.

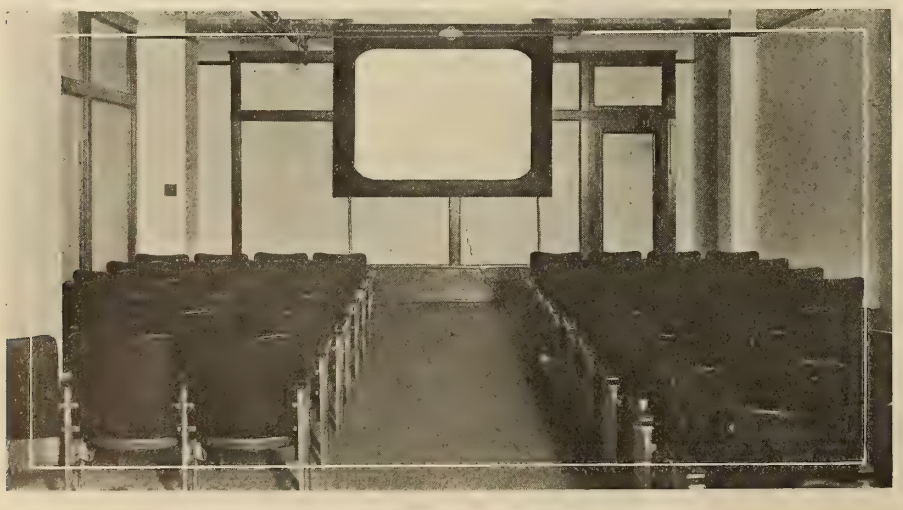
THE formation of Film Producers, Inc., whose incorporation papers were filed with the state this week, marks an epoch in matters pertaining to the west coast producing industry, in that this is the first organization selecting Los Angeles as its producing, manufacturing and releasing headquarters.

This company capitalized for one million dollars, was organized by Frank C. Hill, prominent Los Angeles attorney, who is secretary and treasurer of the Masterpiece company, and R. A. Nathansohn who has had charge of the management of the America-Europa company, producing exclusively for export sales, and who has had a world-wide experience in all departments of the business.

Plans are being prepared now for a large printing plant which will make all prints for the several companies of this organization. The lithographs and other advertising matter will be made on the coast, and the company has contracts with numerous other producing organizations for the manufacture of still pictures, and will build a large photograph studio.

President Hill announces that beginning about September 1, the company will release a program of twenty-one releases weekly. This to consist of one five-reel feature, and one, two and three-reel comedies, dramas and educational subjects, the exact release date to be announced the latter part of August.

At this time a number of exchanges have been contracted with to release this program, and the manufacturers are now completing arrangements with film renting concerns in other sections. Where exchanges are not secured, the company will install their own.



The organization is composed at the present time of four producing companies having a total capital stock of approximately five hundred thousand dollars. Of these, the Masterpiece Film Manufacturing company has a capital of three hundred thousand. L. W. Blinn is president, Dr. A. H. Heddleby, vice-president, and Mr. Hill, secretary and treasurer; the America-Europa Film company, capitalized at seventy-five thousand, R. E. Nathansohn, president, I. J. Smedy, secretary, W. A. Dean, treasurer, and G. Gethan, vice-president; Crown City Film Manufacturing company of Pasadena, capitalized at one hundred thousand, E. D. Tyer, president, Harold Parker, secretary and treasurer, Robert B. Sorber, auditor.

The fourth organization now having a contract has not as yet been incorporated, but is composed of Robert Levy and associates. Mr. Levy has been manager of production of the Eclair company for the past four years, and up to this time has been in charge of its studio in this city.

Negotiations are now being made with several other producing companies of the west coast, all of which have been manufacturing pictures for the past year, and are well known to the trade generally.

The officers of the Film Producers, Inc., are: Frank C. Hill, president; R. A. Nathansohn, vice-president and general manager; H. A. Parker, secretary and treasurer. At the present time more than one hundred thousand dollars has been subscribed, and the company will have fully one-fourth its capital paid up by the time the first release is made.

Offices have been opened in the Van Nuys building, Los Angeles, and actual production of subjects will be taken up by the several companies immediately. All have thoroughly equipped studios.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

"Rags" Is Next Mary Pickford Release for Famous Players on Paramount Program

IT has been a subject of frequent discussion by exhibitors and photoplay followers that Mary Pickford, the world's foremost motion picture star, has attained the greatest of her past screen triumphs clad in rags.

It is therefore of odd interest, and particularly appropriate, that "Rags" should be the title of the latest photoplay starring this popular screen idol. In "Rags," scheduled for release on the Paramount program, August 2, the great story of a girl's triumphant rise from the lowest strata of life to a position of social importance, through which she finds it possible to marry the man she loves, Mary Pickford, for whom the story was especially written by the noted novelist, Edith Barnard Delano, finds a typical and effective characterization.

In interpreting the various human emotions with which this impersonation is crowded, Miss Pickford parallels her recent histrionic achievement in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow."

Though similar in garb to her two transcendent characterizations, "Tess of the Storm Country" and Glad in "The Dawn of a Tomorow," "Rags" possesses an added interest because, unlike these former subjects, the development of the story permits Miss Pickford to bridge the gap between utter proverty and wealth, and toward the end of the picture presents her in the stylish clothes and luxurious environment of the ultra rich.

But whether clad in the miserable rags in which she makes her introduction in the story, or in the garb of Fifth Avenue modistes, in which she completes her characterization, Little Mary is equally appealing and impressive.

"Rags" is the daughter of a drunkard, who abuses and mistreats her but whom she loves with all the ardor of a strong young soul. Her mother was loved in her early life by a wealthy man to whom, however, she preferred the worthless man she married, dying after the birth of her daughter.

How Rags, through the invisible influence of destiny, becomes so enmeshed in the web of fate that she meets the nephew of the rich man whom the mother had rejected, and falls in love with him, although realizing that his social position is too far above hers to ever permit a marriage between them, and how eventually her mother's former lover learns of her unhappiness and takes her to his palatial home to live with him, where his nephew again meets her, and who in the new surroundings renews his love, are convincingly and sympathetically related in the film.

"Kilmeny" Selected for Lenore Ulrich by Morosco

IN its next release, the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company presents for the first time in motion pictures, Lenore Ulrich, the popular Morosco star whose success in the title role of "The Bird of Paradise," for the past two years, has made her a big favorite among patrons of the theatrical stage.

Miss Ulrich although one of the youngest stars in the profession, has had a remarkable success since the inception of her career, and, as in the case of Peggy O'Neill, is one of Oliver Morosco's "finds." Her rise to leading lady was rapid and in two years she appeared in eighty-six roles, playing important parts in such productions as "Twelfth Night," "The Virginians," "The Deep Purple," "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," "The Chorus Lady," and many other big successes.

The initial motion picture subject selected for Miss Ulrich is "Kilmeny," a charming comedy-drama founded on one of the great kidnapping mysteries of fashionable England. The title role of this production is particularly adapted to the particular style of this clever actress and shows her off to the best advantage in a character that allows her versatility wide play.

The many admirers of Miss Ulrich will immediately recognize with what foresight the producers have selected her first motion picture vehicle, and according to reports from the coast, the splendid screen qualities of this pretty star, as evidenced in "Kilmeny" will soon place her among the foremost motion picture favorites in this country.

In choosing her support Mr. Morosco has again fulfilled his promise to have the photoplay company bearing his name stand for all-star casts. William Desmond, who played opposite Miss Ulrich in "The Bird of Paradise" with such success, and whom Mr. Morosco selected to head his first New York production, also appears with the star in her film. Myrtle Stedman the popular motion picture star, whose latest starring vehicle, "The Wild Olive," has just been released; Herbert Standing; Victory Bateman and other notable players of the stage and screen present an exceptional company of artists for this production. "Kilmeny" will be released on the Paramount Program, July 22.

"BLACK SHEEP" IS NEXT SELIG RELEASE FOR V-L-S-E

The Selig company announces through the V-L-S-E that it has withdrawn its forthcoming five-part feature "Whom the Gods Would Destroy," and has substituted Charles Hoyt's "A Black Sheep" featuring Otis Harlan, Grace Darmond and Rita Gould, for release October 18.

This action was taken to avoid any possible confusion that might result through the fact that the Lubin company has released a three-part feature entitled "Whom the Gods Would Destroy."

EMMY WEHLEN JOINS METRO FOR "WHEN A WOMAN LOVES"

Emmy Wehlen, the vivacious Viennese actress, is the latest recruit for pictures. Miss Wehlen is a dainty little person whose charm of personality will make itself felt in anything in which she may appear.

Miss Wehlen is now a member of the happy family of Metro stars and she will appear under the banner of the B. A. Rolfe Producing Company in an original work from the pen of Frank Horan entitled, "When a Woman Loves."

"When a Woman Loves" will be an August release on the Metro program.

Wanderlust of Hal Forde Is Gain for Kalem Followers

English Player Who Has "Trouped" Everywhere Except Along the "River of Doubt" and the North Pole, Reserved for Later Bookings, Will Be Seen in "Maker of Dreams"

HAL Forde, known as an International star, has been engaged by Kalem to appear in "The Maker of Dreams," the three-act "Broadway Favorites" feature which will be released Monday, August 2.

Born in England, his experience as a player goes back to his eighth birthday, which he celebrated by running away from home and joining a troupe touring the provinces.

The thirst for adventure which had prompted the lad to desert the comforts of his home for the hardships of a traveling troupe, later caused him to leave behind him an established following in England and head for South Africa.

Then followed long engagements both in London and in the provinces in such successes as "The Geisha," "San Toy," "Floradora," and "The Silver Slipper." An offer to come to America appealed to Forde so strongly that he forthwith accepted it and came to these shores about five years ago.

To name the productions in which this star has appeared in recent years, is to make mention of the most prominent successes Broadway has known. His most recent engagement was in "Maid in America," which scored at the Winter Garden. Prior to this, he appeared in the role of Baron Charles in "Adele," which ran at the Longacre theatre.

Another production in which Mr. Forde played on Broadway was "The Purple Road," which was presented at the Liberty and Casino theatres. "The Love Wager," in which he appeared opposite Fritzi Scheff, on tour, was his next vehicle. Nor will his splendid work opposite Kitty Gordon in "The Enchantress," presented at the New York theatre, be soon forgotten.

In that Mr. Forde is required to portray a dual role in "The Maker of Dreams," this "Broadway Favorites" feature gives him an unusual opportunity to display his histrionic ability. The roles are those of Harold Merwin and his son Neal. This production will be released in regular service.

Celebrated Players Takes "Melting Pot" Rights

Company Now Controlling the Whiteside Picture in Illinois and Wisconsin Arranges for Territory in Quick Time with Cort and Runs Off a Print in a Hamburger House

THE Celebrated Players Film Company of Chicago has completed arrangements with the Cort Film Corporation whereby it will handle "The Melting Pot," Walker Whiteside's big feature picture in Illinois and Wisconsin. The price advanced on this picture was the largest ever paid on a feature in Illinois.

Immediately on signing contracts, Alfred Hamburger, who owns and operates more picture theatres in this territory than any other one man, arranged for a long run for "The Melting Pot" at the Fine Arts theatre which is Mr. Hamburger's prize house.

Mr. Hamburger ran "Neptune's Daughter" with Annette Kellerman at this theatre for six months and he predicts a longer run for the Whiteside picture.

The arrangements for this territory were made in record time. A. H. Sawyer, representing Mr. Cort, arrived with the picture on Monday, a showing was given at one of the large theatres and the contracts were signed Wednesday. The picture will not be played in any screen theatres until after the run at the Fine Arts.

The Celebrated Players is now completing arrangements for a run for the picture in Milwaukee. It opens at the Fine Arts July 17 and the Milwaukee opening will probably occur the following week.

There is only one other big production on in Chicago for a run. "Birth of a Nation" is still playing to capacity houses at the Illinois and these two features should run until well into the fall, if not all season.

Seven Theatre Managers in Chattanooga Bound Over to Grand Jury in Sunday Opening Fight

IN line with a recent opinion of Frank S. Carden, city attorney, Chattanooga, Tenn., that the operation of motion picture theatres on Sunday was not against the law in Tennessee, and that no city ordinance prohibited it, seven motion picture theatre managers opened their places of business last Sunday afternoon.

They were ordered by Deputy Sheriff Will Yarnell to appear before Esquire H. F. Lawrence Tuesday afternoon to answer to charges of violating a State law which forbids the continuing of one's usual vocation on the Sabbath. The managers waived examination and were bound over to the grand jury, being released on their own recognizance.

The men ordered to appear before Esquire Lawrence were: Pete Block, manager of the Royal theatre; M. H. Silverman, proprietor of two theatres; H. M. Lusk, manager of the Picto; F. H. Dowler, Jr., manager of the Alcazar; C. T. Bobo, manager of the Bonita; Howell Graham, manager of the Majestic, Crescent and Alhambra, and W. S. Howell, manager of the Lyric.

The criminal prosecution of the picture house managements will act as a test case, determining the effectiveness of the statute regulating that case.

A few days ago Attorney General M. N. Whitaker announced that, in his opinion, the operation of moving picture theatres on Sunday was in violation of the law. The attorney general served notice on the sheriff that the carrying on of one's ordinary business on Sunday was an indictable offense. He advised the sheriff that it became his duty to arrest and present all parties so engaged to the grand jury.

Sunday afternoon a week ago six managers of motion picture theatres were ordered by the sheriff and a deputy sheriff to appear before Esquire Lawrence Monday. They were not prosecuted by the State for the reason, according to the attorney general, that operation of the theatres one Sunday did not constitute a violation of the law. He stated, however, that if they continued to open on Sunday he would proceed against them and close them up.

When the theatres opened again Sunday their managers were ordered to appear before Esquire Lawrence, where they waived examination and were bound over. Ten theatres were opened.

S. D. McReynolds, criminal judge, in a special charge to the grand jury Tuesday, charged that it was unlawful for any person, persons, firm or corporation to follow their usual vocation on Sunday, and that so doing for two or more Sundays or several Sundays constituted a nuisance. He further charged that if the jury found operators of moving picture theatres were operating on Sunday, it was the duty of the jury to indict them for maintaining a nuisance.

The situation in question has attracted a great deal of interest and has been widely discussed by lawyers and others. Some lawyers hold that the same statute applying to the picture theatres would serve to stop street cars, soda fountains and news stands.

The question of Sunday opening of motion picture theatres in this city has long been agitated, and action of the grand jury in the cases in question is awaited with not a little interest.

ANDERSON, IND., EXHIBITORS, OPEN ON SUNDAY, NOT MOLESTED

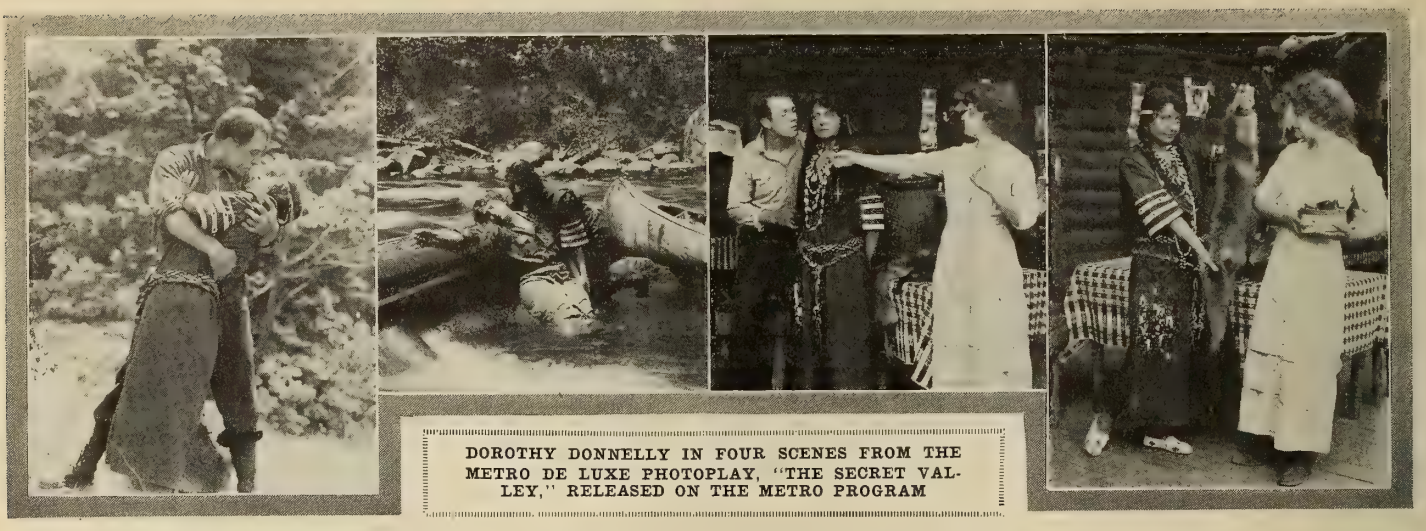
Motion picture theatres in Anderson, Ind., were not disturbed Sunday, July 4, when they opened for business at the usual admission fee. The theatres were closed at 6:30 p. m., the managers said, to prevent a conflict with the hours of church services. The theatres opened at 1:30 p. m. No arrests were made. It will be determined in a few days whether or not there will be prosecutions. If no arrests are made, the theatre men are expected to proceed.

S. L. Brooks, prosecutor of Madison county, has refused to file affidavits against the managers of theatres giving Sunday exhibitions, because, he said public sentiment did not seem to warrant prosecutions. On Sunday, June 27, two theatre men were arrested by Chief of Police Mountain and accused of desecration of the Sabbath day by following their usual vocation. Prosecutor Brooks refused to file affidavits and the cases were dropped.

Chief of Police Mountain then announced he would not again arrest managers of Sunday theatres unless the prosecutor would assist by filing affidavits.

Illinois Governor Sensed Public Opinion Correctly When Vetoing Censor Bill

MOTION picture men throughout Illinois still are rejoicing over the action of Governor Dunne in vetoing the motion picture censorship bill. Not only would the bill, had it become a law, caused endless confusion in Chicago, where a censorship board already operates, but it would have worked a hardship on every exhibitor in the state.



Besides the objections raised to the measure by film exchange men, manufacturers and city officials in Chicago, the governor's attention was called to the unpopularity of the measure throughout the state by exhibitors in many towns. Letters of protest were mailed to the state's executive from exhibitors and clippings of editorial comment against the bill also were taken from many newspapers and mailed to the governor.

Probably the most active worker among the exhibitors in bringing out an expression of sentiment from film men was W. W. Watts, proprietor of the Vaudette theatre of Springfield and the Vaudette in Chicago. Mr. Watts is treasurer of the Illinois branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and was practically alone in directing the work of that organization in its campaign.

Objections to the measure grew as the governor delayed acting on the bill and it is said that a day or so before he vetoed it, even Secretary of State Stevenson, who was strongly for it, found the sentiment so strong against it that he recommended that the bill be vetoed.

The vetoing of the measure was not without an amusing circumstance. The impression seemed to prevail for a while in Chicago and some other places that Governor Dunne's son had gone into the regular business of acting for pictures and there was a tendency to jump at the conclusion that the governor was influenced to veto the motion picture censorship bill on this account.

The trouble started when the governor told some of his friends in Chicago that his son, Maurice Dunne, was appearing for the pictures. In repeating the news, the friends didn't make it plain that it was an amateur production. Maurice Dunne took the leading role in a motion picture romance put on in Springfield by the Paragon Feature Company, of Omaha, which is to be put out shortly to boost the city of Springfield.

LAURA OAKLEY IS EXPERT IN POLICE MATTERS; DISCUSSES THEORIES WITH CHICAGO CHIEF

Special to Motion Picture News

Chicago, July 14.

Laura Oakley, one of the Universal players appearing with Pavlowa in their feature "The Dumb Girl in Portici," has arranged an interview with Chief of Police Healy to discuss some of her theories regarding the running of a police force.

Miss Oakley, strange as it may seem, is an authority on this subject, having made a conscientious study of it since she was elected chief of police of Universal City. She has filled this office with remarkable efficiency, successfully dealing with the problems rising from the peculiar conditions which exist at Universal City.

Miss Oakley is also a duly appointed deputy sheriff of Los Angeles county and a special police woman of the city of Los Angeles.

Chapin's Acting Brings "Old Abe" Back to Life

His Characterization of the Great Emancipator in the "Lincoln Cycle" Recalls Meed of Praise from Prominent Americans Who Saw the Stage Presentation

BENJAMIN CHAPIN, whose work has been followed by the leading men and women of America for the last fifteen years, is the man chosen by the Charter Features Corporation some three years ago to head the cast and lead the directorate staff.

Of Chapin it has been said by Major J. B. Pond, that his characterization has the quaintness of Rip Van Winkle and the dignity of Hamlet. James Huneker, perhaps the most noted critic on the stage and of art in the world today, has said that Chapin's Lincoln is a positive evocation of the great dead. "It is a remarkable assumption," says Mr. Huneker, "of an almost impossible character, dramatically speaking."

The story is told of Mark Twain, the beloved humorist, that some years before his death he was in company with Gen. Porter, the former ambassador of France and a close friend of Mr. Lincoln's, while in the party also were William D. Howells, the novelist, August Belmont, Robert Collier of "Collier's Weekly" and Clarence J. Mackay. The suggestion was made that the party go to see Chapin's Lincoln.

All were willing but Mark Twain, who declared he did not want some young "buck" with fake costume and make-up to muss up his own mental picture of Lincoln. After the performance, however, Mark Twain asked to be taken behind the scene that he might meet Mr. Chapin and shake off the illusion which had taken him astorm. "I am very glad to meet you, Mr. President," he said. "You haven't changed much in all these years. You know, I think I know Lincoln better than before. I feel as though I spent an evening with him at the White House. Your Lincoln is a miracle."

Others who had known the president, himself, had been as much impressed by this almost uncanny re-vitalization of the president as Mark Twain. Gen. O. O. Howard once said, "I knew and loved Lincoln as my friend and commander, and when I saw Mr. Chapin's wonderful portrayal, I was greatly pleased and deeply impressed by the reality."

Gen. Grant was once asked for a criticism from Mr. Chapin and his response was, "I have one criticism to make and that is your portrayal is not long enough."

Chapin's Lincoln is almost uncanny to behold. And yet, he does not picture the president with sobs alone. He has given to him all of the general humor that belongs to him in his own life. That sadly whimsical smile plays about Chapin's features as it did on Lincoln's face. The long gaunt body, the beautiful ugly features stand out in life from the pages of history. And young America and old America can behold its hero once more.

Mr. Chapin has made his offices with the Charter Feature Corporation at 110 West Fortieth street, and is co-operating with the directorate and scenario staff.

Lubin Studios Ready to Do Seemingly Impossible

So Well Equipped That Scenes Can Not Only Be Reproduced with Fidelity, But There Is Chance to Effect Wilde's Dictum That "Art Improves Nature"

THE enormous new Lubin studio at seventeenth street and Glenwood avenue, Philadelphia, is practically ready for occupancy, and forms the third in a link of studio buildings unexcelled in the motion picture world. The new studio is within a short distance of the main Lubin headquarters at twentieth street and Indiana avenue, and is a complete model of its kind.

The building, 75 feet wide and 300 feet long, has four floors, with an area of 50 thousand square feet. There are four complete studios, any one of which is capable of staging the largest indoor production.

The top floor has a huge glass dome, needing no artificial light.

The ground floor is to be utilized as storage room for scenery and properties, and the second floor will contain individual dressing rooms with running hot and cold water, and a smoking room for the men, and a green room in which the actors may receive their friends and rest when the camera does not demand their presence. The Lubin Manufacturing Company has paid especial attention to sanitary, airy and comfortable dressing rooms, and has spent considerable money to attain this object.

The electric installation for artificial lighting and the mechanical effects are the most complete of any studio in the world. It will be possible to reproduce nature, and perhaps improve upon it; to film anything and everything that ingenuity of the scenario writer and the photoplay director can conceive.

The Lubin producing equipment now consists of two immense plants in Philadelphia and an even larger one at Betzwood, Pa., with additional studios at Los Angeles, Cal., Phoenix, Ariz., Jacksonville, Fla., Brooklyn, N. Y., Atlantic City, N. J., and Newport, R. I.

The new studio will be used exclusively for the feature photoplays, of which the Lubin company will make a specialty from this time forth.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By George D. Proctor

CARL ANDERSON, formerly business manager of the Lasky Feature Play Co., Inc., has been engaged by the Paramount Pictures Corporation as business manager for that concern. Before leaving the Lasky company to become associated with the Paramount Pictures Corporation, through which all Lasky productions are distributed, Mr. Anderson is making a special trip to England on behalf of the Lasky company and the Famous Players company.

Mr. Anderson left Saturday on board the St. Louis and while in London will visit the offices through which the Lasky and Famous Players films are distributed in England and on the European continent as well as for Australia and other distant points. Through his long and intimate association with the Lasky company, Mr. Anderson has become especially familiar with the details of the business, and when the present war conditions brough up new problems, it was universally agreed that he was the one man best equipped to handle the situation successfully.

Mr. Anderson makes this foreign trip as a special envoy of the Lasky and Famous Players companies, by courtesy of the Paramount Pictures Corporation which has postponed the date for the beginning of his work with them sufficiently long for him to complete this special undertaking.

Clarence Schottenfels has resigned his position as vice-president and general sales manager of the Gotham Film company, to take effect immediately.

"The work was too strenuous," vouchsafed Clarence. "I'm looking for something easier."

So saying, Clarence hiked to the nearest vacation literature booth and relieved the time-table racks of as much of their contents as he could carry away with him.

E. R. Roberts, of 126 West 46th street, has bought the state rights to "The Melting Pot," in which Walker Whiteside is starred by the Cort Film Corporation, for Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, District of Columbia and North Carolina.

Charles Mortimer Peck, who was vice-president and assistant general manager of the Balboa Amusement Producing company, has resigned his position with that company. Will M. Ritchey has been appointed chief scenario editor by H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of Balboa, with the understanding that he has full charge of the scenario department. Mr. Horkheimer takes the attitude and appoints Mr. Ritchey chief scenario editor of the company owing to his tremendous success and ability in having written the original scenarios for the Balboa-Pathé "Who Pays" series.

All free lance scripts that are submitted to the company will be purchased or rejected exclusively by Mr. Ritchey.

Sid Olcott as a travelogist was the premier attraction at the Palace theatre, New York City, Friday morning, July 9. Officially it was a showing of "All for Old Ireland," the first of the Olcott films made in Ireland "before the war," which the Lubin company is now releasing.

Sid, however, sat up in the coop and, as fast as sections of "th'ould sod" flashed on the screen as a background to the story, put them in their proper place in Kerry with a few appropriate remarks and an anecdote or two anent the natives who assisted him in his productions.

The funny side of it, of course, was that Sid didn't know he was being overheard, until some one remarked to him in the lobby after it was over:

"What a fine carrying voice you have, Mr. Olcott!"

Paul Gulick, editor of the Universal's motion picture weekly, was awarded a consolation prize the other day for being deprived of participating in the Universal beauty contest.

He was permitted to escort a bevy of fair damsels through a hotel lobby in one of the scenes in "The Earl of Pawtucket."

G. B. Hamilton, of Luna pictures, which will be released through the Standard program, the new Warner-Lichtman combination, has been in New York looking after his marketing interests.

Mr. Hamilton is enthusiastic over the outlook for the new company.

"I am going back home prepared to do the best work I have ever done," he said, "and I know that every one of my company will feel as I do, encouraged and stimulated to the utmost."

They do say that Victoria Forde has decided to play opposite Tom Mix at the Selig Las Vegas, N. M., studios until further notice.

Beg pardon for changing the subject, but Sid Olcott is slated to direct Mary Pickford for the Famous Players Film Company in her next picture. He has just finished "Seven Sisters" with Marguerite Clark, and the Pickford film will be the third he has made for the Famous Players. The vehicle has not yet been selected, or, at least, hasn't been announced.

"Let-John-Do-It" Nickolaus, head of the Universal's Bayonne, N. J., laboratories, where they turn out upwards of 800,000 feet of film a week as if it were child's play, is already beginning to feel homesick at the thought of leaving the old place for the new Leonia laboratories, which will be a part of the Big U plant now nearing completion.

There'll be so many new-fangled conveniences and appliances in the new place that John's afraid he'll feel strange and uncomfortable for a while. John has an idea that maybe, if he can find a corner in the new laboratory building that won't be used for anything, he will pull the Bayonne plant up by the roots and tuck it away where he can sneak out and look at it once in a while till he gets used to the new surroundings.

As predicted exclusively on this page, Bert Adler and Kitty Katz, of the Universal, went and got married. They are now in Chicago where Bert is business manager for the Pavlowa company. Bert made a flying trip East to annex his bride, being in New York just five hours between trains. When the Pavlowa production is finished the Adlers will live in Fort Lee and give battle to the mosquitoes. Joe Brandt was best man, Mrs. Brandt maid of honor and Blanche Wallick the bridesmaid.

Bert is the fourth Universalite whom Dan Cupid has sneaked up on in the past four months. Next? Is that Bob Doman being paged?

One notes that some advertise as "directors" and others as "producing directors." Without drawing any invidious distinctions, Clarice murmurs that it is painfully true that not all directors are producers. But a rose by any other name and all that.

The "Standard Review" is a new motion picture publication put out by and in the interests of the Standard Photoplay Distributors, Inc. Al Lichtman and the Warners are the gentlemen behind.

Postcard received from Bennie Reliance-Majesticville Zeidman, who reports that all is lovely in Los Angeles in general and at Sing Fat's store in particular. This is a lot of space to give a postal, but bread cast on the waters doesn't always get stodgy.

Joe Farnham's face, entirely surrounded by pure reading matter, takes up nearly a page in the Sunday section of a metropolitan daily.

The reading matter tells of experiences of his recent sojourn on the firing line in Europe with Phil Klein. Very interesting it was. No one would accuse Joe of commercialism, either, if he cashed in on experience plus personality by going on the lecture platform.

By the way, Phil sailed for London recently.

The literary double life of Jane Stannard Johnson, of Paramount, simply must be bared. Recently she wrote on the care of china for "Good Housekeeping."

CHANGES OF THE WEEK

Col. Joe Smiley, late of Lubin, is now making "The Renegade" for the World Film.

Clement Easton, director, goes from Universal to Thanhouser.

Clarence Badger, who has been writing Joker scenarios for a year or so, is now in charge of the Universal's second Joker company.

Arrivals at Universal City include Elaine Stern, scenario writer and M. Bourgeoise, animal trainer. Hugh Weir, scenario writer, leaves for the East.

Joe Bloom, formerly with the Celebrated Players of Chicago, has succeeded M. Winik of the Apex Feature Service, Seattle, Wash., a territory he will also handle for the Washington Film Corporation. Mr. Bloom is preparing to put out a film called "The Ski Man."

Ben Wilson has just signed a two-year contract with the Universal. Mr. Wilson left Edison a year ago and is now a fixture with the Big U for the next two years, with which company he will star and direct big productions.

A recent acquisition to the Big U studios in California is Rupert Julian. After an absence of one year, Mr. Julian has returned to the Universal.

D. W. Russell, well known in motion picture circles in the West where for some time he represented MinA Films, with headquarters in Chicago, has been appointed general sales manager and is now at the Eastern offices of this brand.

He assumed charge of his new duties last Monday.

VAUDEVILLIAN BEN DEELY IS AT CENTAUR STUDIOS

Ben Deely, of vaudeville fame, is producing a one reel comedy picture called "Won by a Leg," at the studio of the Centaur Film Company in Bayonne, N. J., in which the cast is composed exclusively of vaudevillians.

Mr. Deely and Marie Wayne are playing the two leading parts, and with them are Hazel Harrington of Bernard and Harrington, Mona Ryan, Harland Dixon, of Doyle and Dixon, and others. Walter Pritchard is cameraman.

The picture is to be released through the World Film Corporation, by arrangement of Mr. Deely with Mr. Selznick and will be followed by the production of features, work on the first of which will be started in two weeks. These features will also be distributed through the World Film offices. Harry Revien is directing.

Blanche Sweet Is Cast for Two Difficult Characters

Lasky Actress Will Be Revealed in New Light to Her Admirers in "The Secret Orchard" and "The Case of Becky," Broadway Successes

BLANCHE SWEET, in a style of photodrama work that is not only original with her, but likely to place her, through the medium of forthcoming productions of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, in a position as a star and favorite which she not yet has attained, is the promise of the Lasky offices.

For the second time since her engagement with the Lasky producing firm, she will appear in the leading role in a Lasky-Belasco production.

The play will be "The Case of Becky," by Edward Locke, one of the sensations of the American dramatic season several years ago when produced by David Belasco.

Perhaps no play from the legitimate stage offers such opportunities for the ingenuity of the director and the art of the star as "The Case of Becky" provides in photodrama form. Margaret Turnbull, who wrote "The Clue," Miss Sweet's most recent production, has prepared "The Case of Becky" for the studio, and the presentation generally will have the benefit of the united co-operation of the studio force. Henry Reicher will be the director immediately in charge.

"The Case of Becky" will be Miss Sweet's next vehicle following "The Secret Orchard," from the play by Channing Pollock, based on the novel of the same name by Agnes and Egerton Castle. "The Secret Orchard" will be released through the Paramount Pictures Corporation on August 9.

These two plays, "The Secret Orchard" and "The Case of Becky," will reveal Miss Sweet in an entirely new light to her thousands of admirers who have watched her progress as a photoplay favorite. Although the stories of the two productions are diametrically opposed, fundamentally there are a few interesting similarities between Diane in "The Secret Orchard," and Dorothy in "The Case of Becky."

In each the leading feminine character is the innocent victim of pre-natal influence of a mystifying kind, subtle in its manifestations. Quick changes of psychological nature over which the heroine has no control are the means of introducing a series of compelling and stirring situations of strong dramatic power.

In such characterizations heretofore Miss Sweet has been seldom seen. She has shown an adeptness for dramatic work of the highest kind, however, since her connection with the Lasky company, and it is a compliment to her art that she not only was chosen for these plays, but that her work has more than pleased her most enthusiastic friends and associates.

"The Case of Becky" will be released through Paramount Pictures Corporation in the autumn. Miss Sweet's company will include Theodore Roberts, James Mill, Carlyle Blackwell, Miss Gertrude Keller and Miss Jane Wolff.

Metro Establishes Its Own Art Poster Department

Company Plans to Give Exhibitors Paper of Superior Quality, with Designs Drawn by Well Known Artists Like Irvin of "Life," Kilvert, Haskell and Cooper

THE Metro Pictures Corporation realizes the need of better posters for picture advertising.

In following out this line it has established a separate poster department under direction of Robert E. Irwin, who has had much experience in the designing and printing of artistic and attractive poster advertising.

In this new department he will make it his chief endeavor to give exhibitors distinctive paper.

A large staff of artists and illustrators of the better class is already under contract to the Metro, to produce poster designs exclusively for this company. Metro's poster department will be conducted along the same lines as are the art departments of the better class of magazines.

Among those who have already made posters or are making them for Metro may be mentioned C. B. Falls, the well-known illustrator; Robert J. Wildhack; Ernest Haskell, whose portraits of Mrs. Fiske and Mrs. Carter won him recognition as a poster artist of the first rank; Edward Penfield; F. G. Cooper, whose Edison posters have attracted considerable attention; Rae Irvin, of "Life;" D. Cory Kilvert, Sewell Collins and others.

While the posters produced will be distinctly away from the usual cheap picture lithography, and will be printed with heavy inks and on better paper, the cost to the distributor and exhibitor will be no greater than he formerly paid. The Metro company in assuming the large extra expense of a properly constituted and conducted poster branch, does so with the feeling, and assurance that its efforts to increase the attractiveness of exhibitors' displays, will be heartily appreciated by the exhibitors.

OKLAHOMA MANAGER IS CHARGED WITH SHOWING IMPROPER PICTURE

Mike Irwin, manager of the Gaiety theatre, at Muskogee, Okla., is charged with exhibiting obscene pictures in his use of the feature film, "Three Weeks." The case is to be tried at the July term of the superior court.

The judge of the court, Hon. Hal C. Thurman disqualified himself, so that a special judge will have to be appointed to try the case. During the preliminary discussion of the film in question the judge expressed his opinion of the films, saying that he did not consider them obscene.

A criminal case has been filed against Irwin, and he will be tried before a jury. It is understood that the offending films will be exhibited to the jury, but that a screen will cut out the exhibition to the public.

Convention Opens With Big Attendance

Fifth Annual Gathering of Film Men Indicates by Display of Enthusiasm the Intention of Members to Make the Event Memorable in Screen History—Mayor Rolph Delivers Opening Address, Turning the City Over to Visitors—Selig Special Arrives in San Francisco for Two Days of Sight-seeing.

By Telegraph to Motion Picture News

San Francisco, July 13.

THE wonderful progress of the motion picture industry during the past year was strikingly illustrated at the fifth annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, called to order at eleven o'clock by Chairman M. E. Cory, in the big Civic Auditorium, a part of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, one of the largest buildings of its kind in the world.

This gathering of prominent manufacturers, exchange men, exhibitors, accessory dealers, and others affiliated with the industry bids fair to be the most successful convention in the history of the exhibitors' organization.

The popularity of the convention idea is fully exemplified by the attendance. The hotel rosters show an unexpected representation from all over the United States. The way people in the film industry have come from the four corners of the country—Washington, the Southwest, Maine, Florida, in fact, practically every state—shows that distance means nothing to the film men.

The enthusiasm demonstrated in this particular alone has caused wide comment in San Francisco and augurs well for the future interest in the motion picture industry of the exhibitors, exchange men and others in film circles.

The committee of arrangements and members of the local branch of the league take into consideration the plan of many who have come here with the idea of hitting two objects with one stone—seeing the exposition while attending the convention.

Convention Overshadows Exposition

Nevertheless it has been observed that the uppermost thought of film visitors is the convention. The fair is secondary. With this demonstration of the right spirit before them the local members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League who have devoted their time and energy to making the fifth annual convention a success, expect that the event will mark the most important occasion in the history of the film business.

The visitors will remember for sometime to come the elaborate displays which have been arranged for their benefit. Practically every releasing company has made extensive preparations for the entertainment of the guests of the league branch here.

Many individual producers are well represented. The accessory manufacturers have not intended to be outdone by other manufacturers. Their booths are marvels of ingenious decorations, and the means they have taken to attract the attention of the exhibitors constitute a tribute to heir business sense.

The City was turned over to the photoplay people by Mayor Rolph, Jr. The chief executive of the Gate to the Orient pointed out the importance of the film industry in his address delivered this morning at the formal opening of the convention.

He mentioned a personal experience which indicates the manner in which motion pictures have become a part of the everyday life of practically all men holding public office. Mayor Rolph said that he had been before the camera fully one-third of his time since taking the oath of office.

Mayor Rolph Impressed

Mayor Rolph's address showed that he was fully impressed with the great influence exercised by motion pictures in the life of the people today—their power for education as well as their supremacy in the amusement field. The growth of the industry and its widespread influence were boundless, in the opinion of the speaker.

The welcome of the visitors to San Francisco by the city's chief executive was made with deep feeling and indicated the hospitable spirit of the people of the west coast.

President Marion S. Pearce responded in a few choice phrases on behalf of the league. He was followed by Peter J. Jeup, treasurer of the Detroit branch, the organization advocating the admittance to membership in the league of others in the industry than exhibitors. Mr. Jeup fired the first gun in the Detroit campaign for the next convention.

Other addresses were made by F. J. Herrington, of Pittsburgh; Judge A. P. Tugwell, of Los Angeles; J. W. Binder, of the National Board of Censorship, and H. L. Beach, president of the California Exhibitors' League.

All the newspapermen present were entertained at luncheon by the officers of the league on Tuesday night.

Wednesday night will be "Bessie Barriscale" night at the convention, when the NYMP star will reign as the Queen of the Convention.

Forty Stars to Shine at Ball

Thursday is planned as a "Metro Day" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, closing with Art Smith writing Metro in the sky with an illuminated aeroplane. Following this Francis Bushman will present Smith with a gold medal. Geraldine Farrar will go to the convention in a special train Friday morning, accompanied by the Lasky forces, to lead the grand march with Governor Hiram Johnson.

Forty stars will be present, representing practically every producing company of Los Angeles. The film colony of that city will leave for San Francisco in special coaches to participate in the ball.

On Friday a large parade is scheduled through the principal streets of the city.

It is now too early to forecast the election of officers, so speculation at this hour is useless. It is know, however, that the organization is unanimous in a determination to adopt a policy of opposing legalized censorship in all forms.

The long heralded Selig Special arrived with twelve coaches in San Francisco on Sunday afternoon. The guests of the colonel will have two days of sightseeing in the exposition city, including auto and harbor trips.

The exhibitor members of the party were present at the opening of the convention. The special left Tuesday at midnight for San Jose and San Diego.

An elaborate reception is planned for the Selig guests while in Los Angeles. The tour across the continent proved very successful and enjoyable, ably managed by H. C. Hoagland. J. C. Jessen.

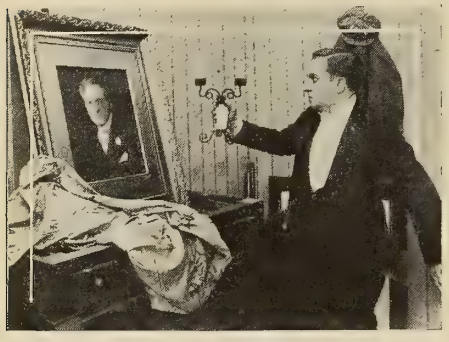
ARBUCKLE CAST IN "HOME AND POLITICS" FOR BOSWORTH

Macklyn Arbuckle, the popular star of the legitimate stage whose success in the Bosworth, Inc., production, "It's No Laughing Matter," has made him a big favorite among motion picture patrons, is soon to be seen in "Home and Politics," a screen adaptation of his well-known vaudeville success, "The Reform Candidate," written by himself in collaboration with Edgar A. Guest.

"The Reform Candidate" was first produced in vaudeville by Mr. Arbuckle at Washington, D. C., on Christmas Day, 1912. The premier was an instantaneous success and was booked for two seasons in all the largest vaudeville theatres in the East and South. His appearance in the Five-Star Revival of "The New Henrietta," which just closed after a big tour of the country, prevented his acceptance of an offer from the Orpheum circuit, which would have brought him in due course to the coast.

Mr. Arbuckle had just returned to his country estate on the St. Lawrence River after an active season on the road when he received a telegram from Bosworth, Inc., calling him to Los Angeles for another picture.

SELLS BOOK OF "ISLAND OF REGENERATION"



On the occasion of "The Island of Regeneration" being shown at the Alhambra theatre in Cleveland recently, H. J. Bayley, the theatre manager, in addition to his other advertising, arranged for two of the largest booksellers in the city to use an entire window display of the book of the play, both of which are the works of the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady.

A number of window cards calling attention to the fact that the story could be seen in films made the display a profitable one for both book store and theatre.

Mr. Bayley said later that the house did the biggest Monday business in its career.

"DORIAN GRAY" IS WELL PRODUCED BY MOORE

Producer Moore has made a living document of Oscar Wilde's famous story of "Dorian Gray." It tells of a young rake, who, notwithstanding his gay and festive indulgences, shows no traces of it as the years slip by. He gradually becomes sensitive of it; it becomes an obsession with him, and it weighs so heavily on his mind that he begins to see it in a portrait of himself which a friend has painted.

SCENE FROM "THE PICTURE OF DORIAN GRAY" (Thanhouser—Two Reels, July 6)

The picture seems to mock him, for the image of himself looks older each time that he gazes on it. He finally puts it into a secret room, for no eyes but his own. He goes there regularly, the face in the frame becoming more hideous and aged each time, until in an insane paroxysym, he hacks the canvas to bits, and drops dead before it. And the mystery is never solved.

Harris Gordon plays the title role in sensational fashion, well supported by Ernest Howard, Ray Johnston, Morgan Jones and Claude Cooper. The production is in two reels.

MINA IMPROVES POSTERS

In line with their endeavor to have every part of their output reach the highest standard of perfection, MinA Films is directing especial attention to their posters. The producers believe that the paper showing affects a theatre's business in a measure far greater than is generally realized.

A poster is designed and used for the purpose of inducing prospective patrons to enter the theatre. It acts as a silent salesman.

Thoroughly alive to the soundness of this reasoning, the makers of MinA films are issuing posters of a quality in keeping with the high standard of their pictures. The designs are snappy comedy situations, while the color scheme is artistically and attractively followed out.

"NO SOLDIER" SONG WILL BE A SELIG RELEASE

Harry Mestayer, the Selig star, has started work as the lead in the feature production "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier," to be released by the Selig Polyscope Company.

Everybody has been whistling or singing the song of the same name. Gilson Willets, the well-known photoplay author, wrote the film story.

Picture Makers Drawn to New Mexico by Advertising

Las Vegas Backs Up Its Belief in the Needs of Publicity for "Scenic Wares" by Carrying Space in Screen Trade Journals with Good Results

AS a matter of fact, the films didn't go to Las Vegas at all but, like Mohammed, Las Vegas went to the films. The enterprising metropolis in New Mexico has long believed that every environment possible to put the punch into motion pictures could be found right there in that garden-spot of the world.

The trouble was that Las Vegas couldn't induce the motion picture man to see it. He either went through that locality and viewed it from a Pullman or passed it by on the other side.

Then one Phil H. LeNoir, secretary of the Las Vegas Commercial Club, went to the front. Recently arrived he really perceived things that the oldest residents had been looking at for years but had never really seen.

"Advertise your climatic and scenic wares," he said "Advertise them just like any other merchandise. Tell the motion picture producers all about Las Vegas and its wonderful scenery through the motion picture trade journals. In other words: 'It pays to advertise!"

This proposition was greeted with hearty laughter. Such adjective as ridiculous and crazy could be heard re-echoing from the beautiful mountains and vales surrounding Las Vegas. Consequently that city remained motion pictureless. Finally the energetic young man was granted the munificent sum of fifty dollars per month to "spend judiciously." He proceeded to spend it judiciously in motion picture trade journals. He had to spend it judiciously because a fifty dollars monthly advertising appropriation will not go so very far, you know.

And then, according to Mr. LeNoir, there followed the deluge. The results of that advertising proved that publications devoted to motion pictures are almost universally read. "Replies came from Maine, from Florida and from California," says Mr. LeNoir. "Replies came from director, from author, from promoter and from the 'wild-catter' and from the 'green-goods man.' Some of them had the most beautiful stock selling schemes you ever heard of, outdoing Mr. Wallingford in every detail.

"One bunch calmly informed Las Vegas that they would honor us with their presence if the city would deposit the 'mere trifle' of $5,000 in the bank to 'cover their moving expenses.' Another claimed that he could get more work out of a ten-dollar-a-week amateur than a $100-a-week professional and urged economy. Another gentle grafter wished to move a motion picture college of acting into our midst. It was surely a moving occasion.

"To make a long story short, we dropped the advertising and tried the personal work. Nothing doing, and so we returned to printer's ink. And then, lo and behold! printer's ink accomplished its work. An agent for William N. Selig visited Las Vegas.

"He viewed the wonderful scenery and he interviewed the people. The result is that Tom Mix, the western Selig star, and his company are coming to us to produce a series of western picture plays and perhaps remain permanently in our midst. We are tickled nearly to death. The silver cornet band is rehearsing. Advertising pays!"

TAGGART, IN "WOMAN NEXT DOOR," VETERAN OF BOER WAR

Ben L. Taggart, who has been selected to play opposite Irene Fenwick in George Kleine's film version of Owen Davis' "The Woman Next Door," enjoys the distinction of being one of the youngest veterans of the Boer war. He was born at Ottawa, Canada, twenty-six years ago, and was only fifteen years of age when England called upon the Dominion for aid in the conquest of the South African republics. Young Taggart served two years in the Boer war and took part in the severest of the South African campaigns. Mr. Taggart still bears several scars which remind him of the Boer marksmen's accuracy with the rifle.

Upon returning to the American continent, Mr. Taggart turned from the real heroics of active army service to the mock heroics of the stage. His first important engagement was with General Lew Wallace's famous play "The Prince of India," after which he played leads for seven years in stock. As Tom Grayson, the fighting hero of "The Woman Next Door," Mr. Taggart has a part unusually well suited to his talents.

CECIL DE MILLE TEACHING GERALDINE FARRAR THE ART OF ACTING FOR THE CAMERA, PREPARATORY TO FILMING "CARMEN" AT THE LASKY HOLLYWOOD STUDIOS

KALEM BUTTON BOOSTERS FOR "MAXIM" SELL FOR $4.50

That exhibitors appreciate the advertising value of the business booster which Kalem is issuing in the form of the "Maxim Girl" button is demonstrated by the fact that over a million of these buttons have already been sold. The million mark was passed last Saturday, when a New Jersey exhibitor ordered a considerable quantity.

The "Maxim Girl" button is seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, and Kalem is disposing of them at $4.50 per thousand, f. o. b. New York. There is no denying the attractiveness of this button, and it should prove extremely valuable as a form of preliminary advertising prior to the exhibition of "Midnight at Maxim's," or as a souvenir at the time this four-act feature is shown.

"CLIMBERS," V-L-S-E, IS FOR RELEASE ON AUGUST 2

In the space left vacant by moving forward "The District Attorney," the V-L-S-E has decided to release the five-reel Lubin feature "The Climbers" on August 2.

This production adapted from Clyde Fitch's drama, under the same title, a decided success on the speaking stage, gives Gladys Hanson her first opportunity to appear on the Big Four program. This play abounds in the entangling situations brought about by the dealings of high financiers and the extravagant efforts put forth by those mortals whose main objective is the social heights.

The story deals with a captain of industry supposed to be possessed of limitless wealth, whose spectacular dealings in the stock market finally result in bankruptcy. The story is filled with thrilling moments, without being sensational.

FILM MEN IN SAN FRANCISCO FACE TAX INCREASE

The finance committee of the board of supervisors of San Francisco is considering the problem of imposing license taxes on various lines of businesses and occupations for which there is now no special tax. The idea is that if the city's revenue from licenses is increased the general tax rate can be correspondingly reduced. The committee has not definitely decided just what lines will be called upon to pay this extra tax.

It is possible that no decision will be reached in the immediate future, owing to the fact that a municipal election is pending, but action on this proposition will probably be taken some time in the fall.

Among the various lines now on the committee's list for possible licensing is film exchanges, of which there are about twenty in operation in this city. These are strongly organized and any efforts to impose special taxes upon them will meet with determined resistance.

MARY BOLAND BECOMES A N. Y. M. P. STAR

Mary Boland, for several years the leading woman of John Drew on the legitimate stage, has signed a contract with the New York Motion Picture Corporation to appear in pictures under the personal direction of Thomas H. Ince for an indefinite length of time.

Miss Boland is considered by many as one of the most beautiful women on the stage, while the many successes in which she has appeared indicate a bright future before the camera. Last season Miss Boland played opposite Mr. Drew in "My Lady's Dress," under the management of Jos Brooks. Besides excelling in histrionic ability Miss Boland is an expert horsewoman and an ardent golf enthusiast.

POWER A KEEN ADMIRER OF SILENT DRAMA

"I am in love with the silent drama," asserted Mr. Tyrone Power, the noted stage star, who is engaged in important character work at the Los Angeles studios of the Selig Polyscope Company.

"There are many little details of technique to be learned by the actor who first embarks in the silent drama, and I have enjoyed and appreciated instruction indispensable to the artist first embarking in the newer art. Pantomime, the art of conveying thought by facial expression and gestures, is not easy.

BETTY NANSEN SAILS FOR HOME

Betty Nansen, who has been appearing in this country in a series of feature photoplays for William Fox, sailed yesterday for Copenhagen on the Scandanavian-American liner "United States." She will at once start preparations for a theatrical tour of the northern European countries not affected by the war.

While over here Miss Nansen posed for four big successes for William Fox, namely, "The Celebrated Scandal," "Anna Karenina," "A Woman's Resurrection" and "Should a Mother Tell." A delegation of her countrymen saw Miss Nansen off and officials of the Fox staff wished her bon voyage at the pier.

Fox Managers Visit Studio and See Stars at Work

THE branch managers of the Fox Film Corporation, who held their first annual convention in New York during the last week, have returned to their respective cities throughout the United States. Much valuable work was accomplished at the convention, at every session William Fox presided and personally addressed the managers on their duties and instructed them in the proper way to build up an exchange business.

During the course of the convention the chairman of which was Winfield R. Sheehan, the general manager of the corporation, the managers were attended a round of entertainment, which included visits to the studios, where they saw William Farnum, Nance O'Neil, Theda Bara and other Fox stars at work.

At the conclusion of the convention the managers presented Mr. Fox with a magnificent watch, upon which was inscribed their appreciation of his untiring efforts on their behalf to help them in building up business in their respective territories.

The convention was an immense success from every standpoint and has resulted in the various branch managers becoming inspired by Mr. Fox's aggressive personality and unflagging zeal.

NANCE O'NEIL AS "THE SORCERESS," SURROUNDED BY WILLIAM FOX'S EXCHANGE MANAGERS—TAKEN DURING THE CONVENTION LAST WEEK IN NEW YORK

"THE HONOR OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY"

(American—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

JACK RICHARDSON, in a minor part, appearing only at the opening of this picture, portrays the character of an unscrupulous political boss with such ability that one wishes this character had more to do with the plot of the story.

"THE BOSS DEFIED"

He is merely brought in at the outset to demonstrate the district attorney's courage of convictions in prosecuting him for a bar room murder.

The district attorney has promised his daughter that he will let nothing interfere with the performance of his duty. Later, when he identifies the young civil engineer, just married to his daughter, as a man who, he thinks, had committed murder, love for her daughter nearly conquers his sense of duty, but after an all night struggle with his conscience, duty wins out and he causes his son-in-law to be arrested.

A telegram arrives, however, at this opportune moment, stating that the real murderer has confessed.

A real thrill is injected in the meeting of Vivian Rich, the heroine, and the civil engineer, a part played by Walter Spencer, when the latter rescues the girl from a runaway horse, just in time to prevent her being blown to pieces by a dynamite blast. Harry Von Meter plays the district attorney, and the rest of the cast include Louise Lester and Josephine Ditt.

FORM WOMEN'S CLUBS TO WIN $10,000 "DIAMOND" PRIZE

"DIAMOND from the Sky" clubs have been formed throughout the country to an extent indicative of the widespread interest aroused by this romantic picturized novel. The clubs, for the most part, are made up of women. Members attend each chapter as it is released, and make notes for future reference.

Each club will help its best equipped member to capture the $10,000 prize offered by the American company for a sequel to the McCardell photoplay, and the lucky member, on the other hand, is bound to divide the prize money equally.

Clubs have been formed in Brockton, Boston, Taunton, Fall River and Lynn, Massachusetts; in Torrington, Hartford and Bridgeport, Connecticut; in New York city and Brooklyn and Mount Vernon, New York; in Philadelphia and York, Pennsylvania; in Baltimore, Hagerstown and Cumberland, Maryland; in Birmingham and Mobile, Alabama; in Knoxville, Tennessee; Wheeling, West Virginia; and in Cleveland, Toledo and Columbus, Ohio.

MABEL NORMAND SHUTTLES IN THREE PLAYS IN ONE DAY

THE unusual feat of working in three different pictures under three separate directors in a single day, was the task recently accomplished by Mabel Normand, the little Keystone star. Miss Normand left Mack Sennett's company, in which she was working with Raymond Hitchcock, long enough to play a part with another director in the old studios, across the street.

While there, she was called upon by another director to take part in some re-take scenes.

WESTINGHOUSE SHOWS RECTIFIERS AND GENERATORS AT CONVENTION

IN the convention city the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company is showing an apparatus which this company has developed for use in projection work. It consists of mercury arc rectifiers and motor-generators for changing the alternating current usually supplied by lighting companies to the direct current so necessary for securing a good, clear picture on the screen.

In addition to its own exhibit, the company has installed throughout the grounds a large number of motor-generators for use by other exhibitors, among whom may be mentioned the following:

The Precision Machine company, New York, manufacturer of the Simplex projection machine, which has four of these sets installed in different exhibits, two in the motion picture theatres operated by the United States Department of Education, and the Precision Machine company, and one in theatre of the United Shoe Machinery company, and one in exhibit of the United States Steel corporation.

The Nicholas Power company, in its attractive exhibit in the Palace of Liberal Arts, also has a Westinghouse motor-generator set, switchboard and rheostat installed, showing it in actual operation with a Power's machine.

"RIGHT OF WAY" DRAWS BIG CROWDS AT STRAND

THE management of the New York Strand theatre, New York city, after viewing a large number of special features, decided upon William Faversham in Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way" as being the best for their purpose.

Throughout the week crowds besieged the doors to obtain admission to see this special feature from the B. A. Rolfe studio and to be released by the Metro Pictures Corporation.

So delighted were those in control of the Strand with the picture and the business done throughout the week, that Max Speigil, secretary of the Strand company, wrote the following letter of endorsement to President Richard A. Rowland, of the Metro Pictures Corporation:

"My dear Mr. Rowland:—It gives us great pleasure to write you expressing our appreciation and satisfaction with the photoplay of your company, which we showed at the Strand last week entitled, 'The Right of Way.' We feel that it was an artistic success, a beautiful picture and the financial results most gratifying.

"We want to thank you for your kind interest on this occasion and beg to remain.

"Very truly yours,
"MARK STRAND THEATRE COMPANY,
(Signed) "MAX SPIEGIL, Secretary."

LLOYD, YOUNG DIRECTOR OF NOTE, JOINS MOROSCO

FRANK LLOYD, youngest of the moving picture directors of the first class, has been engaged by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company as director.

Frank Lloyd went to Canada from the British Isles when he was twenty-one, going by the way, on the ill-fated "Empress of Ireland," which later went down with great loss of life in the mouth of the St. Lawrence river.

He toured the Dominion with his own companies under the direction of C. P. Walker, finally coming to the Pacific coast, where he went into vaudeville in an act of his own. His success attracted general attention, and when he reached Los Angeles he was snapped up by alert moving picture "scouts."

In pictures Frank Lloyd speedily came into his own. From the prestige of being regarded as one of the finest portrayers of heavy roles in the business, he went into the directing game and was an instantaneous success.

"THE EARL OF PAWTUCKET"

(Broadway Universal Features—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS comedy, the third of the Broadway Universal Features, stars Lawrence D'Orsay in the name part, the same role which he so successfully carried when the play by Augustus Thomas was produced on the stage. Mr. D'Orsay is thoroughly at home in the part of the good-natured old English earl, and handled his scenes with an admirable and pleasing finish.

On the boards all the subtle wit and humor of the offering, most of which was embodied in the character of the earl, was made effective by way of the clever dialogue. The voice taken away, the good old early of Pawtucket loses much of his charm and mirth provoking qualities.

In truth, the play has not lent itself as well to the screen as might be expected, although in picture form it will probably amuse not a few of its witnesses.

There are numerous comical scenes throughout the picture,

THE EARL IS SHOCKED AT CHICAGO CUSTOMS

most noticeable of which are the introduction of his lordship, who is sitting serenely in the bath tub when first the camera catches him; his ridiculous although well meant gallantry in extinguishing the fire in Harriett's room; and then later in the picture the chase through the hotel in which the earl for a time successfully evades the detectives that are hot on his track.

The hotel lobby is, incidentally, a most pretentious and realistic affair. It is deep as well as broad and the atmosphere of the busy metropolitan hotel has been well reproduced on the screen. The remainder of the settings are entirely appropriate, while good photography by E. Wynard prevails in every instance.

Harry Myers, who directed the picture, also appears in an important role, being one of the main exponents in the secondary love story. Rosemary Theby plays opposite Mr. D'Orsay as Harriett, while others are Flora Mason, Helen Gilmore and Emile Hoch.

A brief synopsis of the preliminary action will serve to convey to the reader the awkwardly funny situations in which the earl finds himself. In London he meets Putnam, recently divorced from his wife. Wishing to travel in America and not wishing to disclose his actual station he assumes the name of Putnam, alias the Earl of Pawtucket. By all the late Mrs. Putnam's relatives, as well as a detective, the earl is taken for Putnam himself, so the after developments can best be imagined.

"A DAUGHTER OF EARTH"

(Biograph—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

A STRONG cast and a good story, added to the Biograph grade of photography and excellent production, make this a notable two-reeler.

Gretchen Hartman plays the country girl, who leaves her home to sing in the city on the representation of a broker that a great future awaits her. By leaving her home she estranges herself from her father, brother and sweetheart. In the city the broker provides an apartment for her and arranges for her debut.

The father, who comes to see his daughter, is refused admission at the stage door. He goes home and dies of a broken heart. The girl discovers the true nature of her "protector." Finally she returns home to her sweetheart, who persuades her brother to forgive her.

Jose Ruben, who was leading man with Madame Yorska in the company which played in New York in French during the last season, plays the brother. He is the most promising recruit from the stage seen in a long time and plays with rare intelligence and perception of values. Alan Hale, as always, is pleasing and convincing as the sweetheart. Edward Cecil is the father and G. Raymond Nye, the broker.

The scenes in the theatre, on the stage, back of the stage and in the dressing rooms are very good, and contrast well with the rural scenes.. J. Farrell McDonald directed.

"A TEXAS STEER"

(V-L-S-E—Selig—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE congressman from the West! Such a figure has been immortalized time and again by the writers of fiction and so whenever he steps out onto the screen he is heartily welcome. The Selig company has caused that big, blustering gun-pulling character to live in the person of Tyrone Power. He comes to Washington imbued with a deep hatred for hotel elevators and gentlemen's valets. But time works changes and when some of his old pals journey from Texas to the capitol to upbraid him on certain measures, they discover that everything their own beloved congressman has done is absolutely correct and proceed to get joyously intoxicated.

Aside from this there is another plot running through the picture concerning the congressman's daughter and her lover, a soldier in the United States army. The young officer is ashamed of the girl when she first arrives in Washington, but at a later date this matter ends smoothly, too.

Obviously there is much that is humorous during the five reels of film. The situations which the congressman discovers himself enshrouded in while he is undergoing initiation into the political circles of the capital are constructed with a keen appreciation of farcial values. In fact there are laughs enough to warrant the picture's success.

In its production, however, the subject might have been handled with better results. In particular does this statement apply to the casting of the secondary leads of the story. The two colonels who live by their wits are inclined to overact in their scenes, while the secretary to the congressman displays little histrionic ability.

While the plot has the happy faculty of making one laugh from beginning to end it culminates in no climax of any power. Its ending is slightly unexpected. The picture was adapted from Charles Hoyt's comedy of the same name and produced by Giles R. Warren.

Next in order of importance in the cast are Grace Darmond as the girl and John Charles as her lover. Others are Francis Bayless, Mrs. Tyrone Power, Walter Roberts and Frank Weed. In photographic effects the picture is consistently pleasing from first to last, while the settings leave nothing to be desired.

"THE CUP OF CHANCE"

(Knickerbocker Star Feature—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY H. S. FULD

"LIKE father like son" is a theme that presents a train of thought that would be doubly intensified and present itself more forcibly when exemplified by mother and daughter. A most vivid portrayal demonstrating this is "The Cup of Chance," the latest offering of Knickerbocker. The moral is brought home so thoroughly and without seeming effort that a real story with vim and snap is presented instead of the might-be-expected sermon.

Good photography with splendid backgrounds, enhanced by masterly acting on the part of the principals, coupled with a plot that holds the interest to the very end, make this a doubly welcome release.

In the character of Circe, the enticer of men, Alice Brady has a part that is more than ordinarily intricate, and yet so natural is her acting, so carefree her dancing, that the beholder cannot help imagining that he is witnessing a Circe in real life.

Hope, a daughter of a society-loving widow, is neglected in her young days, and at the age of nineteen is a perfect replica of her mother. The mother, married a second time, leaves her second husband and runs away with another man, taking the child of her first husband with her. Jack Brandon (George W. Howard), the deserted husband, finds his stepchild years later and marries her, neither recognizing in the other any former relationship, Hope being about four years old when taken away by her mother.

In the bright lights of the Rialto and as the premier danseuse of the day, Hope has come to love the bright lights and good times, and cannot reconcile herself to settled married life, and soon embraces the opportunity offered by her theatrical manager and gives herself to him. They are discovered by the husband on the latter's premeditated unexpected return to the house. The husband puts poison into one of two glasses of wine and at the point of a revolver compels his wife to serve one to her lover and one to him, she not knowing which one contains the poison. The husband drinks the harmless "Cup of Chance" and the lover falls lifeless at Circe's feet. Fondling her dead lover Hope faints away, and, slowly backing out of the room, Jack leaves them.

Later, seeking rest at the seashore, Hope and Jack meet again, and showing him her picture as a child, she says, "I was not always a Circe." Jack recognizes her as the child he used to toddle on his knee, and is about to tell her so when the invalid chair she is reclining in suddenly rolls over the edge of a cliff and she is killed.

There is not a bit of padding and the entire three reels are so full of action and suspense that the observer is hardly conscious of the passage of time.

One of the best releases of the month and most suitable for large houses.

"THE CUB"

(World Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

AS a thrilling comedy, with a dramatic closing reel, "The Cub" is not to be surpassed by any picture of the same kind now holding the celluloid. "The Cub" is another William A. Brady release, adapted from the stage success of the same name, by Thomas Buchanan. It was produced by Maurice Tourneur at the Peerless studios and certainly ought to score a triumph from every standpoint.

John Hines, who is cast in the title character, ably cares for the largest comedy part he has assumed while working before the camera. Strictly speaking, as a reporter Steve is an excellent comedian. The many scenes in which the action centers entirely around this blithe youth are enacted with a comprehensive appreciation of their comic possibilities.

They are uproarious because of their construction and the humorous personality of John Hines. For four reels he keeps one in constant merriment, and in the last one he takes himself more seriously.

Steve is commissioned by the editor to look up a few facts concerning a Kentucky feud. The train sets him down in the mountain village just as he left Broadway, accompanied by a cane, tennis racquet, high hat and other useless accessories. Steve is mixed up in the feud right at the start, but after the thickest mixup of all he emerges minus his job and plus a girl.

Martha Hedman, featured in the picture, appears as Alice Renlow and renders well the part, although it offers her few strong opportunities. Dorothy Farnum, Bert Starkey, Robert Cummings and Jessie Lewis appear in support.

It may be mentioned with pleasure that the locations are realistic in every case. Wild mountain land is the background for all the exteriors, while the settings, comprising mainly the interiors of the feudists' cabins, are excellent. The photography is good from beginning to end, the night scenes being particularly effective.

As for the comedy end of the picture, such scenes as Steve doing everything but work in the office, his arrival in Kentucky, his initial experiences with the mountaineers and his appearance at the dance in a dress suit, can be mentioned as actual epitomes of laughter. The final fight, in which an entire house is completely wrecked, is truly thrilling.

"MADAME SARAH BERNHARDT AT HOME"

(Photoplay Releasing—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

THE fact that Madame Bernhardt is the best-known living actress, and also that on her frequent tours of the United States she has endeared herself to millions of people from coast to coast, will make this two-reel subject an enormously popular one with the better type of audience, and will doubtless draw many, who are not regular patrons, to the motion picture theatres. The drawing power of this piction should also be increased by the amount of publicity which Madame Bernhardt will receive in the American newspapers at the time of her proposed farewell tour, next fall.

The picture is taken on Madame Bernhardt's island, off the coast of Britain. It starts with her landing from the steamer by rowboat on Belle Isle, and shows in detail her home life here.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT

She is seen among her dogs, her horses and her gardens; in converse with her devoted tenants; journeying over the cliffs and through the caves of the picturesque Belle Isle with a sprightliness that is quite inconsistent with her age.

We see her playing tennis with enthusiasm and taking tea afterwards in the garden. In her study she is writing contributions for magazines and papers, and in her workshop she is completing the bust of Rostand, the famous author; for, as few know, Madame Bernhardt is a sculptor of no mean ability. After a strenuous day, begun at six in the morning, she takes a well-earned rest in the favorite corner of her library, overlooking the sea, surrounded by her favorite dogs.

The photography is excellent in its clear depiction of both the characters and of the picturesque scenery of this island home. Careful tinting adds to the beauty of many scenes.

President Aaron M. Gollos has purchased the American rights to this picture from Madame Bernhardt and the Belgium Red Cross Society, its mutual owners, and is disposing of prints to state rights buyers throughout the country.

"THE CROOKED PATH"

(Kalem—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

ALICE HOLLISTER and Harry Millarde are the principals in this drama. More than an inkling of the action may be gathered from the title.

Lynn and Alan love Mary. Alan wins her and cannot forget his jealousy of Lynn. Both work in the same bank. Alan falsifies the books so that Lynn goes to jail. While Lynn is serving his time Mary keeps his mother from starving. When Lynn is thanking Mary, on his release, Alan sees them. Jealous, he shoots and wounds Lynn.

Dade, an ex-convict, arrives in town. As Alan plans to abscond with some of the bank's money, Dade comes upon him. In the struggle for the money both are killed. This leaves Mary and Lynn free for future happiness.

Arthur Albertson is Lynn and Alice Hollister is Mary. Harry Millarde is Alan. Others are Helen Lindroth, James B. Rose and Henry Hallam. C. Doty Hobart is the author and Robert G. Vignola the director.

"THE FOX WOMAN"

(Majestic Mutual Masterpicture—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

PRETTY little Teddy Sampson, one of the daintiest of screen actresses, has the real lead in this picture, the role of the obedient Japanese girl whose husband is her god. His word is her law, even when he sends her to be the servant and toy of the fox woman with whom he is infatuated.

The grieving little wife, feeling that her husband's love is gone and the humiliations which have been heaped on her are too great for human endurance, is about to commit hari-kari on the tomb of her ancestors, when the husband, freed from the fox woman's spell by her death, arrives just in time. So the good in the husband is again brought to the fore by the love of his wife.

Voluptuous Signe Auen plays the fox woman, an American girl in Japan, an art dilettante who amuses herself by enslaving the Japanese and demanding the humiliation of the wife. The fox woman poses around her studio in vampirish negligee. Thus attired she completely bewitches the husband, played by Elmer Clifton. Bert Hadley does a fine character part as the husband's father.

The Japanese gardens of a big estate on the Pacific coast were used for the exteriors.

Lloyd Ingraham produced the picture from the novel by John Luther Long, who wrote "Madame Butterfly."

"THE STRANGLER'S CORD"

(Kalem—Two-Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

THIS is the first of a Kalem two-reel series which will be released under the general title of "Mysteries of the Grand Hotel." The material for the series was gathered from hotel detectives all over the country. The stories are, in the main, actual happenings. This first picture is a fiction story, though.

For this series the Kalem company built a very pretentious hotel, set with a mezzanine floor and real elevators. This will be seen all through the series.

Don Louis Gonzales is the man whom vengeance pursues. The first attempt comes when the Don finds a cobra in his bed. Next, a strangler's weighted cord encircles his neck. Then a large chandelier crashes down in the dining room, barely missing the Don.

The girl house detective gets on the job in time to release the Don from a terrible predicament. Valdez, a cigar maker, had bound and gagged the Don and buried him with only his head sticking out. Valdez was about to release a poisonous snake when the girl detective and her assistant arrived. Further adventures will be seen in coming issues.

ON THE TRAIL

Marin Sais is the house detective and Charles Cummings is her assistant. William H. West is Don Louis, Thomas Lingham is the cigar maker, and Ollie Kirby is his daughter, who is not in the plot to kill. Hamilton Smith is the author and James W. Horne the producer.

"THE SECRETARY OF FRIVOLOUS AFFAIRS"

(American Mutual Masterpicture—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

HAROLD LOCKWOOD has the leading part, if any one part may be so distinguished in this drama. It is a society drama, with a multitude of pretty girls and Gibson men. The settings are really magnificent. Many of them cannot be sets, but must be interiors of richly-furnished private houses or museums.

Loulie, a rich girl suddenly impoverished, takes a job as the secretary of frivolous affairs to Mrs. Hazard, her chief duty being to find new matrimonial choices for Hap Hazard, the polo-playing son, and his sister.

Trouble starts when valuable paintings are stolen. Suspicion falls on Winthrop, a young author, engaged to the Hazard girl. But Mrs. Cutler, a guest, is finally found to be the guilty party, after many entanglements are unravelled. Winthrop is restored to favor and Hap is accepted by Loulie.

The cast of principals is so large as to be unwieldy. Harold Lockwood is Hap, May Allison is Loulie and William Ehfe is Winthrop. Those are the parts easiest for the spectators to follow. Others in the cast are Carol Holloway, Lillian Gonzales, Josephine Ditt, Hal Clements, Louise Linn, Carl Von Schiller and Wallace MacDonald.

Thomas Ricketts produced the picture from the book by May Futrelle.

"DESTINY'S SKEIN"

(Lubin—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

GEORGE TERWILLIGER, author and producer, has here dabbled in medical science, by making Tom Green, around whom the plot hinges, subject to fits of mental aberration, during which he commits crimes of which he has no knowledge a few hours later.

Whether this peculiar condition could ever be found in the annals of medicine is a question, but at least it makes an exciting story.

Earl Fortier, disinherited because he will not follow his father's business, becomes a physician of note. During a trip south, he meets and loves Ormi Green, whose brother suffers the mental lapses. Tom not only steals money from his employer, but later on kills him. As Earl has taken the name of Calmet, it is not known that the murdered man is his father until after he marries Ormi.

TOM IS ARRESTED

Circumstantial evidence points to her as the murderer, but after some thrilling scenes on the screen, before any real harm is done, all is discovered through Tom's sweetheart, Bertha Hubbard. The doctor cures Tom completely, and all four live happily ever afterward.

The casting of Ormi Hawley and Earl Metcalfe as the leads, insures proper conception and delineation of their parts. Kempton Greene is to be commended for his work as Tom. Hazel Hubbard as Betha completes the cast.

"THE MATING"

(Ince Mutual Masterpicture—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

BESSIE BARRISCALE'S wonderful big brown eyes and her histrionic ability make her part in this picture conspicuous.

She plays a little country girl, who goes away to boarding school only to find herself without chums among the other girls and a wall-flower at receptions because she is unable to shed her chrysalis.

"Bullet Dick" Ames, a college football player, is the girls' hero. Doris writes herself a letter purporting to come from "Bullet Dick" and purposely drops it. The other girls find it, but don't believe it. So they arrange to humiliate Doris by introducing her to her hero at a reception.

Dick, however, learns of the plot in advance, and foils it by acting as if he and Doris were old friends. Later he proposes and is accepted.

The other girls' scornful treatment of Doris at pajama parties and receptions and her grief thereat are very well done. Doris's grief seems very real. One good touch is the overwhelming illness of the sporty girl who simply would smoke a cigar at a party.

THE SOCIAL QUEEN OF THE SCHOOL

Lewis J. Cody is Dick. Enid Markey and Margaret Thompson are the leaders among the snobbish girls, Miss Thompson playing Dick's sister. Walter Whitman is Doris's father and Ida Lewis is the principal of the school. C. Gardner Sullivan wrote the scenario.

"THE DISCONTENTED MAN"

(Lubin—One Reel)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

THE hackneyed plot of a man lacking the "vision and the dream," until a bad accident makes a cripple of him, forms the theme of this film. Still there is enough of interest in the offering to give it a popular appeal.

The fight between the miners, Jim and Pete, is a big scene, as is also the explosion in the mine, which cripples Jim and Rodney Blake, the discontented hero.

A good contrast is shown between Mary, the girl over whom the miners fought, and Miriam, the sweetheart of Rodney, whom he had doubted. Mary, after plighting her troth to Jim, gives him up for Pete when Jim is injured, but Miriam, learning of Rodney's crippled condition, goes back to him in remorseful love.

Jim has to be satisfied with the material help the now successful author, Rodney, promises him.

Robert Gray, Dorothy Barrett, Jay Morley, C. C. Miller, Helen Eddy, L. C. Shumway form the cast.

"WHEN AMBROSE DARED WALRUS"

(Keystone—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

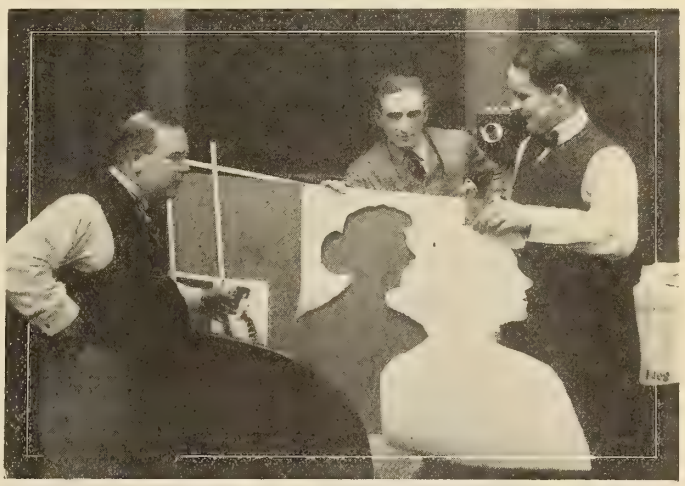
THIS is one of those inspired comedies which no one but Mack Sennett seems able to make. Chester Conklin and Mack Swain distinguished themselves in the two leading roles. The walrus is a henpecked hotel proprietor who gets in trouble in the ladies' swimming pool. Ambrose gets stuck when he tries to emulate a lady contortionist and climb through a hoop.

But the fun reaches its height when the hotel catches fire with the insurance unpaid. Walrus outpaces the fire engine in his dash to pay the insurance. Then he returns in time to fall off the roof onto the top of a stream of water played by the hose, which buffets him up and down like the whirling balls in a shooting gallery.

The comedy lies in the stage business, and Mack Sennett has provided something new every minute. This picture really is a riot, with no apologies to those who have used this term undeservedly.

"THE SHADOW AND THE SHADE"

(Selig—Two Reels)



REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

THIS two-reel special, scheduled for July 9, contains a decidedly original idea, which is handled sufficiently well to insure the audience's interest throughout the picture. Stella Razeto plays the part of Anne Hillman with her usual charm, and Lamar Johnstone exhibits strong acting at times in the role of her husband, a banker who is just recovering from a long illness.

The story revolves around the efforts of Robert Foster, an unscrupulous financier, to effect a compromise with the Hillman interests. Unsuccessful in his attempts to win Hillman over personally, and equally unsuccessful in persuading Hillman's young wife, whom he had known before her marriage, to exert her influence, he resorts to a dastardly trick to get Hillman out of the way.

This is suggested by his knowledge that Hillman in his run down condition cannot withstand a severe shock. With the aid of a photograph of Mrs. Hillman, he cuts out her profile and places this on the back of a window shade in the room of a hotel which faces the Hillman apartment.

A light behind the silhouette makes it appear as if Mrs. Hillman were in Foster's room. Spying this profile, excitement and jealous rage overcome the weakened Hillman and he falls to the floor unconscious. The hastily called physician, however, succeeds in reviving him and the discovery of the plot acts as antidote for the severe shock.

PATHE ROOSTER GETS OVATION AT PLAY IN NEW YORK

A GREAT big rooster was added to the cast of "The Passing Show of 1915," at the Winter Garden, New York city, recently. The occasion was a theatre party in honor of the branch managers of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., who are in the city to attend the annual conference.

The bird, a handsome yellow one, was carried on by one of the actors and was given a great ovation.

"AFTER DARK"

(Brady-World Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

SEVERAL years ago when this play by Dion Boucicault was produced in New York, William A. Brady appeared in the featured role of Old Tom, a character the prototype of which can be singled out at any time among the derelict inhabitants of New York City park benches. The old melodrama has now been screened as a William A. Brady-World Film release with no less a distinguished character artist than Alec B. Francis playing the part of Old Tom.

Old Tom sells papers on the streets of New York. Years since he was a promising United States army officer on duty in the Philippines. While there his wife deserted him for one Bellamy, and on his return, to drown his sorrow, he took to drink.

Bellamy runs a gambling house with another man Morris. He acts as the ward for Old Tom's daughter. The two gamblers have a young man in their power mainly because he has forged his father's name to a check. He is in love with Fanny and finally elopes with her. The gamblers attempt to force him to leave his wife and marry his cousin in order to receive more money, but happily enough Old Tom is able to intervene at the last moment, the gamblers are arrested and the old man is at last reunited with his daughter.

The general run of melodramas contains certain crudities and inconsistencies that although they are quite obvious to the spectator, do little harm to the production as a whole. "After Dark" is no exception to the rule. There are some situations which are not evolved according to the laws of logic. There are others that strike one as being quite impossible. But against this there are such tense moments as that scene in which the gamblers throw George on the subway track and his rescue by Old Tom in the nick of time, and, too, the realistic atmosphere of the picture counts much in its favor.

The dirty hovel that Tom calls his home is an admirable scene, while several scenes are taken on the streets of New York. These, of course, are realistic to the extent that they could not be improved upon in one sense, while, on the other hand, it is to be regreted that so many innocent bystanders had to stop and glare at the camera.

Mr. Francis renders a performance of noticeable excellence in the principal part, while in his support appear Erie Maxon, Melville Stewart, Norman Trevor, J. H. Goldworthy, Charles Dungan, Bertrart Marburgh, Dorothy Green and Kathryn Adams.

A novel scene opens the production, showing Longacre square at night, illuminated with millions of electric lights. A contrast is given in the scenes laid in the Philippines, with several battles staged. "After Dark" should in every respect prove its worth as a melodrama.

"WHEN WIFIE SLEEPS"

(Lubin—One Reel)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

ATLANTIC CITY, with its varied forms of amusement, gives good scope for the fun-making gyrations of Billie Reeves in this rollicking comedy. Bill and his wife (Mae Hotely) go for a little visit to the shore. Bill takes the first opportunity to steal away and pursue some attractive girls.

While wifie sleeps in a rolling chair, Bill and the girls (Patsy

BILL HAS A GOOD TIME

DeForest and Minnie Kloter) do all sorts of laughter-making stunts, ending with Bill being thrown bodily back on the boardwalk. As wifie still sleeps, he escapes further trouble.

"A WOMAN"

(Essanay—Two Acts)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

STROLLING nonchalantly through the park, Charlie Chaplin comes in contact with a watering spray, but the exasperation which this accident causes is offset as he spies a pretty girl seated on a bench with her father and mother.

The father, a flirtatious old boy, is inveigled away by a dashing young woman who makes eyes at him as she passes the bench. Father falls for her suggestion for a game of blind man's buff. She blindfolds him, takes his watch and disappears, leaving the old man helpless when Chaplin arrives on the scene.

Instead of helping the blindfolded man out of his predicament by taking him back to his family, Charlie leads him with the crook of his cane to a pond, and after finding a nice deep spot, calmly pushes him in. Then he betakes himself to the bench where he makes the acquaintance of the man's wife and daughter and accompanies them home.

Here he has a beautiful time until the father arrives, but the new found friend of his family brings back memories of a thorough ducking. In the rough-house fight which follows the disclosure of Chaplin's identity to the irate old man, Charlie loses his trousers, much to the horror of the wife and daughter. Ejected into the street he creates a panic among the passers-by, and is forced to retreat to the house.

He dons some of the daughter's clothing, shaves his mustache and thus transformed into a bewitching young girl, appears before the father and his friend, both of whom are completely captivated by the vision of loveliness.

The arrival of the wife in the midst of the flirtation provokes another riot, and again Chaplin loses the lower part of his wearing apparel. The disclosure relieves the wife's anxiety, but causes Chaplin considerable embarrassment, and another precipitous ejection from the house.

With great dexterity he forcibly relieves one of his erstwhile admirers of his trousers and waddles away down the street. This is a screamingly funny comedy from start to finish. Chaplin makes a hit as a female impersonator.

"KINDLING."

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

IN "Kindling" we are given a portrayal of city tenement life at its very worst. Nothing is actually pleasant in it save for a few scenes bringing the picture to a close. Only one or two scenes are responsible for laughter, and that laughter is weak.

To definitely describe the production we might hazard a guess that the author, Charles Kenyon, collected all the unhappy incidents that thrust themselves on the miserable families of any great city and wove the story of one poor couple about them .

The poor couple, guided by influences of heredity and environment, are greatly to be pitied and therein lies the picture's appeal. The plight of the desperate man and wife will awaken the deepest sympathy, even though in some instances that sympathy will be abetted by a few exaggerated situations.

Maggie Shultz, the wife of a stevedore, is happy in the thought of her expected child. One night her husband comes out with the statement that he would rather kill his own child than bring it up in the tenement district of a great city. To substantiate this he takes his wife through the filthy streets of the district in which they live.

These impressions so affect Maggie that she decides to rob the owner of her tenement so that she and her husband may depart for the West and bring up the child in safety. She accomplishes this, but her husband discovers it. He soundly upbraids her, but protects her from the police. Later Maggie almost beyond her reason tells the whole story to the fashionable woman who owns the tenement, roundly curses her and in the bargain converts her.

Such in brief is the story, although there are sub-plots that add greatly to the interest. The atmosphere of the entire picture is most realistic; the photography is not to be criticised.

As Maggie, Charlotte Walker makes her first appearance on the screen and does acceptable work. The husband is played by Thomas Meighan, while the thief's role is carried by Raymond Hatton. Others are Mrs. Lewis McCord, Billy Elmer, Lillian Langdon, Florence Dagmar and Tom Forman. The picture played at the Strand theatre and impressed its beholders.

"The Chadford Diamonds." (Biograph. Mon., July 19.)—A pair of society thieves make their way into good circles by the ruse of "permitting" the woman to be saved from what seems to be an attack by a footpad. They get away with what they think is a diamond necklace but find that a fake necklace was substituted by the daughter and secretary of the rich family.

The daughter and secretary are in love. Charles Perley and Augusta Anderson are the crooks; Charles Bennett is the rich man and Madge Kirby and Robert Nolan his daughter and private secretary. Directed by George E. Reehms.

"His Singular Lesson." (Biograph. Thurs., July 22.)—The jealous husband who thinks to surprise his wife with her lover finds that the other man is a burglar. A well done comedy-drama. Alan Hale and Claire McDowell as the husband and wife and Hector V. Sarno as the burglar. Walter Coyle directed.

"His Criminal Career." (Biograph. Sat., July 24.)—George Green, at his club, bets he can hold a job a month though posing as an ex-convict. Through the work of a real convict he is arrested but finally wins his bet and a wife as well. Charles Peley is Green and Augusta Anderson the girl he wins. William J. Butler plays a professor and Robert Nolan a crooked detective. George E. Rheems made this picture, too.

"A Daughter of Earth." (Biograph. Two reels. Tues., July 20.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"A Change for the Better." (Edison. July 21.)—A comedy of mix-ups. Directed by Will Louis.

"The Secret of the Cellar." (Edison, Sat., July 24.)—Sally Crute has one of her adventuress parts in this melodrama. The cellar is the hiding place of a band of thieves. Much exciting action. Directed by J W. Castle.

"The Fable of the Home Treatment and the Sure Cure." (Essanay. Wed., July 21.)—One of the exceptionally good George Ade fables in which a leading citizen cures his offspring of her love for a young man by inviting him to live with the family The moral is "Don't get acquainted too soon." Charles Stine, Frankie Raymond, Peggy Sweeney and Albert Martin do good work in the principal parts.

"Others Started But Sophie Finished." (Essanay. Thurs., July 22.)—A good slapstick with Ben and Mrs. Turpin, Margaret Joselin, Victor Potel and Harry Tood playing the main parts. The plot is conventional but this makes little difference in the present case.

"The Sky Hunters." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., July 23.)—An exceptionally good release, written by W. Anthony McGuire and featuring Edna Mayo and Bryant Washburn. The moonshiner's daughter is brought up as a boy. When a revenue officer starts prying around in the mountains he meets this girl dressed in men's clothing.

She is suspicious of him and he of her. Due to numerous wranglings in the band and the fear of detection by the government, the members separate. The girl, however, has found the man she loves in the revenue officer.

"A Bag of Gold." (Essanay. Mon., July 19.) An inventor steals money that he may be able to complete his machine. The cashier of the bank is accused of the crime and is obliged to serve a long prison term. Later he secures employment with the guilty man. Their children being in love, the inventor realizes his cowardice and speedily makes amends. Sydney Ainsworth, Beverly Bayne, Clara Haskell and Jack Meredith are the leads.

"Jabez's Conquest." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., July 20.)—In which a farmer manages to outwit two gangs of thieves that attempt to take his money away from him while he is traveling in Europe. Nell Craig, Sheldon Lewis, Jack Meredith and Ben Hendricks are in the cast.

"The Crooked Path." (Kalem. Two reels. Mon., July 19.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"The Spook Raisers." (Kalem. Tues., July 20.—Ham is the medium and little Bud the latest things in spirits in this comedy. They have all sorts of really funny adventures, which are brought to an end by a materialistic policeman whose wife is a seance habitue. Harry Griffith is the policeman and Ethel Teare is the wife. Myrtle Sterling plays a fake spiritualist and Martin Kinney is her assistant. The co-operation between the medium and assistant furnishes the comedy business which is very good.

"The Strangler's Cord." (Kalem. Two reels. Wed., July 21.)—Reviewed at length elsewhere in this issue.

"In Double Harness." (Kalem. Two reels. Fri., July 23.)—By a liberal use of close-ups, most of them very well placed. Tom Moore, director and leading man, has built a pleasing, light, two-reel picture out of a very tenuous story, which deals with the double elopement of mother and son. Marguerite Courtot plays opposite Tom Moore as the daughter. Helen Daly plays the eloping mother. Richard Lyle and Ina Brooks are the girl's parents.

"The Girl on the Engine." (Kalem. Sat., July 24.)—Another of the always exciting "Hazards of Helen" series with Helen Holmes. This time Helen drives an engine and opens the exhaust valve, effectually stalling the engine just where it stops employees of a rival road from tearing up the tracks to put a new line through. A hand-to-hand fight between the gangs results in victory for Helen's side. Well done and exciting.

"A Barnyard Mix-Up." (Lubin. Split reel. Tues., July 20.)—A funny cartoon by Vincent Whitman, bringing Rastus again on the screen. Farmer Corntassel finds Rastus after his chickens and leads him a merry dance over haystacks, but the bullets of the farmer have no effect, so an ax is brought into requisition and Rastus is laid low. A dynamite explosion resurrects the little thief. As a huge goat suddenly appears, the erstwhile enemies make common cause against the animal.

"A New Way to Win." (Lubin. Split reel. With "A Barnyard Mix-Up." Tues., July 20.)—A new angle on the mother-in-law joke forms the substance of this comedy, which, however, has a human touch that can teach a valuable lesson—that three people can dwell together in amity, if they will only make allowances for other people's peculiarities as well as their own.

John tried to get rid of his mother-in-law. but the wife objects, and makes life so miserable for hubby he is glad to get "mother" back on any terms. After a storm, they all decide to forget the lurid past and start all over again on a better plane. Hattie Edwards is the mother, Baby Mack her daughter, John Edwards the husband.

"Her Idol." (Lubin. One reel. Fri., July 23.)—This picture, adapted from V. E. Roe's story, "A Phoenix of the Hills," tells of the noble hearted sacrifice of Hedda, a young Italian girl who is the cook at the ranch where McMurtry is foreman. When the foreman, under sudden temptation, attempts to steal some money left in his care, Hedda takes the crime on herself. It turns out all right in the end, however, and Hedda and McMurtry marry. Joseph Smiley directed.

The cast comprises Justina Huff, John Smiley, Clarence J. Elmer, Harry Loomis, William Carr. A particulaly good scene is the cowboys at dinner, during which they unmercifully bait little Hedda.

"The Foreman of the Bar Z Ranch." (Selig. Tues., June 30.)—A western drama produced by Tom Mix from a scenario by Wallace Clifton. Tom, the sole heir to his uncle's wealth, is accused of murdering him when the older man is found dead after Tom had quarreled with him over Tom's love affair. After developments point to another as the culprit. This is fairly entertaining, although the plot and situations are conventional.

"At the Flood Tide." (Selig Wed., July 21.)—This drama is rather gruesome. The fisherman mistreats his wife and as a consequence an old friend of the woman kills him Another man she loved is accused of the crime, but after she has taken the blame herself a note is found from the real murderer, confessing the deed.

"The Goddess." (Vitagraph. Chapter Ten. Two reels.)—In this number Tommy, who is living with one of the miners, gets into serious trouble. The miner's wife loves him and when she discovers that her love is not returned it turns to hate.

She makes her husband believe that Tommy attempted to embrace her, and the miners, led by the enraged husband, are about to hang the innocent man when Celestia arrives on the scene accompanied by Stilleter. Celestia by her simple and unaffected manners forces the woman to tell the truth.

This is a very interesting number with Anita Stewart, and Earle Williams doing most of the work but ably supported by Eulalie Jensen as the miner's wife, Ned Finley as the miner, and William Dangman as Freddy.

MUTUAL PROGRAM

"The Diamond from the Sky." (North American. Two reels. Chapter Eleven.)—Blair's mother demands that he marry Esther instead of the adventuress. He consents and the same day begins his suit. Esther pays little attention to him as she is always thinking of Arthur.

In the meantime Arthur has become very rich in the west. Luke Lovell, the gypsy, attempts to find him as he is possessed of some knowledge of the estate. He rides on a freight car, but is thrown off. When he comes to he discovers the diamond lying beside him on the track.

As he is about to snatch it a snake strikes him Here Arthur finds him on the track as he is returning from work The diamond is lost again and an Indian finds it. Esther resolves to go to Arthur and starts west, accompanied by an old family servant.

"Old Jane of the Gaiety." (Thanhouser. uSn., July 18.)—Old Jane is the wardrobe woman at the Gaiety theatre whose story persuades a little chorus girl not to go on her first party but to marry the man she loves—her country sweetheart. Ethyle Cook does well in the dual role of Jane as she tells the story and as she was when a chorus girl Grace Decarlton is the little chorus girl. Others are Jay Yorke, Morgan Niblack, Janet Henry and Winnifred Lane.

"The Mystic Jewel." (Majestic. Two reels. Sun., July 18.)—John Burton is suspected of having killed his brother to obtain the jewel. The doctor tells the newspaper men he has the jewel. Thus he traps the real thief, an Oriental girl in search of the jewel. The players are Signe Auen, Chales West, Joseph Henabery, Lucille Younge and Spottiswoode Aitken. Jack Conway directed.

"A Chase by Moonlight." (Komic. Sun., July 18.)—A Fay Tincher comedy, with a motorcycle-automobile chase. The other funmakers are Clarence Barr, Elmer Booth, Max Davidson and Louise Aichel.

"The Lie." (Reliance. Mon., July 19.)—A fisherfolk story. Galeb marries Joan through the lie. He tells her that her husband was drowned at sea. But David comes back and regains his wife and child. Adoni Fovieri is the wife. Joseph E. Singleton is Galeb and William Hinkley the husband. Little Betty Marsh is the child. Ray Myers producer.

"The Picture of Dorian Gray." (Thanhouser. Two reels. Tues., July 20.)—An adaptation of Oscar Wilde's famous story. Harris Gordon plays Dorian Gray, whose picture as painted by Basil Hallward, unmasks the inward bestiality of his nature. Dorian finally follows the example of his sweetheart Evelyn and kills himself. Helen Fulton plays Evelyn and A. Howard is the artist. Ray Johnston is Lord Wotton, Gray's friend.

"The Runaways." (Majestic. Tues., July 20.)—One of the Majestic kid comedies. The bad boy persuades Carmen to run away with him. Georgie rescues the handcar in the nick of time from a rushing freight train. Violet Radcliffe is the tough kid, George Stone is the good boy and Carmen De Rue is Carmen. These kid comedies are always good.

"Cash Parrish's Pal." (Broncho. Two reels. Wed., July 21.)—William S. Hart plays Cash Parrish, a bandit, who is betrayed to the sheriff by his pal. Cash gets away but returns to find his wife defending herself from Jud, the pal. The posse arrives. In the melee Jud is killed and Cash and his wife escape. The sheriff is satisfied with recovering the loot. A good Hart Western subject. Clara Williams is the wife. Robert Kortman is Jud and Lewis Durham the sheriff.

"Old Mother Gray" (Reliance. Wed., July 21.)—Madge, the newsgirl, played by Teddy Sampson, who is featured, discovers that Mother Grey is an heiress. Later she and Dan, her policeman sweetheart, rescue Mother Gray from designing relations, who want to commit her to an asylum. Mrs. Crowell is Mother Gray. Bert Hadley is Dan. William Lowery and Olga Gray are the bad relations. Produced by Francis Powers.

"Cash Parrish's Pal." (Broncho. Two reels. Wed., July 21.)—A western drama featuring William S. Hart and Clara Williams. On the eve of the bandit's reformation his pal betrays him to the sheriff, but Cash and his wife successfully get away to Mexico. This is much better than the average western. Mr. Hart is as good as ever, and plays a role in which he is best. Very fine scenes and photography mark this release.

"The Little Catamount." (Majestic. Fri., July 23.)—Dorothy Gish plays Hattie, a mountain girl, the little catamount. She falls in love with Wallace, a stranger, who rescues her from one of her impetuous mountain lovers. Thinking he has forgotten her, she is about to kill herself when he returns and all ends well. Ralph Lewis does fine work as the father. W. E. Lawrence is Wallace. Frank Bennett and William Brown are moonshiners. This is a better picture than the short synopsis indicates. There is a lot of good business and plenty of action. Paul Powell produced it.

"P. Henry Jenkins and Mars." (Falstaff, Fri., July 23.)—P. Henry Jenkins, a meek little fellow, gets hold of a modern helmet of Mars which gives the wearer unbounded courage. In a single day he browbeats all his tomentors from his boss to his wife. He loses the hat next day but the one day's aggressiveness carries him through the rest of his life. Riley Chamberlain is Jenkins. Joseph Phillips is his employer and Nellie Parker Spaulding his wife. Wayne Arey is Mars and Claude Cooper is Olympus.

UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

"Animated Weekly." No. 175. (Wed., July 14.)—Bryan arriving home at Lincoln, Nebraska; a number of boating pictures, war news and several novel features combine to make this a most entertaining number.

"Scandal." (Broadway Universal Features. Five reels. Mon., July 19.)—Reviewed at length in issue of June 19.

"There's Many a Slip." (Nestor. Mon., July 19.)—Not one of the especially fine Nestor's, but laughable enough to be enjoyed. The plot concerns chiefly three suitors for the hand of the same girl. The situations that appear in the course of the comedy's development are refreshingly original compared to the general run of comedy moments. Ben Cohn prepared the scenario which was produced by Horace Davey with a cast including Neal Burns, Billie Rhodes, Jack Connelly and Kingsley Benedict.

"Homage." (Gold Seal. Two reels. Tues., July 20)—An excellently constructed story written by Harvey Gates and produced by William Worthington. The theme is pleasing in more ways than one, while the acting, photography and direction is most suitable.

A greedy man embezzles and is arrested. He leaves enough money to bring up his son comfortably. When released his son is married. The old man gets a job with him as gardener and learns that his boy is treading the same path that led him to disaster. Although he had planned never to let his son know of his own disgrace he tells him to prevent him from meeting the same fate. William Worthington plays the father, Herbert Rawlinson the son and Anna Little his wife. This is one of the best pictures of this week's program.

"A Happy Pair." (Rex. Tues., July 20.)—An enjoyable comedy-drama conceived along lines quite familiar to program releases. Wife has a grouchy and brutal husband, so to cure him she adopts the same plan and treats him unmercifully until he vows to mend his ways. This has some very humorous scenes in the course of its development.

"What Might Have Been." (Imp. Tues., July 20.)—The horrible vision that comes to the girl when she thinks of marrying the gambler insead of the honest policeman causes her to accept the latter. A fair picture with Frances Nelson, William Wells and William O'Neil in the leading parts.

"A Weird Nemesis." (Victor. Two reels. Wed., July 21.)—A girl whose sister has been wronged by a young idler forces him into a marriage with herself through hypnotism. Subsequently she continually plays upon the wrong he has committed. So much does she do so that her husband imagines that she is the girl he wronged. Finally she haunts him to such an extent that he meets his death. This is an original subject of great dramatic power, produced and acted very well. Jacques Jaccard both wrote it and directed Alan Forrest, Hazel Buckham and Helen Leslie in the principal roles.

"The Curse of a Name." (L-Ko. Wed., July 21.)—Much better than the average run of L-Kos. The story is strong enough to hold the many laughable scenes together while the entire cast evidences more than ordinary care in effecting incidental actions. Henry Lehreman, Harry Gribbon and Peggy Pearce are in the cast. Alice Howell as the stenographer is an excellent comedienne in this case.

"Thou Shalt Not Lie." (Imp. Two reels. Thurs., July 22.)—Because of a heavy gambling debt, the bank cashier robs the vault, fixes the books and makes his escape. Years later he has turned farmer and is living happily with his wife and child. Relenting he returns the stolen money to the bank by check. A detective comes after him, but is so affected by the actions of the farmer's little girl that he makes no arrest.

This is somewhat of a lifeless drama except for the scenes in which the farmer's wife saves the detective from an onrushing freight train. Its development is rather poor, among other things the passage of time is not well indicated. Its most appealing scenes come near the end with the relenting of the detective. William Garwood is the cashier-farmer, Violet Mersereau his wife, and Charles Ogle the detective.

"The Burden Bearer." (Big U. Thurs., July 22.)—A secret marriage has a most unhappy ending. The husband during the course of a flirtation is killed by a fall. The wife to drown her sorrow marries another man. Harry Linkey, Adele Lane and Edward Sloman are the principals in this drama which is only fair, both in story and treatment.

"At the Sign of the Three Socks." (Powers. Thurs., July 22.)—Another of the serial burlesques written by Clarence Badger and produced by Allen Curtis. It is not quite as good as the others have been, containing considerably more crude devices for producing laughter.

"A Day at Universal City." (Nestor Two reels. Fri., July 23.)—Those who have long enjoyed Al Christie's comedies will now have the very pleasant opportunity of seeing them in the process of manufacture, for Mr. Christie in this two reel subject has shown all the processes which his comedies go though, from the scenario department to the exhibition room, where the comedy itself, which the spectator has seen produced, "Getting a Square Meal" is thrown on the screen.

It is a very interesting feature, and ought to take well in any house as its combined educational and comical value is great. Other views about Universal city are thrown in here and there, familiar faces often appear, and several which are not so familiar, including Mr. Christie himself. Those who take part in the comedy are Eddie Lyons, Victoria Forde, Lee Moran, Stella Adams and Harry Rattenberry.

"Jeanne of the Woods." (Victor. Fri., July 23.)—A weak subject in both story and atmosphere. The daughter of the northern guide with the aid of her sweetheart captures a band of smugglers Mary Fuller and Pedor de Cordoba are the leads.

"The Mad Maid of the Forest." (Bison. Two reels. Sat., July 24.)—A girl, evidently insane, meets a young doctor while he is on a hunting trip. Discovery that she is suffering from a blood clot on the brain he operates on her and learns the cause of her temporary insanity. This story by Ben Cohn is good, but the most noticeable point concerning the picture is its fine scenes and realistic atmosphere. Two badgers are introduced in the forest scenes, adding a decided touch of local color. Gene Gauntier and Jack Clark are featured.

"The Honor of Kenneth McGrath." (Powers. Sat., July 24.)—In which a young man is cast in a wrong light by his corrupt uncle and a penniless Baron, who succeed for a while in making him appear the culprit before his fiancee. He finally clears matters himself. A fair story, just a little too complicated to totally please. Sydney Ayres, Val Paul and Doris Pawn enact the main roles.

"The Duel at Dawn." (Joker. Sat., July 24.)—A good rough comedy with a novel ending written by Badger and produced by Curtis. Max Asher incurs the enmity of a Frenchman and a Russian, and promises to meet both in a duel. He gets his friend the doctor to rig up an electrical mat for his opponents to stand on, and consequently easily defeats them when the current is turned on. William Frane and Milburn Moranti are the foreigners.

"According to Values." (Laemmle. Sun., July 25.)—A fine story, excellently produced is presented in this reel. The ex-convict procures a position with his brother's employer who is on the verge of failure. The boss bullies his new employee into robbing his house, so that he will not go to the wall, but the ex-convict is caught by his brother. Explanations are offered and all terminates happily. Frank Lloyd, Millard Wilson, Marc Robbins and Vera Sisson are in the cast. Harvey Gates and Mr. Lloyd prepared the scenario.

"The Broken Coin." (Universal special. Fifth Episode. Two reels. Week of July 19.)—This instalment, entitled "The Underground Foe," is crowded with thrilling incidents in most of which Eddie Polo figures prominently, exhibiting just as much prowess and strength as ever. Kitty gains possession of both halves of the coin, but in the final scene Kitty, Rolleaux and Count Frederick are surrounded by apaches and are obliged to unite their forces and fight together. Their fate is left to be pictured in the following episode.

SOMETHING EVERY EXHIBITOR SHOULD KNOW ABOUT

MINA FILMS

THE fact that the producers of MinA Films have found it feasible to establish a second company after the new MinA Films were shown is a powerful recommendation for the merit of these one reel comedies.

This means simply that MinA Films made good with a vengeance.

Thomas A Edison Presents a Picturesque 3-Act Feature of Gypsy Life by the Noted Playwright, Lee Arthur

Bessie Learn

The Emotional Little Leading Lady

and

Carlton King

Sterling Character Actor

In the

3-Act Feature of Adventure

"THE GIRL OF THE GYPSY CAMP"

Ideal little gypsy girl of the open does Bessie Learn make, and picturesque indeed are the locations, etc.—those of real gypsies. Bessie Learn who, in "According to Their Lights," proved herself possessed to an unusual degree of the power to maintain emotional suspense of an intense nature, finds in the little gypsy girl, abused by everybody, a happy medium for the sympathetic little girl impersonations she does so well.

Carlton King, the splendid fanatic of "The Working of a Miracle," is here a capital, desperate gypsy lover. Also, Charles Sutton, Frank McGlynn, John Walker and Jessie Stevens.

Breezy Raymond McKee as the tramp in "Poor Baby," a comedy. 1,000 feet. Direction, Will Louis. Wednesday, July 28th.

Bigelow Cooper, Bessie Learn and Edward Earle in the one-act drama, "The Bedouin's Sacrifice." Direction, Harry Beaumont. Saturday, July 31.

The Importance of Press Notices to the Exhibitor

"THE MATING" IS WONDER PLAY OF THE SCREEN

Bessie Barriscale Eclipses Former Triumphs In New Mutual Masterpicture.

LOVE AND STRENGTH DRAMA.

Thomas H. Ince's Latest Production Vital In Theme and Action.

Bessie Barriscale, whose triumphs in Mutual Masterpictures produced by the New York Motion Picture Corporation are proving her one of the greatest emotional actresses of the screen, is the star of "The Mating," a five-part Mutual Masterpicture produced under the personal supervision of Director Thomas H. Ince. Miss Barriscale eclipses her former successes.

C. Gardiner Sullivan, author of "The Reward" and several other of these feature photo dramas de luxe, in "The Mating" deviates somewhat from the themes of his other great plays, but in true Sullivan style furnishes a story which is unique in plot and dramatic effect.

As Doris Willard, Miss Barriscale has been furnished with a vehicle different in many ways from all her previous efforts, the role, however, affording her a splendid opportunity of demonstrating her many emotional talents. In casting Miss Barriscale for the title role of "The Mating" Director Ince surrounded her with an exceptionally strong cast, headed by Lewis J. Cody, erstwhile Broadway star, in the role of "Bullet Dick" Ames, college hero and gridiron star. Enid Markey, who has appeared in several Mutual Masterpictures, portrays Daisy Arnold, whose petty jealousies bring almost endless woe to the poor village girl, while Margaret Thompson as Eleanor Ames, Walter Whitman as the Rev. Willard and Ida Lewis as Miss Fitch complete the cast.

"The Mating" is founded on the ambitions of Doris, simple country girl and daughter of the village parson, who craves a college education. Doris, unfamiliar with the life of the great world as represented beyond the boundaries of the village in which she was born and has spent all the eighteen years of her life, after many sacrifices on the part of her father, finally departs for Hamlin, where the great institution of learning is located. On her arrival at the college her antiquated raiment and typical village manners make her the object of the students' ridicule.

Doris quickly realizes that she "doesn't belong," but determines to make another try before returning home. The day of the great game between Yale and Harvard, the culmination of the football season, finds the students in a hilarious state of mind over the events of the afternoon, which they are to attend in a body. Ignoring Doris, they depart, leaving the poor girl alone with her tears in her room. Before her lies the morning paper. On the front page, like a gladiator of old, is a picture of "Bullet Dick" Ames, whom the experts concede the greatest halfback the game has ever known. On him rests the honor of winning the great game of the afternoon.

As expected, "Bullet Dick" is the big factor in the victory, which brings the season's championship to his teammates. At the great reception tendered the victors that evening "Bullet Dick" is the cynosure of all eyes except those of unhappy Doris, who has not been invited. Piqued by the snubs of the students and particularly those of Daisy Arnold, the prettiest girl in the college and reputed fiancee of "Bullet Dick," the country girl seeks revenge and writes a letter to herself, purporting to come from the gridiron star, in which he pledges his love.

Later she purposely drops the letter at the feet of a group of girls, and word that "Bullet Dick" is in love with Doris spreads throughout the institution. All but Daisy believe the letter true, and to show that "Bullet Dick" is unknown to Doris Daisy invites the hero and his sister to the college hop.

Home for the holidays, Ames by chance comes across the letter forwarded his sister by Daisy. Certain that there is some ulterior motive behind the writing of the epistle, Ames determines to see the thing through and agrees to accompany his sister to the hop. Meanwhile at the college great preparations are under way for the coming of Ames. The trap for the purpose of exposing Doris had been set.

On his arrival Ames sees Doris for the first time. He is certain that she is the one picked for humiliation. Struck by her beauty and innocence, he is attracted to her instantly and when brought before her puts forth his hand and exclaims, "Why, my dear little friend?" Then, turning to the surprised students and facing Daisy, he announces, much to the discomfiture of Doris, that he had known her for many months. Love is mutual, and, following a brief courtship, they are married.

Profitable newspaper publicity for the theatre is largely a question of doing the right thing, at the right time, in the right way.

Your local newspaper will undoubtedly be glad to get—and print—the right kind of motion picture reading matter—provided it is NEWS, and they will be glad to use scenes from plays, or portraits of star players, if they measure up to the NEWS standard.

NEWS is not a matter of individual opinion, but of judgment based upon experience. The press bulletins issued by the Mutual are prepared by a force of seasoned newspaper men who know instinctively what is NEWS and what is not NEWS. Hence it follows that the newspapers advertising Mutual Masterpictures express their appreciation of the value of our bulletins by using them freely in their columns. Moreover, the newspapers know that their readers insist upon plenty of motion picture NEWS, and therefore realize the importance of catering to this demand.

Let us tell you how we get the NEWS to our exhibitors' newspapers—while it is NEWS. Write today.

Everything for the Modern Picture Theatre

Motion Picture Projection Simplified

Copyright, 1915, by J. H. Hallberg

18 A—Suppose you have applied all means at hand to secure proper adjustment of the light interrupting shutter and travel ghost still appears ABOVE the letters of the title, what would you do to overcome this trouble?

Ans.—I would sacrifice a small amount of light on the screen by increasing the width of the shutter blade which covers the lense while the picture is in motion by applying an opaque strip about one-quarter of an inch wide for trial, as illustrated in Fig. 12. This strip can be made of any suitable material, preferably a piece of stiff paper properly fastened onto the shutter blade, and I would keep in mind the necessity of making sure that the shutter does not become unbalanced. If it does, I would put an equal amount of weight on the opposite shutter blade, but, of course, not covering up any part of the opening.

18 B—Suppose the travel ghost should appear BELOW the letters of the title what would you then do?

Ans.—In that case I would apply a similar strip of opaque material to the shutter as already described, but I would apply it on the other side of the shutter blade which covers the lense while the shutter is in motion, as illustrated in Fig. 13.

18 C—Which is the most perfect shutter where alternating current is used to maintain the arc at the carbon points?

Ans.—The two wing shutter, having two wings of equal width. The wings should be just wide enough so that the lense will be covered during the entire motion of the film as illustrated in Fig. 14, which shows position of the shutter when the film is beginning to move downward, and Fig. 15 shows the position of the same shutter just as the film has come to a stop.

18 D—Which is the most efficient shutter with D. C. at the arc?

Ans.—For very long distances the two wing shutter as illustrated in Figs. 14 and 15 is generally most satisfactory. However, where a powerful light is applied at the aperture, as can now be done with the use of modern Electric Economizers, for either D. C. or for changing A. C. to D. C., at the arc, considering anywhere from 40 to maybe 100 amperes at the arc. The three wing shutter having three equal width blades as illustrated in Fig. 11 is very satisfactory. A still better arrangement would be to use the two wing shutter illustrated in Figs. 14 and 15, which, however, should be speeded up to 50 per cent.

18 E—What is the normal speed of a light interrupting shutter?

Ans.—The shutter makes one revolution for each picture Therefore as the machine under normal speed exposes about 16 pictures per second, the shutter speed will be 960 revolutions per minute. At this shutter speed the crank would be operated 60 turns per minute, which may be a little faster than under normal conditions, but approximately correct. This speed of 960 r. p. m. is the speed at which the ordinary two wing shutter may be operated for either A. C. or D. C., or the three wing shutter with D. C. at the arc.

With machines especially designed for two wing shutter operation with D. C. at the arc as already stated the shutter speed may be increased 50 per cent., making the shutter operate 1,440 r. p. m. This arrangement, in my opinion, gives the steadiest and most clearly defined picture where the proper amount of light is applied at the aperture with D. C. at the arc.

Photoplay Theatres Here and There

TEXAS

Fifty-cent photoplays in Dallas will remain a thing to be hoped for. The Washington theatre, Dallas, under the management of Gus Carter, opened a ten-day engagement of "The Eternal City," June 28, at 25-cent and 50-cent prices. These prices were in effect for three days when they were changed to 20 cents and 35 cents. On July 6, they were 15 cents and 25 cents. This is the top-notch for motion picture houses in Dallas, with any success.

The Roseland theatre of Dallas has been leased by the Dalton Brothers, formerly managers of the Old Mill, Orpheum and Happy Hour theatres in the same city. They have inaugurated "Ten-Cent-Vaudeville-and-Pictures" and are getting good business in the 300-chair house.

H. T. Murray, known as "Uncle Tom" Murray, opened his airdome at Alvord two weeks ago, and was in Dallas last week buying a $1,600 Wurlitzer instrument and two new machines.

R. W. McEwan, formerly part owner and manager of the Majestic theatre, Hillsboro, has forsaken the exhibiting end to become aligned in the supply business, having sold his interest in the theatre to his partner, B. A. Lawrence, and taken up duties in the concern R. D. Thrash Film Company, in Dallas.

NEW JERSEY

Lee S. Ochs has opened an airdome at Long Branch.

The new Plaza airdome adjoining the Auditorium was opened recently at Long Branch. Twelve reels of motion pictures were shown. There was a large attendance. The new building has a stucco front modeled after a Roman design.

The Home theatre, 38 North Main street, corner Clinton street, Paterson, has been sold at auction.

Three Trentonians have filed papers in the secretary of state's office as incorporators of the Strand Theatre Company, of 14 Coryell street, Lambertville. They are: Charles C. Hildinger, with 500 shares; Philip Papier, with 499 shares, Marie Papier, with 1 share. Walter F. Hayhurst, of Lambertville, was the legal representative.

The concern is capitalized at $25,000 and the object given is to promote amusement enterprises.

OHIO

Cleveland is to have a new motion picture theatre at East One Hundred and Third street and St. Clair avenue. Harry S. French will build the house and Architect Alexander C. Wolf has just completed the plans for the playhouse, which will seat 1,200 and give that section of Cleveland its biggest theatre, as it will open up a new center that has been without a big picture house. The house will cost $25,000.

A. Silberberg has commissioned the same architect to draw plans for a motion picture theatre near the corner of East Sixty-sixth street and Lexington avenue. This house will seat five hundred and the building will cost about $25,000.

READY TO DRAW UP SANITATION ORDINANCE FOR CRESCENT CITY

AN ordinance providing for the sanitation of motion picture shows and other places of amusement in New Orleans will be drawn up and passed within the next few weeks by the New Orleans board of health. This follows a general campaign which has been waged by a few New Orleans newspapers, which demanded better ventilation facilities and cleaner and more sanitary interiors.

The ordinance will be passed immediately, as will twenty-one others on the same order, held up pending the decision of the Louisiana Supreme Court in a test case.

What Can Be Done With a Small Theatre

THE Theatre Roma, Bellaire, Ohio, controlled by the Bellaire Star Amusement company, and managed by Thomas Velt, ranks with the most up-to-date screen houses in that section of the state.

The structure is built of stone, concrete, brick and steel, constructed in accordance with the Class A requirements of the Ohio state building laws. The interior decorations show excellent taste on the part of the architect, George H. Dieringer, Wheeling, West Virginia. The plaster ceilings and walls are finished in a color scheme of old gold, rose and ivory. Mural paintings between the pilasters and floral designs on the ceilings of the lobby and the auditorium harmonize with the general plan of decoration, without one detracting note of color or design.

The stage enclosure partitions are fireproof, plastered and elaborately decorated with figure and drapery paintings, enriched with heavy Lorraine velvet hangings. The apron of the stage is stained and varnished so as to reflect no light on the screen. It has not been found necessary to alter or remodel the setting. This speaks well for the good taste displayed and the quality of the material selected for this part of the theatre.

The lighting fixtures are all cast in bronze, verde finish, of special design, made by the Cincinnati Artistic Wrought Iron Works. The "electrical hardware" and the stage supplies were furnished by the General Electric Company.

The front of the theatre instantly attracts attention. White mosaic tile not only covers the floor but forms a wainscoting in the lobby. Heavy iron gates, folding up against the wall during the day, close the lobby at night.

A Buffalo forge fan system has been installed in accordance with the building code of Ohio, and in winter the comfort of the patrons is obtained by the use of an indirect steam system. Regular gas and electric brackets and chandeliers light the auditorium. A Gold Radium screen, fourteen by eighteen feet, is part of the equipment. The American Seating company furnished the chairs, 276 on the main floor.

A Power's 6-A machine is in the projection booth, and the length of the throw is eighty feet. A Fort Wayne Compensarc is also part of the equipment. Regular wood and brass frames are in use for lobby displays. Mutual pictures have been shown in the Theatre Roma, without a change to any other company's program since the opening in 1912. This does not apply to features, however, as the management makes a selection of multiple reels from all feature companies.

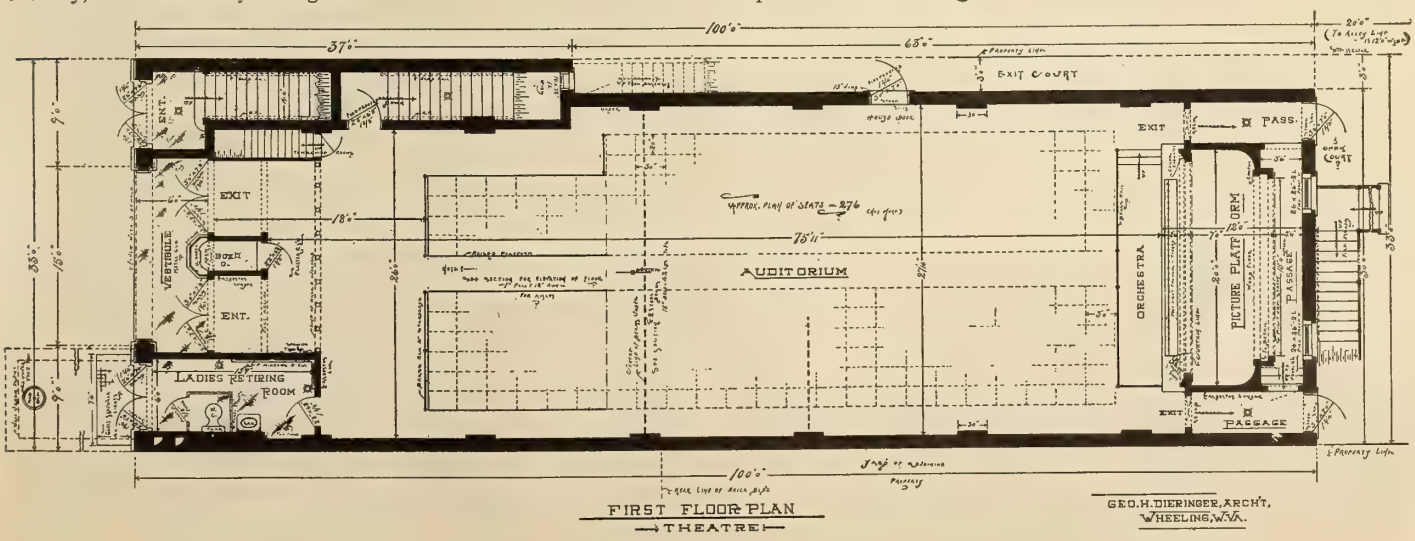
The theatre represents an investment of $28,000. The manager believes in adequate adversising of the pictures, and makes liberal use of posters, slides and the local newspapers.

The theatre has been successful from the day its doors were thrown open to the public.

BUTTERFIELD ADDS SAGINAW THEATRE TO HIS MICHIGAN CHAIN

NEGOTIATIONS have been completed whereby Col. W. S. Butterfield, who now controls a chain of theatres in Michigan, gets the new Franklin in Saginaw. He takes possession August 1 and will open it August 15. Col. Butterfield has ratified for immediate execution plans for the improvement and beautifying of his other local theatres.

The Jeffers will be given an entirely new entrance while the interior will be repainted and redecorated throughout. In its general scheme the interior will be done in white and black enamel with lattice work and other combinations to produce the Bismark garden effect. It will be made a strictly modern picture house.



The Jeffers will hereafter be known as the Strand. Another progressive program is to be carried into effect at the Bijou. It will be redecorated, repainted and given a cleaning out in every part during the summer.

It will also be for pictures exclusively. W. A. Rusco will continue as general manager for the Butterfield interests in Saginaw. He will have the assistance of a local manager for each theatre.

SPECIAL MINUSA MADE FOR CALGARY THEATRE

THE Regent theatre, at Calgary, Alberta, has just had a new Minusa Gold Fibre screen installed by the World Wide Features Corporation, Ltd., Canadian agents for the Minusa Cine Products Company, of St. Louis.

A special survey of the theatre disclosed the fact that a specially built screen would be required for the perfect projection of pictures in the Regent.

GHOST IN CENTRE OF PICTURE

B. H. S., New Orleans, La—Am using two model "D" Edison machines, one Ft. Wayne Compensarc, 110 volts, 60 cycles, 60 amperes and double throw switch for controlling same. When I start my show at 6 p. m. the light burns fine and with a nice round spot until about 8 p. m., after which time the spot is double, which causes a big ghost in the centre of the picture. I would appreciate any information as how to eliminate same. See diagrams enclosed.

ANSWER.—Referring to your diagram Fig. 1, I wish to say that your connections are O. K. Your sketch showing the aperture with the spot at 6 p. m. or early in the evening as illustrated in Fig. 2 is a correct representation of how a good spot looks with A. C. at the arc. In Fig. 3 your illustration also clearly defines the illuminating effect on the aperture when the carbon craters are too small. Fig. 4 of your sketches, as submitted, also gives a clear demonstration of what happens at your aperture when you move the arc forward to enlarge the spot which you say makes a much larger ghost than with condition of a smaller spot in Fig. 3.

Your whole trouble lies in the fact that evidently during the early evening from 6 to 8 the voltage of the electric system is just right for your Compensarc and for the size and style of carbons which you are using. Around 8 o'clock, when much of the load has come off the electric company's system, the voltage has climbed and is, maybe, from 5 to 10 volts higher at the line-switch in your booth. What is the result? The result will be that due to the excessive voltage applied to the Compensarc the amperes delivered on the lamp side will be increased from 10 to 20 per cent., which will, of course, point your carbons more which destroys the condition of the crater which you had early in the evening with normal line voltage.

My suggestion to you is to first of all ask the electric light company to test the voltage at your line-switch in the booth under the following conditions:

First test.—At 6 p. m. without your arc lamp burning.

Second test.—At 6 p. m. with your arc lamp burning.

Third test.—A little after 8 p. m. or at the time you don't get the right result, without your arc lamp burning.

Fourth test.—At the same time, but with the arc lamp burning.

After these tests have been made, communicate with me again, giving the voltage obtained on the volt meter and be sure that you see it yourself and that the volt meter wires are attached on the line side of your Compensarc or at the line-switch in the booth.

Also send sample of the carbon you are using and one set of carbon points as they burn after 8 p. m.

LENSES AND SCREENS

C. E. C., Murray, O.—I am sending one dollar money order to extend my subscription to the "News" for six months. The "News" is a fine paper, I enjoy it from front to back. My fad in picture equipment, if I was an exhibitor, would be high-grade lenses. Much advance is being made in the machines and screens. The Meniscus Bi-convex condensers seem to be giving satisfaction, so with an advance in lense quality fine results on the screen would be the rule instead of the exception in many theatres.

I presume you have seen a Mirroroid screen in "Silver White" and in "Pale Gold." Kindly tell me your choice of the two shades. I would also like to have your opinion on the Day and Night screen which I understand is good but expensive, and the Mirror screen which is still more expensive.

ANSWER.—Your letter came in just after I had dictated an article on High-grade Projection Lenses which appeared on page 174 in the July 17 issue. I am pleased to note that there are others who are thinking about the lense proposition and who realize the important part the lense plays in picture projection.

Some people seem to think that any old thing goes as long as it is a lense. The fact is, much depends upon the condenser and projecting lense system and the higher quality one can get for these the better results. However, I want to put you right about one thing and that is that the best lense in the world will not make a perfect picture if you haven't got a good picture at the aperture to begin with.

You must have a good film properly exposed and developed and printed, also abundant amount of steady brilliant illumination of the picture at the aperture, and the machine must be of perfect design and in perfect operative condition, and last but not least, the man behind the gun, the operator makes up the other important considerations necessary for perfect projection. The screen plays a great part in picture projection.

Some people prefer a dull, soft surface finished in any shade from a pale yellow ocher to a steel blue. On this kind of screen the delicate half-tones in the high lights and in the shadows can be best portrayed where plenty of light is at the aperture. The picture on the dull finished screen will stand out well rounded and with great detail.

Then again there are other exhibitors who have different conditions to meet where great contrast between the high lights and the shadows is required, which, of course, means less detail in the high lights and in the shadows, but a much more brilliant picture. For these results specially made screens are required. Several makes are advertised in the columns of the NEWS, and I mention the following in the order of their cost to the exhibitor: The Glass Mirror screen; the Day and Night screen; the Minusa screen; and the Mirroroid screen.

Any of the above mentioned screens give splendid satisfaction, but in order to determine which particular one and what particular style, type or finish of either make is most suitable, specifications giving details as to the distance from lense to screen, the size of picture, the location of the machine relative to the screen, the distance from the first row of seats to the screen, the width of the first row of seats, the distance from the last row of seats and the width of the last row must be given.

The Mirroroid screen is made in rough and smooth finish. The rough finish is recommended for wide houses. The smooth finish for long, narrow houses. Of the silver or pale gold finish I personally prefer always the silver finish, because it does not interfere with the coloring or tinting of a film. There may be cases where a pale gold screen is required by an exhibitor, but the silver finish is very efficient and splendid.

RECTIFIER OR GENERATOR?

C. C. R., West La Fayette, Ind.—I would be pleased to have the following information. Am installing D. C. in our new theatre here and am desirous of knowing which to use—a rectifier or generator. Have been advised on both and am asking your expert knowledge.

I am undecided as to size of screen for our new house here. Room is 135 feet long, 23 feet wide, 13 feet 6 inches high in rear and 16 feet 6 inches in front, 3 feet incline for 96 feet. Stage 10 feet deep with screen against the wall. Length of throw 120 feet approximately. Centre aisle. Seating capacity, 468.

ANSWER.—If the first cost is the main consideration, the mercury arc rectifier is the cheaper to install. The cost for current, where from 40 to 50 amperes D. C. is used at the arc, as will be required for your long throw, the current consumption of the rectifier and one of the modern A. C.-D. C. electric economizers built on the motor generator principle will be about the same.

The cost of maintaining a motor generator set is, however, much less, that is, if you get a good one, than for the rectifier. The greatest expense in the maintenance of the mercury arc ractifier is in the glass tubes, which do give out sometimes within a few hours or days and sometimes they last several thousand hours. The life of a mercury tube is a mater of luck and can never be banked upon, no matter how carefully it is handled.

The motor generator may be slightly more expensive to install, but is now considered the more satisfactory device, especially where 40 amperes or more are used.

I would recommend a screen either 9 by 12 or not more than about 11 by 15 in size.

TESTS IN WILKES-BARRE SEVERE, SAY OPERATORS

MOTION picture machine operators who took the city examinations in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on July 7 for certificates, pronounced the test extremely severe and several of them express doubt as to whether or not their papers will bring the desired percentage.

Several weeks ago the operators were forced to take a city test and only three of their number passed. A city ordinance, mention of which was made in MOTION PICTURE NEWS several months ago, was adopted by the city commissioners and it stipulates that every operator in the city shall have in his possession a certificate which pronounces him qualified to operate machines in theatres.

The examining board is made up of electricians and city officials, Jacob Held, chief of the bureau of buildings, being in charge. The questions treat with the practical work, and the applicant must have a certain knowledge of electricity. The questions are written on a blackboard and the candidates for certificates write their answers at desks. The applicants are not permitted to copy the questions or to take them from the building.

The following operators took the examination last Thursday: Harry Krause, Frank Walsh, Remmel Milana, Joseph Wentz, Patrick Boyle, John Miller, Lewis Thomas, Earle Gehringer, J. P. Streisel, Harry Richards, Joseph Malloy, Harvey Eggleston, Sr.; Joseph McAfee, Wesley Knettner, G. Clayton Heebner, Hastings Jones, Edgar Knittle, Charles Piatt, John Wallace, John Mitchell, Henry Czerwonka, Robert Finn, Harold Marshall, Rudolph Grosspeitsch, Fred Alles, John Bohn, John Bogert, Anthony White, Wilford Parsons and Raymond Condrad.

The outcome of the examination is awaited with much interest in local motion picture circles. The examiners claim this is the last opportunity for the operators to qualify for some months. The city ordinance is now in effect and it is up to the operators to secure their certificates.

NEW YORK COMMISSIONER WARNS EXHIBITORS

MOTION PICTURE NEWS has received the following communication from William Williams, Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity:

"It has been reported to me that an effort is being made on the part of the managers of some moving picture establishments to force the licensed operator to rewind films at times when he is supposed to be supervising the operation of a motor driven moving picture machine.

"Permission to employ a motor for driving a machine is a special privilege which the department grants only when and where the privilege is not abused. I desire through the columns of your paper to announce that the department will prohibit the use of motor driven machines in moving picture establishments where the management endeavors to economize at the expense of safety to the public through requiring the operator to perform work which will divert him from the duties imposed upon him by law."

TALLY, LOS ANGELES, ORDERS LARGE RADIUM SCREEN

ONE of the largest projection screens ever installed is about to be placed in T. L. Tally's Broadway theatre, Los Angeles, Cal. The screen is to be eighteen feet high by twenty-four feet wide and is being turned out at the East Orange factory of the Radium Gold Fibre Screen Company for shipment within the next day or two.

The Tally order was telegraphed from the coast by Redlich and Neuman, Pacific coast representatives of the Radium Gold Fibre Company, and the New York Radium people are especially gratified in view of the fact that it follows close on the heels of a previous order from Los Angeles which has made the Tally people choose the Radium Gold Fibre screen after having seen a similar screen in operation.

CAN OPEN ROOF OF LOWELL, MASS., FOR HOT NIGHTS

IN their determination that the patrons of the Owl theatre in Lowell, Mass., shall be comfortable while viewing the pictures through the hot season, the management has provided two unique features.

Besides having a concrete floor, which in itself adds a great deal to the coolness of the house, the theatre has a roof which can be opened for about half its size, thus making the house a sort of half-and-half in and outdoor theatre.

This is the only house with such a sliding roof in Lowell, and picture fans show their appreciation by crowding the theatre during the summer months. In winter the heating arrangements are such that the concrete floor does not interfere with comfort.

The Owl, which finds its odd name to be an advantage in its advertising, is located on Central street, the best show street in the city. It is the only theatre in Lowell running Mutual pictures. Some of the Fox features have made big hits there, notably Nance O'Neil and William Farnum roles films. World films have also been used with success.

The theatre cost about $40,000. The decorations are simple, but in excellent taste. The house generates its own electricity. Good music is provided; and at five and ten cents admission, despite heavy competition, the theatre continues to be one of the most popular in the city.

It is under the management of Samuel Orbach. Leo A. Keroack, its publicity man, keeps the public informed of the house through all the Lowell dailies and Sundays. No small part of the theatre's success is attributed to the booth work of Maurice Cooper.

MILES-DETROIT THEATRE COMPANY PASSES DIVIDENDS

DETROIT (Mich.) stockholders in the Miles-Detroit Theatre Company, capitalized at $350,000, will receive no further dividends this year, the board of directors having determined that repairs and improvements to the theatre and building will be necessary. Payment of dividends has been deferred until after January 1.

After that date the dividend periods will be July and January. The change from quarterly to semi-annual dividend periods is deemed advisable because the dull period in the theatre business extends throughout the summer season.

The company's condensed balance sheet, as of March 28, shows assets of $546,468, of which $231,000 represents the estimated value of buildings and equipment, and $300,000 the estimated leaseholds.

Everything in this exhibit is for the motion picture theatre for display and souvenir purposes, a stock of which is now on hand in the various offices of the concern.

The Chicago office is now in the hands of the Central Film company, which is covering the middle western territory. The New England representative is the John J. Quigley Theatrical Agency. Texas is covered by a well-known man in the motion picture business, H. K. Barnett, and St. Louis by Erker Brothers.

10 AND 25 CENTS ARE CHARGES FOR NEW THEATRE

THE manager of the Steuben theatre, Steubenville, Ohio, J. L. Evans, formerly of the Fox Film corporation at Pittsburgh, was in that city last week and told of the new theatre the Steubenville Amusement company was about to open in Steubenville, Ohio.

The new theatre is named for General Steuben, the Revolutionary general. It is to be one of the finest houses in the state of Ohio and when completed will cost $75,000.

It will open its doors for the first time on July 17 and will charge ten and twenty-five cents admission. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 1,000 and will be fitted out with all of the latest theatrical improvements.

A departure from the straight way of seating the patrons has been decided upon by the management. A number of boxes with wicker chairs of the most comfortable style will be installed.

A feature a day will be the program of the management, and already the films have been contracted for at the Pittsburgh film exchange.

DALLAS THEATRE CHANGES POLICY; CHAPLIN PICTURES POPULAR

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Dallas, Tex., July 14.

A SURPRISE was sprung in Dallas motion picture circles when it was announced that on July 11, the Queen theatre would run Mutual pictures exclusively. The Queen has been running Mutual Masterpictures, General specials, The Goddess, V-L-S-E, etc., and this change to Mutual exclusively was not expected and hit the trade with quite a surprise. The Queen is owned by a corporation headed by E. H. Hulsey, and is under the management of L. G. Bissinger. Mutual pictures and stars are well thought of in Dallas, and usually draw good crowds.

The popularity of one Charlie Chaplin, in Dallas, is shown by five houses running Chaplin pictures in one day. The Queen and Feature were both showing the late Essanay "Work." All of the theatres enjoyed a good business, with the Queen and Feature stacking 'em.

They are also accused of having installed new chairs without having paid for them.

A near panic occurred recently in the Hippodrome theatre, Oakland, a new vaudeville and moving picture house, when a fuse blew out on the stage, creating a dense smoke. A part of the audience made for the doors and it was with the greatest difficulty that Assistant Manager J. W. Jackson restored order.

MASSACHUSETTS

The Strand Theatre Company has been incorporated at Worcester, Mass. The capital is $375,000 and the incorporators are Moe Mark, Joseph M. Levenson and Max L. Levenson.

Goldstein Brothers, of Springfield, Mass., have just renewed their lease of the Plaza theatre in that city for a term of twenty years and announced that they will soon enlarge the house, which now seats about six hundred, to double its present capacity and increase the size of its stage. They have secured additional property contiguous to that theatre and the Broadway, and now control land and buildings of area equal to the Plaza, and with streets and passageways on three sides of the plot. Nathan Goldstein will soon return from his wedding tour.

The Exeter street theatre, Boston, the only house in the city managed by a woman, has been closed and will reopen September 13 with a set of new private boxes. Mrs. Marcellus Ayer, the manager, announces that the four boxes will seat eight and ten persons and the admission to them will be 50 cents.

She will drop the ten and twenty-cent seats; the new prices are to be fifteen, twenty-five and thirty-five cents (for the front balcony row), with the whole lower floor at twenty-five cents. This theatre was formerly the famous Edward Everett Hale church. Its patrons are drawn from the society ranks in the Back Bay, to whom the increase in prices will not at all be a burden.

The consummation of plans now maturing promises to give Westfield, Mass., a new theatre in keeping with the progress of the "Whip City." Goldstein Brothers, of Springfield, owners of the Broadway theatre in that city and proprietors of a large New England circuit, who have conducted the Westfield opera house under lease for a number of years, have recently purchased the property and have also bought land and buildings in the rear so that their holdings now include the entire block with its valuable frontage on Elm street.

It is understood that the entire transaction involved about $125,000, as the opera house location is considered one of the most valuable for business purposes on Elm street.

Plans have not yet been drawn, but it is reported to be the purpose of the Goldsteins to erect an entire new business block with a large modern theatre in the rear, to seat 2,000 and to be equipped for any form of theatrical entertainment.

Herman Schulte, member of the common council, has purchased the Wigwam theatre at 1127 Mack avenue, Detroit, formerly conducted by Joe Green.

The Woodward Theatre Company, Detroit, of which Henry S. Koppin is president and Bert Williams, general manager, has purchased the Pallister theatre at 1640 Woodward avenue. This makes the company's fifth theatre, the remaining four being the Rosebud on Gratiot avenue, the LaSalle on Randolph street, the Woodward on Woodward avenue, near the Campus, and the Comique on Pingree square.

The last four are downtown houses, and an admission price of five cents at each one is maintained. The company also operated the Empress theatre in Toledo, Ohio, but disposed of it a few weeks ago.

William F. Klatt gives out the definite statement that the proposed Regent theatre, at Woodward and Horton avenues, will be erected. The steel work is now going up and the theatre will be ready for operation by November 1, says Mr. Klatt.

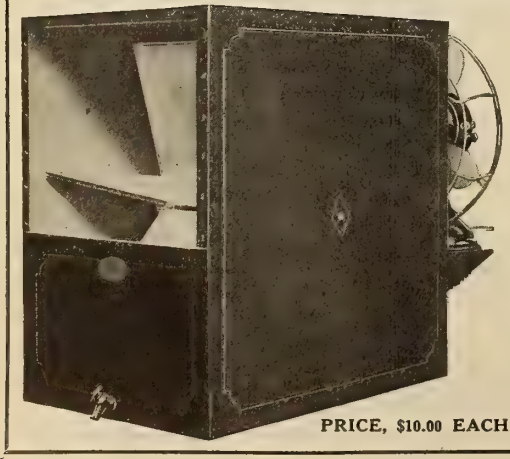
The seating capacity will be 3,000 on two floors. According to Mr. Klatt, it will be one of the largest and finest in the country. The offices of the enterprise are in the Union Trust building. Mr. Klatt now operates four theatres in Detroit, the largest being the Rosedale, opened about six months ago.

The Kunsky Scenic Company has been organized with a capital stock of $1,000, with offices at 2206 Dime Bank building, to supply complete scenic equipment for moving picture theatres. John H. Kunsky, George W. Trendle and Howard O. Pierce are the incorporators.

MISSOURI

W. C. Rauschkalb has been appointed manager of the Lafayette theatre, on Jefferson, near Lafayette avenue, and the Russell Garden, on Russell near Jefferson avenue, St. Louis, to take the place of S. Warner, who had to resign the active management of the two amusement places on account of illness.

Mr. Rauschkalb has been connected with the Virginia Garden for a number of years, and comes to the Russell Garden, which shows the Lafayette theatre's program during the summer months, with valuable experience as an exhibitor. The policy of the theatre will not be changed under the new management, which went into effect on Sunday, July 4.



Big photoplay features are run on Monday and Tuesday; pictures and high class vaudeville on Wednesday and Thursday; pictures and dramatic stock on Friday and Saturday, and an extra big bill of photoplay features and vaudeville on Sunday. The price of admission will be restored to ten cents.

The Garden Beautiful, as the Lyric airdome, at Delmar and Taylor streets, St. Louis, is called, has added another innovation to its already popular and pleasing program. At seven o'clock the doors open, and the patrons who come early are entertained for an hour on the lawn of the Garden with a concert of specially selected numbers of popular and classic music, which is rendered in a capable manner by the excellent orchestra that furnishes music for the Lyric Garden. The airdome is the newest of the Lyric trio that is owned and managed by John W. Cornelius.

The Nebraska airdome, at Nebraska and Park avenues, St. Louis, run a two-night engagement of the big feature "Cabiria" on July 8 and 9, at the popular price of ten cents admission, which was the first time in the city to be shown for that price. Manager J. W. Dubach is showing his patrons as many of the high-class photoplay features as he has been able to secure since the opening of his outdoor theatre in May.

Freund Brothers, who own and operate the New Favorite, at Cherokee street and Ohio avenue, St. Louis, are using very attractive billboards on twenty-four-sheet size to advertise their program. The boards are set up in conspicuous places on the street car routes in the neighborhood of the theatre, and the neat wording and bright colors attract much attention.

The McKinley theatre, on Accomac street and Jefferson avenue, St. Louis, has discontinued the Sunday matinee, which was always a special attraction, since the hot weather arrived. The McKinley is perhaps the only theatre in this part of the state

OKLAHOMA

It is vaudeville and pictures again at the Lyric theatre at Oklahoma City, Okla. The management made a try-out with a 20-piece orchestra and pictures, but the public demanding vaudeville, it will be vaudeville and moving pictures in the future and the Lyric will again become the home of vaudeville.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Walker will be pleased to hear that they are once more re-united and getting along nicely. Mr. and Mrs. Walker will make their permanent home in McAlester, Okla., where Mr. Walker is manager of the San Souci theatre and Mrs. Walker is the cashier.

The Lyric theatre was totally destroyed by fire at Sapulpa, Okla., July 1. Loss was about $25,000, partially insured. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin.

PENNSYLVANIA

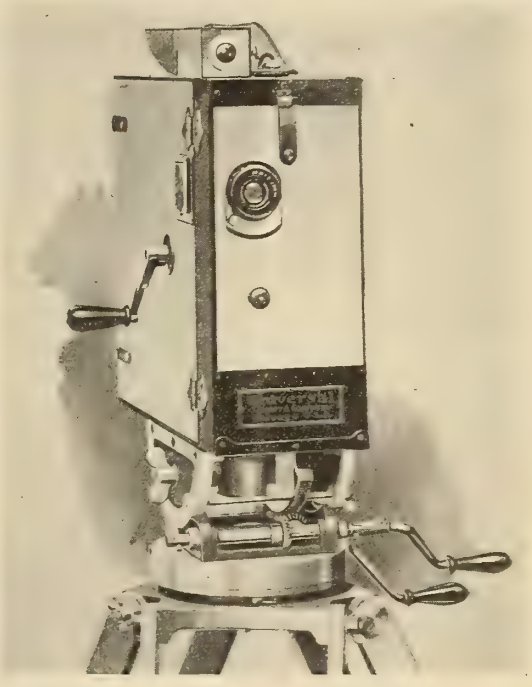
There are a number of new houses being erected in the Pittsburgh district. R. H. Talbot, the owner of the Opera house and Grand theatres at Elkins, West Virginia, is erecting a new one there which he will have ready for occupancy early in the fall.

The Fenray Photoplay Company is the name of a company which is erecting a new 1,000 seating capacity house at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, which will be ready for occupancy by November 1.

F. W. Myers, of Glassport, Pa., is erecting a new theatre in his town which will have a capacity of three hundred. Ray L. Griffin is superintending the construction of the house and will be its manager when the theatre is ready in the fall.

And the end is not yet, as it is said that a number of others are in line for the building of new theatres should the summer business increase, as it has been doing there in the past several weeks.

The Union Federal and Casino theatres, in Federal street, North Side, Pittsburgh, were closed during the past week. This will leave but three other theatres on the street, the William Penn, Novelty and Elite.



Charles H. Ringsdorf, who has been manager of the Orpheum theatre, South Main street, Wilkes-Barre, since that house was opened last fall, has tendered his resignation. Mr. Ringsdorf acted as director of the Orpheum, which is one of the costliest theatres in northeastern Pennsylvania. Jacob Theis, owner of the house, has accepted the resignation.

A. C. Cramps, who was acting manager, has been appointed to direct the fortunes of the Orpheum. Mr. Cramps was at one time connected with the Savoy theatre, Wikes-Barre. Mr. Ringsdorf, who was at one time on the road selling features, is well known throughout the state. He has not announced his plans for the future.

The Lincoln theatre has been opened to the public at Plains, near Wilkes-Barre. The Lincoln is located on Hudson street and will draw patronage from Hudson and Plains, two suburbs of that city. The Lincoln is modern in every detail and was erected after the plans had been changed and switched several times by the state board. It has a seating capacity of three hundred and is located in a good live town. 'Squire Bohinsky, a justice of the peace, is the owner of the theatre, and Clem Block is the manager.

Wilkes-Barre is to have another theatre. Walter Casterlin, who owns the Sterling in South Wilkes-Barre, will erect a new house at the corner of North Main and Maple streets. The plans have been approved by the state and the contract for the house will be let in a few days. It is expected that the new theatre will be opened within four months. It will have a seating capacity of nine hundred. The new house will cost about $25,000.

Music and the Picture

Edited by Ernst Luz

EDITOR'S NOTE.— This department is maintained for the exhibitor's assistance with a view of suggesting proper musical illustrations for current photo plays. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will be pleased to help solve any difficulties the exhibitors may have with their musical programs. All communications should be addressed to the Music and the Picture Department.

Musician Who Reads Fiction is Best Picture Player

PLAYING to the pictures might be called the musical problem of the age. Many find it difficult, while others develop it as a natural gift.

My many observations have shown that those musicians who are well read and are fond of fiction have the least difficulty in acquiring ideas for picture playing, even when their studies in music have not been so extensive.

The above is in most cases the reason why many capable players have met with little success in picture playing. It is a peculiar fact that most musical students will neglect every other study when striving for a musical education.

Reading Fiction Helps Players

Reading fiction is the last diversion the average musician will follow. He feels that all the necessary romance is to be found in his music.

Picture playing or setting music to pictures requires more or less imaginative inspiration, which cannot be acquired by a mere knowledge of music, no more than it is possible for a layman to acquire it by an extensive knowledge of pictures, but it is a combination of musical and picture knowledge.

It is not necessary that you have a Leipsic or other musical college diploma, but you must be positive that you have been and can be interested in fiction of a serious nature.

You might ask, Why fiction? Why will not actual sympathy felt for unfortunates or pathetic incidences of fact suffice?

Because they are facts and consequently do not cultivate your imaginative faculties, without which it is not probable that you can create a picture interest by a musical setting.

Cultivating Imaginative Interest

Truth is more wonderful than fiction, but we will all admit that the man who demands that he must be shown every detail before he will see or believe, is in business a cold-blooded proposition.

I am sure his nature would be a certain negative to that which is most beautiful in musical inspiration.

Having cultivated an imaginative picture interest, you need to make a musical research for numbers which will synchronize with your imagination.

This is the most interesting pastime in the study of music.

The player of the one man instrument has a wide latitude in picture playing, which he calls improvisation.

Improvisation is more or less a musical gift, there being no school or study whereby to acquire it. There are no rules to such playing, and therefore cannot be taught.

I would advise those trying to be proficient on the one man instrument to put forth every effort to acquire musical improvisation.

Improvisation is more often the result of a laxmemory in memorizing. It is again a result from a continued simplifying of numbers we find difficult to play as they are written. One man instrument players soon recognize a similarity in the arrangement of many numbers they play, some difficult, others easy, while the musical tone is similar.

The intelligent player will immediately study the reason, with the result that he has taken another lesson in improvisation. Every musician has heard a standard musical number played entirely wrong, yet in a beautiful style with perfect tone. Such a player is a master of improvisation.

Help to Improvisation

A help to improvisation is, therefore, a continued effort at memorizing, not allowing yourself to stop playing when your memory fails you, but substituting tone in rhythmical sequence, and a natural consequence when you make a continued effort at simplifying numbers to your musical ability.

We should never confuse improvisation with faking. Faking is the supposed art of playing without any musical knowledge, sometimes called playing by ear.

I have yet to hear a fakir who could improvise or play more than a few numbers in a pleasing manner.

Picture playing has placed a premium on those naturally gifted or adapted to improvisation, and they should be a valuable adjunct to the one man instrument, both of them being a valuable asset to the daily changed program theatre, where previous preparation of musical program is impossible.

An exceptional adaptability for memorizing is usually found among those who improvise well, for no picture is played in an entertaining manner entirely by improvised music. Excerpts from standard numbers or complete musical compositions should be used if you desire to entertain, improvisation being the method by which you drop these numbers where and when they are not in accord with the action on the screen—going back to such numbers and leaving them at will.

Orchestra Cannot Improvise

It is needless to say that such improvisation is impossible for the orchestra, for which reason orchestral accompanying of picture action is more difficult; in fact, impossible without prior preparation. Such prior preparation requires much forethought and an assurance of proper projection, which is so often neglected in the picture theatre.

There is no reason to doubt that an orchestra properly equipped can play to pictures even now, yet it must be admitted that it is a difficult problem. There is sufficient music of proper picture value in the market today, yet the orchestral arrangements are mostly all adapted for concert playing, which is often detrimental to the picture. The Cinema Music Company, of London, England, is now publishing music which is arranged especially for picture work. The numbers it publishes are not new or original, but standard numbers adapted and arranged in modern form for orchestral picture playing.

In the United States there is still apparent the desire of the average music publisher to exploit the picture theatre music, for the purpose of popularizing his latest song or instrumental publication.

THE BARTOLA Is the Best Musical Instrument you can buy for your theatre and we can prove it.

Write to Chas. C. Pyle, Gen. Sales Mgr., Mallers Bldg., Chicago

BARTOLA MUSICAL INSTRUMENT CO. Factory, OSHKOSH, WISCONSIN

When you figure that not as many as one in ten of these numbers are appreciated sufficiently by the public to become so-called "hits," is it a good policy to continue their use because their title may suggest some picture action or title?

Such numbers when popular have their value in picture playing, but should not be used continuously, for they will certainly cheapen the picture theatre.

We should encourage the publishers who show their inclination toward supplying the picture theatre with proper thematic music well adapted for the orchestra. Since January 1 every prominent publisher has shown some inclination in this line, and with a continuance of this we can look forward to wonderful orchestral possibilities.

Music and the picture is today in its infancy, and with its growth we can look forward to results never before surpassed in musical history.

Music Plots for Vitagraph and Edison Features

I GIVE here music plots for the Vitagraph feature, "The Criminal," released July 3, and a 3-reel Edison feature, "The Tragedies of the Crystal Globe," released July 2.

Both of these pictures afford exceptional opportunities for the best or classical music, as can be seen by the numbers suggested. These numbers are especially adapted for pictures of this character, and while they are elaborate they will help the picture, when many other concerted numbers might detract from the picture action. These plots, if properly followed, will disprove the assertion so often heard, that it is impossible to play good music and follow the picture.

Vitagraph, "The Criminal," 3-reel Dr. Released July 3.

Reel III.—No. 7 is the Egyptian Ballet Suite by Luigini, four numbers on one as published by G. Schirmer, New York. This number is indispensable. No. 8 must be a slow legato number with a dramatic appeal, having the usual agitated minor strain.

TOY IS MILWAUKEE'S NEW HIGH-PRICE THEATRE

MILWAUKEE'S first and only high-price exclusive photoplay theatre is to be the new Toy theatre, now being constructed on Second street. This new photoplay house which, it is expected, will be formally opened during the first week in September, will contain 450 seats and will present only the very best and the biggest in the photodrama.

Two shows will be given daily, afternoon and evening. The prices will range from a minimum of thirty-five cents for the matinee and fifty cents for the evening performance, up, according to the size of the attraction. All seats will be reserved and will be on sale at the box office two weeks in advance.

A large orchestra has been engaged and will play at all performances. Many new devices for the comfort and convenience of the patrons will be introduced.

Great interest has already been taken in the opening by society, and it is expected that the first performance will be one of the social events of the fall.

The house will be under the capable management of Edwin Bigelow.

A clever story by WM. HAMILTON OSBORNE, a cast of undoubted merit, produced by the master picture makers, BALBOA, and through all, that timely atmosphere of patriotism and deep salt water, that will bring the crowds your way. The scenes of navy life are taken with the approval and by the sanction of the Secretary of the Navy.

Paramount Foundation

The officers and directors of Paramount are all men of wide experience in the film industry. Each of them was a prosperous exchange man with extensive operations and substantial capital at the time of coming into Paramount. This means that the Paramount is directed by men who have for some years been successfully meeting the problems that every exhibitor must meet. They know the business.

The producers include the two companies in the industry who first made multiple reel features of quality—they are still in the lead. Refer to adjoining page and note list of unexcelled plays with famous stars already arranged for.

These producers are making films not only clean and of high quality, but with a story to tell—a story that makes strong appeal to the public.

Last, but fully as important, is the Paramount policy and system which afford the producer and exhibitor valuable support.

The most convincing proof of the superiority and earning efficiency of Paramount pictures and service is the fact that the finest and largest theatres throughout the United States are using them. The Strand Theatre of New York recently issued a public statement part of which said:

"The Strand Theatre with Paramount Pictures has been an artistic and financial success. We shall therefore continue to give the Strand patrons these features."

Mr. Stanley V. Mastbaum, controlling a large chain of the finest theatres in Pennsylvania, headed by The Stanley in Philadelphia, says:

"Paramount Service has given perfect satisfaction in all of the theatres using it during the past year. I have read over the releases for the coming Fall quarter and these splendid plays, together with the Paramount franchise plan, make the Paramount Service invaluable to any theatre in the United States."

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers.

"Outcasts of Society"

With MIGNON ANDERSON

It's a picture of the lives of those who stray. Mind you, not a gushy, wishy-washy "social-reform" picture, but a virile, heart-filled and brain-bound work with an impelling story that goes over; yes, over and right clean into your soul. Charles Hoyt Laughed And The World Is Still Laughing With Him

Laugh and the world laughs with you. Charles Hoyt laughed and the whole world held its sides and shook with mirth.

Laughter is the most contagious of all human emotions. Charles Hoyt saw everything in a humorous vein and he had that rare faculty of making others see things through his eyes.

This is what made him the greatest writer of comedies. When he wrote "A Bunch of Keys" the world roared. This comedy had a tremendous success on the speaking stage. Essanay has created a five-act photocomedy that even surpasses the stage production.

And there is an all star cast. Several great comedians were engaged specially for this play. Everyone has laughed with John Slavin, June Keith and William Burress on the stage. You know what kind of fun makers they are. This will prepare you in a small measure for the photocomedy. But not fully. For it is impossible to get a clear conception of all the riot of fun there is in it until you see it.

Did you ever stand in the hills and shout and hear the sound reverberate from crag to crag and come booming back in a thousand voices? If you have you know every echo repeats exactly what you say.

There is an echo to every photoplay. The echo will help or hurt you according to what you show.

A good photoplay will strike the heart of every spectator and reverberate from lip to lip and come back to you in the form of increased crowds and larger box office receipts.

Be sure to have only the best plays and the echo never will fail you. Essanay plays are all standardized. They are all good.

The Growth of the Theatre House Organ

THERE is plenty of proof on every hand that the exhibitor of today is far ahead of the exhibitor of five, three or even two years ago.

He is better acquainted with his pictures, better informed about his patrons, more broadly ambitious for his theatre, more keenly alive to the possibilities of the business of which he is a central figure.

In short, he is a better business man than he used to be. And—though once the idea would have been laughed at—a better showman because he is a better business man.

ONE striking evidence of this is to be found in the motion picture theatre programs of today; that is to say, the cards, leaflets, folders or pamphlets issued at stated intervals by the theatre manager for the information of his patrons.

These little house organs are not, perhaps, the biggest factors in the theatre's life. There are the pictures, the music, the staff management, the lobby display, the poster advertising—all demanding constant and concentrated attention.

BUT the house program has its place. It can be made very influential.

Instead of fluttering down from the patrons' laps to carpet the floor of the theatre at every performance, the little publication can be converted into a handbook of amusement information to the theatre-goer that he will slip into his pocket and carry home to read.

IT all depends upon the exhibitor. He can publish a program that the theatre-goer will keep for five minutes, or he can produce one that his patrons will keep for a week.

A judicious selection from the tons of material he can have for the asking, an arrangement of his program and news notes in a pleasing and tangible fashion, in clear, attractive type and printed on as good paper as the house can afford, will result in a program that will be found lying on the table in the home of every theatre-goer in the town along with the magazines of the week or month.

AS publishers, we have a more than passing interest in the endeavor of the exhibitor to satisfy his public with as excellent a publication as he can offer, just as we are constantly endeavoring to satisfy our public, the trade public, in the same manner.

We receive copies of theatre programs from exhibitors all over the country every week.

To be frank, they deserve more compliment than criticism. None of them are perfect. Improvements could be suggested in all.

BUT the most significant fact about them is that each program represents a conscious desire and attempt on the part of the exhibitor behind it to heighten and strengthen his audience's attachment to his theatre.

Each is a stimulus to keep alive the patron's interest in the theatre between performances, to hold the theatre in his or her mind and create a theatre-going habit there that will bring the man or woman back again and again.

THE most refreshing feature of them all is the striving for individuality without flashiness that is apparent in the overwhelming majority of them.

There is little or no gaudy splashing of color. A few use what is known as "the offset process" on the first and last pages, giving a cover effect. The rest employ either a soft-toned or tinted paper, or carry a cover in two colors, a sepia and one other.

Refinement and dignity characterize four out of five that have come to our attention.

THERE is, to be sure, crudity of arrangement, sometimes an awkward jumbling of advertisement and text; sometimes a number of minor technical faults appear which the printer should know how to correct.

But the note of refinement and dignity is there, and is coming to dominate more and more completely every theatre house organ published.

TO put into a few words some of our conclusions as the result of an extended study and analysis of these programs may benefit those exhibitors to whom we are indebted for copies of them, and inspire others who have been puzzled as to the course to take in furnishing their theatres with a house organ.

Here are a few "Do's" and Don'ts" for program-makers, for our fellow-publishers, though publishing is a mere incident of their business lives:

DON'T use too cheap a grade of paper in your program. Don't put all your money on the cover, at the expense of the inside. A highly-glazed cover, with an elaborate design, is disagreeable if it is followed by pages that are poorly printed on cheap paper.

The Growth of the Theatre House Organ

Unless you use a tinted paper, be careful to get the whitest paper you can buy. This will throw the black of your type matter into strong, sharp relief, and bring out the details of your cuts. It gives life to the entire program.

Gray paper, unless finely finished, dulls and deadens everything printed on it.

DON'T overcrowd the program with cuts. Gauge the number you use to the size of your page and the number of pages in the program.

Don't make the mistake of using large cuts on a small page. You destroy the balance and symmetry thereby.

Don't suffocate your weekly program pages or your important reading matter under a mass of advertisements. Arrange the advertising so that it will not overshadow everything else.

You can take care of enough advertising to pay the cost of your program, and still leave plenty of room on your pages for artistic and effective arrangement of the reading matter and illustrations.

DON'T use too much heavy, black-faced type. Keep away from that even on your weekly program announcements.

There are plenty of "medium-faced" types, as they are called, with far more distinction and individuality than the black-faces possess, and which will give your program an air of quality and refinement that no heavy type can lend it.

Your printer can show you some of these. Go over his assortment of type with him, pick out the type face you want used, and instruct him to use it in your house organ.

BE careful of the width of your columns. A column of type that is too narrow in proportion to the length of the page spoils its appearance.

A column that is too wide, unless the type is proportionate in size, makes difficult reading, and produces a page inferior in appearance as well. This is a matter your printer should arrange for you, but sometimes he needs your co-operation to produce the best results.

EVEN though your house organ is given away, insist upon having clean, high-grade printing. Smudgy pages, broken and imperfect type, white spots on your cuts or in the body of an article are all faults of your printer.

If you are a good business man, you can get advertising enough to enable you to produce a good-looking, well-printed program—to enable you, in other words to pay for good printing.

TO be sure, you are giving your house organ for nothing. But that house organ is your appeal to your patrons. They take it, knowing you want them to take it, and regard it in a critical spirit. They judge you by it.

If their friends, who have never attended your theatre, see it, they form a mental conception of your theatre and the quality of the show they will see there by the appearance of your house organ. Quality in the one inevitably promises quality in the other.

THESE few observations are not intended to be radical nor exhaustive. Much more might be written on these same points, and many other kindred points might be touched upon at great length.

If the principles laid down in the foregoing paragraphs prove to be of any assistance to exhibitors anywhere, this editorial will have accomplished its purpose.

And if they lead exhibitors to make any further inquiries by letter concerning the conduct of their house organs, they may feel assured that the services of our staff of trained publication men is at their constant disposal.

Sunday Opening and Censorship

THOSE who are looking for indications of the spirit of self-defence among the exhibitors of the country that will be necessary during the coming year to combat censorship successfully, will find it in the numerous campaigns for Sunday opening of motion picture theatres that are being carried on.

Tennessee and Texas are just at present the most hotly contested battlegrounds on this question, but in more than one town in Indiana there is a determination on the part of exhibitors to test the disposition of the public to insist on closed theatres on Sunday.

In New York State, after several hearings from the lowest court to the highest, the victory has finally remained with the Yonkers exhibtor who questioned the power of the municipality to forbid him to open his theatre on the Sabbath.

IN more than one state, however, public opinion has unmistakably manifested itself in favor of the exhibitor on the question of Sunday exhibitions.

There is not the slightest doubt that public opinion would register itself a hundredfold more strongly upon the question of censorship if it were presented to the people. The newspapers alone would decide that.

Hitherto there has been altogether too much pretence, on the part of the censorship element, to a monopoly of public opinion. It is time that a test, on the merits of the case, was made.

National Convention in San Francisco Sets New Standard for Meetings of Film Men

Fred J. Herrington Is Elected President, M. E. Cory Is Made Vice-President, L. W. Brophy, Second Vice-President, and Peter Jeup, Treasurer—At the Ball, Attended by Six Thousand, Carlyle Blackwell and Blanche Sweet Lead the Grand March—Griffith Delivers Rousing Speech, and Delegates Cast Unanimous Vote Against All Forms of Legalized Censorship

MOTION PICTURE NEWS takes deep and sincere pleasure in extending to Fred J. Herrington, the newly elected head of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and to Messrs. Cory, Brophy and Jeup, his associates, its cordial congratulations and heartiest wishes for a successful administration.

No man ever rose to that office with a livelier sense of the responsibilities, possibilities and opportunities that confront him as President of the League than Mr. Herrington. They are many, but it is safe to say that "Fighting Fred" is keenly and aggressively aware of them all.

MR. HERRINGTON went to San Francisco with a record, freshly made, that needed no encomium and no explanation. Within the last six months he successfully organized the Pennsylvania State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

At the same time, he led the exhibitors in a spirited and unwavering fight against censorship, first for absolute repeal of the law; then when it became evident that Brumbaugh and Breitinger would not permit such a thing to come to pass, he fought the substitute bill, clause by clause, until it was improved and modified and tempered to the motion picture business as far as the "powers" would permit.

IN the local affairs of the Pittsburgh exhibitors, Fred Herrington has been untiring in his efforts to obtain justice and fair play for his fellows from the various factions which, for one reason or another, were pitted against them.

Success has a peculiar way of crowning his efforts, too. He never returns from a fight empty-handed.

He may not have gained everything he went after, but when every circumstance is taken into consideration, it has usually been found that Fred Herrington got all there was to be gotten out of a given situation.

THE exhibitors need just such a man to lead them against the crises which will confront them during the next year. The censorship battle that must certainly break out during the fall and winter will furnish President Herrington with his greatest opportunity.

He is used to such conflicts. He welcomes them. As a campaigner and strategist, he is already a veteran.

IN the organization of the League along militant and defensive lines, no more able colleague for Mr. Herrington could be named than Mark E. Cory.

The convention that has just closed is Mr. Cory's latest masterpiece, and the success of it is proof of his executive and organizing ability.

But it is only the latest of numerous similar performances which Mr. Cory has brought to a successful conclusion. California will not soon forget his "personally conducted" tour of the state, by automobile last fall, when he swelled the roster of the state league beyond all expectations. California, with the rest of the country, is prepared to expect great things of "M. E.," and those who know his capacity for work best are expecting most of him.

Mr. Brophy's election as second vice-president marks what is almost his first appearance as a national figure. But his presence on a militant ticket of this sort is excellent evidence of the calibre of the man and his promise.

AS for Peter Jeup, his name has always been synonymous with the best progressive movements in the business. The alert, forward-moving exhibitor could always be certain that his business creed was Jeup's, and wherever there was a struggle toward better, saner, sounder conditions, Jeup was in the forefront of the fight, leading, until his fellow-exhibitors were ashamed not to follow. The Michigan State League is his monument, and it may be said in passing, that the statute-books of the Peninsular State would be much more unpleasant reading for the exhibitor than they are, had it not been for Peter Jeup's eternal vigilance.

* * *

FROM beginning to end, it is a great ticket. President Pearce and his colleagues may lay down the duties of their offices with the feeling that the problems of the League could not have been committed into stronger or more capable hands.

Special to MOTION PICTURE NEWS

San Francisco, July 20.

THE national convention of the Exhibitors League of America, which closed here Friday evening with a most brilliant ball, has set a new standard for meetings of the future, in that harmony was the keynote of this gathering. At all sessions there was a spirit of co-operation and get-together displayed, and the manufacturers with exhibits derived much benefit in meeting for the first time the west coast branch of the exhibitors' body of the country.

On Friday, the sixteenth, the election of officers was held with the following results: Fred J. Herrington, president; M. E. Cory, vice-president; L. W. Brophy, Muskogee, Okla., second vice-president, and Peter Jeup, Detroit, Mich., treasurer and secretary. The convention city and salaries will be named by an advisory board.

On Friday afternoon the local Fox exchange gave an automobile party to convention visitors.

Blackwell and Blanche Sweet Lead Ball

The convention ball, which was attended by many photoplay celebrities, took place on Friday night. The grand march was led by Carlyle Blackwell and Blanche Sweet of the Lasky company, Robert Harron and Dorothy Gish of Reliance and Majestic, Fred Mace and Mabel Normand of Keystone, Robert Leonard and Ella Hall of Universal, Howard Hickman, William S. Hart and Bessie Barriscale of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, and William Duncan and Myrtle Gonzales of the western Vitagraph studio.

Others in attendance were: Jesse Lasky, Cecil De Mille and Geraldine Farrar, from Lasky; Mack Sennett and Raymond Hitchcock, Keystone; Francis Bushman, Marguerite Snow, Fred Balshoffer and Harry Reichenbach, Metro; Hobart Bosworth, Universal; Victor Potel, Essanay; Frank Keenan, NYMP; W. W. Hodkinson, Paramount; and Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Leon Netter and E. M. Asher.

There totaled six thousand at the ball, including others more or less prominent in the picture business, and many guests. The music was furnished by a thirty-piece orchestra.

During the course of the evening a prize dancing contest was held. Mrs. Hearst was universally acclaimed the best waltzer, while William S. Hart by winning the second prize proved himself as good a ball room artist as he is western bad man. Both winners received handsome loving cups.

Co-operation of Manufacturers Secured

At the Tuesday session of the convention Walt Blosser, manager of the motion picture department of the Chicago "Tribune," spoke on the motion picture and advertising.

Of great importance to the trade is the resolution adopted following the address on censorship by David W. Griffith, when amid scenes of enthusiasm wilder than ever before at such gatherings the exhibitors went on record as being opposed to any form of legalized censorship.

Of almost equal importance is the action taken to secure the co-operation of manufacturers and exchange men for the betterment of the industry with respect to vicious pictures of any kind and the renting of films for projection in saloons and other places where liquors are sold and where no admission price is charged.

The league will be greatly benefitted by the action of the convention with regard to placing the matter of selecting a convention city in the hands of the executive board, and the naming of a secretary and fixing his salary with the same officers.

The resolution providing this also set out that the secretary shall be employed throughout the year, and maintain an office in New York City. Plans were also made to decide upon a permanent convention city where sufficient admission fees can be secured to pay the expenses of the convention.

Fully fifteen thousand people gathered in the great Court of the Universe at the Panama-Pacific Exposition on Thursday, the 15th, and saw Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow act scenes from "Richard Carvel." This remarkable event, said to be one of the greatest crowds thus far seen in any one part of the Exposition grounds, characterized "Metro" day at the World's Fair, which was a decided success from beginning to end.

Credit to Cory

In the evening the daring aviator, Art. Smith, concluded the ceremonies by soaring into the Heavens and writing the letters of "Metro" in the sky in full view of the thousands below. During the day a public reception was held by Mr. Bushman on the grounds.

Most conspicuous was the success of Mark E. Cory as chairman of the committee on arrangements of this convention, and to him is due practically all credit for the success of the meeting. Upon Mr. Cory fell almost the entire work of planning and arranging for this convention, and the manner in which he carried out every detail won for him the praise of all who participated.

The booths for the exposition were very attractively arranged, alternating and direct current feed wires went to every booth, there was a telegraph office in the exposition hall directly opposite the booths of the several trade papers, and practically every convenience and need was looked after by the genial chairman to the extent of furnishing stamps to the visitors on various occasions.

FRED J. HERRINGTON, PITTSBURGH, PRESIDENT, M. P. E. L. OF A.

The exhibitors are very proud of this meeting, for in planning for it they decided that politics should be eliminated and an honest effort made to secure the co-operation of the manufacturer and exchange men. This was carried out by Chairman Cory and all connected with the convention, to the letter.

Help of Manufacturers

An illustration of the manner in which manufacturers took advantage of the invitation extended by the exhibitors to participate is most strikingly illustrated by D. W. Griffith, W. W. Hodkinson, and Thomas H. Ince in accepting an invitation to participate in the program.

There was an absence at this meeting of conditions that caused dissatisfaction in previous meetings. Here there was no official decorator of a furniture house. The manufacturers who desired to decorate were at liberty to secure the aid of any decorator they desired. The result was that all booths this year were much prettier, and more tastefully decorated than those at conventions in previous years.

The beneficial influence of the Pacific coast producing companies in co-operating with Chairman Cory, in making the ball of Friday evening a big success, points out to the exhibitors the need of holding all future meetings in cities where it will be possible for manufacturers to assist.

Never before was an exhibitors' convention or ball such a brilliant affair as that at San Francisco, and the receipts will go a long way toward paying the expenses of this meeting, regardless of the fact that the convention paid all expenses of bringing the prominent photoplayers to San Francisco from Los Angeles and other California cities, entertained the artists while here, and sent them home in style.

Details of the Tuesday session were given in the July 24 issue of Motion Picture News.

When the convention was called to order Wednesday morning, President Pearce appointed committees on resolutions and grievances, selecting L. W. Brophy, S. H. Jones, and I. Oppenheimer; and M. J. Slim, M. Z. Krohn and L. R. Greenfield on constitution and by-laws committee.

Judge A. P. Tugwell, of Los Angeles, was then asked to address the meeting, and spoke briefly on the history of the film industry, dating back to the Chicago Exposition in 1893, and telling of his experience since that date in connection with what was then looked upon as a passing novelty. He concluded by reading a newspaper clipping from a Pittsburgh newspaper, referring to censorship. This pointed out the great growth of the industry in that it showed that politicians had come to realize the importance of motion pictures.

Principal Speakers

The principal speaker of this session was W. W. Hodkinson, president of Paramount Pictures Corporation, who discussed the future of the film industry. He pointed out that producers were fast improving their subjects and shortly this process would eliminate the need of censorship.

At the present time there is no need of censorship, according to the views of Mr. Hodkinson, and as this is becoming apparent to the public and the newspapers, the censor will be removed from office. In conclusion, he stated his belief in the motion picture industry, more particularly the feature film. It is still in its infancy, but the future has in store great improvements for pictures.

Briefly he summarized the improvements made in the past five years, and concluded in calling attention to the series of pictures now being made featuring Geraldine Farrar, the highest salaried artist ever engaged to appear before the camera. He devoted a portion of his talk to urging the exhibitors to use better pictures and use them longer, and to stop daily changes and thereby aid the industry.

One of the outstanding features of the whole week was Wednesday evening, "Barriscale Night," on which Bessie Barriscale, star of the Thomas H. Ince-NYMP producing forces, was the guest of honor in the big exposition salon. Miss Barriscale, gowned in a magnificent creation of white satin, held forth in the unique Ince booth.

She was seated in a handsome white enameled chair, at a table of the same character, and the furniture, together with the actress' stunning white gown, combined to give a gorgeous effect against the rich background of royal purple satin, which adorned the booth.

M. E. CORY, SAN FRANCISCO, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT M. P. E. L. OF A.

Though no turnstiles registered the number of people in attendance on "Barriscale Night," it would not be exaggeration to say that more visitors filled the big hall on that occasion than at any previous time during the week. Miss Barriscale enjoys a tremendous popularity in San Francisco, due, in a great measure, to the fact that for many years she was the favorite stock star in the Bay City, and this caused a large contingent of the theatre-going public to grasp the opportunity of meeting their idol face to face.

Griffith Delivers Address

The most enthusiastic session of the convention was that of Thursday morning, when David Wark Griffith, maker of "The Birth of a Nation," was the principal speaker. Mr. Griffith's subject was "The Rise and Fall of Free Speech and Personal Liberty," and so forcefully did he deal with the censorship problem that he caused the convention to adopt a motion made by Judge A. P. Tugwell, of Los Angeles, providing that the organization is against all forms of legalized censorship.

As soon as Mr. Griffith entered the big convention hall he was greeted with applause, which continued while he walked the entire length of the hall, and for several minutes as President Pearce, who presided, stood waiting to introduce the speaker. The speaker was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause, and when he finished his earnest appeal for all to aid in "the beautiful fight for liberty," the audience rose as one and cheered him as he passed out of the hall. In part Mr. Griffith said:

"Freedom of speech and publication is guaranteed in the Constitution of the United States, and in the constitution of practically all the states. Unjustifiable speech or publication may be punished, but cannot be forbidden in advance. The Supreme Court of California held that a regular theatrical production could be protected from injunction on the ground that it was a publication.

"We do not fear censorship, for we have no wish to offend with indecencies or obscenities, but we do demand, as a right, the liberty to show the dark side of wrong, that we may illuminate the bright side of virtue—the same liberty that is conceded to the art of the written word, that art to which we owe the Bible and the works of Shakespeare.

"The rise of free speech has cost centuries upon centuries of untold sufferings and agonies. In our own country it has taken some of the best blood of our forefathers. The Revolution itself was a fight in this direction—the God-given, beautiful thing of free speech.

"Afterwards the first assault on the right of free speech guaranteed by the Constitution occurred in 1798, when Congress passed the Sedition law, which made it a crime for any newspaper or other printed publication to criticise the government.

Unjust Law Dead

"Hotly contested prosecution of editors and publishers took place at the instance of the party in power, the popular indignation was aroused against this abridgement of liberty to such an extent that Thomas Jefferson, the candidate of the opposition party for President, was triumphantly elected. And after than nothing more was heard of the Sedition law, which expired by limitation in 1801.

"The integrity of free speech and publication was not again attacked in this country until the arrival of the motion picture, when this new art was seized upon as an excuse for meddlesome interference.

"It has taken but a very few short years to take away this wonderful blessing, and I tell you that not only has its accomplishment been attempted—it has been completed. You may think this is an exaggeration, but I tell you that when a majority of citizens in any community allow the censorship of one single motion picture—particularly showing to an audience of adults—the right of free speech in that community has once and for all and forevermore ceased to be.

"They tell you you must not show crime in a motion picture. Do not listen to such nonsense. These people would not have you show the glories and beauties of the most wonderful moral lesson the world has ever known—the life of Christ—because in that story you must show the vice of the traitor Judas Iscariot.

"Let these people follow out their belief to its logical conclusion, there would have been written no 'Iliads' of Homer; there would not have been written, for the glory of the human race, that grand cadence of uplift called the Bible; there would have been no Goethe. There would be no thrilling, beautiful dramas given as the grandest heritage of the English-speaking race—the plays of Shakespeare. None of these things would these worthy persons have left in your possession had they had their way.

New Ideas Gain Ground Slowly

"All new things in the world, including the Christian religion and the printing press, have been at their beginnings considered as instruments of evil.

"The motion picture has had to undergo the same ordeal that seems to be directed at all new things.

"Again, once allow the idea of censorship to be accepted quietly, and as a matter of course by the American people concerning the motion picture, how easy it will be for the spirit of intolerance, that has already grown so arrogant in our nation, to attack the stage, and then the press itself.

"The motion picture is a form of speech as clean and decent, and respectable as that of any art mankind has ever discovered. A people that would allow the suppression of this form of speech would unquestionably submit to the suppression of that which we all consider so highly, the printing press.

"And yet we find all through the country, among all classes of people, the idea that the motion picture should be censored.

"When the first little board of censorship was established six years ago, we took it seriously, then expected exactly what has come to pass. A man of the caliber of the captain of the police of Chicago can tell two million American people what they shall and shall not go to see in the way of a moving picture.

Everything at Dead-Level Flabbiness

"The policy of the censorship is to approve of pictures which offend no one. That is one way of saying: 'We will have nothing in the pictures but milk and water,' ridiculous, insipid mediocrity that could not possibly interest anyone.

"We believe that we have as much right to present the facts of history as we see them, on the motion picture screen, as Woodrow Wilson has to write these facts in his history. We believe it as a right under the Constitution of the United States, and we are supported in this belief by wise judicial decisions in cases where the matter has been presented to the courts in the right way.

"So long as this thing of censorship is allowed, so long as in a city the size of Chicago one man may tell two million what they shall or shall not see in a motion picture in the theatres of Chicago, then just so long and just so certain, there is no such thing as free America, and freedom of speech is a thing of the dead and much-regretted past.

"The press of the country can awaken the people to the truth of these conditions. What have you done to help awaken them? The gentlemen of the press are human beings, subject and liable to be persuaded one way or another, the same as you or I.

"Talk to them, put up your side of the case. You will find that you can open their eyes to things they have never dreamed of. Already some of the greatest journalists of the country have been brought to see the light."

Daily Papers on Side of Exhibitors

Mr. Griffith's quoted extracts from principal dailies. The extracts are as follows:

The Chicago "Tribune," in speaking of the attitude taken by the Mayor of that city, says:

"Intelligence does not need censorship. The greater the insistence upon censorship the greater the denial that the community has intelligence. . . . . Censorship, being in itself a denial of intelligence, frequently proves that it itself is unintelligent."

The Boston "Transcript," in an editorial, says:

"The framers of the organic law of the Commonwealth concluded their contribution to human happiness with the purposeful phrase: 'To the end it may be a government of laws and not of men.' Upon Massachusetts, therefore, rests a peculiar obligation to oppose the tendency of the times to change by class legislation and executive censorship a government of laws to a government of men. The passion to limit by legislation or executive order the freedom of the individual is today the curse of the nation."

The Boston "Herald" says:

"The people are impatient of any censorship which limits that freedom (free speech) which they hold as a priceless heritage. They want exact fairness and justice for all races and creeds."

The Chicago "Examiner" says:

"If an official can impose his views on us in the moving picture house, the next attempt will be to tell the theatre what it is allowed to show, and from that it is only a step to telling the press what it may print. That would spell an end to criticism of public acts and public men. It would substitute personal interest or personal prejudice for the truth as the standard in determining the right of publication."

The Chicago "Tribune," in another editorial in regard to censorship, says:

"The rights of the public are not to be abridged by bureaucracy, but are under the protection of the judiciary. The growth of censorship, undoubtedly stimulated by the moving picture, is a development which no American devoted to ideals of freedom can observe without alarm. . . . . The use of censorship easily may tend to the misuse of it, and the position of the courts as a corrective to check abuse of power by what is virtually an extra legal authority and might easily become an autocratic and stupid authority, most constantly be kept in mind."

In an editorial the Boston "American" calls censorship of moving pictures a dangerous precedent:

". . . always ready for abuse whenever in worse days there should arise those who would dare to abuse it. The liberty of a free people is not protected by ignoring a danger because it seems to be distant and not heeding it until it has actually sprung upon us and holds us in a death grapple."

The rest of Mr. Griffith's address follows:

"The press, the theatres, and the great majority of the people—these are only too ready to line themselves on your side of the battle, if you only have the nerve and the brains to let them know what your side is. In Heaven's name—get to it!"

President Pearce's Address

Following the opening of the Thursday session the reports of national officers were called for, and President Pearce read his annual report, which was as follows:

"Upon my election about a year ago, at Dayton, Ohio, the information was vouchsafed the Convention that my business interests would not permit constant traveling, and upon taking up the work, a letter of encouragement was immediately sent to all state officers, and information requested. The number of replies was very encouraging and showed the need of strong state and national organizations.

"In order to strengthen the state and national organizations, the question of amalgamation was taken up with the states of Wisconsin, Illinois, California, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, and it is more than a pleasure to be able to state that the first state in which amalgamation was effected was California.

"The remarkable co-operation of both sides not only made it possible, but materially aided in amalgamation in all these states, with the exception of Wisconsin and Illinois. This was emphasized by the splendid work done by the League in securing a graduated scale as a substitute for the flat rate war tax.

"This concession was the more remarkable because it was obtained by the League after the Finance Committee of the Senate had decided to grant no hearings on any portion of the bill.

"Too much praise cannot be given to the various trade papers for the loyal support given our organization. The success of the program, 'Exhibition must Organize,' was secured largely through the many columns of space so unselfishly given by them.

"If not at first it must now be apparent to all that the work of this administration is largely to lay the foundation upon which the future organization is to be built. Amalgamation with harmony was most necessary, and I trust the large success obtained along this line will enable this convention to so plan a boom for our organization which we have so much desired and that it will be a permanent one.

"The success of any organization, more especially this one of ours, depends largely on its personnel, and it is indeed gratifying in visiting the various state officers to find them not only men of ability and integrity, but leaders in their respective communities.

"In closing, let me make a suggestion which is based on my experience as your president, and while it may not seem as necessary to some as it does to me, I am sure it would be suggested by any one of you if you had the opportunity to make the observation that I have had:

"As soon as our convention will permit I would recommend the election of a secretary who shall be paid sufficient salary to enable him to devote his entire time to the work of the League, not only as secretary, but also as an organizer; also that his headquarters be in New York City.

"To make it impossible for him to use this position as a means of personal gain, I also recommend such amendment to our By-Laws as will provide for his election by the Executive Board, and his work to be under the supervision of the League president. I do not feel that I could ask the favorable consideration of this suggestion without stating to the convention that I am under no circumstances a candidate for re-election, and I take this opportunity to thank you all for your loyal support and hearty co-operation.

"Respectfully,
"M. S. PEARCE,
"President."

The report of the committee on by-laws was made and in all instances the suggestions of the committeemen were followed out by the convention as a whole, the report being adopted as read.

S. M. Spedon, manager of the publicity department of the Vitagraph company, gave a short talk on advertising, reviewing the various stages of the industry, in respect to the manufacturers' attitude toward advertising and publicity or popularizing the photoplays.

Spedon Talks on Advertising

He pointed out that the manufacturers had come to realize the necessity of co-operating with the exhibitor and cited the various methods that had been adopted. He urged the exhibitors of the convention to work with the manufacturer, for in reality it is a big task for the makers to judge the public pulse. They can best do so by working with the theatre people who nightly see their patrons and learn their likes and dislikes, he said.

The dailies of Los Angeles and San Francisco have devoted much space to the exhibitors' convention in general and paid particular attention to the Selig special train, which carried many of the exhibitors half way across the continent to the convention.

The Selig company's feature release of September, "Seven Suffering Sisters," was the object of much talk. Kathlyn Williams, who will appear in the picture opposite Tom Sanstchi, received a mysterious package on Saturday and a prize will be awarded for the one who guesses its correct contents.

The Selig company gave its many guests who came West on the Special a royal time. There was a lunch dance at the Selig zoo, with the players as hosts, besides side trips to Pasadena, Avalon, San Diego, Santa Barbara and Santa Monica. The Special left Sunday for Salt Lake City, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago.

Exhibits Outshine Former Convention Displays

Manufacturers of Films and Accessories Attract More Attention by Their Booths Than at Any Previous Trade Exposition—Visitors Are Pleased with the Decorative Schemes Employed for Making the Appearance of the Convention Hall Impressive

EXHIBITS of film manufacturers, programs and accessories companies at the fifth annual convention were far more attractive than those of any similar meeting in the past. All took a great interest in the preparation of the displays and the visitors and delegates of the convention were loud in their praise.

A most artistic and beautiful booth was that of the Paramount Pictures Corporation. Occupying the three spaces directly in front of the main entrance, it was the first to greet the eye of the visitor. The display was in the form of an arbor, designed by Wilfred Buckland, art director of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, and carried out under the direction of Herman Wobber, the San Francisco representative of the Paramount.

Entirely of white lattice work, the colonnades mounted to the roof. In the center the Paramount trademark blazed forth and on the facades on each side were the names of the four firms releasing features through the Paramount program.

No attempt was made to display a vast amount of pictures. Mary Pickford, Marguerite Clark and Pauline Frederick, of the Famous Players; Geraldine Farrar, as Carmen; Blanche Sweet and Carlyle Blackwell, from the Lasky company, and the stars of the Morosco and Imperial companies were shown. On a table in the center of the booth was displayed the celebrated $1,000 collection of photographs of Geraldine Farrar made by the imperial photographer to the Emperor of Germany, also photographs of the Lasky all-star stock company.

Metro Booth in Splendor

Beneath a tastefully arranged canopy of red, white and blue, life-size, natural-color photographs of Metro program stars were shown. under the direction of Harry Reichenbach, in charge of publicity for Metro Corporation, New York City, E. M. Asher, and Sol M. Lesser, of All-Star Feature Distributors of San Francisco, Seattle and Los Angeles. Flags draped at all corners added to the attractiveness of this booth, and pretty palms and wicker furniture gave an air of distinctive coziness. The pictures shown were those of Olga Petrova, Florence Reed, Emily Stevens, Dorothy Donnelly, Ann Murdock, Francis X. Bushman, Marguerite Snow, Martha Hedman, Edmund Breese, and William Faversham.

One of the attractive booths was that of the San Francisco branch of Pathe Exchange, Inc. This booth was handsomely decorated with bunting and a profusion of attractive publicity matter in which were shown oil paintings of the Pathe players, including Ruth Roland, Henry King, Lionel Barrymore, Edwin Arden, Pearl White, Arnold Daly and others well known to motion picture followers.

In addition, there was a varied profusion of the artistic posters which are identified with the name of Pathe, conspicuous among which was the trademark rooster in crowing attitude. Handsome souvenir pennants containing photographs of the best known Pathe players were distributed to the exhibitors as mementos of the convention. The booth was in charge of Harry Oviatt, manager of the local branch; H. L. Knappen, H. L. Korpfer and F. Rodriguez.

"Keep Your Eye on Ince"

One of the most widely discussed booths on the floor, widely discussed because of its originality and absolute lack of ostentation, was that in which Messrs. Kessel and Baumann, of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, warned everybody to "keep your eye on Ince." It was situated in the northwest corner of the group.

There was something strikingly artistic about the exhibit. That's a rather bold statement, but it is vouched for even by "Hooks" O'Hara, whom "Bill" Wing called the Spanish prince.

Conspicuously located, the attractive booth of Griffith players caused a considerable amount of attention. The same was due to the pleasing as well as dignified appearance of the booth. The decorations consisted of large bromide photographers, of which the principal Griffith players were the subjects. Their frames, as well as the walls and ceiling, matched harmoniously with the life-like photographs.

Souvenir post cards, bearing the photograph of David Wark Griffith and a message from him concerning the trade-mark designating features produced by him personally, were distributed.

Many of the exhibitors who had exhibited Griffith features made their home in the Griffith booth, of which Bennie Zeidman, the Griffith Los Angeles representative, was in charge.

A partial list of the Griffith players represented in the neatly gotten up exhibit included Mae Marsh, Lillian Gish, Robert Harron, Dorothy Gish, Teddy Sampson, Charles Clary, Signe Auen, Charles West, Mary Alden, Spottiswoode Aitken, Miriam Cooper, Walter Long, Josephine Crowell, Ralph Lewis, Thomas Jefferson, Fay Tincher, Edward "Komic" Dillon, Francelia Billington, Irene Hunt and Sam De Grasse.

The supporting posts in the booth were covered with eight by ten bromide photographs of many of the Reliance and Majestic favorites, and a repetoire of views of the Griffith Hollywood studio.

World Film Booth Shows Stars

The World Film Corporation booth showed decidedly attractive picture of the corporation's greatest stars, Vivian Martin, Clara Kimball Young, Bob Warwick and Tom Wise. These were in natural colors, with attractive brass frames and easels, and draped with rich velvet. The display was in charge of San Francisco Exchange Manager Ralph Clark and Joe Deitch, who distributed literature describing the releases of this program, including "The Dollar Mark," "Fine Feathers," "The Boss," and others.

ART SMITH, AERONAUT, WRITING "METRO" IN THE SKY AT THE EXPOSITION

Wearing a sepia smile, the well-known countenance of David Horsley beamed upon all exhibitors from his booth upon the central corridor. Flanked upon all sides were enlarged panoramic views of his triple studios, which radiated into distinctive arenas from a common center.

The disappointment in not meeting Mr. Horsley in person was to some extent overcome by his friend and personal representative, Ernest Shipman, who, from years of business in the theatrical and motion picture business knows most all the exhibitors worth knowing anywhere in the country.

In the exhibition theatres the MinA comedies were run on schedule to demonstrate to exhibitors the excellence of this particular brand.

New Model Motiograph Shown

The exhibit of the Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, makers of the Motiograph, was particularly attractive on account of the rich black velvet hangings decorated in gold. The feature of the exhibit was the entirely new 1916 model displayed for the first time. This was described at length in a recent issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

The entire exhibition was in charge of Edward H. Kemp, who personally welcomed many old friends and made new acquaintances. Mr. Kemp is the coast representative of the Enterprise company and conducts an accessory establishment at 833 Market street, San Francisco.

G. A. Metcalfe was located in Booth No. 1 with an exhibit of a number of leading eastern machines and devices. Principal among these were the Power's machine, for which Metcalfe is exclusive Pacific Coast distributor (except Los Angeles territory). The Simplex machine was also represented. The Baird machine created a great deal of comment on account of its large size and beautiful finish. Metcalfe also showed a complete line of supplies for operating room, lobby and auditorium, embracing the new line of brass poster frames in all sizes and styles.

The Simplex Alamo Camera for $35 was sold to a great number of exhibitors, who use it for taking local topical news subjects for presentation upon their screens. The Minusa Gold Fibre screen also received a great deal of publicity through Metcalfe's hands. A large demonstrating screen was loaned for one of the miniature theatres.

H. Paulis, general manager of the Los Angeles Motion Picture Company, manufacturers of Angelus cameras, tripods, rewind machines and other devices, had a display on Accessory Avenue, along the west side of the exposition, where he showed the latest models of the products of this company and giving demonstrations.

Another Minusa screen was loaned for demonstrating purposes to the National Carbon Company and still a third hung in Metcalfe's booth. The "Minusa Minstrel" is a publication of the snappy sort that created many a laugh from the exhibitors who read its bright lines.

Power's Display Unique

The Power's display was of a unique type in color and goes with the harmony of the convention and the Power company in general. The booth was a cozy structure, the coloring the proper shade to harmonize with the two banners hung in front, displaying gold and purple, which denoted the awarding of the highest possible award, the First Grand Prize, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

The able representative, R. W. Horn, was on the job and maintained the dignity and good fellowship of the Power company. Mr. Horn expressed congratulations and best wishes to officers and exhibitors, both of the State of California and of the world in general, which he is doing his utmost to promote.

Pathe Poster Frame Exhibited

A newly patented poster frame was on display in the Pathe booth. This frame promises much to the motion picture exhibitor and comes at a time when the three-sheet and one-sheet posters are receiving greater attention than ever before.

The Universal exhibited, one afternoon in one of the theatres, "Scandal," the five-reel subject that was recently made at Universal City by Lois Weber, creator of "Hypocrites." This was the first picture to be shown by any of the manufacturing companies and the theatre was crowded. The next day Jane Cowl, in "The Garden of Lies," was shown.

M. L. Markowitz, manager of the California Film Company, assisted by Dan Markowitz and W. A. Cory, was in charge of the Universal's booth, which was centrally located in the salon. Handsome framed enlargements of the photographs of Cleo Madison, Ella Hall, Anna Little, Violet Mersereau, King Baggott, Hobart Bosworth, Herbert Rawlinson, Marie Walcamp, Robert Leonard, "Jack" Kerrigan, Francis Ford, Grace Cunard, Mary Fuller, and others of the many stars of the Big U organization were displayed to excellent advantage. Views of Universal City were also shown. In the center of the booth was a splendid likeness of President Carl Laemmle, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, draped in the company's colors. Two pretty girls were on hand furnishing interesting literature relating to the company and its productions to exhibitors and others.

Edison Machine Shown

Booths Nos. 4 and 5 were occupied by George Breck, the first man in America to engage in the equipment business. Here were on exhibition for the first time the long-heralded Edison Super Kinetoscope, the Caille Automatic Ticket Selling Machine, the Portoscope Projecting Machine, together with the very latest models of the most popular apparatus now in general use, including the Simplex type "S" Projector and the Standard Master Model machine.

President Freuler's Double Play in New Mutual Policy

President of Big Releasing Company, Who Recently Appointed John C. Graham, Widely Known in the Industry, His General Assistant, Signs David Horsley for Release of Centaur Producer's Entire Output Through the Mutual Program

AT noon Saturday, papers were signed by John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, and David Horsley, owner of the Centaur Film Company, of Bayonne, N. J., and the Bostock Jungle and Film Company, of Los Angeles, whereby Mr. Horsley is to release his entire output through the Mutual. At the same time Mr. Horsley cancelled his contract by which, for the past seven months, he released the MinA brand of comedies through the offices of the General Film Company.

This is the latest of the important and far-reaching steps that John R. Freuler is taking to carry out to the fullest extent the avowed policy of his administration—to make the name of Mutual synonymous with "service to the exhibitor."

The first of these was the appointment of John Cecil Graham, one of the most widely experienced men in the motion picture field, and known for his ability to every exchange man and exhibitor in the country, to the post of general assistant to the president.

The program, as Mr. Freuler declared in an interview published in last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS, is, in his opinion, the backbone of the business. With no disparagement of the feature, with no disposition to underestimate its influence or belittle its importance, President Freuler still holds firmly to the principle that the program is the day-in-and-day-out money maker for the exhibitor all the year through, and that a solid, well-rounded and reliable program is the only secure foundation upon which to construct an exhibitor service.

With such a program, he believes, whatever features the company produces and markets will have an added weight and value, because they are backed by a dependable short-picture schedule.

Freuler Will Not Abandon Features

Mutual features have gained permanent currency throughout the field. There is no intention on Mr. Freuler's part of abandoning them. But their production and release will be so ordered that they do not encroach upon or weaken the regular Mutual program—the standard of each will be maintained independently of the other, and the program picture and the feature will only have in common Mutual quality and reliability.

The cancellation of Mr. Horsley's contract to release through the General becomes effective within thirty days, which means that the last picture he will distribute through that channel will be the release for August 12. The brand name MinA remains the property of the licensed company, but Mr. Horsley completely severs his connections with it.

In the Mutual it is said that Mr. Horsley hopes to find a wider market for his productions.

Mr. Horsley is one of the best known film manufacturers in the United States. He was the first independent producer, who, through his courage and tenacity of purpose, blazed the way for the host who have followed, and is the inventor of many mechanical devices, which have proved invaluable in the development of motion picture art, as well as the originator of numerous novel features in studio construction.

For years the films produced under his direction have been regarded as among the best in motion picture production. The new connections bring to the Mutual program a style of pictures in universal demand. Each week Mr. Horsley will release through the Mutual a two-reel picture, featuring the collection of animals for which the Bostock name has been famous abroad and in this country for more than a century.

Mr. Horsley has bought the entire collection of Bostock animals, and has installed them at the new plant, covering a space of five acres, which he has lately completed in Los Angeles.

Preparations for Animal Pictures

Here a huge arena has been constructed, and a stage erected large enough to accommodate six working companies at one time. The arena has been so arranged that it will be possible to take animal pictures with absolute safety for the production staff, and by a unique arrangement of stage settings, six different scenes can be taken in but little more than the time which it ordinarily takes for one.

The Frank B. Bostock collection of trained animals, long known as one of the largest and most complete in the world, represents an investment of more than $600,000.

The Bostock animals are not only trained, but selected with the greatest care, each one for some particular purpose. There are now about 130 in the collection, including groups of many diverse species—boxing kangaroos, trained ostriches, elephants, lions, tigers, leopards, pumas, dancing, skating and plunging bears, monkeys and wonderfully intelligent chimpanzees, parrots, and many birds of gaudy plumage in great variety.

Even more important than the animals themselves are the trainers who have made the Bostock collection so unique among all collections of performing beasts. These trainers have been with the original Bostock organization for many years, and were retained by Mr. Horsley when he organized the Bostock Jungle and Film Company. The general manager of the company is Harry E. Tudor, who has supervised the Bostock interests for many years.

Bonavita Heads Trainers

The list of trainers is headed by Captain Jack Bonavita, acknowledged to be the greatest lion tamer alive. Captain Bonavita became famous through working twenty-eight lions at the same time. While at Coney Island with the Bostock show, Captain Bonavita was attacked by lions and his right arm torn off. Since that time, however, he has continued to do daring feats.

Another trainer is J. MacField, who has had considerable experience in training animals for motion picture work. Mr. Horsley induced him to join the Bostock organization because of his vast motion picture experience. M. Gay, C. Beatty and four others complete the staff of made trainers. Gay is a young fellow of dashing personality and an exceptionally good lion tamer. Beatty's specialty is the training of leopards and tigers.

The female trainers include Mme. D'Arcy, one of the best known lion tamers in the world, who for years toured Europe under the direction of Mr. Cochran, of the London Hippodrome. She is assisted by her daughter, Mlle. Ottowa, who is specially clever in her handling of pumas and leopards. Mme. Gavette, another of the trainers in the Bostock organization, has a collection of nine wonderful polar bears, which she has trained to do the most astonishing feats.

It is obvious from this brief resume of the Bostock animal organization that Mr. Horsley will have facilities to manufacture one, two and multiple reel subjects for release through the Mutual consistently high in quality and unique in their appeal to the popular demand of the photoplay going public. Beside the animal features, a series of distinctive comedies will also be released by the Horsley companies. Mr. Horsley is also planning to produce a number of important multiple reel features, which will be released as Mutual master pictures.

Complete Animal Studio

His studio in Los Angeles, which has just been completed, combines all the latest developments in architecture and construction which have been called forth by the demands of the motion picture industry.

In addition to all these, it includes many devices and interior arrangements, all of which have been invented by Mr. Horsley, contained by no other motion picture studio in the world, including elaborate training quarters for the animal actors and a truly wonderful stage of unique design upon which the wild creatures and actors and actresses can perform under the camera's eye without the slightest possibility of mishap.

This is called the "arena," and around it six sets can be staged at one time, thus economizing on the time of director, camera man and the artistic staff.

Another feature of this remarkable studio is the dressing rooms, the fronts of which are constructed to represent bungalow exteriors, all being of different design with no two doors or windows alike. By means of this novel idea the directors have only to change one of the glass bungalow doors, which are constructed to be interchangeable, in order to have a combination of 144 bungalow fronts of different design for use in constructing interior settings.

All of these and many others of the unique features of the Los Angeles studio are the product of Mr. Horsley's fertile mind. Mr. Horsley is recognized as an inventive genius of premier rank. He has contributed a host of devices and contrivances to the list of motion picture inventions. He is the inventor of the Horsley duplex double exposure camera, by means of which it is possible to make two exposures at the same time upon the same negative. With this camera an infinite number of amazing effects can be made which are now all but impossible.

The alliance with Mr. Horsley is indicative of President Freuler's endeavor to strengthen and expand the Mutual program, and is in line with the announcements which he made to the motion picture exhibitors everywhere that he would endeavor to make Mutual service mean the best service alike to the public and exhibitors. The release of the Horsley productions through the Mutual Film Corporation will begin during the latter part of August.

Graham Is Appointed General Manager to Freuler

Former General Manager of Universal Is Familiar with All Branches of Industry—Entered the Business with H. E. Aitken, Former President of Mutual

JOHN CECIL GRAHAM, one of the best equipped men in the motion picture industry, has been appointed general assistant to John R. Freuler, recently elected president of the Mutual.

In selecting Mr. Graham for this all important office, President Freuler has brought to the Mutual a man who is familiar with every branch of the industry and who enjoys a nation-wide reputation among producers, exhibitors, and the public alike.

Mr. Graham, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, is from the Middle West. After his graduation, Mr. Graham passed up a career in the lumber business, in which his father had been a leader for many years, to enter the motion picture industry with H. E. Aitken, former president of the Mutual, when the latter organized the Western General Film Company. Later, in association with Mr. Aitken, he successfully operated the Western Film Exchange and when Mr. Aitken purchased the Reliance, he came East to be placed in charge of the output.

Following the organization of the Mutual, Mr. Graham continued in charge of the Eastern Exchange, which included New York City. Later he became general manager of the Universal and then of the United, recently dissolved.

Mr. Graham's experience in the film business dates back to Milwaukee, St. Louis and Joplin, with Mr. Freuler and Mr. Aitken.

Mr. Graham's experience and training has especially fitted him for an executive position in an exchange owning and operating corporation, such as the Mutual Film.

The days of the old Western Film Exchange were several years ago. That was when Mr. Graham got his grounding in the business. During his first connection with the Mutual he had charge of the eastern district, which included New York City. With the Universal he was primarily an exchange man. He was sent out, as sort of an innovation, to visit the exchanges and spend a few weeks at each. He developed business so that the Universal decided to keep him at that alone.

He was induced to leave the Universal and go with the United.

Now Mr. Graham returns to his old company and his former associates.

To give an estimate of the man let it be said that he stands for all that is best in the film industry. He is esteemed for industry, honesty and ability.

A Central Eye on Scripts for All Standard Studios

Changes in Public Reading Taste Will Become Known Through Special Scenario Department, Organized to Select Magazine and Book Plots

BY learning the demands of theatre patrons from the theatre owners and transmitting them to a special scenario department conducted by the Standard Photoplay Distributors, Inc., the exchanges handling the Standard program hope to be able, in a short time, to give the exhibitors a variety of stories in photodrama form that will supply directly the kind of productions most popular with their audiences.

The Standard executives believe that although magazines and novels are constantly changing the style of stories offered to the reading public in accordance with the popular demand, motion pictures are not up-to-date in this respect because of the conditions of the business forcing the exchanges to take whatever style of story the manufacturers see fit to hand them without due regard to the demands of the exhibitors on behalf of their patrons.

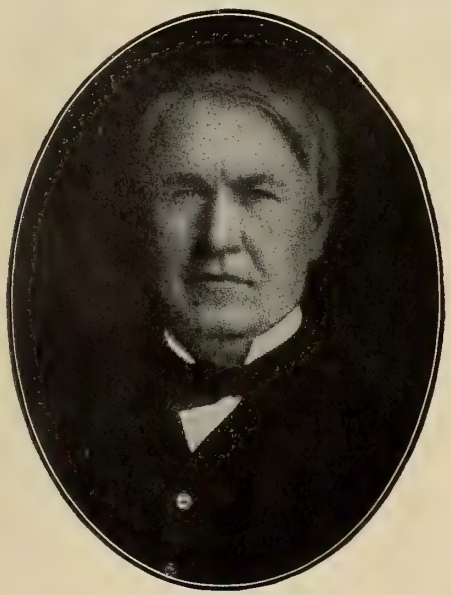
While a publisher will not accept a story, the style of which he learns from the bookseller is not in demand, an exchange is forced to accept a released motion picture in spite of the fact that the exhibitors have warned him of the unpopularity of the subject.

The correction of this state of affairs was in the minds of the active spirits of the Standard program during its organization and steps have been taken whereby the studios producing Standard pictures will receive their stories from carefully selected scenarios prepared by a special script department, which is kept informed by the exchanges of the style of stories most popular in their several territories.

This department will consist of a staff of high salaried magazine writers who will work in conjunction with experienced scenario writers, and while each studio will be allowed to furnish its own scripts when desired they will not be O. K.'d by the central scenario department unless the subject is known to be in popular demand.

ST. LOUIS LEAGUE TREASURER GOES TO EXPOSITION

J. W. Price, treasurer of the Theatre Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Protective Association of St. Louis, has gone to visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, afterwards going to Los Angeles, and out to Universal City.



Edison and Kleine Combine to Produce Five-Reelers

Company, Known as Kleine-Edison Feature Film Service, Will Begin on August 30—Active Operations for the Production of Subjects in a Service Distinct from Their Releases Through the General Film—Ethel Grandin Scheduled for Regular Releases

TWO veterans of the motion picture industry, Thomas A. Edison and George Kleine, have formed a feature producing and distributing combination, known as the Kleine-Edison Feature Film Service, which will start active operations on Monday, August 30, with the Edison production of "Vanity Fair," in five reels, with Mrs. Fiske starred.

Feature films, mostly five-reelers, with an occasional subject of exceptional merit running to a greater length, will be distributed. At first Edison will release one a month and Kleine two. This will be increased till the Kleine-Edison Feature Film Service is handling a feature a week.

This service is entirely apart from the Kleine and Edison picture released through the General Film company. These pictures will continue. The pictures to be released through the new combine are entirely the product of increased activity.

Both manufacturers will go slow in the matter of increasing the output. Both feel that haste in producing is detrimental and on no account will the manufacturing process be hurried. When it is felt that the output can be increased without sacrificing quality for speed the increase will come.

Kleine Exchanges Will Be Distributors

The George Kleine exchanges will be the distributing offices. The only change in the management of the exchanges is the removal from Chicago to New York of Mr. Kleine's executive department. The office employees, including the publicity and general accounting departments, and Mr. Kleine himself, now make headquarters in the Candler theatre building, 226 West Forty-second street, New York City. Chicago remains the distributing center for the Middle West. This department and the Kleine Optical company will continue at 166 North State street.

"With our present releasing facilities and the fact that two big studios are busy making the pictures, we feel that we have covered the two ends of the industry," said Mr. Kleine. "I may say that my name appears first in the title of the new company because Mr. Edison so wished it. I would never think of trying to precede the real father of the motion picture business, but he was kind enough to say that the name of Kleine had been associated in the mind of the trade with feature films longer than the name of Edison and he felt that it should come first in the name of the company.

"Mr. Edison is more interested in the production plans, the quality of the product, public preferences as to subjects and such matters than in the cost of production or profits.

"In addition to famous stars of the dramatic stage such as Irene Fenwick, Frank Sheridan, Paul McAllister, Fania Marinoff and Anne Meredith, the vaudeville team of Bickel and Watson has been engaged for coming comedies. These will be 'Hello Bill,' 'The Politicians' and 'The Secret of the Seedless Prune.'

ETHEL GRANDIN

"Bickel and Watson will be featured in a series of comedies that will avoid any suggestion of vulgarity, without affecting, however, the broad humor for which they are celebrated. They will be surrounded with exceptional casts, selected because of the individual fitness of the members for their several parts. Coming announcements will give proof of this intention. The general treatment of settings and properties will be of strictly feature quality.

Bickel and Watson to Be Featured

"The Bickel and Watson comedies will, therefore, be rich in humor, but at the same time artists of the first rank, whose work will be entitled to the most serious consideration, will appear with them in these photo-comedy productions.

GEORGE KLEINE

The contrast between the serious acting and that of the comedy roles cannot fail to add to the amusement and pleasure of the spectator.

"Of course the Kleine dramatic features will receive earnest attention. From the sets up to the players nothing but the best will be seen. I have always believed in devoting time and care to every production and this rule will be rigidly adhered to."

At the Edison offices in West Orange, N. J., much enthusiasm was expressed over the new affiliation. The attitude there is that the Edison company now has a certain outlet for pretentious features and that it will produce the very best.

The Edison players, scenarios and settings have won a high reputation in short-length pictures and there is no reason why Edison cannot produce successfully a long list of features.

"Vanity Fair," an Edison feature with Mrs. Fiske, will be the first realease of the Kleine-Edison Feature Film Service. Then comes "The House Next Door," a Kleine production with Irene Fenwick. Then Viola Dana will be seen in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," by Edison. This will be followed by a Kleine production with Frank Sheridan, Paul McAllister, Fania Marinoff and Anne Meredith.

Mr. Kleine has another important announcement in that he will release American-made two reel subjects through the General Film company every Thursday, beginning September 2.

Ethel Grandin for Regular Appearance

For this latest addition to his output Mr. Kleine will present Ethel Grandin. Miss Grandin will be seen regularly in these releases.

"I have been slow in announcing any increase in our output because of the general tendency nowadays to cheapen subjects under four or five reels in length," said Mr. Kleine. "It is my plan to make a brand new kind of regular program release, giving each subject my personal attention and insisting at all times upon good, strong stories and the kind of settings that you would expect in a five or six reel subject. We will spare no expense to keep this subject up to our present feature standard."

Miss Grandin, while only a trifle over twenty years of age, has had a long and unusually varied experience in pictures.

For a year, prior to her first motion picture experience, she was featured in a vaudeville sketch which played the Orpheum and United time.

It was after the close of this engagement that Miss Grandin entered the picture field with the Imp company. For four years she was starred by the New York Motion Picture company and the Universal. She left the latter organization to put out her own brand of film under the title of the Grandin Film through the United program.

Lubin Signs Goodman for 12 Features at $60,000

Special Cast Will Be Engaged for Photo Dramas, Modeled After Griffith's "Battle of the Sexes," from the Pen of a Young Doctor Who Left Medicine for Success in Literature

THE Lubin Manufacturing company announces the engagement of Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman to write twelve feature photoplays a year at the largest salary ever paid for such services—$60,000.

These twelve feature photoplays will be of the domestic drama order patterned after the famous Griffith film, "The Battle of the Sexes," of which Dr. Goodman was the author. Lubin will engage a special cast of stars for these features and will spare no expense to make them a sensation of the film world during the next twelve months.

Although only 33 years old, Dr. Goodman has won an enviable name for himself in the world of literature, his novel, "Hagar Revelly," having been the best seller of the year it was published. He was born in Chicago, and after the usual preliminary schooling, studied medicine at Washington University, from which he was graduated. Then he went to the universities of Heidelberg and Vienna, where he continued his studies for another four years.

But medicine held no attraction for Dr. Goodman and he turned his endeavors to literature, his first novel being "Unclothed," the second "Travail," and the third "Hagar Revelly." Now Dr. Goodman has decided to give his best efforts to the production of what he hopes will prove to be masterpieces.

"I have an infinite faith in the mission of the photoplay," said Dr. Goodman in discussing his relations with the Lubin Manufacturing company. "Incidentally, I know that Mr. Lubin will spare no expense in the production of my twelve features. I have in mind the stars I want, and as the question of money is not involved, I believe that we will be able to gather an unequalled cast.

"Of course, I cannot go into details as to the themes on which I will write, but they will deal with domestic problems, pregnant with human emotions and telling the story of things most vital to the race. Whether I will succeed in this new field I cannot say—like the famous archer in 'Ivanhoe'—'no man can do more than his best.'"

Syracuse Solves Absurd Competition by Organizing

Exhibitors, Tired of Losing Money by Offering Too Many Subjects, Form Association to Combat Evil Through Agreement to Limit Programs to Six Reels

FORTY-TWO motion picture managers of the City of Syracuse, N. Y., met in the Eckel theatre building July 17, and organized the Syracuse Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association. The following officers were elected: President, A. J. Sardino, manager of the Savoy theatre; B. E. Cornell, manager of the Eckel theatre, vice-president; Edgar Weil, manager of the Strand theatre, treasurer; Arthur Merriman, manager of the Arcadia theatre, secretary; B. A. Gibbons, manager of the Regent theatre, corresponding secretary, and James Rowe, manager of Turn Hall, sergeant-at-arms.

The purpose of the organization is to standardize the maximum number of reels to be shown at a performance which means that an effort will be made immediately to limit programs to not more than five or six reels.

In some houses as many as fourteen reels are being shown at one entertainment with the result that the public is forced to sit through a junk program.

By mutual agreement the program of all such theatres will be reduced and it is quite possible that every house in the city will charge a minimum price of ten cents admission, the down town theatres having agreed in that event to raise their minimum price of gallery seats to ten cents.

An attorney has already been engaged to look after the interest of the exhibitors with reference to unjust state laws and ordinances as well as bills that may come before the legislature for consideration.

Harry Raver's "Cabiria" Sequel Is Completed

Players Leave Long Island, Where with Exception of Few Scenes Begun in Italy the Picture Was Produced, and Will Locate in Permanent California Studio

A SECOND "Cabiria," with the players of the original production, including Ernest Pagano, who played Maciste, a picture produced in America, may soon be expected.

It has just been learned that for several weeks the Itala players have been at work on Staten Island making the coming production. Harry R. Raver, the American head of the Itala forces, who exploited "Cabiria," says that the picture was completed on Saturday, July 17, and that the players left on Monday, July 19, for California, where a permanent studio will be located.

All the new production was not made on Staten Island. It was started in Italy, but work was abandoned there and the players brought to this country. By far the majority of the scenes were made in America.

In this picture Pagano will not be seen as the gigantic negro, but as himself. For Pagano is very much of a white man, the pride of Genoa, where his home is, and regarded as physically the finest specimen of manhood in Italy.

The story of the new production has not been disclosed by Mr. Raver. He suggested, however, that while the plot has to do with modern events, it is a natural sequel to "Cabiria," the scenario being written by Agnes L. Bain after specific suggestions of D'Annunzio, who created the character of Maciste.

Many surprises are promised in the new production. The Itala company has in the past produced many wonderful productions, "Cabiria" being its masterpiece. The indications are that the latest effort of this famous organization will unfold even more new effects and inventions than ever before.

Approximately eight thousand feet is the length of the new film. It will be shown first to trade paper reviewers, in private. Its title will be selected from the best suggestions offered by these critics, for which a cash prize in gold will be paid by Mr. Raver, who says that the work of assembling and editing the film will be completed in time for the first showing about August 1.

Whether the new production would play a Broadway house for the summer and the "Cabiria" policy of exploitation be duplicated could not be learned, as Mr. Raver has been besieged by requests from offices now handling "Cabiria" that the new film be given them for distribution and did not care to commit himself just at this time.

ROWLAND ADDS SIX SUCCESSES TO METRO PROGRAM

General Manager Rowland of the Metro company announces the acquisition of numerous new plays for Metro.

Among them are "Pigs in Clover," "Richard Carvel," "Rosemary, for Remembrance," "The Purple Lady," "Baccarat" and "The Silent Voice."

Banquet Ends Pathé Exchange Convention

Branch Managers, Who Met in Three-Day Session to Celebrate the $1,000,000 "Elaine" Sales Recently Consummated, Sit at Dinner in Rector's, New York City, in Honor of the Achievement, and Finish Event with Watch Presentations to Dupuis and Gasnier

THE GUESTS AT THE PATHE "$1,000,000 ELAINE" DINNER AT RECTOR'S, NEW YORK CITY, JULY 14

THE final gathering of the Pathé forces at the banquet at Rector's, Wednesday evening, July 14, was a suitable ending for the three days' convention of branch managers, most of whom were present. Telegrams from the absentees were read amid much applause.

The avowed reason for holding this convention was the crossing of the $1,000,000 mark by "Elaine." This is a noteworthy achievement in itself, but there was something still more impressive shown that night—the "get together" spirit of the Pathé forces. There was not a man present who was not for Pathé, then, now and always.

It was this that brought about the financial success, for it is hard to stop such spirit as was exhibited Wednesday evening. The tangible reward for this spirit and phenomenal work on the part of the exchange managers was the raising of their individual salaries twenty-five per cent.

The speeches of the evening did not deal so much with past accomplishments as with the determination for even greater things with "Neal of the Navy," the coming serial, and others to follow later. Charles Dupuis, vice-president, and Louis Gasnier, general manager of Pathé in America, showed by their speeches why they have proved such able leaders and why every employee is behind them. They assured every manager individually that the entire organization was behind him personally and was ready to give every possible co-operation to make his office a success.

The exchange managers, in token of their feeling of esteem and loyalty, presented both Mr. Dupuis and Mr. Gasnier with very handsome gold watches appropriately engraved. The presentation speech was made by Jules Bernstein, of the New York office.

The most touching phase of the whole gathering was the reverence and praise expressed by all for the "absent boss," Charles Pathé, who was looked up to by all as the only man who could have made the house of Pathé in America what it is today.

Mr. Furman, general manager of exchanges, was toast master, filling his office admirably. He never let a moment drag and kept the enthusiasm at a high pitch all the evening.

Those present were as follows:

Charles Dupuis, vice-president; Louis J. Gasnier, general manager; Robt. T. Furman, director of exchanges; J. Wessel, auditor; W. F. Hurst, comptroller; P. A. Parsons, publicity manager; G. Seitz, scenario department; M. Ramirez Torres, assistant managing director; F. K. Knocke, manager of sales department; P. Fuller, Coudert Bros.; P. Brunet, assistant chief auditor; W. Van Doren, assistant manager, Bound Brook; A. Caughey, poster department; C. Julien, manager, Bound Brook; L. S. Williams, general manager, Jersey City Studio; J. W. Buck, producer; L. D. & T. W. Wharton, producers; Edw. Jose, director; Arnold Daly, Pathé star; Edwin Arden, Pathé star; Donald Mackenzie, director; Jas. Hoff, "Moving Picture World"; Fred Beecroft, "Dramatic Mirror"; E. K. FOREIGN RIGHTS FOR FEASTER MACHINE SOLD

Byron Chandler, Inc., 1482 Broadway, New York City, distributors of the Feaster non-rewind machines, report that negotiations are progressing satisfactorily for the handling of their product in Russia, England and France.

When asked if he did not consider this an inopportune time to sell foreign rights, Byron Chandler, president of the company, replied that he did not believe that any of the warring nations had yet evolved a gun which could shoot a hole through the Feaster machine. Mr. Chandler will in all probability go to Europe about September 1 to complete the sale.

A. Charles Hillman, who for the past two seasons has been master mechanic with the Cyril Maude company, is now in charge of the equipment department of Byron Chandler, Inc.

Selig "News-Pictorial" Gets Award at World's Fair

20,000 People See the Representative of the Exposition Board Present the Company Through McManus Memorial in Recognition of Animated Weekly's Standing

Special to Motion Picture News

San Francisco, July 20.

TWENTY thousand people were present in the Court of the Universe at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, on July 15, when the "Hearst-Selig News Pictorial" was presented with a bronze memorial by Director Frank L. Brown, representing the Exposition's official board. This is the highest award to be presented an animated newspaper.

The memorial was presented because of its educational influence and its stimulus to investigation, research, and the general diffusion of knowledge.

According to the directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, it has established itself as a new and vital factor in the educative forces of the modern civilized community, and has been officially recognized as being "first in war, first in peace, and first in popularity." Scenes of the honor paid the news pictorial will appear in a forthcoming edition of the pictorial.

The presentation is just one incident of the great reception accorded the Selig Exposition flyer all along the Pacific coast and at the two great expositions.

The honor is unprecedented in the annals of the motion picture art.

Selig Day was observed at the Panama Exposition at San Francisco on July 15, and the guests aboard the special train were accorded every honor. The work of Colonel William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company for the educational uplift of the motion picture, was universally recognized in the series of cordial receptions accorded guests of the flyer bearing the Selig name.

Edward A. McManus, general manager of the "Hearst-Selig News Pictorial," in accepting the bronze memorial on behalf of the Selig Company, said in part:

"The one striking new feature of modern life is the wider and wider diffusion of knowledge. The press has been heretofore the great instrument of this beneficent work. With the supreme inventive genius of modern men the press has been supplemented by the motion picture film, which not only gives the same wide presentation to the subject, but which visualizes it in presenting it pictorially, and which has established itself as a new and modern educative force in the community.

"The organization of the 'Hearst-Selig News Pictorial' is founded upon a vision of its endless stimulating possibilities for the future and an analysis of the great social forces involved in this presentation every Monday and Thursday of the world's news to the multitudes.

"For the hour, this great exposition is the focus and the center of the world's aspiration. One of the great agencies in bringing the world to the exposition, and in taking the exposition to the world, is the motion picture film winging its swift messages of light to the most remote communities and to the alien peoples across the seas.

"'The Hearst-Selig News Pictorial' incorporates those business requirements of system, alertness, energy and enterprise, which have gone into the building of modern newspapers. The daily results of this activity parallels in a way the daily gathering of the news of the printed page from the four corners of the earth.

"It is with this in view that we feel that an agency of such wide scope, of such educational value, and of such potent possibilities in the spread of knowledge fully merits the honor which you have conferred upon it."

18 Chicago Exhibitors Discuss Trade Conditions

Informal Gathering, Called to Thresh Out Increasing Rental Prices and Other Problems, Results in Decision to Convene 200 in Formal Meeting on August 15

Special to Motion Picture News

Chicago, July 21.

VERY significant to the future of the film business was a quiet informal meeting of eighteen of America's leading exhibitors, held at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday afternoon, July 15. These men were called together in Chicago to find a solution for the growing number of problems that are confronting many of the exhibitors.

Among those discussed were the increasing rentals prices and the necessity for the theatres booking all the features put out by any one company whether they are good, bad or indifferent.

Among those present at the meeting were Aaron Jones of Chicago; F. J. Rembusch of Indianapolis and Shelbyville, Indiana; E. Mandelbaum of New York and Cleveland; William Sievers of St. Louis; William Blank of Des Moines and Davenport, Iowa; Messrs. Harris and Gordon of Boston; Louis Dittmer of Louisville, Ky.; Thomas Furness of Duluth; E. H. Hulsey of Dallas, Texas, and Thomas Sax of Milwaukee.

The gathering represented owners of about two hundred of the largest motion picture theatres in the country. They decided to call a second and formal meeting at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago for August 15.

Each one of those present contributed fifty dollars for expenses and agreed to bring the leading exhibitors in his section of the country to the second meeting. When such men as these get together, to seriously discuss trade conditions, something is bound to develop.

Accidents Put More Thrills in "Diamond from Sky"

Russell Does Not Reckon on Rapids Carrying Him Beyond Reach, and Is Barely Rescued by Knight—A Bit of Unpremeditated Realism Shown in Picture

MORE and more thrilling events are scheduled for appearance in forthcoming chapters of "The Diamond from the Sky." A terrific hand to hand fight between Roy Stewart, as Blake, and William Russell, as Blair, results in a thirty-foot down stairs fall for Russell.

The big actor thought the first take was not realistic enough so acted it all over again. In another scene George Periolat almost drowned when a searchlight was turned on him, blinding him, as he struggled with another actor in a flooded canal.

Again, "Sombrero Joe" Knight, a famous western character, holds the reins when an old fashioned stage coach goes over a cliff. Knight saved himself and his horses—how narrow was his escape shows clearly in the picture. In a fourth scene William Russell tries to ford a river, when the rapids sweep him away. Knight rescued him by lassoing him. No thrill was intended here, but it occurred naturally.

Lottie Pickford, the charming heroine of this picturized novel, does a stunt herself, when she escapes from her pursuers by loosening an ore basket and riding in it along a wire stretching above a chasm a thousand feet deep.

The biggest scene of all is when Arthur Stanley's yacht, on a pleasure cruise, collides with a fishing smack. A realistic and wonderful wreck scene, said to surpass anything ever shown in motion picture has been pictured here for the camera under the direction of W. D. Taylor.

Prepare Against Invasion, Is Vitagraph Film Lesson

"The Battle Cry of Peace," Written by Commodore J. Stuart Blackton from Realization of Nation's Lack of Adequate Defences in Time of War, Has Endorsement of High Government Officials, Loud in Their Praises of Plan to Sound Warning by Picture Appealing to Patriotism

SOLELY with the desire of calling to the attention of the American public the present state of unpreparedness of the country, the Vitagraph Company of American has produced "The Battle Cry of Peace," in five parts, and is now arranging to have it shown in every city, town and hamlet throughout the country.

The picture shows just what would happen to the United States if an alien power of the first class should decide to invade us, and how helpless this country would be to protect itself.

The Vitagraph company has decided to release the picture through the V-L-S-E during the month of September.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, of the Vitagraph Company of America, wrote the play. He secured many of the facts on which it is based from Hudson Maxim's book, "Defenceless America," and has woven a dramatic story of unusual strength with the facts.

Noted public men throughout the United States, including Secretary of State Lansing, Secretary of War Garrison, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, General Leonard Wood, Commander of the Department of the East; General Montgomery M. Macomb, president of the War College; Admirals Sigsbee and Marix, and other naval authorities, and men in all walks in life, have joined in producing this film—everyone of them appearing in it personally, and in other ways lending their hearty co-operation.

Not Trying to Be Sensational

"In writing this story we have tried not to be sensational, nor have we tried to arouse hard feeling against any other power," said Commodore J. Stuart Blackton in discussing the project. "We have simply used this method as a better means of reaching the public, believing that the pictured action would carry a greater weight than a written word or thought.

"With the facilities which we have on hand we have been able to show what would happen to New York City if an invading force should be landed, as well as how the interior would be affected by such an invasion. Brooklyn, too, has been touched in the picture, and just exactly what the invasion of this city would mean has been shown on the screen. What Long Island might expect is vividly portrayed, and yet it has not been with sensational means that we have accomplished our end.

"We are not in favor of war, and in this statement I speak for my associates as well as for myself. Our ambition is to avoid any conflict for the United States, but, and here is our point, treaties mean nothing, words of honor are useless, and the Declaration of Independence is worthless unless backed up by force.

"Recently during a talk with Secretary of War Garrison, he said that he believed that too stringent means cannot be used to awaken the public to the state of our defenses. 'The present state of preparedness has attracted the attention of all good citizens,' he added; 'I am heartily in favor of your campaign, and I most surely do endorse it. I am always ready to aid the Vitagraph company in a movement such as this.'

"Later I talked with Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, and he expressed himself as strongly in favor of any movement that would bring this matter home.

Public Must Be Aroused

"'Nothing can be too sensational to arouse the public,' he said. 'Let us all get together and drive this matter home in such a way that not one citizen can help feeling that it is his problem as well as the problem of the government officials.

"'In time of war prepare for peace by getting ready for war,' was the way Mr. Roosevelt summed up the question of preparedness.

"The question which 'The Battle Cry of Peace' places before the American public I hope will not be misunderstood as mere politics," continued Commodore Blackton; "I have talked with men who are holding public offices, men who have been elected to those offices by popular opinion, and, with one or two exceptions, they are all in favor of protecting American freedom and American homes.

"I call it protecting American homes because it is just that. The freedom that we have built up, and the homes that we have fought for, are for us to protect, and we must do that by being prepared to repel any devastator who invades America."

In the picture every possible means to prevent arousing enmity against any other country has been used, and even the uniforms worn by the soldiers have been designed with an idea that no country can take offense. Similar care has been taken with names, and the only foreign sounding name is "Emanon," a spy. "Emanon" is simply "No name" spelled backwards.

Many veterans of the Grant Post of the G. A. R. are also included in the picture, and, headed by Captain Jack Crawford, "poet scout," are seen in military array. The veterans present a pathetic sight, their ranks thinned by the ravages of time, but their patriotism is undaunted. Their willingness to defend the United States against invasion, and to help preserve its integrity, as they did during the Civil, is plain to be seen.

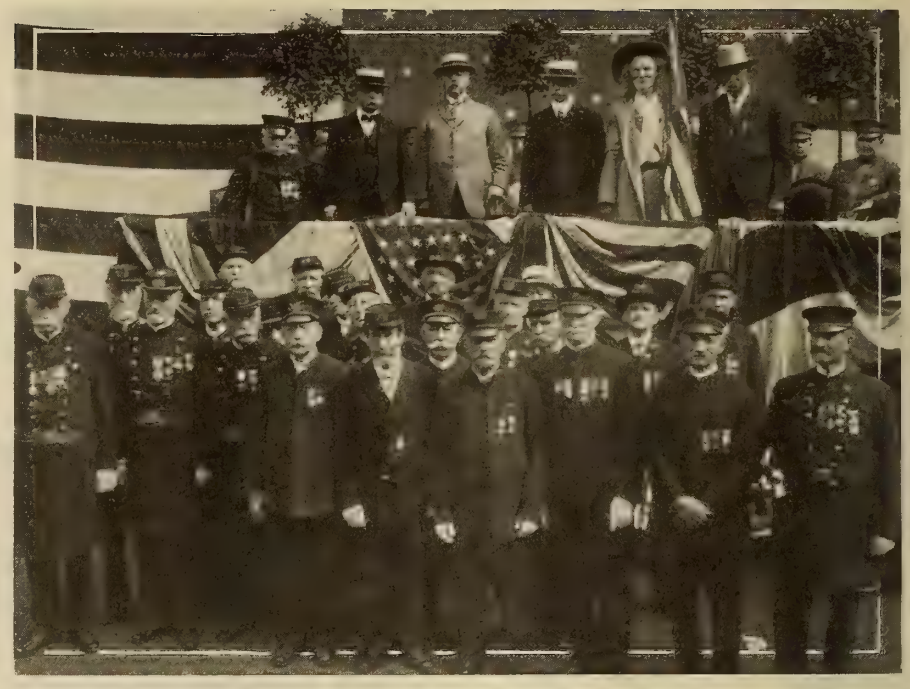
Vitagraph stars like Charles Richman, Joseph Kilgour, Ralph Ince, Paul Seardon, Tefft Johnson, James Morrison, Evart Overton, Louise Beaudet, and dainty Norma Talmadge, have been included in the cast.



Hudson Maxim appears personally in the first part. The picture was presented under the direction of Wilfred North, and the entire production has been personally supervised in every detail by Commodore Blackton.

It has been said of him that no hand is quite so deft in giving a touch of color as is his, and it has been decided by judges who know that he is a master mind of motion picture directing.

4 Months' Essanay Stay in Chattanooga Is Productive

Capt. Calvert and Twenty Players, on Signal Mountain, 45 Miles From the City and 2,000 Feet Above Sea Level, Produced Plays with Society People as Extras

Special to Motion Picture News

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 21.

CHATTANOOGA has been, heart and soul, an Essanay town for the last four months.

Since the arrival four months ago of Capt. E. H. Calvert, with twenty players from the Chicago studios of the Essanay Company, to produce pictures in Chattanooga, and particularly in the mountains near here, the people of Chattanooga have treated the visitors royally.

The company is spending the summer on Signal Mountain, forty-five minutes from Chattanooga by trolley and 2,000 feet above the sea level. It is perhaps the most fashionable and exclusive resort in Tennessee. Capt. and Mrs. Calvert (Lillian Drew), their son Billy, and some of his players have quarters in the Signal Mountain Inn, while the others are housed nearby in the comfortable cottages run by the hotel. Although the company has returned to Chicago for the time being, they will be back in Chattanooga before very long.

In addition to the beautiful scenic effects that can be secured in this section, almost every inch of ground has some historical interest to offer. Many pictures have already been filmed in the exact locations that history has designated.

Capt. Calvert is very enthusiastic over the reception he and his company have received at the hands of the town and country people, and has decided to spend all the summer here. With the aid of the Pan-Cro system of interior lighting, Director Calvert has not found it necessary to construct any interior sets.

Beautiful homes, with real Chattanooga society people as the extras, have been graciously thrown open to him, as has the Country Club and the Superior court room, with the real judge, jurors, spectators carrying out those parts in the picture.

Richard Travers, who went to Chicago after finishing the 6-act production, "The Man Trail" and others in which he played lead, will return to Tennessee with the company when it leaves Chicago, and will be featured in several large productions.

Ruth Stonehouse, who also came down to play the lead in "The Dignified Family," a 3-act society drama, with mountain scenes to offset the formality of it, is expected to come back again during the latter part of the summer.

Perhaps the most interesting work Director Calvert will turn out this summer—he is working on them now—is the famous "Tish" stories, as they appeared in the "Saturday Evening Post," by Mary Roberts Rineheart.

They are being picturized in two acts to the completed story, and their titles are as follows: "Tish's Spy," "The Red-Headed Detective," "Mind Over Motor" (completed), "The Cave on Thundercloud Mountain" (completed), "A Wolf in the Fold," "Simple Lifers" and probably others later on. Miss D'Arcy is playing the part of "Tish," supported by an able cast. These stories will be released at an early date.

"NATION" TURNS 300 MARK IN NEW YORK CITY

With the turning of next week D. W. Griffith's spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," will register its 300 consecutive performance at the Liberty theatre, New York. A second production is also being presented at the Brighton Beach Music Hall, so the record for Greater New York is piling up faster than was ever known before for a theatrical offering in this section.

Waterloo Is in Sight for Picture Throttlers

Winfield R. Sheehan, General Manager of the Fox Film Corporation, Just Back in New York from a Tour of the Country, Prophesies the Advent, Not Far Distant, of the Day Inaugurating Concerted Action Against All Forms of Censorship by the People, Who Will Demand Free Speech Rights to Films

THAT the influence for good of motion pictures on the American nation, particularly the pressure they bring to bear on the subject of the drink evil, is being recognized by the newspapers of the country so that the newspapers are taking up the cudgels in the fight against censorship, is the opinion of Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, who is back in New York after a tour of the country.

This tour was made in anticipation of the opening of the Fox Film Corporation fall season on September 6, a date which will inaugurate increased activities in the releasing end.

"We will start our fall season by scheduling one feature a week, to be released simultaneously in forty-one cities,' said Mr. Sheehan. "Among our stars under contract for from one to five years are William Farnum, Theda Bara, Nance O'Neil, Frederick Perry, Annette Kellerman, William E. Shay, Valeska Suratt and Dorothy Bernard.

"And while on this 'star' subject I wish to make it plain that our company never has and never will follow the mistaken policy of paying huge sums of money merely to add some well-known name to its acting staff, without taking into consideration the question of whether he or she is suited by ability and temperament to fill screen requirements.

"This idea of giving forty or fifty thousand dollars for the use of a name with the hope of having it become a box office magnet, although the person to whom it pertains may be entirely unfitted to do good camera work, strikes me as about the most suicidal way of attempting to court public popularity that can be imagined. Every man and woman who signs up with us must be able to deliver the goods, and particular care is taken beforehand that they possess the requisite talent likely to repay the investment made in their services.

Film Influence Is Widespread

"The influence of the films on the nation at large is something that can hardly be overestimated. It seems a far cry, for instance, from the subject of the drink evil to that of the motion picture industry, yet that the latter is bringing tremendous pressure to bear in the elimination of the former is an absolute fact.

"There are vast numbers of people who previously spent a good share of their incomes in saloons, and now turn for relaxation to the moving picture houses, are entertained at slight cost and save their health and money in consequence. This is not intended as a temperance argument. I am merely stating facts. Motion picture producers are not anxious to pose as philanthropists, but it cannot be denied that their business is one which exerts an influence for good on the public weal in the direction of luring citizens to the attractive and harmless amusements they furnish, and incidentally doing away with forms of dissipation which spelled ruin for thousands of victims.

"The newspapers realize the importance of the films, and before very long they will realize the necessity for lending their utmost aid to curbing an evil which has sprung up in the trail of the moving pictures—the exercise of unfair and senseless censorship.

"The existing forms of censorship are but one step removed from the placing of an embargo on freedom of speech. The law doesn't stop a man from talking in a public hall, but it does prevent, or frequently tries to prevent, a man from showing harmless pictures in similar fashion. I wonder how the press would like it if legislation was enacted requiring every newspaper in New York to refrain from printing a single picture until it had received a censor's O. K.? Yet the legislation empowering the interference of a censor with the motion picture industry is every whit as monstrous and unfair as shackling the press would be.

"However, we may safely hope for better things in that direction. Already there are not wanting signs that the censorship power is weakening. One proof of this assertion is found in the recent action of Governor Dunne of Illinois, when the chief executive of that State vetoed a bill providing for the establishment of a State censorship.

Censorship Weakening

"I don't mind prophesying that there will be a constitutional attack upon all forms of censorship before long. In some States a movement has been started to take a referendum vote on the censorship question, and with the public and press behind the crusade it is only a matter of time before it must succeed.

"I was highly pleased with the favor shown to the Fox features throughout the country. This is the age of specialization in all forms of business, and we have endeavored to specialize in features illustrating red-blood stories, tales of real life outlined in vivid dramatic detail, which give material to the spectators for discussion."

Little Miss Minter, Dainty Child Star, for Metro

Special Productions, Exploiting the Small Actress Who Appeared with William and Dustin Farnum in "The Littlest Rebel," Are Planned, Based on Plays Suitable to Her LITTLE Mary Miles Minter, whose fame on the stage was reached in the title role in "The Littlest Rebel," in which she appeared with William and Dustin Farnum, has achieved further stellar honors in filmdom.

She has just been signed for a long term to appear exclusively in the leads in special screen productions to be released by the Metro Pictures Corporation.

Little Miss Minter has been seen in only two screen productions thus far, her second appearance being made in "Always in the Way," recently released by Metro. Her acting, charm of personality and pronounced magnetism, drew her immediately into the heart of everybody who saw that silent picture.

When the Farnums first produced "The Littlest Rebel," it was as a vaudeville sketch. They selected little Miss Minter as the sweetest and prettiest litle girl of all applicants for the title role. The success of Miss Minter in the sketch was so pronounced, they then decided to have the author, Edward Peple, elaborate it into a play, which he did, with the part of the littlest rebel made more prominent.

Mr. Peple concentrated his efforts to make it one of the most prominent roles ever given to a juvenile star. In the completed play, Miss Minter realized every promise she had made in the sketch and her success was phenomenal.

Metro is now securing new books, plays and scenarios which will establish the little actress permanently as a motion picture celebrity within a very short time.

The name of Little Mary Miles Minter is now enrolled in Metro's long list of stars including William Faversham, Ethel Barrymore, Edmund Breese, Madam Petrova, Emmy Wehlen, Martha Hedman, Gail Kane, Florence Reed, Lois Meredith, Edward Connelly, Dorothy Donnelly, Francis X. Bushman, Marguerite Snow, Ann Murdock, Emily Stevens, Hamilton Revelle and Henry Kolker.

11 of 22 Vitagraph Directors at Work on Features

Production of Multiples by the Company Constitutes a Record for Present Season Among Makers of Big Reel Subjects—Range from Woman Suffrage to Plots of Patriotism

THE Vitagraph Company of America, has at the present time, more feature pictures under way than any other motion picture producing company in existence. This is a broad statement, but when it is taken into consideration that of the twenty-two regularly employed Vitagraph directors, eleven are working on features, and of the hundred and twenty-five stock members, eighty-five are busily engaged in the enactment of these features, it will be seen the above statement is, if anything, far short of the actual facts.

Besides the regular members of the Vitagraph stock company, thousands of extra peopole have been used in the productions at various times and thousands of miles of territory covered to provide distinctive backgrounds for the different pictures.

The subjects range in length from three-part Broadway Star Features to the two tremendous features, the biggest and most comprehensive, the Vitagraph company has ever undertaken, "The Goddess," which will be completed in thirty parts and "The Battle Cry of Peace," in eight installments.

"The Battle Cry of Peace," was written by Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, who secured many facts from Hudson Maxim's book "Defenseless America," and is being produced by Wilfrid North under the personal supervision of Mr. Blackton. The principal characters are being portrayed by Charles Richman, Ralph W. Ince as President Abraham Lincoln, Joseph Kilgour as General George Washington, Paul Scardon as General Grant, a cast that includes sixteen stock members and nearly eight thousand extras.

"The Goddess," whose thirty parts are nearing completion under the direction of Ralph W. Ince, supervised by Albert E. Smith, was written by Gouverneur Morris with Charles W. Goddard in collaboration. Anita Stewart, Earle Williams, twelve of the Vitagraph players and several thousand extra people were used at various times in its production. The popularity of the serial is increasing weekly.

Director Theodore Marston and an all-star cast have begun work on a picturization of William J. Hurlburt's story "The Patriot," which when completed will be in six parts. Charles Richman, Joseph Kilgour, Arline Pretty, Rose Tapely and Bobby Connelly appearing in the principal roles.

Three pictures that will be shown in five parts each, includes "A Night Out," with May Robson and The Big Comedy Four, under the direction of George D. Baker, another of William J. Hurlburt's masterful stories, "The Writing on the Wall," picturized by Marguerite Bertsch and being produced by Tefft Johnson with Joseph Kilgour and Virginia Pearson. "The Island of Surprise," picturized from Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady's story of the same name in which William Courtenay, Charles Kent, Eleanor Woodruff and Julia Swayne Gordon are appearing in the principal characters under the direction of Lorimer Johnston.

There are also three four-part features, a picturization of George Ade's "Artie," in which Ernest Truex and Dorothy Kelly heading an all-star cast is now rapidly approaching concrete form under the direction of Director Harry Handworth.

W. P. S. Earle's college story "For the Honor of the Crew," of which he is also the director, introduces James Morrison, Muriel Ostriche and W. B. Davidson of Columbia '09, in the leading characters, and "The Making Over of Geoffrey Manning," by C. T. Dazey and William Addison Lathrop, with Harry Davenport directing a cast headed by Harry Morey and Ned Finley.

"The Ruling Power," a three-part Broadway Star Feature advocating Woman Suffrage, which will be completed very shortly is being produced under the direction of Lionel Belmore, with Edith Storey and Leah Baird, and to complete the list, Captain Harry Lambart just begun work on "Youth," Lanier Bartlett's three-part picture story in which Antonio Moreno and Mlle. Valkyrien will be seen to distinct advantage.

Lasky Stages Bullfight in Los Angeles for "Carmen"

Company Builds Arena Like Those in "Old Mex" and Imports Professional Matadors for Scene in Subject Featuring Geraldine Farrar

IN the presence of 20,000 persons the bull fight for the Lasky production of "Carmen," with Geraldine Farrar as the star, was held at Los Angeles and voted one of the most elaborate specially planned scenes for a photoplay production in the history of the industry in southern California.

Special provision and permits had to be obtained from the city government of Los Angeles for the occasion. An entire bull fighting arena was built, with tier on tier of wooden seats. This was constructed by the Lasky Company under the supervision of the municipal building and amusement bureaus. In every particular was the structure a duplicate of some of the famous bull-fighting rings of Spain.

Cecil B. DeMille, director general of the Lasky Company, had the general care of the scene, which is to be one of the features of the forthcoming photoplay production of "Carmen," first of the series of photoplays in which Miss Farrar will star.

Ten photographers were engaged at various times and in various places in taking the pictures, and the scenes depicted included every feature of a gala day, including the gatherings at the exterior of the bullring, the march of the matadors, toreadors and picadores, the arrival of Miss Farrar as Carmen and of Pedro de Cordoba as Escammillo.

More than a score of professional matadors formerly prominent in the sport in Mexico had been engaged by Mr. DeMille.

In the stands the Lasky stars and executives were attired in Spanish costumes and holiday dress. Jesse L. Lasky appeared in the box where Miss Farrar was watching the skirmish, while others in the gathering were Fannie Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gest, Mrs. Samuel Goldfish, Blanche Ring, Laura Hope Crews, Lou Tellegen, Donald Brian, Thomas Meighan, Jack Dean, Theodore Roberts, James Neil, Blanche Sweet, Carlyle Blackwell and others.

The entire scene was made with the cooperation of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

One of the many interesting things that happened during the period of the National Exhibitors' Convention, was a luncheon tendered to the members of the press, given by David Wark Griffith, producer of "The Birth of a Nation."

The luncheon was served in the palatial suite occupied by Mr. Griffith at the St. Francis Hotel, and those present were: William A. V-L-S-E Offers 3 Dramas and 2 Comedies for August

"The Climbers," Adapted from the Fitch Play for Lubin, Is Scheduled for Second Day of the Month, While Vitagraph's "Chalice of Courage" Follows on the Ninth

FOR the month of August, the V-L-S-E program has ready for release five features that are exceptionally well balanced in point of dramatic range and variety of subjects. There are three dramas and two comedies. A glance at these releases brings out a remarkable fact.

The Lubin company will release two features during the month of August. The first offering on August 2 will be "The Climbers," adapted from the play by Clyde Fitch. This will introduce on the V-L-S-E program Gladys Hanson, playing opposite George Soule Spencer. The production is a thrilling melodrama of the type that is not sensational. Its appeal is universal through the fact that it is an idealization of modern life. It shows the dangers and the heart-breaking setbacks of a family struggling to gain the social heights.

"Tillie's Tomato Surprise," with Marie Dressler—or should we say, Marie Dressler in "Tillie's Tomato Surprise"—is scheduled for release on August 30. An attempt to describe this production would be in vain. "Tillie's Tomato Surprise" is a five-part Marie Dressler comedy, and that speaks for itself.

On August 9 the Vitagraph company releases another Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady production, "The Chalice of Courage," in six parts, which was produced at the western studios, with Myrtle Gonzales and William Duncan in the leading roles. This production evidences the remarkable literary versatility of Mr. Brady; it is, according to the unanimous opinion of all the critics, who viewed it at the Vitagraph theatre in New York City, one of the most intense dramatic offerings ever flashed on a motion picture screen.

"The Chalice of Courage" embraces all of the grandeur of setting of a scenic film. The story is full of that human interest that attaches to the experiences of people who have come up from lowly stations to a position of influence. The dramatic situations cause the spectator to gasp, and it has been stated that there is enough material in this feature to make several feature productions.

On August 16 Essanay releases a Charles Hoyt comedy, "A Bunch of Keys," in five parts, with June Keith and Johnny Slavin in the roles made famous on the speaking stage. "A Bunch of Keys" is a light comedy teeming with those humorous situations that appeal to all classes. Light comedy of this sort has proved very popular with exhibitors, and in selecting this Charles Hoyt play for production, the Essanay company has contributed a classic in screen humor. June Keith and Johnny Slavin fit well into the parts they assume, and their portrayals enhance the fun in a play that is in its original form exceptionally humorous.

"The House of a Thousand Candles," in six reels, will be released by Selig on August 23. This production will mark the third appearance on the V-L-S-E program of charming Grace Darmond, and will be the second time Harry Mestayer has been seen in Big Four offerings. "The House of a Thousand Candles" is adapted from Meredith Nicholson's celebrated novel of the same name that enjoyed great popularity upon its appearance, and is still recorded as a big seller.

INN IS STARTED TO CATER TO FILM MEN IN CHICAGO

Special to Motion Picture News

Chicago, July 21.

The Movie Inn, Chicago's unique restaurant, which caters to the film trade, had its formal opening Wednesday, July 14. It is to be run under the management of Abe Balaban, of the General Feature Film Company.

All the film companies are represented by booths along the walls, each booth decorated with the favorite players of the particular manufacturer.

The Bartola Musical Instrument Company is also to have a booth, and another booth is devoted to the members of the Reel Fellows Club. In addition to a high-class cabaret and dancing, first run motion pictures will be shown during the evening.

"MASHERS AND SPLASHERS" IS A "WIZ" (ARD) COMEDY

"Bobbie" Burns, "Walt" Stull and Louis Burstein have found six rivals for Annette Kellerman in the bevy of pretty girls who swim and float and dive through the thousand feet of the newest comedy, "Mashers and Splashers," a Wizard comedy, released through the World Film Corporation.

The six girls are the pick of over fifty who applied at the Palisades, N. J., pool, where the picture was made. Every applicant was required to demonstrate her diving and swimming abilities, and the grace with which the six water nymphs chosen executed their tasks, coupled with their beauty of face and figure, gave them easy preference.

The pretty girls who play in the water are Nora Sprague, Betty Holton, Corinne Malvern, Ethel Burton, Edna Reynolds and Mabel Greene, Lenore Courtney, Marie Jensen and Helen Constance add some pretty extra diving scenes to the picture.

Tucker Returns to Edison for "Vanity Fair" Role

Actor Is Cast for George Osborn, Same Character Assumed By Him in the Speaking Version Starring Mrs. Fiske Some Years Ago

RICHARD TUCKER has returned to Edison primarily to play the part of George Osborn in the feature production of "Vanity Fair," in which Mrs. Fiske is to be starred. Mr. Tucker played the same role with Mrs. Fiske in the theatrical version, which, however, will not be used in the Edison version, an entirely new and complete scenario having been prepared from the book itself.

Edison has been able to secure several players who figured in the original stage production.

Mr. Tucker, however, is not new to Edison films, though they are the only pictures he has played in. He returns from Worcester, Mass., where he had his own stock company for the summer season. Except for occasional visits to the stage, Mr. Tucker has been with Edison nearly four years, and has appeared prominently in many of the company's most successful releases.

He was born in Brooklyn and was an industrious bank clerk in Rochester, N. Y., when the theatrical yearning became too much for the routine worker and he joined a stock company playing there. After about a year's experience he joined Nat Goodwin and played three seasons with that star who was appearing in a repertoire of revivals of former successes.

RICHARD TUCKER (Edison)

After a season with Bertha Kalisch in "Cora," Mr. Tucker joined his fortunes with Mrs. Fiske and appeared in some four plays and several curtain raisers with her, including "Salvation Nell," "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," "Becky Sharp," and Hauptmann's "Hannele," earning the most flattering commendations for his work.

Mr. Tucker has also been singularly popular as a favorite in stock, which, so much like the film, enables the playgoer to become well acquainted with the player. This stock experience comprises well known companies in Rochester, Toledo, Ottawa, Cleveland, and Philadelphia where he played last fall in the American Theatre stock company. Mr. Tucker was also featured in "At the Mercy of Tiberius," a dramatization of the book of that name.

In the photoplays, Mr. Tucker has been one of the quickest to gain popularity as he combines exceptional experience and technique with a spontaneity —a natural boyishness of manner, tempered with a clean-cut and directness of interpretation, making for a distinct screen personality. He is again a member of the Edison stock company and will appear soon in a number of the three and four-reel features which that company is putting out.

Morosco Gives Lunch in Honor of Leonore Ulrich

Guests Repair to Hotel Hermitage, New York, After Trade Showing of "Kilmeny" at Broadway Theatre, and Following the "Eats" Listen to Frawley

THE LUNCHEON TENDERED LEONORE ULRICH BY THE BOSWORTH, INC., STAFF AT THE HOTEL HERMITAGE, NEW YORK CITY, JULY 19

IMMEDIATELY following the trade showing of the Oliver Morosco feature, "Kilmeny" at the Broadway theatre, New York, all those present repaired to the Hotel Hermitage to be enjoyably "lunched" by the New York representatives of the concern.

Lenore Ulrich, who makes her first appearance in the title role of "Kilmeny," was the guest of honor. After the meal a short sketch of Miss Ulrich's bright career was given by T. Daniel Frawley, general stage director for Oliver Morosco, who spoke in glowing terms of the star's successful screen debut.

Mr. Frawley also spoke of the future of the motion picture. He said that he hoped the time would soon come when directors would cease turning out "footage" and turn out pictures that told their stories in an unlimited amount of space.

Carl H. Pierce, special representative of the Bosworth and Morosco interests, acted as toastmaster for the occasion, while others who spoke were George Mooser, manager of the Morosco offices; Leon Langfeld, manager of the Broadway theatre, New York, where "Kilmeny" is booked to show the week of July 25, and Fred C. Gunning.

Others present at the luncheon were Pete Schmid, George Heneken, Margaret I. MacDonald, Theodore Eltonhead, Wen Milligen, Charles Condon and Milton Lowenthal.

DIXEY WILL BE SEEN IN "ROMANCE AND PICKLES"

Henry E. Dixey, the famous actor, will appear in "Romance and Pickles," an original play by Raymond L. Schrock and Hugh Weir.

It will be directed by Harry Myers, and Rosemary Theby will appear in an important role supporting the famous comedian.

William N. Selig Perfects Strong Organization

President of Polyscope Company Feels That He May Take a Rest from the Exacting Requirements of His Large Enterprises Whenever He May Desire With Assurance of Everything Running Smoothly—Berst Accomplishes Gratifying Results With Inauguration of New Policies

WILLIAM N. SELIG, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, one fine day took an inventory of the company which he founded and which he upbuilded to its present state of achievement. Along about that time the preliminary plans for the V-L-S-E, Inc., were being formulated.

"Here," said Colonel Selig to himself, "the burden of administrative affairs are becoming too heavy for me to carry; when the V-L-S-E is started there will be altogether too much business for one individual to transact. We must have new producers and additional actors, in order to carry along our feature program, as well as to keep our regular program up to its present high standard.

"I need a man to look after all these things; I need someone deep in the knowledge of the film business; a man who also knows the technical side of motion picture making; a man in whom I can repose trust and who will carry along the large business enterprises of the Selig Company whenever I should feel that I need a complete rest."

Then it was that Colonel Selig put across another of his sudden surprises. He engaged J. A. Berst as vice-president and general manager. He gave Mr. Berst carte blanch; told him to go ahead, and Mr. Berst has gone ahead.

He has rejuvenated where rejuvenation was deemed necessary because of the important changes in the film manufacturing company, but he has also retained those artists in various lines of the film industry who in the past have proven themselves worthy of the confidence of the Selig company.

Accomplish Big Results

When two such men as Messrs. Selig and Berst co-operate there are certain to be decisive and beneficial results. Working shoulder to shoulder, they have indeed accomplished wonders, and, in the few brief weeks of their collaboration, many and important changes have occurred in the ranks of the Selig company and the new blood injected is making its presence felt in all lines of the film world.

Others are keeping an eye on the rapid succession of accomplishments being registered by the "Diamond S" outfit not the least of these being the releases which for strength of story, careful production, clear photography, and artistic acting are not surpassed right now in Filmland.

When the administrative shifts were being made the Selig company started on a still hunt for the best directors and stage stars that money could supply.

Many such have been engaged within the past few weeks and these together with the directors and artists retained by the Selig company are given every convenience in order to enable them to do noteworthy work.

Gratifying results are already beginning to manifest themselves.

The names and the faces are here shown of the producers now engaged in filming the Red Seal plays, the Selig Diamond Specials in three reels and the one and two reel comedies and dramas and jungle-zoo wild animal picture plays that are making movieland sit up and take notice.

New Producers Well Known

There is Colin Campbell, dean of the producing corps, whose production of "The Spoilers" set a new standard; Edward J. LeSaint; Thomas Santschi, producer and star; Guy Oliver and Tom Mix, who produces and stars in Selig western dramas and whose dare-devil feats of horsemanship have thrilled the multitudes. These directors are producing worthy productions.

The new producers signed by the Selig company within a few weeks are all men of high standing in the ranks of their difficult profession and the list of names is one of which any motion picture company could well be proud. There is Marshall Neilan, producer and actor; T. N. Heffron, in charge of production at the Chicago studios, who is specializing in Red Seal plays; Louis W. Chaudet; Frank Beal, and George O. Nichols. All are hard at work producing Selig films of quality.

And it was not only in the producing end where the stimulus to the hardest kind of artistic work is being felt. Both Messrs. Selig and Berst believe that the story, the plot of the picture play is the foundation for the entire structure. In other words, they agree that if the story or plot is weak, then no matter how beautiful the acting or how artistic the direction of the picture play, there will be something sadly lacking.

So it is that the best editors and authors in the film world are regularly engaged by the Selig company. Gilson Willets, for example, writes exclusively for the Selig Company. He has world wide fame as a novelist and short story writer.

Other Producers

Lanier Bartlett is another veteran author and editor long exclusively engaged by the Selig Polyscope Company. He wrote "Ebb Tide," that noteworthy Selig Diamond Special in three reels, adapted "The Ne'er-Do-Well," for the screen, and accompanied Colonel Selig and a company of players to the Canal Zone where the scenes in Rex Beach's novel were taken.

Wallace C. Clifton is Pacific coast editor for the Selig company, has written hundreds of picture play stories, and is particularly happy in the writing of wild animal comedies and dramas. Emma Bellis, another versatile editor and author, is employed in the Selig Pacific coast editorial department.

In Chicago Clarence A. Frambers, successful as a writer, is engaged as Eastern Scenario reader, and C. H. Lippert, another versatile writer, is at work at the Selig Chicago studios.

CABARET LIFE BROUGHT TO SING SING BY "MIDNIGHT AT MAXIM'S"

The fame of Kalem's big four-reel cabaret picture, "Midnight at Maxim's," has penetrated to the far corners of the earth—even to George W. Thompson, chairman of the entertainment committee, Sing Sing prison, and it is learned that this spectacular four-reel feature will be run at Sing Sing prison for the entertainment of the prisoners.

Thus does Warden Osborne recognize the necessity of motion pictures to further his uplift movement at the great New York State prison.

Metro Releases for Midsummer Are Announced

"The Second in Command," Featuring Francis Bushman and Marguerite Snow in Their First Picture on This Program, Dorothy Donnelly Subject Is Premier De Luxe Brand

DETAILS of the Metro Pictures Corporation's midsummer output are now at hand.

So far July has brought forward Emmet Corrigan in "Greater Love Hath No Man," Edward Connelly in "Marse Covington," William Faversham in "The Right of Way," and the coming release for next Monday, July 26, will have Francis X. Bushman and Marguerite Snow in "The Second in Command."

This last Metro release will inaugurate the first appearance of Mr. Bushman and Miss Snow on the Metro program. It will also inaugurate the first production from the Quality Pictures Corporation, which company will enter largely into Metro's affairs in the future.

Another new feature production that will come on August 2, will be Dorothy Donnelly in "Sealed Valley." This is the first picture coming from the Metro Corporation's own studio. It will be released as a Metro De Luxe feature, and all future productions will be so styled that will be made by this corporation.

Popular plays and players have already had five productions on the Metro program. Their sixth venture will be Madame Petrova in "The Vampire" which will be released on August 9. Following "The Vampire" will come Ann Murdock in "A Royal Family" from the Dyreda studio.

Miss Murdock, who has been and will continue to be a Charles Frohman star, will make her initial appearance as a screen celebrity under Metro auspices in this photoplay on August 16.

Emmy Wehlen, the charming Viennese actress, who has starred in New York and elsewhere, is another of the younger actresses of international renown to appear for Metro. Her debut will be made under the Rolfe company's direction in "When a Woman Loves," an original play by Charles Horan. Gail Kane, a newcomer into the Metro fold, will appear on August 30 in "Her Great Match," another of Clyde Fitch's successes.

Metro announces that beginning September 6, Emily Stevens will make her reentrance on the Metro Program in "Destiny," an allegorical study by Anthony P. Kelley.

Succeeding releases are announced in Henry Kolker in "The Bridge," an all-star cast embracing Hamilton Revolle, Lois Meredith and Henry Bergman in "An Enemy to Society," Francis X. Bushman in "The Silent Voice" and Edmund Breese in "The Song of a Wage Slave."

Metro is certainly finding much to do but it has in store still more important announcements which will come before the passing of many weeks.

"Only 4-Reel Pictures Can Be Free from Art Flaws"

Albert Warner, President of Standard Photoplay Distributors, Inc., Sees in This Length the Ideal Feature, Making a Strong Appeal by Its Lack of "Padding"

PRESIDENT Albert Warner, of the Standard Photoplay Distributors, Inc., is a strong advocate of the four-reel picture as opposed to the photodrama of five-reel length. As one of the first practical film men to foresee and profit by the handling or multiple reel subjects through exchanges devoted exclusively to them, Mr. Warner's judgment on the subject to which he has given so much careful thought and study is receiving careful consideration by the Standard Program Producers, who are under contract to supply feature subjects to the distributing company in addition to the regular weekly releases.

"Having fought so hard for the feature picture in the days when it took a good strong argument to make film men see its wonderful possibilities, I have naturally watched its development with keen interest, not only from the manufacturer's and the exchangeman's standpoint, but from the more essential viewpoint of the theatre manager and his patrons," said Mr. Warner at a recent meeting of the Standard Program interests.

"At one time I was strongly in favor of the three-reel picture. I now see that it was because the subjects were either not big enough to call for greater length, or were not handled on a more extensive scale. For this reason—the bigness of many of the subjects and their elaborate staging—I concede one more reel. But it seems safe to assert that, with very few exceptions, four reels are ample for the artistic presentation of a feature. A very large percentage of the five-part productions now on the market would have been improved, had they been planned by the scenario author and the director for four reel subjects and confined to that length.

"However, the exceptions must not be overlooked. There are subjects so large from the standpoint of dramatic interest and entertainment value that six, eight, ten and even twelve or more reels are necessary for their perfect picture interpretation.

"This, of course, brings us to the all important point of the capable judgment of the producer—that faculty which is the determining factor in the success or failure of those who undertake the measurement of dramatic values with the great theatre-going public as their judge and jury.

"But why, when the motion picture producer makes his mistake in judgment, does he make it—nine times out of ten—on the long side of the film? Granted that, during the excitement of the staging of a worthy picture and the attendant enthusiasm, the temptation is generally to enlarge, but knowing this, why is the check rein not more carefully adjusted?

"With these things in mind and with the interests of the theatre owner and the audience to which he caters, always before me, I am a firm believer in the four-reel limit for the average big feature. It will mean the correction of many of the weaknesses of feature productions as well as a more evenly balanced program."

STARTS LIFE AS A "HOUSEHOLD DIRECTOR"

Victor L. Abbey, Washington exchange manager of the North American Film Corporation, is receiving the congratulations from his numerous colleagues that he is the father of an eight-and-a-half pound boy, who made his appearance with joy like "The Diamond from the Sky at Noon on July ".

DOROTHY GISH IN THE KNIFE-THROWING SCENE FROM "VICTORINE" (Reliance-Majestic)

GOLD-HAIRED GIRL FOR "GOLDEN TRAIL"

Margaret Gibson is getting more popular every day, now that she is appearing in the Kay-Bee, Broncho ond Domino productions for the New York Motion Picture Corporation.

Her type of beauty is such that she is excellent for certain parts. That is why she was cast to play the part of Mary, a miner's daughter, in support of Richard Stanton in "The Golden Trail," a Broncho of August 4.

The script ordered a girl with "true golden hair." There are quite a few blondes at Inceville, but Miss Gibson was selected for the part because she had "golden hair" for "The Golden Trail."

"DIAMOND FROM SKY" STIMULATES EXHIBITORS TO CREATION OF NOVEL PUBLICITY STUNTS

IN all parts of the country exhibitors are demonstrating the value of unique advertising methods to increase box office receipts. From Lawton, Okla., comes word of a novel plan used by W. C. Wood, manager of the Met theatre. Every Wednesday, the day on which the Met theatre runs "The Diamond from the Sky," Mr. Wood parades a wagonload of school children through the streets of Lawton. The wagon is elaborately decorated with bunting and large banners announcing that "The Diamond from the Sky" is appearing that day at the Met theatre.

The children are piled high up on a flight of stairs which were built onto the wagon and in each one of the urchins' hands is a large flag. The wagon is drawn by two horses that have been decorated with flags and bunting. The combined effect is that of a huge animated float and attracts considerable attention. The happy youngsters are glad to serve in order to get the ride, and, of course, Manager Woods accepts them as guests at the Met theatre after the day's ride. The five hundred seats at the Met are inadequate to handle the tremendous crowds which the float attracts and the Met box office shows the result at the end of the day.

Another story of novel advertising comes from Tacoma, Wash. The manager of the Melbourne theatre there, on booking "The Diamond from the Sky" and knowing of the $10,000 cash prize which is being offered for a sequel to this photoplay, went to his bank and asked for the loan of $10,000 in gold pieces.

The loan was granted and an arrangement was made with a store on the main street to furnish a show window into which the $10,000 in gold was placed. The coins were spread thickly throughout the window and signs were displayed everywhere telling the public that any man, woman or child had a chance to earn this money by writing a simple suggestion in 1,000 words or less, which could be used as a sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky." The signs also explained that the Melbourne theatre was showing "The Diamond from the Sky" every Friday.

The window full of gold pieces attracted considerable attention and resulted in packed houses for the Melbourne. The bank charged nothing for the loan of the money and the merchant was glad to furnish a window that would attract such attention to his store. The only cost to the Melbourne theatre was the salary of a guard to protect the money.

At Des Moines, Iowa, Mr. Hytower, manager of the Royal theatre, bolstered up his matinee business considerably by arranging with a large local bakery to wrap a coupon with every loaf of bread. This coupon was good for one free admission to the matinee performance of "The Diamond from the Sky." The coupons thus distributed brought hundreds of other people to the theatre to see the photoplay. In many cases entire families came, using the coupon to admit one member and buying tickets for the others. The Royal theatre opens at 10:30 a. m. At noon on the day this plan was put in use the house was full and all expenses for the day were paid.

In Ottumwa, Iowa, Mr. Silvers, manager of the Strand theatre, has built a large electric flasher sign to advertise "The Diamond from the Sky" by using the regular twelve-foot cloth banner and building a flasher box to hold it.

From another Iowa exhibitor comes the story of unique advertising. A float was built to carry large signs explaining that "The Diamond from the Sky" was being shown that day at the Princess and Royal theatres. The float was made especially top heavy and was driven down the principal thoroughfare. When a strategic point was reached the driver moved to one side of the float and the wind completely capsized it, causing a tremendous crowd to congregate.

It took hours to right the float and during this time the busy corner accumulated enough humans to make the greatest movie mob scene seem small. The advertising value of this was further enhanced by distributing facsimile $10,000 checks throughout the crowd which urged everybody to see "The Diamond from the Sky."

FLOWER DAY PROVES POPULAR IN CHATTANOOGA

IN line with the progressive policy of the Alcazar motion picture theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn., whose motto is "Always in the Lead," Manager Frank H. Dowling, Jr., has inaugurated a novel advertising scheme. Monday has been set aside as "flower day" at the Alcazar and every Monday hereafter each lady attending the theatre will receive a beautiful rose, carnation, or other flower.

A weekly entitled "Chattanooga's Motion Picture Review" is being published by the Lyric company, which controls the Alcazar. It is an attractive publication filled with live motion picture news and containing lists of future bookings of the theatre. Ruth D. Evans is the editor.

EXHIBITOR GETS SUGGESTION FROM "NEWS"

WHEN C. B. Winn opened the New Hamilton theatre at Fortieth and Hamilton streets, Omaha, Neb., he gave to the public one of the best equipped and attractive houses in the city. The theatre has 514 seats, uses the Mutual service, has indirect lights, a lobby fifty feet wide and fifty feet deep, uses the back wall for a curtain and has a neat little stage. Several of the ideas of the manager were gained by traveling about and seeing the best houses. The extensive lobby, the use of the back wall and the little stage were ideas Winn found in Motion Picture News.

The little stage, he points out, is of great aid should a church or other community organization wish to give an entertainment. Mr. Winn believes it is to the advantage of the motion picture exhibitor to join with these community organizations in public entertainments, as it is a highly desirable form of advertisement.

THE NEXT "REEL" TO "FOLLOW" (ALMOST) "IMMEDIATELY"

MANAGER HARRY COWDROY, of Elite No. 2 in Omaha, Neb., aroused the curiosity of every passer by his place when a life-sized picture of a man's trousered leg was shown in front of his place. The next day the second leg appeared, the third day the body, the fourth day an arm, the fifth day another arm, and the sixth day the head of Charley Chaplin.

By the sixth day everybody's curiosity was aroused, and the advertising scheme was a glorious success, a larger crowd than usual turning out to see the new Chaplin picture.

CONVENTION EXHIBITS OUTSHINE FORMER DISPLAYS

The booth was ornamented with a large American flag draped around three Kraus oil paintings in gold mountings of popular actresses and many attractive Kraus pictures shown in lobby frames on the walls.

Walter Preddy, expert on projector apparatus, had a number of his new devices on exhibition, and was personally on hand to explain them. Frank Hammer, of the Breck sales staff, assisted by Mr. Waring, was in general charge. Mr. Hammond, in the employ of the Edison company, was especially detailed to explain the Edison projectors. Mr. Smeltzer gave a lecture on the radiant gold screen, which was also on exhibition.

Moving picture exhibitors and operators kept Messrs. Kunzmann and Raffin, representatives of the National Carbon Company, busy at Booth 11, inquiring about the new picture machine carbon put out by this company.

W. C. Kunzmann came direct from the factory to demonstrate to exhibitors that this carbon, "made in America," produces excellent screen results.

Mr. Raffin, salesman for this company, in this territory, assisted Mr. Kunzmann.

An alternating and direct current burning arc was thrown upon a screen at this booth to show the public and picture men the excellent quality of American-made picture machine carbons.

Sizes of all diameter carbons for stereopticon moving picture and searchlight lamps were on display at this booth.

One of the most prominent exhibits at the convention was the Fotoplayer shown by the American Photo Player Sales Company. They demonstrated one of their latest models, a style 45. This style has been recently installed at the New Fillmore theatre, San Francisco, the Empire theatre, Stockton, the Liberty theatre, Sacramento, and the Marquee theatre, Palo Alto.

Simplex Machines on Display

The Simplex machine was on exhibit in space No. 10 on the main aisle. The booth was decorated in a beautiful orange tint.

One of the latest model Simplex projectors was on display, and attracted the attention of the many exhibitors assembled at the convention.

In the miniature theatres there were installed two Simplex De Luxe projectors, with the latest Simplex variable speed control, also equipped with the Arc controller, a new device which caused considerable comment. This was the only complete equipment of this kind on exhibition.

The exhibit was in charge of F. B. Cannock, L. W. Atwater and Fred A. Clark.

W. G. Preddey was busily engaged during the convention demonstrating the Feaster film feed machine, a device for eliminating the rewinding of motion picture films. The machine met with great interest among exhibitors. Those entering or leaving the theatre could not miss this booth, being next the theatre, and it is safe to say that everyone who first saw the Feaster film feed machine brought another man to see it, too. No other exhibit created more interest.

The booth was attractively decorated with bunting and American flags.

Blue and gold were the colors used in the pretty booth of the Charles L. Kiewert Company, distributors of Bio carbons. Here all kinds of carbons for motion picture projecting, miniature, photo-engraving studio and search lights were in stock at the booth, and continuous demonstration given as to proper manner of using each.

This booth also contained a display of Alba studio lamps, which were used Friday evening in photographing the annual ball. The booth was in charge of R. E. Martinez, of the San Francisco office of the company.

S. H. Jones, with his display of the Gold King screen, shared a booth with the Los Angeles Motion Picture Company. A duplicate of the Gold King screen formed the greater part of this exhibit, and cleverly conceived circulars describing the advantages of the Gold King screen were distributed. A number of the exhibitors were very much interested in the screen that is being exploited by the Oklahoma manufacturer.

NYMP Closes Contract with Billie Burke for $40,000

Negotiations, Hanging Fire for Ten Weeks, End with the Actress Agreeing to Let the Company Have Option on Her Services for Next 3 Years

BILLIE BURKE has just concluded negotiations which were entered into ten weeks ago, between the New York Motion Picture corporation and Miss Burke for her appearance in a picture to be taken at the studio in Santa Monica, Cal.

BILLIE BURKE (N. Y. M. P.)

The sum paid to Miss Burke is the largest paid to any artist who has so far appeared in pictures. Her salary is to be $40,000 for five weeks' work, and in conjunction with this Messrs. Kessel and Baumann, president and vice-president of the New York Motion Picture corporation, have agreed to pay all Miss Burke's expenses and furnish her a private car to and from California. They have also agreed to give Miss Burke the exclusive use of an automobile, first-class make, during her stay in California.

Adam Kessel, after Miss Burke had signed the contract, handed her a check for $50,000, which stands as an option on her exclusive services for the next three years at a salary of $150,000 a year, she being required to give the picture company her services for twenty-six weeks of each year.

And as the contract entered into between Miss Burke and the New York Motion Picture corporation calls for consecutive weeks, Messrs. Kessel and Baumann today applied, through William T. Sandall, of 59 John street, New York City, for an insurance policy through Lloyds of London for $50,000, insuring them against rain during Miss Burke's stay in Los Angeles. This will possibly be the second time that Lloyds have issued a policy against rain in this country, the other occasion being on July 4, 1910, a policy being issued to the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

Mr. Kessel signed the contract for the New York Motion Picture corporation and among others present were Miss Burke's mother, Flo Ziegfield and John McKeon, of the New York Motion Picture corporation.

THREE FAMOUS COMEDIANS BOOKED FOR KEYSTONE FILMS

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

MIDSUMMER WEATHER BRINGS GOOD BUSINESS TO EXCHANGES IN ST. LOUIS

THE World Film Corporation, 3610 Olive street, St. Louis, has had a new manager since July 5 to take the place of R. L. White, who has resigned as manager of the exchange. E. W. Dustin, who is now in charge of the office, is well known in film circles, having had experience in all stages of the business, from director and producer, to road man, advance agent, and manager of the first Eclectic exchange in St. Louis, when Pathé opened up its exchanges under that name.

Mr. Dustin has also been an exhibitor of motion pictures, being one of the first men to convert a regular theatre to an all-motion picture house and make a howling success of it. The Hopkins theatre in Louisville, Ky., was the theatre which Mr. Dustin raised to the highest degree of prosperity with an all-motion picture bill.

A. S. Abeles, manager of the Pathé exchange at 3210 Locust street, St. Louis, has been in New York to attend a meeting of Pathé exchange managers from all over the country, who gather at the home office periodically to discuss office management and plans for future business. During Mr. Abeles' absence, M. J. Dunne acted as manager of the St. Louis office.

Roy Dickson, former booker in the Mutual exchange, has been appointed assistant manager to J. W. Cotter, who is in charge of the Kriterion exchange at 3217 Locust street, St. Louis. The Kriterion office in that city has made arrangements to distribute the Miller Brothers 101 Ranch releases for the State of Missouri.

The first feature, which has just been received, is called "The Exposition's First Romance," which is a story of the San Francisco Exposition, as the name would indicate.

J. A. Noehrn has been appointed assistant to S. W. Hatch, manager of the St. Louis office of the V-L-S-E at 3630 Olive street, in the building formerly occupied by the Alco exchange. Mr. Noehrn comes here from the Big Four office in Kansas City.

J. J. Jones, of Kansas City, is in St. Louis booking the features, "Three Weeks," "The Spoilers" and "The Christian." Mr. Jones is connected with the house of Martin & Estes, of Kansas City, and his headquarters in St. Louis are at the Astor Hotel. He says the demand for features is good in and around St. Louis, and "The Spoilers" is especially popular.

Sam Werner, who is in charge of the United exchange in Film Row on Olive street, St. Louis, says business is good despite the fact that the weather man has a grudge against St. Louis in general and airdomes in particular. He says this thing of moving back and forth from airdome to theatre, and back again, because the sun shines all day and then just about dark the clouds come up, and a hasty move back into the house must be accomplished so that the prospective audience will think that the exhibitor never intended anything else but to have the show in the house, and then the next day it will rain until 4 p. m., and then clear off so nice that people will not want to go in the theatre, which means another move in a hurry, back to the airdome—all these moves are enough to make the most patient exhibitor lose his temper at last.

GRANDBY GOES TO MAINE TO SIGN CONTRACTS FOR FOX

MANAGER CAMPBELL returned to Boston from the Fox convention in New York with a most enthusiastic belief concerning the immediate future in this territory, and the success of the new Fox one-a-week policy.

One of his road men, Mitchell Grandby, has left for Maine to pave the way for the exhibitors to sign the new Fox contract, the form of which has not yet been received.

The week of July 19 Mr. Grandby will be in New Hampshire and Vermont.

"The Diamond from the Sky" is being extensively advertised in Boston on the billboards. The serial is having a great run in New England.

Manager Bernfeld of the New England Pathé exchange reports an encouraging number of bookings for the Pathé serial, "Neal of the Navy."

STORK PEEPS IN HOME OF DAVE REED

ON July 5, the home of Dave Reed, president of the Metro Picture Corporation of Texas, at Dallas, was visited by the stork, and "Daddy" David now hurries home very early every afternoon to play with the little girl.

Her proud father and mother have not yet named her, but it has been persistently rumored that the reason for this delay is that Dave insists she should be called Metro, while Mrs. Dave says she thinks it would be better to name her Olga, after Mme. Olga Petrova, of Metro Pictures.

Albert Russell, secretary of the Metro, says he is hoping the newness of having a baby in the family, as this is number one for Mr. and Mrs. Reed, will soon wear off, so Mr. Reed will not spend all his time telephoning home "to see how the kid is."

NEW ENGLAND EXHIBITORS GET BIG RETURNS FROM ADVERTISING

EXHIBITORS throughout New England are beginning to realize that a dollar spent in advertising the Big Four way means two or three dollars more in the till.

Manager Balsdon's Boston office is busy sending out the advertising features which are helping the exhibitor to crowd his theater for the Big Four films. Results are not difficult to discover.

One example is the City theater at Brockton, Mass. For "The Island of Regeneration" Manager Cahill took large space in two Brockton papers. He spent $56 in advertising a feature which was to be seen at his house for not more than a few days.

The result was that the City played to capacity houses while "The Island" was on the program. From the time the doors opened for the first afternoon showing, the line of ticket buyers did not break until late in the evening.

This is also an example of the fact that the Big Four is increasing its territory in New England each week. When smaller city theaters, like the Bellevue in St. Albans, Vt., and the Pleasure in St. Johnsbury, can buy a Big Four feature and make money on it, Manager Balsdon says there is no reason why a big house in a big city cannot reap big harvests on the same features.

Out after business in this territory for the Big Four are H. F. Grundy and J. L. Reardon, new men for this branch, and F. A. Grady, who is just now making a clean-up through Vermont and Maine.

COMPANY CONVENTIONS INDICATE PROGRESS OF MIDDLE WEST

IF the activities of middle western exchange managers are samples of what exchange managers all over the country are doing, every big film organization in the country must be holding or planning to hold annual conventions either in New York or Chicago. These conventions are to talk over business, trade ideas and plan business boosts.

Joe Levy, manager of the Omaha branch of the Fox Film Corporation, went to New York to attend the first annual convention of branch managers of his company, held at the Knickerbocker Hotel July 1 to 5. Leola Eckert, his assistant, had charge during his absence.

Manager J. E. Kirk, of the Omaha branch Pathé exchange, went to the first convention of branch exchange managers at Chicago on July 12. This, he says, was for the purpose of getting ready for the big expansion of business when the Gold Rooster releases start this fall.

BACHRACH JOINS WORLD FIELD FORCES

HENRY E. FRIEDMAN has been assigned to the North Carolina territory by the Washington, D. C., office, for it is believed that by having one man in so large a territory better results can be obtained. For this same reason Alan J. Bachrach has been given the State of Virginia, and F. B. Spurrier, assistant manager for this territory, will give special attention to the Maryland business.

Mr. Bachrach is the latest addition to the field forces of the World Film Corporation, for he made his initial visit to the Virginia exhibitors last week. Heretofore he has been engaged in the exhibition rather than the placing of motion picture films. During the past six years he has served as a manager for the Brylawski interests.

He started in the film business in July, 1909, when he gave up the photographic studio he was then conducting at 1331 F street, northwest, to assume the management of the Pastime theatre on Pennsylvania avenue, near Sixth street.

In September, 1912, he was transferred to the Casino theatre, at Seventh and F streets, where he remained until last April, when, upon the expiration of the lease, the house was vacated by his employers.

He then became manager of the organization holding the District of Columbia license for the Spiegell slides, remaining in that capacity until associating himself with the World Film Corporation.

Mr. Bachrach is a native of Baltimore, Md., and was born in that city November 18, 1881. He is a graduate of the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, class of 1898, and is well known and extremely popular in both cities.

LANDE OF PITTSBURGH WILL HANDLE STANDARD

PITTSBURGH, western Pennsylvania and West Virginia territory for the Standard program has just been acquired by H. A. Lande.

A pioneer in motion picture affairs, Mr. Lande has made an enviable reputation as an exchange expert and successful student of film conditions.

Mr. Lande was associated with Albert and H. M. Warner for several years in the exchange business in Pittsburgh. Three thriving exchanges, all in Pittsburgh, are the outcome of their methods. One is now owned by the General Film Company, one by the Mutual Film Corporation. The third is under the proprietorship of Mr. Lande and will again share in the activities of Albert and H. M. Warner, who are prominent in the affairs of the Standard program.

GOFF WILL SUPERVISE WESTERN V-L-S-E BRANCHES

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by the V-L-S-E of several important changes in its field organization affecting the Cleveland and the San Francisco branches, and the entire western territory.

A. W. Goff, who has done brilliant work as manager of the Big Four branch in Cleveland, has been sent to the coast as division manager of the western territory. In his new position he will supervise the work of all the far western branches and sub-offices.

The place made vacant by Mr. Goff's promotion will be occupied by Sidney E. Abel, who has been prominently identified with the film business for a number of years. Mr. Abel has made arrangements to take immediate charge of the Cleveland branch, and direct the sales force connected with that office.

A change in the management of the San Francisco branch is also reported by the V-L-S-E. R. B. Quive, well known in western film circles, will become branch manager in place of C. B. Price.

Under Mr. Quive's management, great things are looked for from this far western V-L-S-E branch office.

BIG FOX SIGN IS ATTRACTION IN SAN FRANCISCO

THE Tivoli Opera House, San Francisco's largest motion picture theatre, and one of the finest houses devoted to photoplays in the country, has a management that believes it pays to advertise, as exemplified by the immense sign, the largest in San Francisco, erected by them on Market street, the exposition city's main thoroughfare.

THE TIVOLI THEATRE'S SIGN, MARKET STREET, SAN FRANCISCO

The Tivoli runs William Fox attractions for not less than seven days, at twenty and twenty-five cents. Recently "A Fool There Was" with Theda Bara, played at this house for three weeks solid, with capacity business. W. J. Citron, the San Francisco Manager of the Fox Film Corporation, reports the same success with all William Fox productions.

PATHE OPENS OFFICE IN COLUMBUS

THE Pathé exchange in Cincinnati has opened an office in Columbus with R. E. Brown, Columbus representative in charge, as an advertising branch of the Cincinnati office. The new office is equipped to give exhibitors in the Columbus territory a complete lay-out of all Pathé subjects.

ENTHUSIASM OVER BUSINESS IN BOSTON RESTS ON SOLID BASIS

YOU can't find a manager of a film exchange in Boston just at this time who will tell you that the picture outlook in New England is anything but the rosiest ever. It's their business to be optimistic, of course, but in this case the optimism seems to rest upon a foundation somewhat more solid than enthusiasm.

For the New England theater-going public is crowding into the picture house regardless of the fact that old-time custom would keep them on the back piazza with a fan in one hand and a Y. M. C. A. cocktail in the other.

Recently the film business was tided over part of what usually is the hot season by a lot of cold rainy weather. Now the hot weather is coming along more steadily, but the crowds keep coming to the film shows.

For instance, in Boston "The Birth of a Nation" continues to play to good business. Special advertising stunts around through the country districts are waking the people up and loading them into special trains now and then for a trip to see the Griffith film.

The other theatres in Boston are not lacking in attendance, while reports from the smaller places throughout the district are most encouraging.

Gradually the exhibitor is beginning to feel his oats on the subject of advertising, and all in all there bids to be a merry little time of it next fall and winter.

SURPRISE BANQUET TENDERED YARR IN MILWAUKEE

A SURPRISE banquet was tendered to A. E. Yarr, retiring manager of the Milwaukee office of the Casino Feature Film Company of Detroit, on the evening of July 14, in the Badger room of the Hotel Wisconsin. Plates were set for fifteen.

The table was headed by E. H. Hoyt of the Metro Film Service, Minneapolis, as toastmaster, and he called upon J. Gallagher of the Mid-West Feature Company, Minneapolis, who responded by giving an interesting talk of conditions in his territory. Louis B. Goulden, president of the Goulden Film Corporation, had the table in roars of laughter by his clever imitations of two local film characters. Sam Norville, of the Milwaukee Feature Film Company, responded with his original poem, "Remorse." Walter A. Baier, of the Jacobs Film Booking Offices, responded with an interesting talk on film conditions in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Mr. Yarr tried to respond but was overcome with emotion, but nevertheless managed to thank those present for their good will. Best wishes were extended to B. C. Smith, who succeeds Mr. Yarr as manager of the local office of the Casino Company.

Others present were S. J. Smith, Princess theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D.; S. R. Clingan and W. Loranger of the Casino Company, Detroit; Max Wiesner, World Film, Chicago; W. Brimmer, M. Kann and V. De Lorenzo of the local Universal office, and Frank T. De Lorenzo of the Badger Poster Mounting Company.

Looking Ahead With The Producers

6 PART PATHE COLORED FEATURE BY SARDOU IS JULY 26 RELEASE

Pathé will release in the week of July 26 a superb six part colored feature "Pro Patria," based upon the famous "Patrie" of Victorian Sardou, the great French dramatist.

This picture stars Henri Kraus, who played Jean Valjean in "Les Miserables," an eminent actor of France, and is especially timely, dealing as it does with that time in the 16th century when Flanders, the modern Belgium, was overrun with Spanish armies of conquest, and when superhuman efforts were made by the despairing Flemish to rid themselves of their oppressors.

"Pro Patria" is magnificently put on and was staged in Louvain, since to meet with such a tragic fate. The old world buildings, now marred and ruined beyond redemption by German shells, are used as backgrounds. The acting is truly great, and the whole picture grips from start to finish.

Sardou, the author, was born in Paris in 1831, and died in 1908. As early as 1877 he was admitted to the "Academy," that goal of the most brilliant Frenchmen. He was a past master in stage effects, and troubled himself but little with psychology.

BUSHMAN PICTURE ON THE METRO PROGRAM READY JULY 26

On July 26, the Quality Pictures Corporation, the most recent of the Metro producing companies, will release its first picture, showing Francis X. Bushman, in the role of Lieutenant Anstruther, of the British army, in Charles Frohman's former stage triumph, "The Second in Command."

In addition to being the first Quality Picture on the Metro program, this release will also mark the first joint appearance of Mr. Bushman and his now permanent leading woman in the person of Marguerite Snow. Keen anticipation marks the attitude of the various Metro exchanges on this coming release.

CORT BEGINS CASTLE SUBJECT

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, who are appearing in a polite melodrama for the Cort Film Corporation, took part in the first big scene of the picturre when they appeared in a scene staged at their summer home, Castles by the Sea, on the south shore of Long Island.

Many society friends of the dancers took part in the scene and seemed to enjoy the experience immensely. They were all enthusiastically inclined to return and take a hand at some more acting before the picture is finished. The filming of the Castle picture has been going forward for several days on the south shore of Long Island.

Ina Claire Is Cast for "The Puppet Crown," a Coming Lasky Release with Carlyle Blackwell

INA CLAIRE makes her second appearance under the management of the Lasky Feature Play Company in a very elaborate production of Harold MacGrath's famous romance, "The Puppet Crown," with Carlyle Blackwell as the hero of the tale. It will be released through Paramount Pictures Corporation on July 29.

Ina Claire's first picture, "The Wild Goose Chase," will be remembered as a particularly charming American love story. "The Puppet Crown" gives her a still more remarkable opportunity, and also serves to introduce as a Lasky artist Carlyle Blackwell.

"The Puppet Crown" of the story is the crown of the tiniest kingdom in all Europe —the kingdom of Osia—and it is there that all the events of the drama transpire, except some of the opening scenes, which take place in America, where the Princess Alexia is attending an exclusive school.

To get an inkling of the plot, it must be understood that the old King of Osia is an invalid, and that his chancellor has been deliberately undermining his authority with the purpose of crowning the Duchess Sylvia, a rival member of the royal family.

The King has sent his daughter to America incognito in order that she may learn something of freedom, and in this country she has fallen in love with a rich young man by the name of Bob Carewe.

When Alexia is summoned home by her father, Bob for the first time learns that she is a princess and that his love is, therefore, hopeless. Nevertheless, when he hears that uprisings are threatened, he goes to Osia to help if he can. Before he can obtain from home the money necessary to reinstate the authority of the rightful King and the princess, the uprising is brought to a head by the duchess. Brave though he is, Bob cannot defeat the enemies of the King, who dies in the turmoil, but he does succeed in preventing the princess from imprisonment and in carrying her off to be his bride.

In addition to Miss Claire and Carlyle Blackwell, the cast of "The Puppet Crown" includes Cleo Ridgley, Christian Lynton, Horace Carpenter, John Abraham, George Gebhardt, Tom Forman and Marjorie Daw.

MARGUERITE NICHOLS, OF BALBOA, FORGES AHEAD WITH STAGE TRAINING

Marguerite Nichols, who has been playing ingenue leads for the Balboa company at Long Beach, California, has been with the company five months and in that time she has made rapid progress. She never had any stage experience, but she takes to motion pictures as naturally as a duck takes to water.

Her first experience in an important part, was in "The Qaulity of Forgiveness." She did so well in that play that she was cast for "Creola," a very exacting part in "Beulah," the six reel production in which Henry B. Walthall was starred.

In "The Age of Discretion" she interpreted the ingenue role with credit to the play and to herself. Her next part was in "The Witch of the Mountains" which has only just been completed.

REALISTIC STREET SCENE FROM NEW YORK'S EAST SIDE IN "KINDLING" (Lasky—July 12)

DOROTHY BERNARD IS GIFTED FOX PLAYER

Dorothy Bernard, the beautiful and talented leading woman whose stage career was a series of brilliant successes and who has been seen under the William Fox management in such screen triumphs as "Princess Romanoff" and "Dr. Rameau," has been placed under exclusive contract by the Fox Film Corporation, under whose management she made her screen debut.

Miss Bernard, is a woman of exceptionally gifted powers and her work for the screen, since she entered the ranks of the photoplayers, has surpassed even the notable achievements that she scored upon the spoken stage.

The actress will shortly be seen in "The Song of Hate" in support of Betty Nansen and also appears in support of William Farnum in "The Bondman," being assigned to the important part of Greeva. In speaking of her work for the screen, Miss Bernard said:

"I am delighted with the opportunity the photoplay offers an actress, to express herself with far fuller freedom and a greater latitude of expression than is the case of a so called legitimate drama.

"I am delighted that I have been placed under contract exclusively by Mr. Fox and hope to accomplish great things under his management in the series of photoplays which he is planning for me to appear in."

SYNOPSES OF SELIG PLAYS ARE PRINTED IN COLORS

The "Selig Semi-Monthly Herald," the artistic magazine exploiting Selig productions, has put over a new idea. In the center of the publication the advance stories of the Selig Red Seal plays are printed in colors on heavy plate paper. Exhibitors can remove these inserts for advertising purposes. The "Selig Herald" also contains the clip sheet so much desired by the amusement editor.

One Comedy a Week from Aug. 16 Is Federal's Plan

Productions of the Company Are to Be Released Through Associated Program, Starting with "Nothing but Love," Followed by "The Tailor's Romance," "Love and Install-

THE Federal Film Company has arranged to release one comedy a week on the Associated program, beginning August 16. The franchise was delivered to the Federal on Wednesday, and all arrangements were completed.

The first release on the Associated program will be "Nothing but Love," followed by "The Tailor's Romance," "Love and Installments," and "His Jealous Wife." "The Watery Romance," in which Director General Al Ray, Will Rex, Margaret Burke and Mabel Spade nearly lost their lives by drowning will follow.

So great was the accident that several of the New York papers stated that Ray and Rex had been drowned, but all are most normal at the present time, although they swallowed quite a quantity of the Shrewsberry river.

The Federal company will for the present put on one reel slapstick comedies, which will deal with the adventures of Louie Schmaltz, and Mr. Weak Fish. These characters will appear in all of the pictures. Al Ray, who directs the comedies will be seen as Schmaltz and Will Rex as Fish.

Besides these comedians, has secured the services of Margaret (Fatty) Burke, Mabel Spade, Ned Kennedy, Murray MacCoid, Dave Cowan and Isabelle Rodgers. Elsie Goodwin, who is known from coast to coast as an expert swimmer and fancy diver will also appear in these comedies.

An added feature, that the company thinks is bound to be a huge success, is the signing up of the comedy clown police force of Barnum and Bailey. These men are known as skillful acrobats and fun makers. It is needless to say that they will form the police force of the Federal comedies, and will be seen in every one of the first five pictures. With the exception of "His Jealous Wife."

In every one of the five pictures there have been accidents, some of them very serious. Will Rex leads the list with a broken nose, split lip, and a cut arm, in which Dr. McGowan, the company's physician had to take eleven stitches. Ned Kennedy had his head split open, and six stitches taken in it.

Al Ray ran a nail in his foot while taking a beach scene in "His Jealous Wife." Mabel Spade sprained her ankle, Elsie Goodwin scraped her side in falling off a float, and Murray MacCoid lost two teeth.

The other members of the company escaped with the exception of the police force, whose injuries are too numerous to mention. The Company is hoping to complete the next picture without an accident. All of the above accidents can be seen in the pictures.

Paramount Fixes Releases for 1st Quarter, 2nd Year

Array of Its Subjects Include "The Foundling," a Pickford; "Incorrigible Dukane," with John Barrymore; "White Pearl," Featuring Marie Doro, and "Fatal Card"

IN announcing the list of its releases for the first quarter of its second year, the Paramount Pictures Corporation takes occasion to call attention to some of the factors in its foundation.

The officers and directors of Paramount are all men of wide experience in the film industry. Each was a prosperous exchange man with extensive operations and substantial capital at the time of coming into Paramount.

The most convincing proof of the earning capacity of the Paramount pictures and service is the fact that the finest and largest theatres throughout the United States are using them. The Strand theatre of New York recently issued a public statement, part of which said: "The Strand theatre with Paramount pictures has been an artistic and financial success. We shall therefore continue to give the Strand patrons those features."

The releases of the Famous Players Film Company for the second year of the Paramount program's existence will include such masterpieces as "The Foundling," with Mary Pickford; "The Incorrigible Dukane," with John Barrymore; "The White Pearl," with Marie Doro; "The Fatal Card," with Hazel Dawn and John Mason; "Madam Butterfly," with Mary Pickford; "The Mummy and the Hummimng Bird," with Charles Cherry; "The Three Elks," with John Barrymore; "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," with Hazel Dawn; "The Prince and the Pauper," with Marguerite Clark; "Twisted Paths," with Mary Pickford; "Poor Schmaltz," with Sam Bernard; "Zaza," with Pauline Frederick; and "Molly Make-Believe," with Marguerite Clark.

The Lasky Company will contribute Geraldine Farrar's production of "Carmen," in which the famous diva appears in the title role; "The Case of Becky," with Blanche Sweet; "Blackbirds," with Laura Hope Crews; "The Voice in the Fog," with Donald Brian; "The Cheat," with Blanche Sweet; "The Revelation," with Charlotte Walker; and "The Explorer," with Lou Tellegen.

From the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company will come "Peer Gynt" with Cyril Maude.

From the Bosworth studio, Dustin Farnum in "Davy Crockett," and Elsie Janis in "'Twas Ever Thus."

FAVERSHAM IN ANOTHER METRO PICTURE FOR ROLFE

Metro makes the announcement that the services of William Faversham, the distinguished star, who was seen for the first time on the screen in Sir Gilbert Parker's "The Right of Way," at the Strand theatre, New York, week before last, has been secured for another picture to be made by the B. A. Rolfe Company.

The subject has not yet been selected, the directors of the Metro company awaiting the return of Mr. Faversham from his vacation at Mattituck, L. I.

In and Out of Los Angeles Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Special to Motion Picture News

Los Angeles, July 19.

THOUSANDS of Los Angeles people and visitors this week witnessed the filming of parts for photoplays in the Civic stadium, when the 1915 committee of Los Angeles staged three bull fights for the entertainment of visitors.

Saturday was Lasky Day at the stadium when pictures were made for the coming Geraldine Farrar subject, "Carmen." Pedro de Cordoba appeared in but a few scenes, and then his double, Senior Ibarra from Mexico City took up the work.

The cast for this subject is as follows: Carmen, the gypsy, Geraldine Farrar; Don Jose, a young officer, Wallace Reid; Pastia, tavern keeper and smuggler, Horace B. Carpenter; Escamille, the toreador, Pedro de Cordoba, and Morales, an officer, William Elmer. The direction was by Cecil B. DeMille.

The second day was "Griffith Day," when "The Pageant of the Photoplay" formed the principal feature of the program following the Spanish entertainment. Early in the afternoon all the old Spanish families of southern California entered the stadium en masse. At 3:15 Eddie Dillon directed the production of a burlesque bull fight in which the entire company of the Komic brand players took part.

INA CLAIRE AND CARLYLE BLACKWELL IN "THE PUPPET CROWN" (Lasky)

"The Pageant of the Photoplay" arranged under the personal direction of D. W. Griffith, was the biggest event of the second day. In this, floats showed the various stages of production in the making of motion pictures including all laboratory processes. At the end were allegorical floats representing the six greatest masterpieces produced by Mr. Griffith. The well known director was the guest of honor, and was given a brief ovation by various Los Angeles civic officers, and officers of civic organizations.

The last day was Elks-Keystone Day when Mack Sennett presided with his comedy makers. Thousands of Elks were present, as the national annual meeting of that order was in session in Los Angeles at the time, and appeared in the pictures.

Mr. Sennett produced a subject featuring Ford Sterling which he has written himself.

In "Fate Takes a Hand" a two-reel Majestic now being produced by F. J. Grantein, a detective crook story is portrayed. Adoni Fovieri appears in the part of the queen of a gang of crooks, and when arrested for shoplifting turns state's evidence revealing the numerous crimes of her former associate.

Thus she brings about the arrest of her pal, Jim Brant, an ex-convict who has tried to reform but is led into a criminal life by the woman he loves. Brant seeks revenge by killing the prosecuting attorney, firing into the lawyer's office. He mistakes the woman then being examined for the man and kills his sweethart. Francis J. McDonald appears as the crook, W. E. Lawrence the attorney, and Elnora Washington a detective.

The attempt of a mother from a small village to prevent her son, who has gone to a large city to secure employment, from wedding an actress, and the ultimate infatuation with her son's choice is brought out in the two-reel Reliance picture, "The Way of a Mother" which is being made by Jack Conway. Margaret Marsh appears as the actress, George Walsh the Son, and Josephine Crowell, the mother.

Two orphan children are given a very desirable home by a benefactor when they serve to prevent his home from being robbed and the loss of very valuable jewels which have become internationally famous.

The cast for this, "The Two Little Orphans" a one-reel Reliance is unusually big. The child parts are taken by Harold Goodwin and Violet Wilkey, the benefactor by Richard Cummings.

The production is in charge of Ray Myers.

"The Noon Hour" is a one-reel Reliance of melodramatic nature being made by Joseph Belmont. The attentions of a young man to their daughter is distastful to the parents, but an elderly maiden aunt of the girl advises her not to permit her parents to interfer with her love matches, and later serves to aid the lovers by inducing the father, at the point of a gun, to consent to the wedding. Billie West, O. McVirmid, Cora Drew, and Florence Elmore appear in this subject.

That attention to a little tough of the slums often brings unsuspected and very pleasant results is pointed out in the Reliance one-reel subject, "The Big Brother." Here a slum worker induces her sweetheart to care for "Scraps," a trouble maker who is slated for the reform school.

When a dishonest clerk causes the boy's friends books to show a shortage of five hundred dollars, the lad swiftly brings evidence to prove the innocence of his benefactor, and causes the arrest of the real criminal. Bobbie Fuhrar plays the name role with Frank Bennett and Francelia Billington appearing in the other principal parts.

A murder mystery is unraveled in "The Ceremonial Turquoise" a two-reel Reliance being filmed by F. A. Kelsey. The senior member of a firm is found dead, and the last person to be seen with him was his partner. The men had had difficulty regarding the war, following which the senior member had caused his daughter to break off the engagement with the junior member.

Strong Parts in Two Reeler

The daughter of the murdered man however, discovers a clue which results in the arrest of the criminal, an Indian, after investigation which brings out the fact that a turquoise stolen at the time was sacred to the Indians. The girl saves her sweetheart, who has been convicted. Charles West, Irene Hunt and Dark Cloud play the important parts in this two-reel subject by Bernard McConville.

Charley Clarey and Teddy Sampson are being featured in "Big Jim's Heart," a two-reel Reliance being made by Tom B. O'Brien. The sheriff and the pony express driver are in love with the same girl, but she consents to marry the latter. A halfbreed is killed, and circumstantial evidence brings about the conviction of the express driver.

The day of the hanging the sheriff is called to a camp in the woods where a dying man makes a confession of the crime. The officer keeps this confession a secret until he is handed the rope which will bring about the death of his rival. At that moment the man in him asserts itself, and he tells of the confession.

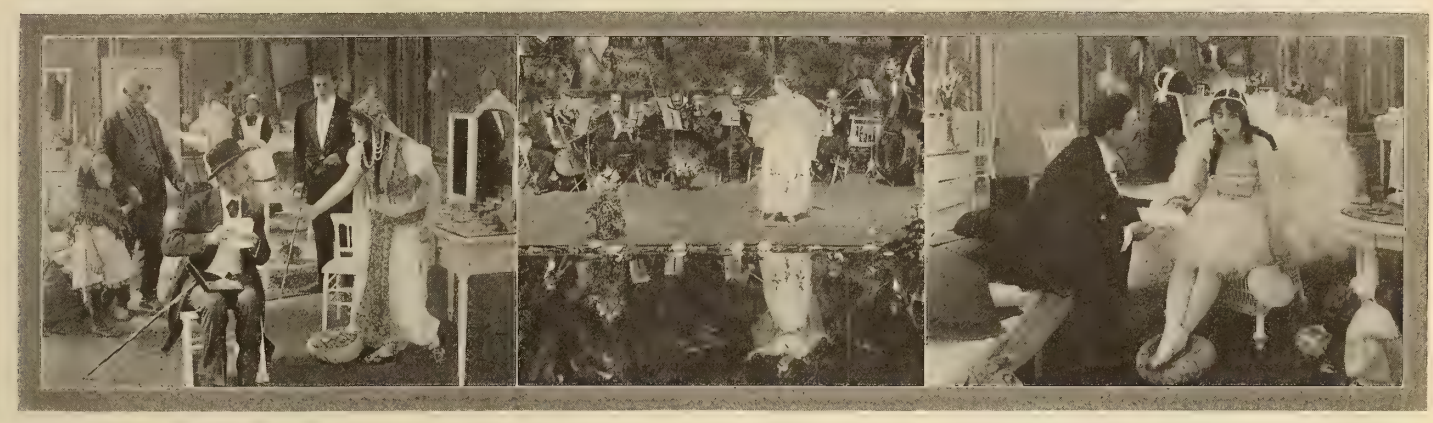
Douglas Fairbanks has arrived at the Griffith studios for an indefinite engagement following a number of successes of the legitimate stage including, "He Comes Up Smiling," "The Man of The Hour," "The Gentleman from Mississippi," and "A Gentleman of Leisure." Mr. Fairbanks is to appear in original photoplays of a comedy drama nature produced under the direction of Mr. Griffith.

Another recent arrival at the Griffith studio is Tully Marshall who will also appear in Griffith subjects. Mr. Marshall has had a successful legitimate stage career, and no doubt, his work before the camera will prove as successful.

Signe Auen Gives Luncheon

One of the pleasant social events of the past week of filmdom was a luncheon given by Signe Auen, at which the Japanese players who appeared in "The Fox Woman," a Mutual Masterpiece adaptation from the John Luther Long story, were the guests of honor. Everything was provided in Japanese style, a Japanese caterer serving the luncheon. In "The Fox Woman" Miss Auen appeared in the name role, that of a Japanese Siren.

Francelia Billington will enter the annual national tennis tournament which will be held at Long Beach in the near future. This Reliance-Majestic star, according to her friends, has an opportunity of capturing first honors, she being a very successful tennis player. Pictures of the championship series will be made of Miss Billington.



P. D. Tabler, who has been business manager of the Blazon Film Company at San Francisco has accepted a position with the Morosco Feature Play Company as assistant to general manager Charles Eyton, and will take up work in the near future. The Blazon company has closed its studio and ceased production for the present, having sold their last subject "Deadlock" to the World Film Corporation. This is from the story by the same name by Rufus Steel, well-known short story writer of San Francisco.

Director William C. Dowland of the Universal staff is to direct the first subject in which Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven of vaudeville fame will be featured. This week the director, scenario writers, and vaudeville stars are collaborating in the preparation of a four-reel scenario.

BARBECUE TO THE NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION AT INCEVILLE, DURING THE CONVENTION AT LOS ANGELES

THREE STRIKING SCENES FROM A FORTHCOMING AMERICAN-MUTUAL MASTERPIECE, "THE GIRL FROM OUR TOWN"

The Universal west coast scenario department has discovered a new scenario writer in the person of Helen Jonas, daughter of M. G. Jonas, manager of the Universal publicity department. Her first subject, "When Cupid Lost His Teeth" has been filmed by the Al Christie, Eddie Lyons, and Lee Moran aggregation.

"Daddy" Manly in "Last Thirty Minutes"

Director Normand McDonald began the filming of "His Last Thirty," a one-reel subject which will feature Charles "Daddy" Manly.

The first photoplay written by Bess Meridyth since her return to Universal City was taken up last week in the filming of "The Floradelese," by the Rex brand company. This is of two-reels, and was produced under the direction of Joseph DeGrasse. Elsie Jane Wilson is playing the principal role.

The Joker company, under the direction of Al Curtis, is making "Eddie's Debut" a one-reel comedy written by Thomas Del Mar. The Jokerites of the other company are making "Mrs. Innocence," a one-reel comedy written by Clarence G. Badger.

The producing staff of the Universal was increased last week by the addition of Joseph Franz, late director of the St. Louis Motion Picture company at Santa Paula, and Rex D. Rosselli being promoted to the ranks of director. A company was organized and the first production was taken up last week.

Mr. Rosselli has taken up the filming of "George Martin Turns 'Em Loose," an animal comedy featuring the orangutang, which a spinster inherits and turns loose to stop a neighbor from touring her with his trombone. Incidentally the orangutang takes to a circus, and there will be scenes featuring all of the Universal zoo animals being turned loose.

Nat Goodwin Arrives at Studio

Nat Goodwin arrived at the Universal studio the latter part of the week, and this week filming of "Business Is Business," under the direction of Otis Turner was begun. Mr. Turner has had the privilege of selecting from the entire Universal staff, and has attempted to get types for each part of this big feature production.

The other three subjects featuring Broadway legitimate stage stars under the direction of Al E. Christie, Robert Leonard, and William C. Dowlan, directing Marie Tempest, Julia Dean and Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven, respectively, is progressing very satisfactorily. Lulu Glazier is soon to arrive at the studio, and will be featured in comedy production under the direction of Al. E. Christie.

Supporting Julia Dean, are Harry Carey and Harry Carter as principals. The story, "Renunciation" was especially written by Peter B. Kyne, and adapted for the screen by Harvey Gates.

The Harry Matthews company, producing for the Universal, is making a subject which combines comedy, drama and a fairy tale. The title of this is "The Runaway Princess," and Elsie Albert plays the name part supported by Charles Hammond, as the king, Charles Cummings, Seymore Hastings, John Cook, Margaret Fitz Roy, Dorothy Bissell, Anna Brown, and Baby Early.

The princess fearing the king to whom she is betrothed, who is an old, ugly tyrant, runs away. After numerous adventures she secures employment as a dishwasher in the king's palace. By a coincidence she learns the true character of the man she is to wed, and the romance is consummated by a beautiful wedding.

Stretching Her Patience Ten Weeks

To be broke, following an unsuccessful attempt to establish a law practise, and then after hawking all the furniture together with a rented typewriter in order to raise money to entertain two heiresses, forms the skeleton for a one reel comedy being filmed by Fred Hornby for the National Film Corporation, under the title of "Broke."

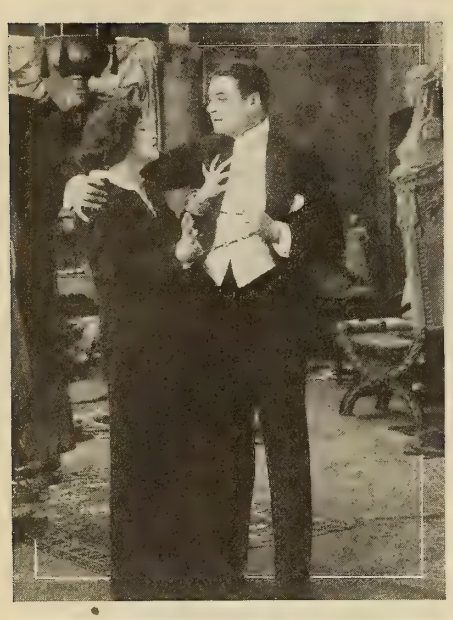
The roles of the attorneys are taken by "Bill" Parsons and Russ Powell, and the heiresses are Rena Rogers and Constance Johnson. Lillian Byran appears as the stenographer who tells the true lover of one of the heiresses of the intentions of her former employers, when they fail to make payment of ten weeks' salary. The only illogical point in the story is, according to the belief of the writer, that it would be impossible to find a stenographer who would permit ten weeks' salary to become delinquent.

The Major Film Company is making plans to take up the production of "Trawler," adapted from the prize short story by J. C. Connelly, who received twenty-five thousand dollars from "Collier's," and was selected as winner out of eight thousand stories.

Dr. H. G. Stafford, who was promoted from the ranks of scenario writer to that of producer, is filming "The Somnambulist."

Director Normand McDonald, who began work at the Universal studio this week, is making a one-reel subject under the working title of "Martin Lowe, Treasurer."

Capt. Wilbert Melville, director general of the western Lubin company is at San Diego this week superintending the construction of a new studio. Mr. Melville has secured a four acre site for this plant, located on Coronado Point. The studio will have a stage one hundred and fifty by three hundred feet, and especially equipped for the making of military and naval subjects. In many of these the United States warships and soldiers of the fort at San Diego will take part. The studio will be ready for use about the first of August.



Al. Curtis and his Jokerites have completed "When Hiram Went to the City" featuring Max Asher and Gail Henry. This is a story of a hay rube being picked up as a white hope, and making a miserable failure of the fighting game. Incidentally he turns down his country sweetheart for the dimpled darling waitress, but is glad to return to the arms of the fair one in the tank town.

The Curtis company will soon take up the filming of another series of "Lady Raffles" and "Detective Duck" comedies, they having previously made eight or ten of this series which were so well received, that demands have been made for additional.

Cupid Balks at Compulsion

The William C. Dowlan company has just completed filming the two-reel subject "The Lilt of Love," wherein a stepmother attempts to force an artist to pay her daughter attention when he is really in love with the stepdaughter. The lover is a musician, and when he hears the stepdaughter sing he becomes infatuated, and love finds a way. The principals in the cast are: Marcia Moore, Mildred Adams, Grace Thompson and Ray Gallagher.

A Nestor comedy of the week produced by Horace Davey is, "It Happened While He Fished" a comedy of a summer resort.

PAULINE FREDERICK IN "SOLD" (Famous Players)

Life of Kalem Serial Is Governed by Its Quality

"Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series, Begun in 1914 and Released Weekly Ever Since, Will, According to Public Taste Gauged in Exhibitors' Letters, Run Indefinitely

"HOW long should a series run?" is a question which has evoked considerable discussion in the past and which is sure to pester the producer who has a series up his sleeve. As a matter of fact, there is no reason why a series should last for only fifteen episodes, or whatever number is decided upon, if it possesses the one great essential picture quality.

Kalem's "Hazards of Helen" railroad series is an example of what quality will do for a series. Motion picture series have come and gone, since this form of story was introduced some years ago. Many ran their courses and with the issuance of the final episode, sank into oblivion.

The "Hazards of Helen" railroad series, however, like Tennyson's brook, seems likely to run on forever. Although the first episode was released in November, 1914, and the succeeding episodes at weekly intervals, it is actually increasing its hold upon the public.

As an example of what the average exhibitor thinks of this Kalem railroad series, here is a letter which was written by Thomas M. Thatcher, of the Gem theatre, Somerset, Kentucky. As an exhibitor of fifteen years' experience, Mr. Thatcher is well qualified to pass upon the merits of a production. He wrote:

"Please permit me to add a testimonial to the excellence of the wonderful series you are giving to the public in the 'Hazards of Helen' railroad series. There has never been anything like them for genuine thrills and hairbreadth escapes. My patrons wait with keenest anticipation for the next episodes.

"Aside from Miss Holmes' daring, these films possess an educational value for the thousands of people who are unacquainted with the thrills of modern railroading. For the past fifteen years I have exhibited almost every class of picture that has been filmed, but your railroad series possesses a fascination for me that is simply indescribable."

According to Kalem, the same mail brought a letter from William Hilkemeier, of the Jefferson Photo Show company, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Hilkemeier, who is just as enthusiastic as the Kentucky exhibitor, wrote:

"I want to congratulate you on the 'Hazards of Helen' railroad series. I think they have any so-called feature serial ever made beaten a mile. We're not forced to pay a sandbag price on it, either. I honestly believe the series could last for years. The episodes are short, sweet—and make the patrons come back for more."

All of which would prove that if a series possesses quality it can run indefinitely. At any rate, this seems to be the experience of the Kalem series.

Select Film Furnishes Striking Paper for "Alien"

Company Brings Out Two Styles of One, Three and Six Sheets, Window Cards, Folders and Other Advertising Matter of Unique Design

RARELY are as many publicity and advertising helps furnished to the exhibitor with a film as in the case of "An Alien," in which George Beban appeared so successfully at the Astor theatre, New York. The Select Film Booking Agency has almost broken records in such matters.

Two styles of one, three and six sheets, and an especially striking 24 sheet are included in the list of "paper." Window cards, folders, a beautiful advertising novelty—a fan in the form of an American Beauty rose, a special press sheet, large hand-colored photographs and an oil painting for lobby display have also been made up for the exhibitor.

"An Alien" has been described by the New York papers as "A play that makes dimples to catch the tears." It is an adaptation of "The Sign of the Rose," produced by Thomas H. Ince with an excellent cast including, beside Mr. Beban, Andrea Lynne, Heyward Ginn, Blanche Schwed, Thelma Salter, W. J. Kane, Edith MacBride and others.

After five big weeks at the Astor theatre, New York, it has now been released in the territories covered by the list of Paramount exchanges given below, and is playing with great success at the largest and most important theatres throughout the country, where its powerful appeal is responsible for its ever growing popularity.

The exchanges through which "An Alien" may be booked are: Famous Players Film Company of New England, 31 Beach street, Boston, Mass., and 19 Congress street, New Haven, Conn.; William L. Sherry Feature Film Company, 126 West Forty-sixth street, New York; Famous Players Exchange, 71 West Twenty-third street, New York, and 1321 Vine street, Philadelphia, Pa.; Famous Players Exchange, Second National Bank building, Washington, D. C.; Famous Players Film Service, Inc., Paramount Pictures building, Pennsylvania avenue, at Twelfth street, Pittsburg, Pa., 37 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill., and 532 Walnut street, Cincinnati, Ohio; Casino Feature Film Co., Dime Bank building, Detroit, Mich.; Kansas City Feature Film Company, Gayety Theatre building, Twelfth and Wyandotte streets, Kansas City, Mo.; Famous Star Feature Film Service, Produce Exchange building, 608 First avenue, N., Minneapolis, Minn.; Notable Features Film Company, 133 East Second South street, Salt Lake City, Utah, and 1749 Welton street, Denver, Colo.; Progressive Motion Picture Company, 645 Pacific building, San Francisco, Cal.; Central building, Seattle, Wash., and Marsh-Strong building, Los Angeles, Cal.

SCREEN VERSION OF "DESTINY" WILL APPEAR BEFORE "LEGIT" VERSION

"Destiny" is the title of a new play, by Anthony P. Kelley, secured for the Metro program. The B. A. Rolfe Company will make the screen production. It is an allegorical study. "Destiny" is an original play that has never been staged. Its screen presentation will mark one of the very few instances where an original play has been utilized for moving pictures before being produced on the regular dramatic stage.

Emily Stevens will be seen in the leading role. This production will mark her second appearance under Metro auspices. Her last engagement was in the Rolfe production of "Cora." "Destiny" will be a Metro release for September.

EDWIN STEVENS IS CAST FOR SCREEN DEBUT ON AUGUST 15

Commencing about August 15, Edwin Stevens, "the devil" of the legitimate stage, will start his screen debut in "The Crime Syndicate," a five-reel drama by Raymond L. Schrock and Hugh Weir, both well-known playwrights. John Adolfi will direct the piece.

26 CASES OF SUNDAY VIOLATION IN DALLAS COURTS

Twenty-six cases have been filed in the courts at Dallas, Texas, by the Council of Churches against managers of moving picture theatres, alleging violations of the state Sunday law, and one arrest has been made at every motion picture theatre in Dallas.

The managers of the film theatres are vigorously fighting for their rights, claiming that the showing of pictures on Sunday is not a violation of the law.

Whether motion picture shows on Sunday are morally right or wrong is not the issue, but that they are run in violation of the laws of Texas and should be suppressed for this reason, is the gist of an official statement issued by the Dallas Council of Churches.

Many of the prominent citizens of Dallas have been interviewed on the question whether or not they favored Sunday pictures. Many said that they favor Sunday pictures, but that they did not favor Sunday pictures in violation of law or any other violation of law.

Should the Sunday law be enforced, several of the picture theatres in Dallas, Texas, will have to go out of business, as Sunday is the best day in the week for business and the deficits on week days is more than made up on Sundays. The cases are to be tried soon in the district court.

OMAHA THEATRES UNDER FIRE FROM ATTACK ON ONE HOUSE

A sensational newspaper of Omaha, Neb., has started a big-type attack on motion picture theatres that show vaudeville. Lower town theatres, it was charged, not only showed indecent pictures, but staged vaudeville shows that were almost obscene. Children, it was charged, were allowed to attend and listen to and see such plays, and young girls attended in numbers.

The matter was before the juvenile department of the county government, and before the police. The city commissioners were also lined up on the proposition. The newspaper, not satisfied with the tirade against all picture theatres in general and this one in particular, began an attack on the officials for not closing it up.

The theatre, which has been called to the attention of the authorities before, was visited and a warning given the proprietor. Other exhibitors disliked the demands that strict censorship ordinances be passed. They were in favor of closing the objectionable house, because it is not a true type of Omaha theatre, but they did not believe all picture houses should be made to suffer.

The demands of the sensational daily continue from time to time, but the exhibitors are quietly awaiting until they die away. In the meantime, the exhibitors themselves may take a hand in telling the one under attack what he should and should not do.

Pennsylvania Censors Find Films Exhibited With "Cuts" Retained Following Investigation

THREATS to prosecute motion picture exhibitors in several sections of Pennsylvania for alleged violation of the new censorship law are being made from the Harrisburg, Pa., office of the State Board of Censors. In a statement given out at the censor's office it was alleged that eighteen cases of violation have been discovereed in Pittsburgh and six in Scranton and that smaller numbers have been reported in several other cities of the State.

Joseph Berrier, chief clerk of the board, recently returned from a tour of investigation during which he visited Pittsburgh, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and smaller places in the vicinity of those cities. The purpose of his trip, he said, was to learn whether uncensored films are being shown. Berrier asserted that in every city he visited he found the law is being violated by some of the exhibitors and that pictures that have been censored and from which certain parts have been ordered eliminated are being displayed with the censored parts not removed.

He said that in some cases it has been discovered that persons submitting films for the approval of the censors have been in the habit, first of making four or five sets of duplicate films, and have been sending these duplicates out without eliminations, after some parts have been ordered removed by the board.

The parts ordered removed, he said, are cut out of the original film and the film thus emasculated is shown in Philadelphia and other cities where a picture is most likely to come under the eyes of a censor when offered by an exhibitor. The other, or duplicate films, with the censored features still in, said Berrier, are then sold throughout the state and placed on exhibition.

Indianapolis Attorney Refuses to File Affidavits for Sunday Opening; No Arrests at Anderson

FIVE moving picture theatres were opened Sunday, July 11, at Anderson, Ind., for regular business with admission fee. There were no arrests. It is understood that the same theatres will also give night performances next Sunday.

During the last two Sundays the theatres decided to avoid a conflict with church hours, and were open only between 1:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. There has been no prosecution of the two theatre men arrested three weeks ago, when a Sunday performance was given in a local theatre.

The two men gave cash bonds of fifty dollars each for appearance in a city court. Since that time they have not been summoned to appear in court, for the reason that S. L. Brooks, prosecutor of Madison county, has refused to file affidavits against theatre men for Sunday performances. Churches have protested by resolutions and by standing vote of congregation, but the prosecutor remains unchanged in his attitude.

He says it is not his duty to file affidavits, but that he will prosecute theatre men provided other persons file affidavits and obtain the evidence.

PROPOSED OMAHA LAW FIXES AGE OF OPERATORS ABOVE 21

Dave Clifford, proprietor of a downtown theatre in Omaha, Neb., was fined fifty dollars in a police court on a charge of employing a 15-year-old girl, in violation of the child labor law.

This resulted in an ordinance introduced before the city commission prohibiting boys under twenty-one years of age from working as motion picture machine operators, and forbidding all tobacco smoking in the projection machine booths.

REINE DAVIES WILL BE SEEN IN "SUNDAY"

Reine Davies, a popular beauty of the stage, has capitulated to the lure of the camera, and is making her motion picture debut in the George W. Lederer Filmotion Corporation's picturization of the famous drama "Sunday," in which Ethel Barrymore scored such a triumph in this country and England, and which will be released through the World Film.

Miss Davies won much favor as leading woman for Willie Collier, in "Love Among the Lions," also "Madame Sherry," "The Girl Rangers" and "The Southerners," and has been one of the most popular headliners in vaudeville playing the "big time."

REINE DAVIS (World Film)

She is supported by Montagu Love, who came to this country to play in "Grumpy" with Sir Cyril Maude; Adolph Link, for years the leading comedian at the Berlin comedy theatres; Charles Dickson, the author and actor, who has just returned from England, where he played in "Potash and Perlmutter"; William H. Tooker, one of the best known portrayers of heavy roles, both in the legitimate and silent dramas; Charles Trowbridge, whose Teddy in the New York Gaiety theatre production of "Daddy Long Legs" gained him much fame; Al Hart, Dick Dead Eye of the star revival of "Pinafore," and Barney McPhee, the celebrated daredevil.

AUTHOR OF VITAGRAPH'S "DUST OF EGYPT" IS AT THE FRONT

Alan Campbell, son of Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the celebrated English actress and author of one of the Vitagraph company's biggest pictures, "The Dust of Egypt," is now at the Dardanelles as first lieutenant, fighting with "The Ansons," a crack London regiment.

"The Dust of Egypt," whose early scenes are laid about 1500 B. C., which will be released in the near future as a Blue Ribbon feature, is a seven-part comedy from the well-known English farce of the same name.

"The Witch," Based on Sardou's "The Sorceress," Is Next Fox Medium for Nance O'Neil

IT is announced by William Fox that the title of the next release, in which Nance O'Neil is to be starred is "The Witch," based upon Sardou's celebrated drama, "The Sorceress," in which Miss O'Neil scored a great stage success.

Frank Powell, who is directing the production, is authority for the statement that "The Witch" will exceed in spectacular effects and thrilling drama anything in which Miss O'Neil has yet been seen. On Monday eight hundred people took part in a terrific battle in a "village," constructed especially for "The Witch" at a cost of more than $10,000.

The village is the result of the joint efforts of Mr. Powell himself, J. Alan Turner, who is noted as a builder of expositions, and William Bach, the technical director of the Fox studios in Jersey City.

The photograph reproduced with this story shows the three collaborators in conference over the models for the village. Every detail was carefully mapped out, as though the village was intended to be a permanent affair.

"The Witch" deals with modern conditions in troubled Mexico and provides Miss O'Neil as Zoraya with a splendid part. In her support appear Alfred Hickman, the creator of Little Billy in "Trilby"; Harry Kendall, Jane Miller, Henry Leoni, Stuart Holmes and others equally well known, it is predicted that "The Witch" will cause a big sensation when it is projected upon the screen.

Pavlowa's Advent in Film Drama Creates Stir

ANNA PAVLOWA, LOIS WEBER, PHILLIPS SMALLEY AND THE UNIVERSAL COMPANY NOW PRODUCING "THE DUMB GIRL OF PORTICI"

PROBABLY not one in fifty of present day photoplaygoers comprehend the significance of Pavlowa's forthcoming advent in the realm of the silent drama.

To the majority she is known as a classical dancer whose art may be enjoyed only by the wealthy who pay five dollars with alacrity for the privilege of sitting entranced at an exhibition of choreography which would be wholly "over the heads" of that tremendous public which flocks to the thousands of "neighborhood" theatres day and night.

This viewpoint is greatly due to the indifference with which famous dancers in the past have been received. Perhaps it is just as well that the ninety per cent. of mankind who have never been held spellbound through the art of Pavlowa should liken her to the "phenoms" in the field of terpsichorean endeavor.

But when the awakening does come, the new public, to whom she is but a celebrity, will witness a triumph which will echo the world over. For, though Pavlowa stands absolutely alone as an exponent of classical dancing, she will come to the screen as an actress of the same grade as Ristori and Duse, with a complete mastery of the art of pantomime.

No one dreamed that Pavlowa would capitulate to the camera man—at least not in this decade. Excepting Caruso, the famous Russian artiste is the only individual star who could fill the Metropolitan Opera House at five dollars a seat. Fourteen times in one season Pavlowa sold out the big auditorium, and to this day she is the only attraction to test the capacity of the Century Opera House.

JUST TO MAKE TALK

By George D. Proctor

SO the theatrical and vaudeville managers and magnates think their stars are naughty children when they play in pictures. At least the United Booking Offices, Klaw & Erlanger and the Charles Frohman interests think so.

This is highly reminiscent of the days when vaudeville was beginning to attract legitimate players. An actor went to his manager and said:

"Will it hurt me as a drawing card if I go into vaudeville?"

"Not if you make good," said the manager.

And he said it all in five words.

There are two good reasons, and any number of poor ones, why motion picture producers engage stage stars. The first is because the motion picture man thinks the legitimate player has the making of a good picture player and the second is to get a big name, a name which means box office receipts.

In this connection it is noticeable that the stage players who make good as screen players are the good pantomimists, the players who work by gesture and use their hands and body as well as their facial expressions. The players who don't make good are the "readers," the players who relied on their vocal cords and their ability to "read lines" when on the stage. "Reading lines" is a great big asset on the stage, but it goes for old Cap Sweeney and his submarines on the screen.

For a concrete instance take the case of Charlie Chaplin. He was a pantomimist on the stage, appearing solely in "dumb" acts in vaudeville. Folks rate Chaplin a comedian and do so rightly. But he is also a master of pantomime. He uses his face, hands, arms, body, legs and feet. The Chaplin feet are already famous. Some time somebody will notice the way Chaplin uses his elbows, too, and they'll be as noted as his feet.

The photodrama is a dumb show and the player who expresses thoughts in pantomime is the player who "gets over." Think, for instance, of the wonderful "readers" who have come from the stage, players with sobbing, throaty tones and a quiver in every syllable, but who have NOT made good as picture players.

George Kleine knows well the value of intelligent pantomime in pictures and has engaged, as the stars of a coming comedy series, Bickel and Watson. These two players are vaudevillians and not well known just now outside of their own precinct. But they are excellent pantomimists and have appeared in numberless very funny "dumb" acts. They may not eclipse Charlie Chaplin, but it's a safe wager that the least they will do is to prove the value of a good grounding in pantomime for picture work.

Not nefariously engaged, it is seen, but in health giving exercise on the water, M. E. Hoffman, the popular and respected untitled World Film executive, is dimly suspected of occasionally ceasing work, and the photograph is evidence of the fact that he occasionally halts in his twenty-four hour a day devotion to the interests of the film corporation in which he is so much a factor.

HOW M. E. HOFFMAN OF WORLD FILM TAKES A VACATION

The picture was surreptitiously snapped at Cleveland, Ohio, on Independence Day. The ladies are Mr. Hoffman's mother and his wife.

J. Parker Read, Jr., doesn't care how much the newspapers print about Harry Thaw. He has his original Thaw pictures and the demand for them has been revived by recent events.

After considerable work a list has been compiled of the boys who wear these decollette shirts round the city with the collars flapping in the breeze outside of the coats. The list includes: Julian M. Solomon, Edwin August, John White Noble (Jazbo), Edward Brennan, Irving Cummings, Hugh Hoffman, William Frederick Haddock (Silent Bill), Edward Carewe and David Thompson.

Of course there are gradations, even to crime. To classify the offenders let it be added that Julian Solomon will carry his coat over his arm when the sun is hot and that Jack Noble and Hugh Hoffman add to their degradation by wearing wrist watches.

Here's a line for Ed Brennan, actor.

Now that the smoke has cleared away at San Francisco it is plain that a good, aggressive bunch of officers will head the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America during the coming year. A league that is a league is needed. Remember that the word "league" carries the idea of standing together for the common good and protection.

Woof, woof, here comes the Vitagraph leopard, Tommy, by name. Tommy got a splinter in his eye recently and had it taken out by a regular doctor, Phil Kohnstamm, director of the Prospect Park Zoo. So any one getting a splinter in his eye can imitate a leopard if he wants it removed.

Postals received from Benjamin P. Schulberg, vacationist pro tem, and Harry Reichenbach, tourist pro tem.

David Horsley and his pictures have been welcomed onto the Mutual program. Mr. Horsley will release a two-reeler and a single each week, besides making Mutual masterpictures. Thus does an old-timer take his seat at the table along with two other veterans, S. S. Hutchinson and Edwin Thanhouser.

No more Horsley pictures will go through the General Film after the expiration of the present contract, though the brand name MinA is owned by the General Film Company.

Speaking of the Mutual reminds one that J. C. Graham, J. C. meaning John Cecil, is now with the Mutual as assistant to John R. Freuler, the president. Thus the Mutual acquires the services of a gentleman, a scholar and good film man, all in one.

N. B.—It may be exclusively and authoritatively stated that Mr. Graham used to be a printer. No, that doesn't make any difference, but what good is a secret if it can't be told?

OSCAR EAGLE GETTING READY FOR "THE COTTON KING"

In joining the band of World Film's efficient directors, Oscar Eagle chose William A. Brady's success, "The Cotton King," as his first production. At this season of the year, outdoor settings and al fresco lunches are very much in order.

The view shows Mr. Eagle, script in hand, discussing the action with George Nash (the Cotton King). The lady in the group at the right side of the group is Julia Hay, who plays Hetty Grayson in the film play. The little children on the ground are, it will be seen, attentive listeners to Mr. Eagle, and—who knows—may one day develop into stars and directors themselves.

World Film plans to release "The Cotton King" at an early date. It is expected to form a powerful offering.

ICE CAKE MAKES FUN IN MINA FILM

An outstanding point in "He's in Again," a comedy in one reel to be released July 29, by MinA films, on the General program, is the great number of unsual comedy bits obtained by Director Milton H. Fahrney.

SCENE FROM "HE'S IN AGAIN" (MinA—July 29)

For instance one of the characters, Sergeant Kelly, to escape detection by a superior officer while feasting in the kitchen presided over by Betty, secretes himself in a refrigerator.

Throughout the remaining scenes flashes show Sergeant Kelly seated on a block of ice, each time nearer advanced to the freezing point than before. The effect of a frozen body, as conceived by Mr. Fahrney, is striking and extremely funny and is sure to cause many laughs.

The comedy is excellently played by George Ovey, Louis Fitzroy, Jefferson Osborne, Arthur Mund, Joe Rickson, Goldie Colwell and Janet Sully.

Popular Plays and Players Is Most Active of Metro Companies at Present

ONE of the Metro Picture Corporation's most active producing companies at the present time is the Popular Plays and Players Company. This concern has just completed a fine picture with Madame Petrova, called "The Vampire," an original play by Lee Morrison.

After a short rest, Madame Petrova will begin work again for Popular Plays and Players. Her next picture will be "My Madonna," taken from Robert W. Service's classic poem of the same name. It tells the story of an artist who picked a beautiful woman of the street for his subject for a painting with a child at her breast, and he painted her as she should have been.

A connoisseur sees the picture and notes its striking resemblance to the Madonna and than the artist paints a halo around her hair. The woman laughs at the picture, not understanding its significance. Eventually this beautiful study finds its way into a church, where the model sees it hanging and it reforms her.

Following "My Madonna," Madame Petrova will be seen in an original play by Aaron Hoffman entitled "Go and Sin No More." This production, it is understood, will show Madame Petrova more prominently than in any emotional role in which she has thus far been pictured for the screen.

Edmund Breese, last seen on the Metro program in "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," will soon be under way in another of the Service poems called "The Song of the Wage Slave." The title amply suggests that this will be a story so powerful that Mr. Breese will find that his quality of acting will have full sway for vigorous and heart-pulling appeal.

Popular Plays and Players will retain the services of Mr. Breese for a production to follow "The Song of the Wage Slave."

It will be entitled "The Way of the Strong" and is founded upon an original play by Ridgewell Cullum.

GAIL KANE

The first appearance of Gail Kane on the Metro program will be made in "Her Great Match," a Clyde Fitch play, written expressly for Maxine Elliott by that author, in which she starred most successfully. The picture is nearly finished and it will be released some time in August.

After a short rest, Miss Kane will start work again for Popular Plays and Players, in a production of another Clyde Fitch play, entitled "The Girl with the Green Eyes." This play was produced by Charles Frohman at the Savoy theatre, New York, with the late Clara Bloodgood in the role that Miss Kane will assume.

What will prove to be one of the biggest productions ever made for the screen will be an elaborate version by Popular Plays and Players of Clyde Fitch's "Barbara Fritchie." An important star has already been secured for this work, but at this time, for certain business reasons, it is thought best to hold back her name for future announcement.

In depicting the incidents in the life of Barbara Fritchie, most of the scenes will be taken at the actual places where they occurred. The Mayor of Frederickstown, Md., has already invited the Popular Plays and Players to come to Frederickstown for its work and has promised to throw the town wide open for any kind of picturization that may be necessary.

MacGregor, "Legit" Juvenile, with Knickerbocker

"The Tides of Time," in Production at Long Island Studios, Is Medium Selected for Young Actor, Who Supports Mary Nash in This Three-Part Drama

THE latest recruit from the legitimate stage to act before the camera is Harmon MacGregor, one of the best known juvenile actors of today.

Mr. MacGregor makes his silent drama debut in supporting Mary Nash in the three-part feature drama "The Tides of Time," which is to be released shortly by Knickerbocker Star Features. The picture is now in course of production at the studios on Long Island, and Mr. actors, has developed into a remarkably clever silent actor.

There are few actors on the stage today with the youth and experience credited to Mr. MacGregor. He has acted with the most notable repertoire companies of the United States; indeed, his activities have stretched clear across the American continent, his first engagement having been with the Baldwin-Melville company in the west, and was one of the popular members of this successful and popular company when they developed a healthy demand for good stock acting in the important western and eastern cities.

Elita Proctor Otis had the support of Mr. MacGregor when she made her vaudeville debut, and when Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin made their production.

He was the juvenile comedian for a long while.

It was at the time this interesting pair were presenting their excellent repertoire, and in these days, which marked their last joint appearance, Mr. MacGregor was a conspicuous member of the company.

One of the longest engagements ever played by a member of the dramatic profession was that enjoyed at the Harlem Opera House and later, the Prospect theatre. For nearly two years he appeared in every play presented by the companies at these houses, which fostered stock companies which have not since been equaled for cleverness, talent and popularity.

During the past two years he has been enjoying his long deferred vacation, touring the European countries until the outbreak of the war.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION IS FORMED

At a meeting held July 20 in La Junta, Col., the Triangle Film Corporation, a $5,000,000 company with some of America's foremost motion picture men as its officers, was formed. A wire received from J. J. McCarthy and Harry E. Aitken announced that the papers had been signed and the formalities completed. The officers of the new concern are: President, H. E. Aitken; vice-presidents, C. O. Baumann, D. W. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett; secretary, Adam Kessel; auditor, Charles Kessel.

La Junta was chosen as the meeting place because of its location approximately half-way between the two sea-boards, some of the men interested making the trip to the Colorado city from New York and others from California. Mr. Griffith, Mr. Ince and Mr. Sennett will be the art directors of the new company.

"THOU SHALT NOT KILL" PREACHES AGAINST CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Hal Reid, the well-known playwright, who is strongly in favor of national abolition of capital punishment, has succeeded through letters of introduction, given him by prominent government officials, in securing some remarkable motion pictures posed for him by all of the principal characters connected with the celebrated Frank case.

Governor Slaton, Leo Frank and the others posed for these pictures when it was pointed out to them that they would greatly aid in this campaign. They had up to that time refused countless offers made to them by various motion picture companies, who had only in mind a purely commercial proposition.

This film is to be used in connection with a five-part photo feature entitled "Thou Shalt Not Kill," which is a reproduction of an authentic and celebrated legal case, in which a man was convicted through a net of circumstantial evidence woven around him and who was executed by due process of law, and on the afternoon of the day on which he was executed, another man met with an accident and when told that he would die, confessed to the murder that was committed.

This feature has been booked over the Marcus Loew Circuit, and J. Parker Read, Jr., who has been appointed exclusive sales agent and manager of this campaign, reports a flood of inquiries from every state in the Union, and the feature is being booked up rapidly by leading circuits of theatres.

Mr. Read states that the feature is owned by the Circle Film Corporation, with offices in the Long Acre building, and that in most territory the bookings will be handled direct from New York headquarters, although it is possible that exclusive territory will be sold for certain states.

"A MOTHER'S CONFESSION" IS IVAN RELEASE FOR AUGUST 15

The Ivan Film Productions, Inc., producer of "Sins of the Parents," "Should a Woman Divorce?" and "The Unwelcome Wife," is now filming "A Mother's Confession," written by Ivan Abramson, general director of the Ivan Film Productions, Inc., featuring Carrie Reynolds, Christine Mayo, Austin Webb, and supported by an all star cast.

The management is sparing no expense to spring a strong sensational and gripping surprise on the exhibitors and public by portraying a story full of dramatic climaxes and startling situations, mirroring the scenes true to life. The feature will be released about August 15.

LENORE ULRICH WILL APPEAR IN KNICKERBOCKER FILM

Lenore Ulrich, the popular "legitimate" actress, has just signed with Knickerbocker Star Features, to appear in a release of August 18. Its title will be announced in due course.

Miss Ulrich, although scarcely twenty-one years of age, is probably as well known throughout the country as many an actress with twice her experience on the stage. Her popularity was gained in her splendid rendition of the role of Luana in the "Bird of Paradise," a role she played for three seasons with great success.

Great things are expected of her in the picture released on the General Film program.

Pauline Frederick Is Cast for Emotional Part in "Sold," Famous Players Feature

PAULINE FREDERICK, the stage favorite, who won a triumph in her initial screen characterization as Donna Roma in the Famous Players Film Company's production, "The Eternal City," and who, as a result of her success, was induced by the Famous Players to devote her exclusive film services to that company, returns to the screen in a five-part adaptation of the celebrated drama "Sold."

Containing all the elements for vigorous emotional portrayal, "Sold," the great drama of woman's devotion, adapted from the Russian of George Erastov, provides Miss Frederick with a role as fully adapted to her finely developed dramatic talents as was that of Donna Roma in her first engagement before the camera.

In "Sold" Miss Frederick portrays the sacrificing young wife of a struggling artist who refuses to commercialize his art for his financial betterment. Through a series of powerful climaxes, the story reaches the point where the wife arranges to pose for her husband's successful rival in a sensational painting, in order to save him from the destitution which threatens him.

The husband, hearing of her act, comes to the studio of the other artist, and in a mad fury shoots at the painting of his rival, striking his wife, who is hiding behind the easel.

Miss Frederick delineates all the broken-heartedness and despair of the crushed wife with appealing pantomime.

Another point of interest in connection with the production is the unusually important supporting cast which has been gathered about the star, including Thomas Holding, who achieved distinction with Pauline Frederick in his first screen impersonation in "The Eternal City" as David Rossi, and Julian L'Estrange, one of the most prominent actors on the American stage, who has already been introduced to the motion picture public by the Famous Players Film Company in its production "The Morals of Marcus."

ROW ENGAGED FOR ROLE OF PITT CROWLEY IN "VANITY FAIR"

Arthur Row, who has been especially engaged by Edison to play Pitt Crawley in "Vanity Fair," the part which he played with Mrs. Fiske, who is to be starred, in her stage presentation a few years ago, has succeeded equally well in such seemingly diverse fields as actor, writer and producer. For Mr. Row, who has made considerable of a name as a student of Greek theatres and plays, recently produced at the New York University Maeterlinck's "Aglavaine and Selysette," and has appeared often as a reader before distinguished bodies.

Though a youth in appearance, he has a record of four seasons' engagement under Charles Frohman and two seasons with Mrs. Fiske, appearing also with Richard Mansfield, Otis Skinner, Frank Keenan and Francis Wilson.

As a writer he has contributed articles on the Greek theatres to the magazines. His recent engagement in "Milestones" earned for him considerable notice and commendation. His first engagement was with Mrs. Fiske, who engaged Mr. Row upon his completing a special course of study at Tuft's College. Mr. Row is now at work at the Edison studio, where the production of "Vanity Fair" is making rapid progress.

KNICKERBOCKER FILM, "TIDES OF TIME," SHOWS EVERYTHING

"What is this all about?" ask the many actors who are participating in the latest drama of Knickerbocker Star Features. Many dozen people are taking part in "The Tides of Time," and in reply to the queries of the inquisitive artists they are told it is about everything.

In fact the "Tides of Time" gives us a peep into life before birth, when two souls are launched on the river of life, and it shows us two souls returning after eighty years of life, with a suggestion of heaven and a picture of hell.

Harmon MacGregor is proving himself equal to a most difficult role, in which he shows the final degradation of selfishness and greed and makes a strong hit in his fight with the fires of hell.

Mary Nash, the charming Broadway favorite, leads in the drama in a character which shows the inner rewards of character and truth whether in poverty or wealth.

ESSANAY SENDS CAMERA MEN FOR PICTURES IN NORTHWEST

The Essanay company has sent a corps of photographers through the northwest to get scenic pictures. The photographers went first to Toronto, Canada. From there they left on the Canadian Pacific for Vancouver, British Columbia. Many stops are being made en route to get the very best scenic pictures of this district.

Their itinerary carries them through the Rocky Mountains, where there is some of the most picturesque scenery in the country. Already some wonderful pictures have been taken and shipped back for the Essanay studios at Chicago.

THE NEW LUBIN STUDIO, 16th STREET AND GLENWOOD AVENUE, PHILADELPHIA (AREA, 50,000 SQUARE FEET)

The picture takers will be gone for more than a month and will get a large variety of scenes. The Essanay company now is releasing two scenic productions a month.

These are five hundred feet in length and are shown in connection with five hundred feet of animated cartoons. The cartoons are the "Dreamy Dud" series, drawn by Wallace A. Carlson.

ALBANY CENSOR BILL IS DEAD AS A DOOR NAIL

The Eisner proposal to prohibit all legalized censorship, over which there was an extended hearing two or three weeks ago, is dead in the committee on bill of rights of the Constitutional convention in Albany, N. Y. The consensus of opinon among the members was that the bill should not be reported to the convention, and it will not be unless some member moves to discharge the committee from further consideration of the proposal.

From the very first it was known that Chairman Louis Marshall was opposed to the proposal. At a recent meeting a test vote was taken, after which the measure was laid on the table, there to meet a peaceful death.

KLEINE'S PICTURES SIGNED FOR CHAUTAUQUA SCHOOLS

A unique contract was signed last week by George Kleine's Pittsburgh office when it completed negotiations with the social science and history department of the Chautauqua school, Chautauqua, N. Y., where a complete line of Kleine features will be exhibited for the benefit of the big summer schools of that institution.

That the Chautauqua schools are renting film is indicative of the ever-increasing interest on the part of pedagogic organizations in education motion pictures.

THREE COMIC OPERA STARS ARE IN ESSANAY'S "BUNCH OF KEYS"

Essanay's next feature release through the V-L-S-E will be "A Bunch of Keys," the comedy by Charles Hoyt, which made such a hit on the speaking stage several years ago.

Outside of "The Slim Princess," George Ade's coemdy-drama, this is the first play that could be classed as purely comedy, that has been released by Essanay through this service. Essanay has spared no expense to make this a successful comedy. Several comedians were engaged specially to take part in it. John Slavin, June Keith and William Burress, the well known comic opera stars of the legitimate stage, took the leading parts.

MORGAN BREAKS TIME RECORD FOR MAKING 1-SHEET LITHO

The Morgan Lithograph Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, recently broke the world's time record in making a one-sheet lithograph. The record for a one-sheet had been two hours and forty minutes, made in Cincinnati during the visit of a distinguished personage

The Morgan experts turned out 100 one-sheets in just one hour and twenty-five minutes. NEW SELIG ZOO STAGES NOW READY

The new set of stages at the Selig-jungle-zoo are now in use. They measure 160 feet in length by 60 feet in width.

"HERITAGE"

(Laemmle-Universal—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

GIVEN a subject in which character delineations count largely for the strength of the picture, Robert Leonard is practically certain of making a success of it. "Heritage" is the best feature that Mr. Leonard has produced, and its many merits may be laid mainly to the characterizations and the little incidental touches rendered by the principals of the cast.

In behalf of the story itself it cannot be called original, but it is so smoothly developed that mere conventionality counts for little. As the title implies, the picture has to do with certain inherent characteristics.

A girl of the slums possesses her father's temper. Through circumstances, she becomes acquainted with a rich family and later marries the son of the house. Society of his class does not agree with her. She becomes furiously angry with him and returns to her home, seeking comfort from her old neighbor, formerly her lover.

He goes to her husband and tells him to use just a little force, and he, acting on this advice, returns to her and makes her come home with him.

As the girl, Ella Hall appears to excellent advantage. She is a fitting type, and renders her part with an obvious appreciation of its possibilties. Bob Leonard himself is her first lover, a most suitable role, being of the apparently ignoramus type, in which he is thoroughly at home. Alan Forest, the exact opposite of Big Bill, is seen as the husband, while the role of his sister is carried by Anne Lehr, who plays the part to perfection. Others are Helen Wright, May Talbot and Marc Fenton.

An evenly introduced thrill appears in the first half of the picture, when Mr. Leonard and his companion are thrown from a wagon when it is struck by an automobile. As regards photography and realistic atmosphere hardly a fault can be detected. The contrasts between the homes of the rich and the poor is striking, while the settings in both instances are subsantial.

THE GIRL OF THE SLUMS EMBARRASSED

All things considered, "Heritage" is a very fine picture that should certainly prove valuable to the exhibitor in search of a feature of this kind.

"KILMENY"

(Morosco-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"KILMENY" embodies one of the most charming varieties of romantic fiction that has yet made its way into the realm of the motion picture. The theme has for a long time been the basis of both opera, drama and novel, and yet instead of becoming aggravatingly tiresome with each successive appearance it seems in this particular instance to take on new life.

But the picture is particularly noticeable for the excellent manner in which it has been treated, and this applies to every point both important and incidental throughout the five reels. The expressions registered by the players have that seldom achieved effect of conveying to the spectator the very thought in the character's mind. Every action is significant, in other words the acting is masterful.

In particular does this apply to Lenore Ulrich and Marshall Mackaye. Miss Ulrich, besides being a most fitting type for the name part, performs in a delightfully refreshing manner in all her scenes. In both the humorous and the dramatic moments she exhibits an equal amount of histrionic ability, that stamps her as a finished actress.

MEREDITH PROPOSES TO KILMENY

We mistake not in venturing that if Miss Ulrich remains before the camera she will soon earn herself a prominent place in the ranks of screen stars. As for Mr. Mackaye, who plays Pierre, the crippled gypsy, he acquits himself so creditably in every one of his scenes that he deserves unstinted praise.

William Desmond appears opposite Miss Ulrich as Bob Meredith, while Myrtle Stedman as Lady Leigh, Frederick Wilson as her husband and Herbert Standing and Howard Davies as gypsies, complete the remarkably well balanced cast.

Oscar Apfel, the director, both for his arrangement and handling of the scenes as well as his selection of locations—for we presume that he is responsible for these—deserves to be heartily congratulated for the success he had made of the picture. The photography is perfect.

The general tenor of the production is comedy-drama. The greater part of the humorous scenes come when Kilmeny is introduced into the luxuries of an English home after spending the greater part of her life in the camp of the gypsies. Her love affair and the great sacrifice made for her by one of her gypsy pals furnish some pathetic and absorbing situations. In fact "Kilmeny" is such an evenly balanced picture and so perfect in detail that its success is a certainty.

"PRO PATRIA"

(Pathé—Six Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE beauty of Victorien Sardou's drama, "Patrie," on which this picture of Pathe is based, lies in the fact that it combines actual historical happenings with perfect dramatic construction, a combination of essentials that is difficult to surpass.

The visualized offering of Sardou's great work seems destined to last indefinitely, for the reason that its educational and dramatic value lend to it a double purpose, to instruct and to entertain. To the seeker after knowledge concerning the suffering of the Netherlands while under the Spanish yoke, "Pro Patria" will paint vividly and truthfully all that can be demanded. On the other hand, a story of absorbing qualities will provide a thrilling enough two hours for those who seek merely dramatic entertainment.

It is most fitting that the production is in color, as the striking costumes are materially enhanced as to beauty and effect by the process of hand coloring. The color process, too, creates that much desired optical illusion causing the figures to stand out in relief from the backgrounds.

As for the settings themselves, they conform well with the high standard of the rest of the production. The picture was photographed in Louvain, Belgium, before it was ravaged by war, so in many cases actual scenes taken in old parts of the city serve as backgrounds to the action.

Photographically the entire six reels are unusually good. The back lighting in a number of scenes is particularly noticeable for the realistic effect it creates.

The principal roles are handled by a cast of remarkable ability. Henri Krauss, who gained fame by his impersonation of Jean Valjean in "Les Miserables," appears in the part of the native patriot who sacrifices his all in guarding his country against the Spanish. His performance is one of decided merit in all his scenes. Another in the cast is Paul Capellani, since killed in the war. The rest of the cast, principals and supernumeraries alike give the finished performances that we have become accustomed to expect from foreign players.

As for the story, it chiefly concerns the deceit of the wife of the patriot. She is in love with another man, a great friend of her husband. That she may make enemies of them she informs her husband that his supposed friend is a partisan of the enemy. The ending is tragic, as the patriot and all his standbys die at the stake while the woman is left with ambition unfulfilled.

"MILESTONES OF LIFE"

(Thanhouser Mutual Masterpicture—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"MILESTONES OF LIFE," which portrays the happiness and sorrow in the four seasons of two lives, spring, summer, autumn and winter, is based on the familiar theme of a woman's unfounded jealousy. The plot derives its interest from the misunderstanding of a loving couple over the eternal other woman, who the wife believes receives all her husband's love.

While familiar in plot, the picture is most original in treatment, as the changes in each reel brought about by time are very interesting to note. In the first reel we have the two little children, Helen Badgley and Leland Benham, just learning how to love each other.

Then after this comes summer, the two lovers now impersonated by Mignon Anderson and Harris Gordon, are married. Enter the other woman and with her jealousy. The man loved the other woman when he was still a little fellow and warmly renews his friendship to the distress of his wife.

In the autumn of life they quarrel and separate through a misunderstanding, but when winter comes they are again united and all differences buried forever. A fire scene paves the way for the reconciliation.

It is noticeably appropriate that each season of the lives is depicted in the actual corresponding time of year. The scenes in each instance well convey to the mind the correct time. Photographically the offering is very good. Louise Rutter appears as the other woman and Arthur Bauer as her husband.

"JUNE FRIDAY"

(Edison—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. PROCTOR

JUNE FRIDAY is the name given a foundling girl by persons who find her on a Friday in June. The girl's father, who abandoned her, is Blake, a drug addict.

After June grows up, the father, not knowing her identity, plays the parson at the mock marriage of the girl to Paul Duncan, whose servant he is. Duncan deserts June and sails for South America. Blake, sent out to pawn June's valuables, sees his own picture in her locket, and realizes that she is his daughter. He tells the girl of the mock marriage and that he wants to make amends for the wrong he has done, but she spurns him.

THE PARTING

June marries VanEst, a friend of Duncan's, not knowing that he knows Duncan. Four years later the VanEsts are a happy family of three when Duncan returns from South America and is invited to the house by VanEst. Duncan and June recognize each other, but keep silent.

VanEst attends a banquet that night. Duncan tells June to meet him at his rooms. Fearing exposure, she meets him. Duncan wants to return to their old relationship. June prepares to defend herself when her father breaks in. The old man atones for his past sins by killing Duncan and leaving a note of confession which effectually clears June when the investigation comes.

Gertrude McCoy is June, and a very good June, too. Duncan McRae, who did well with the production end, plays Blake. Robert Conness is VanEst and Augustus Phillips is Duncan. Robert Brower and Mabel Dwight are also in the cast.

The work of the players is excellent and the production good. But the story—aye, there's the rub.

"WHEN THE LIGHT CAME IN"

(Lubin—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

JOSEPH KAUFMAN has made a touching and interesting picture of this subject, adapted from the story of Mildred Goodal by Lawrence McCloskey.

Kaufman also plays in his usual creditable manner the part of Tom, the man who first loves Julia, but later turns to May. The latter part is well taken by Justina Huff, but to Ethel Clayton belongs the greatest meed of praise. Her characterization of the sad, lonely Julia is marked by force and feeling.

The death of Julia's mother so saddens her that she keeps postponing her marriage to Tom. He gradually finds himself drawn to May, Julia's friend, but both agree to sacrifice themselves for honor's sake. Julia, accidentally learning their secret, gives them their happiness and goes into morbid retirement.

When both Tom and May die, leaving a small orphaned boy, the child manages to so entwine himself around Julia's heart that she adopts him, thus letting "the light come in" and thereby saving her own soul.

Little Jack McCloskey as the boy will make a strong appeal.

"THE NEWER WAY"

(American—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

AS a demonstration of the possibilities of electrical labor-saving devices in general and of what they can do for run-down farms in particular, this picture will prove both an interesting and instructive offering.

The plot has been subordinated. Ross, a wealthy man in a nearby city, undertakes to run the heavily mortgaged farm belonging to John Bates, a farmer of the old type. Immediately upon taking possession, he installs every kind of electrical devices with a result that at the end of a year the farm is transformed from a losing to a paying proposition.

Meanwhile, a strong friendship has grown up between Ross and Petty, a sweet little country girl. In the end he discovers that Petty is his own daughter, and, through her, he is re-united with his wife, from whom he had long been estranged.

The cast, including Joseph Galbraith as Ross, Vivian Rich as Petty, Jock Richardson as the old farmer, and Louise Lester as the farmer's wife, do good work.

"THE DEAD SOUL"

(Lubin—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY IRENE PAGE SOLOMON

AT first glance, many will find in this photo drama, by Wilbert Melville, a striking resemblance to Jack London's "Sea Wolf," but the similarity extends only to the sea setting of most of the scenes. Even the brutal captain, Red Carson, is brutal in a different way.

THE CAPTAIN'S USUAL DIVERSION

Real oriental atmosphere is imparted to the Algerian episodes; the elements of excitement and suspense, so necessary to the successful picture, are ever present, and altogether this is a well acted, well conceived play and abounding in numerous original touches.

The idea of shanghaing a parson appeals to the sardonic humor of cruel Captain Carson. By fraud he induces the Reverend Paul Stoddard to come aboard the ship, bound to Algeria. Caught in this awful trap, the parson rises to the occasion and proceeds to help all on board physically as well as spiritually. His efforts to resurrect the dead soul of Carson are only attended with success after dying that his enemy might live.

Many interesting episodes lead up to this climax, including the buying by the Captain of Zulieka, the beautiful Algerian. An absorbing moment comes when it is found that there is only one dose of bubonic plague serum left while both minister and Captain are stricken with the dread disease.

L. C. Shumway, George Routh, Melvin Mayo, Riccardo Espino, Eleanor Blevins, Adelaide Bronti, George Berrell, J. J. Colby, Jr., Julian Lamothe comprise the creditable cast.

"THE SKY HUNTERS"

(Essanay—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY T. S. MEAD

"THE SKY HUNTERS" is an unusual and interesting story, and one which supplies Edna Mayo with an opportunity to again masquerade most attractively in a masculine role. Bryant Washburn plays the part of a fearless secret service agent.

John Cossar is the stern Walt Benton, leader of a mysterious band of moonshiners and thieves, who call themselves "The Sky

THE LITTLE CHIEF AND HER PRISONER

Hunters." He is much disappointed that his only heir is a girl and resolves to raise her as a boy to perpetuate the Benton reign among his mountain band.

When Walt Benton dies, his daughter, known as "Little Chief," has gained the devotion of every one of the rough mountaineers. She dresses as a boy and leads them in their daring raids. Steve Jackson is sent from Washington to rout out the "Sky Hunters."

One evening he comes upon the cabin of "Little Chief" and asks for shelter. The "Little Chief's" suspicions are aroused and in the struggle that follows Jackson realizes that she is a girl.

The woman in her is awakened by this attractive stranger from the city, and she later saves him from being hanged after the moonshiners have captured him. Love conquers, and she leaves her band of heartbroken "Sky Hunters" to become Jackson's wife.

CHATTANOOGA COMPANY OF ESSANAY PLAYERS RETURN

THE Essanay troupe of motion picture actors has returned to Chicago by Capt. E. H. Calvert, the director, where two six-reel photo-dramas will be produced by them in the Essanay studios.

Within a few weeks the company will return here to produce an elaborate photo-drama, "The Man Trail."

"JANE EYRE"

(Biograph—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"JANE EYRE," Charlotte Bronte's celebrated novel, lends an unusual story to Biograph's coming three-reel release. The producers have done wisely in not attempting to stretch the plot out to four or five reels. As it stands as here presented it makes a concise, quick moving and intense story, the like of which is not often seen in productions of equal footage.

As other concerns have done with old stories—that is, taken the liberty to modernize their material—so has Biograph done with "Jane Eyre." This fact, however, seems not to detract from the dramatic qualities of the offering and as the English atmosphere is particularly well brought out it is safe to state that none will find serious fault with the modernized version.

ROCHESTER LEARNS A DIVORCE IS IMPOSSIBLE

Director Vale has arranged some artistic settings for those scenes supposed to transpire in the old English home, while the exteriors have been honored with very good photography. Mr. Vale has also displayed considerable skill in handling the scenes in which the insane wife (Gretchen Hartman) is the center of attraction.

The story is so well known that a brief outline will suffice. Shortly after his marriage Rochester discovers that his wife has inherited her mother's insanity. In the seclusion of his home he secrets her in a padded cell.

To care for his little ward he employs Jane Eyre and after a while he finds that he loves her. He attempts to obtain a divorce but cannot. Then he decides to marry Jane and conceal his sorrow from her. But his wife's brother stops the proceedings and on learning the truth Jane departs.

But that night the wife escapes from her cell and sets fire to the house. In his unsuccessful attempt to rescue her Rochester is blinded. Jane hears of his plight and sees her way clear to return to him.

Franklin Ritchie does some very good work as Rochester, while the title role is capably handled by Louise Vale. It is really a fine picture, handled in a manner that brings out every possible atom of suspense that lies in the story itself.

"MARSE COVINGTON"

(Rolfe-Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

EDWARD CONNELLY had a rare opportunity in "Marse Covington" to bring out the chivalrous traits of an elderly southern gentleman—the typical "befo' the wah" kind, who have been endeared to the hearts of readers through characters like F. Hopkinson Smith's Colonel Carter of Cartersville.

The same high sense of honor, the consideration for others, the same pardonable pride in the achievements of his race—and the same discriminating taste in mint juleps—are found in the gentleman from "ole Vergini, suh." And the captain (he failed to get the usual rank, generally attributed to military men of the old school below the Mason and Dixon line by northern novelists)—the captain also loved a horse.

Indeed, the old gentleman's undoing was caused by this very love of good horse flesh. But it was not the horse or Marse Covington's judgment that failed in the crucial moment when the family fortunes depended upon Bess coming under the wire before the other animals.

The captain had picked the right horse to win with the same unerring judgment he had exercised years and years before in deciding upon the only woman to make him happy.

All his troubles were due to the fact that two scoundrels (thanks to the director for seeing that such villains got all that was due them for plotting against this harmless old man) "fixed" the race. And in performing this detestable piece of work, knowing that Marse Covington had an abiding faith in the horse to win, the old gentleman lost even the roof over his head.

The captain would not have been in so much danger of losing—only he was like so many other people with a "hunch" when a horse is concerned—he just naturally bet all he had—except, of course, his soft felt hat and the mint juleps.

Then the colonel (no we mustn't forget; he was only a captain, but a mighty good one, suh, when he had the Yankees on the run, back in '61) decided to go north and start life anew.

It was a struggle, painful to relate, and things got so bad that once if his faithful servant, careful not to hurt his pride, had not prevented the captain's wallet from being completely empty, the game old soldier might have starved. But Marse Covington was such a fine old man, everybody in the audience know that the producer would not be so hard-hearted as to let him starve—and he didn't, thank you.

The colonel (no, the captain) got back the old plantation, and, as it is to be expected, his sweet granddaughter—the apple of his eye—got him—for there was a him (somebody besides grandpa) all along, although he wasn't mentioned till now.

"THE SCAR"

(Vitagraph—Three Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"THE SCAR" is one of those very interesting dramas that no one could imagine happening in reality, but that at the same time is most powerful. Its situations are tense and effectively brought about, the acting is in every sense fitting, while the subdued lighting in many of the night scenes creates an added touch of suspense.

Harry T. Morey appearing as Stanley, the drug fiend gives a powerful characterization of this part, which is easily the most important and difficult. Stanley is infuriated because Morton married the girl of his heart. One night deep under the influence of cocaine he takes a dead man who was killed in a bar-room fight, and brings him to Morton's house. He chloroforms Morton and then arranges the room so that it appears that he committed the crime. But there is a flaw in his fine scheme and that flaw comes up at the trial with the result that Morton is exonerated.

Gladden James appears as Morton, while Estelle Mardo plays his wife. William Humphrey produced the picture from a scenario by Donald I. Buchanan.

"THE CLUE"

(Lasky—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

"THE Clue" is a pleasing medium for the acting of Blanche Sweet, and cannot fail to make a strong appeal. The plot is developed by a series of short scenes showing in detail every stage of the story.

The nature of the subject made this necessary. "The Clue" is a detective story, and it attempts, with success, to show crime detection by the aid of pictures. All the detective's endeavors are visualized, and corresponding sub-titles reveal the deductions he makes after the discovery of each new clue.

The results are convincing, so much care has been exercised by the director in providing for everything. The effect of witnessing the picture is to feel as if one were watching Sherlock Holmes at work, with the privilege of watching the analytical processes of his mind.

The unraveling of the mystery, with its peculiar fascination exercised on the beholders during the detective's patient search, does not take place until a love interest, well sustained, is considerably under way.

In the first reels a number of scenes appear in which the reason for the action is not apparent to the audience. In some cases it might seem quite irrelevant. However, as the plot advances, it becomes evident that each scene of this character has been skillfully "planted" for a purpose.

Two Russian adventurers, brothers, possess a map showing the coast defenses of Japan, and are planning to sell the document to Germany. One of the men schemes to marry the sister of a wealthy inventor, who objects to the proposed match. The inventor employs a Japanese servant, who in reality is a spy waiting an opportunity to lay hands on the valuable drawing.

In a fight between the Russian and the brother at night the inventor gets the best of his opponent, and leaves the defeated man unconscious on the ground. The spy, who has been following the Russian, attempts to get the map. In a terrific fight the Russian is killed by the Jap.

Upon the discovery of the body the next morning suspicion falls upon the inventor, who, when accused of the crime, imagines that he was really responsible for the death of the victim. By the successive discovery of important clues by a detective who ferrets out the real agent by clever deductive methods, the inventor's name is cleared.

The cast was excellent, each contributing an intelligent understanding to the needs of their roles.

"HIS DOUBLE" FOR UNIVERSAL BASED ON FRENCH NOVEL

MARGARET HAVEY, for two years a celebrated photo playwright and now a Universal scenario writer, has scenariozed a French novel, the play in which Wilton Lackaye will appear. "His Double" promises to be a strong play, full of intensely interesting scenes.

"THE SCARLET SIN"

(Broadway Universal Features—Four Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

IT is this kind of a production that scores instantaneous success before any class of audience. It contains a tremendous appeal as a result of its red-blooded story, which shows a minister fighting against monstrous odds both in his family and amongst his diocese, a hard and crude collection of miners. In both instances he faces seemingly inevitable failure, but by continual perseverance he wins success.

Herbert Bosworth, exhibiting his usual amazing versatility, has adapted himself to the role of the minister in a most gratifying style. He is continually the center of attraction, endowing his part wth a magnetism that cannot be disregarded. His manly physique is another asset in his behalf, as Eric is a minister that does not hesitate to use his fists at the right moment.

The power of the story lies in the compelling influence exercised by the minister over the horde of rough and drunken miners. He succeeds at length in bringing them to terms with their employer. On the other hand, his wife becomes unspeakably bored with her humdrum existence and elopes with an old lover. She returns to see her husband marry his ward. Her last act is to save her child from the burning house, and by so doing she is mortally injured.

The mining camp scenes of the picture are stirringly realistic. The street scene is good, and also those supposed to be below the earth. The scenes about the mouth of the mine after the explosion are very well handled. In photography, too, the reels are all very good.

The support furnished Mr. Bosworth is especially fine. Jane Novak, as his wife, plays exceedingly well, while his ward is taken by Grace Thompson. Frank Elliot is the lover, while the remainder of the roles are handled with care. Otis Turner produced the picture, so its merits of direction can easily be imagined.

It is a safe assertion to make that from the time the minister commences his unequal fight with the ruffians of the mining town, continuing, even though his wife deserts him, until at last he restores peace to the town and happiness to his home, no witness of the picture will be at all disinterested. The writer, Olga Printzen Clark, has well brought out the salient heart-interest features of the story, and as produced it makes a feature not to be missed.

"SUNDAY"

(Lederer-World Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

GEORGE W. LEDERER, producer, director and adaptor of "Sunday," has deftly managed to instill into his work some human and at times very humorous touches. These combined with the original trend of the story cause it to be a most pleasing and creditable production.

Viewing it from the point of dramatic construction the picture is a creditable example of logical and convincing work. The story amuses and entertains us over its entire length, suspense is practically always retained, while interest in the various characters grows as the picture advances.

Most of the comedy is furnished by the quartette of lumbermen who are left as protectors for an orphaned girl. Charles Trowbridge, William H. Tooker, Albert Hart and Adolph Link comprise this comedy four and their gyrations while attempting to cater to the wants of their ward are truly laughable.

On the other hand, two daring falls taken by Barney McPhee, who plays the villain, constitute a short series of very thrilling scenes. Then, too, the development of the plot creates not a few intense moments, and the climax, which occupies practically all of the last reel is well worked up.

In the leading roles Reine Davies and Montagu Love render most acceptable performances, while others in the cast are Charles Dixon and Jeanette Bageard.

Photographically the picture is very good, while the exteriors, some of them filmed in the environs of a lumber camp, are quite realistic. The interiors are entirely fitting.

The plot outlines the important phases in the life of the orphaned girl. Her lover kills a man that thought to betray her. Later when she is staying with her aunt in England she meets and falls in love with dead man's brother. Thinking that she can never marry him she returns to her former home. But the Englishman follows her and after learning the truth of the matter is eager to pardon the man who did the killing.

"THE FIGHTING HOPE"

(Lasky—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM RESSMAN ANDREWS

"THE FIGHTING HOPE" tells the pathetic story of a woman's faith in a man thoroughly unprincipled. Laura Hope Crews portrays the trusting wife with naturalness and conviction. Anna Granger is a part calling for an actress' best moments.

ANN GRANGER, THE TRUSTING WIFE, AT THE PARTING.

It requires a tender conception of a sensitive character, deeply in love with her husband, and ready to make sacrifices for him and her children. Other traits of the character are determination, an indomitable purpose, and a willingness to exercise self-sacrifice.

These qualities are accentuated in the acting of Laura Hope Crews, whose opposite in the cast is Gerald Ward, in the "thankless" role of a bad husband, Robert Harold Granger. Thankless, for the playing of a despicable character well does not always get the recognition it should from an audience.

Granger is almost a melodrama type, as he has no redeeming qualities. Sympathy is completely alienated from the man in the absence of the slightest touch of human feeling. Not once, for instance, does he show a momentary interest in his children, for whose future his wife is ready to make great sacrifices.

Not a cent of the money he gains by dishonest means does he use for the comfort of his family. He spends it all on the "adventuress," a character assumed with ability by Cleo Ridgeley, an actress whose beauty and cleverness creates a desire to see her cast for more agreeable ingenue parts.

Billy Elmer, as Detective Fletcher, was subordinated to a minor role, in strong contrast to the prominent role played by him in the recent production of "The Clue."

Numerous scenes tinted green, notably in the part showing Granger, shot by the prison guards, falling over the garden wall of the Temple mansion, added pleasing color contrast to the other parts of the film.

Robert Granger, cashier of a bank, certifies a check of an old depositor, Brady, for $700,000, after the president of the institution, Temple, refuses on account of the man's lack of funds to cover the amount. Granger is bribed by the offer of a bonus of $100,000.

The check is presented, and the bank is obliged to cash the paper. The next day in a panic there is a run on the trust company, and it is compelled to go out of business.

Granger's wife believes her husband has been made a scapegoat for the president, and enters the bank official's office as a secretary, after Granger is sent to prison, in hopes of finding evidence of Temple's guilt.

Shortly after this she learns the real state of affairs. The husband is killed in an effort to escape an armed posse, and she is free to marry Temple whose good qualities have not failed to impress her.

"DR. RAMEAU"

(Fox Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY H. S. FULD

DIRECTOR WILL S. DAVIS, of the Fox Film Corporation has scored another triumph. Perhaps the greatest achievement is this, his latest, and with Frederick Perry in the title role of Dr. Rameau, there is a combination hard to beat.

The entire cast in this master work, is made up of principals that are alive to their respective parts and to single out any of them would not be fair to the rest, they are all so good. And yet special mention might be made of the director for such attention to detail, such painstaking care in the small matters, such masterly handling of the interior settings, and perhaps the greatest feat of all—a storm scene or series of storm scenes that are probably unparalleled even in this present day of "big things."

The character of Dr. Rameau in the story of the same name, by George Ohnet, is certainly a complex one, and its interpretation by Frederick Perry leaves nothing to be desired from any standpoint. Too much credit, however, cannot be given Mr. Perry for his representation of a man going suddenly insane, when he, in the character of Dr. Rameau, touching a secret spring in his departed wife's escritoire releases a panel that discloses a packet of letters tied with a faded ribbon.

Reading one of the letters, a note from her lover, discloses to his distorted mind the fact that Adrian (Jean Sothern) is not his daughter. His subsequent acting, coupled with Miss Sothern's, when in his raving he drives her out into the raging storm outside, certainly holds the observer in a tense grip that is sustained till the climax. In fact, these storm scenes would seem almost too real, if such a condition could be.

Others included in the cast are, George Alison as Dr. Talavanne, Stuart Holmes as Munzell the artist, and Dorothy Bernard as Conchita, Dr. Rameau's wife.

A good interesting story for the plot, a splendid cast for the respective principals, masterly acting, excellent photography, settings realistic in the extreme, such is "Dr. Rameau."
